CHAMBLEE - DORAVILLE SITE SURVEY

for

CITIZENS & SOUTHERN NATIONAL BANK

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Prepared by:

E-305

[redacted] - TRAVELER'S DATA SURVEY

for

[redacted] NATIONAL BANK

OBJECTIVE

This survey was undertaken to determine the business potential for a branch banking facility and to study the general characteristics of the area, its population distribution and the location of principal business and industrial firms.

E- 306

AREA COVERED

From a point at the intersection of Carroll Avenue and Buford Highway, a radius of approximately 2-1/2 miles was drawn. Buford Highway roughly divides this area into two parts.

The territory north of Buford Highway includes all of Chamblee and part of Doraville. This area has been designated as AREA "A".

The territory south of Buford Highway includes part of Doraville and both sides of Buford Highway. This has been designated as AREA "B".

These two areas are outlined in red on the attached map.

PROCEDURE

A house count was made on each street in each area. In order to evaluate the approximate economic characteristics of these homes, a very general grouping was made of the estimated value, as follows:

High	$25,000 and over
Medium	$10,000 to $25,000
Low	Less than $10,000

Small business firms were interviewed as to number of employees and present banking affiliation.

Large business firms were questioned as to payroll procedure, credit unions and suggested banking hours.

FINDINGS

There is a total of 7,945 homes in the two areas studied. Of these, 11.1% would be considered in a low income bracket. However, it should be noted that in AREA "A" where there are more business firms, the percentage of low income homes is 14.5%.

There is a total of 269 business firms employing LESS than 50 persons. Total employment for these firms is 2,336. The 21 firms employing MORE than 50 persons have a total employment of 5,517. Of this number, 5,120 are employed at General Motors.

Sears maintains a warehouse (for Kerrybrooke Fashions) in AREA "A" but no information was available from this company.

The DeKalb National Bank is about equi-distant from either area under study.

A large number of respondents expressed the urgent need for a bank in the area.

FINDINGS (Continued)

All of the 21 large firms pay their employees by check during the morning hours.

In response to a question regarding banking hours, morning hours appear to be unimportant. However, 15 of these firms suggested that late afternoon closing would be helpful.

COMPARISON OF 2 AREAS

It will be noted that 64% of the homes are in AREA "A", although this area has a higher percentage of low income homes than AREA "B".

Of the 92 business firms listed in AREA "B", all but 5 are located on Buford Highway.

If Buford Highway was included in AREA "A", the greatest potential of business for a new banking facility would be in AREA "A".

The following tables and exhibits are attached:

TABLE I	Shows house count by economic groups.
TABLE II	Summary of business firms in each area.
TABLE III	Banking activities of business firms in both areas.
TABLE IV	List of business firms with LESS than 50 employees in each area.
TABLE V	List of business firms with MORE than 50 employees in each area.
TABLE IV	Tabulation of payroll procedure of total firms with more than 50 employees.
MAP	Shows AREA "A" and AREA "B" outlined in red.

MEMORANDUM FOR: File

RE: Proposed C & S Park National Bank

I talked with Blaine Kelly today about his reviewing the draft of the lease for the proposed C & S Park National Bank, and asked what was the final outcome of conversations with him about the possibility of the C & S Park National Bank buying the building after construction (into a real estate holding company).

Blaine stated that our bank location is forward in front of a larger building with driveway going behind. The exact piece of property is very irregular, but could be separated. He stated they haven't felt or been told that this could not be done. However, in talking with folks in our Real Estate Loan Department, he stated that they inferred that an investor might take a dim view of this arrangement (relative to financing the larger building).

Apparently, this matter has been kicked around a great deal, and if plausible, a long-term lease on land can be considered selling that building to us.

I mentioned a re-purchase agreement for them to buy the property back if we purchase the building. However, he stated that an option had been mentioned for the bank to purchase in 50 years, which was "not palatable" to him.

He stated that he would like to wait several days "until several matters jelled". At that time he may be interested in discussing with us the sale of the building.

We can follow up with him later, and in the meantime, I'm having him review the lease for the land and completed building. Lease is to be between the Citizens & Southern Holding Company and Landmark's of DeKalb, Inc.

Civil Action No. [illegible]

AFFIDAVIT OF WILLIAM B. CAMP,
COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY

City of Washington) )ss District of Columbia)

William B. Camp, having been first duly sworn, deposes and says:

My name is William B. Camp. I am Comptroller of the Currency of the United States of America. As such, I am charged by law with, among other duties, the supervision of national banks (that is, those banks chartered by authority of the United States of America) including specifically (i) determining whether or not a new charter should be granted to applicants desiring to form a new national bank; (ii) determining the soundness of the financial condition of existing national banks and suggesting and requiring steps to be made by such existing national banks if it is found that the financial condition of the particular national bank is not sound in all respects; and (iii) also, by Congressional mandate, I must consider the competitive implications of all mergers, branch applications and new bank charters. This, of cou[illegible] includes anti-competitive considerations which might restrain competition. Some of these duties are exercised through delegation thereof to appropriate officials and employees of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, pursuant to law.

I make this Affidavit for use in the above-styled action, and specifically for use in support of the motion by certain defendants that the statutory stay be lifted. I have the authority to make this Affidavit. This Affidavit is based upon information contained in the files of the Comptroller of the Currency. I have caused a search of the files relating to the organization and operation as national banks of (i) The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank ("C&S Park National"), and of the defendants now operating under State charters which were organized as national banks but have since converted to State banks, to-wit, (ii) The Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs ("C&S Sandy Springs") and (iii) The Citizens and Southern National Bank of Chamblee ("C&S Chamblee"). The statements in this Affidavit are based upon my review of relevant information from those files and, upon information and belief, the same are true and correct.

Each of the three defendant banks mentioned above - C&S Sandy Springs, C&S Chamblee and C&S Park National - were originally chartered as national banks. The charter was issued by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency after a careful examination of, among other things, the identity of those persons applying for the charter; their business and banking experience and associations; the proposed management for the bank; the likelihood of financial success of the proposed banks; and the proposed bank's ability to serve the convenience and needs of the community in which it was to be located. In each instance, the Comptroller of the Currency in considering the a plication was aware of, and took account of, the fact that the proposed new bank, its directors and management would be closely associated with The Citizens and Southern National Bank ("C&S National"). This fact represented a substantial favorable element in considering each of the applications. The participation of C&S National with the new bank and the availability of C&S National management to serve as executive officers of the new bank was deemed to be significant and to some extent controlling in establishing that the bank would be financially successful and could serve all of the banking needs of the potential customers. The relationships between C&S and these banks, and the contributions by C&S in the form of advice and service relationships, was instrumental in the decision for approval of the original charters for these banks by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency.

While C&S Sandy Springs and C&S Chamblee operated under a national bank charter (1959-1969 and 1960-1969, respectively) and during C&S National's entire history, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency had occasion regularly to consider the relationship between these banks and C&S National. Among other such occasions were the periodic examinations of the banks by national bank examiners. The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency was thus fully aware of the existence of the relationships between these banks and C&S National, including the various operating relationships more fully spelled out in the applications submitted on behalf of The Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point and The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation respecting the proposed mergers of those banks with certain of the defendants named above. The Comptroller of the Currency considered that existence of such relationships were in accordance with all applicable laws, and at no time objected to the existence of such relationship

While the Comptroller of the Currency at all times required of these banks, their management and their directors that all necessary operational and fiduciary responsibilities required by law in connection with the existence of these banks as separately chartered banks be adhered to, the Comptroller of the Currency understood that one of the purposes for establishing these banks was to make available to the management of these banks C&S expertise in certain portions of the Atlanta metropolitan area where C&S, by reason of Georgia branch banking laws, could not establish its own operations.

I am familiar with the current financial condition of C&S Park National and in particular with its capital structure. In the opinion of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, C&S Park National should, in accordance with sound banking practice, increase its capitalization by an additional $500,000. This recommendation has been made to management at C&S Park National. The only reason that, today, such a recommendation has not been more formally pressed has been the anticipation that C&S Park National would merge into C&S Emory.

I have read the Stipulation and Supplemental Stipulation submitted to the Court by the defendants. In the event the statutory stay is lifted and the correspondent associate banks allowed to merge as requested but the Court should ultimately order divestiture, an application for a national bank charter to operate one or more new banks as set forth in the aforesaid Stipulations would receive consideration by this Office. Assuming proposed stockholders in a new bank to be organized to take over the offices involved were qualified in terms of character, business and banking associations, etc., such application would have the advantage of the fact that the Comptroller of the Currency is familiar with the capabilities and potential for business of these existing offices, there being a record upon which to make that judgment by reason of their prior operation as separately chartered banks. Furthermore, such application for a national charter would be considered in light of the commitments made by C&S in the Stipulations, commitments which would make more likely the ability of a new bank to operate in a financially sound condition and to service the needs of bank customers and the community. On the other hand, if the banks are not allowed to be merged it is my opinion that C&S Park National will face significant operating problems, and, in all probability, the only practical solution would then be an "emergency" merger with another bank.

It is my further opinion that if the statutory stay is not lifted and if the mergers are not allowed to be consummated, public confidence in these five small banks will be lessened, management initiative will be chilled and ultimate viability of the banks will be threatened. If, thereupon the mergers are ultimately denied, and C&S ordered to withdraw its support, it is my opinion that these five small banks will be in difficulty, compounded by withdrawal of C&S leadership and the large diversity of stock ownership among the banks . . . . whereas granting the motion to lift the stay and implementation of the plan of divestiture (should the mergers be denied) would enhance their potential for success, since among other things, they could be organized in fewer more efficient unity and stockholder cohesion would promote effective leadership.

The other four banks (C&S Chamblee; C&S South DeKalb; C&S North Fulton, C&S Sandy Springs) involved in the mergers are not presently national banks, but on the basis of past knowledge gained in the industry it is my opinion that if the Court rules against such mergers and orders severance with C&S, these banks would suffer competitively and have management problems.

INTRODUCTION TO APPLICATION

An introductory statement is in order because this is not the usual of the mill Application.

This Application asks approval for the Citizens and Southern ("C&S") Bank of East Point to acquire the assets of the C&S Bank of Sandy Springs and the C&S Bank of North Fulton —all in Fulton County (outside of the City of Atlanta), Georgia. It is a companion to the Application of The C&S Emory Bank to acquire the assets of C&S Bank of Chamblee, C&S Bank of Tucker, C&S South DeKalb Bank, and C&S Park National Bank —all in DeKalb County, Georgia.

As the names suggest, this is a family affair—it is not the typical acquisition contemplated by the Bank Merger Act of 1966 or by any of the antitrust laws. It is the product of this sequence of circumstances:

(1) In the 1960's, branch banking in Georgia was restricted within municipal and village limits.

(2) The artificiality of that limitation was pronounced in the metropolitan Atlanta area, where the convenience and needs of the community at large demanded full service banking over the entire area—especially over all of Fulton and DeKalb Counties.

(3) To meet these needs and to supply C&S full service banking to those who sought it, the C&S Holding Company joined hands with business leaders in the various communities to give birth to C&S Sandy Springs and C&S North Fulton.

(4) These local business leaders supplied needed sponsorship and attracted shareholders and customers; C&S Holding made a 52 share investment permitted by law and supplied the heart of banking, C&S style, to-wit: Experienced, responsible management, staff and employees trained in the C&S system; latest equipment, methods and know-how; accounting services and up-to-date systems; back-up lending capacity; coordinated community-wide C&S advertising program—in short, the total metropolitan banking capacity the communities had asked for. These new banks became known as "correspondent associates" to reflect the closeness of the relationship.

(5) The shareholders and customers of the correspondent associate banks were attracted and are retained by the sponsorship of C&S Holding Company; the closeness of the correspondent associate relationship within the C&S system and the supply of active management by C&S Holding. They have anticipated the perfection of ownership by C&S Holding as applicable laws permit . . . . C&S Holding has granted use of its name and has furnished these services, management and direction in reliance upon their being sought and followed and upon fulfillment of ownership as applicable laws permit . . . . . The sponsorship, name, services, management and direction have been furnished, used and followed and as a result the correspondent associate banks are virtually operated and directed as de facto branches in the C&S system. Stockholders, customers and competitors have recognized that fact.

(6) Through the 1960's the correspondent associates, along with the C&S National Bank and the whole C&S family, have supplied the best of banking services in their areas—limited and restrained only by the very legal artificialities that caused their creation.

(7) Effective January 1, 1971, branch banking is to be permitted countywide in Georgia, and so the de facto arrangements of the 1960's may become the de jure adoptions of 1971. Had the law been otherwise in the 1960's, the original arrangements would have been de novo branches of C&S Bank of East Point.

It is relevant to note that the two major competitors of the C&S in Atlanta, to-wit: Trust Company of Georgia and First National Bank of Atlanta, have experienced precisely the same history, for precisely the same reasons, and have filed or are filing precisely comparable applications with the Federal Reserve System and the Comptroller of the Currency, respectively. It is also relevant to our Application to note that the same sequences occurred in Richmond County with Georgia Railroad and Banking Company.

Finally, it is entirely relevant to note that all of the major banks competitive with C&S in Fulton and DeKalb Counties are applying for de novo branches to meet the convenience and the needs of the communities outside present city limits.

Considered together then, the acquisitions contemplated by this Application can produce no anti-competitive results under the Bank Merger Act or under any of the antitrust laws since no change is contemplated—except as to form. No competition now exists between C&S Bank of East Point and the two correspondent associate banks involved, and so no competition can be eliminated. The same relationship will continue so far as competitive factors with other banks and financial institutions and customers are concerned. The only change will be the simplification of these relationships.

Thus we ask favorable treatment of the Application—to perfect and fulfill the efforts we made in the 1960's to respond to the calls and give full service banking to the metropolitan Atlanta communities outside the city limits of Atlanta, Decatur and East Point and to make the stockholders of those fine little banks full-fledged stockholders of the C&S National—a fulfillment made possible for the first time by permitted countywide branch banking in 1971.

The original and thirteen copies of this application and all documents, schedules, and exhibits are to be filed with the Supervising Examiner of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation of the District in which the head office of the Applicant Bank is located. Inquiries concerning the preparation of the application, schedules, and exhibits should be directed to that office.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reserves the right to require such additional information as it may deem necessary with respect to any matters in connection with this application, and also the Applicant Bank may supplement the data asked for, if desired. Although final action on an application will not be taken by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation until the State Banking Authority of the State in which the Applicant Bank is located has approved or expressed its intent to approve the proposed transaction, the filing of an application need not be delayed awaiting such action by State Authorities.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will furnish a form of notice and advise the Applicant Bank as to the appropriate intervals for publication of such notice under the requirements of Section 18(c) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, as amended. (12 USC 1828(c)). This subsection of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act is printed on the following page.

Section 18(c) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act
(As Amended)

"Without prior written consent by the Corporation, no insured bank shall (1) merge or consolidate with any noninsured bank or institution or convert into a noninsured bank or institution or (2) assume liability to pay any deposits made in, or similar liabilities of, any noninsured bank or institution or (3) transfer assets to any noninsured bank or institution in consideration of the assumption of liabilities for any portion of the deposits made in such insured bank. No insured bank shall convert into an insured State bank if its capital stock, or its surplus will be less than the capital stock or surplus, respectively, of the converting bank at the time of the shareholders' meeting approving such conversion, without prior written consent by the Comptroller of the Currency if the resulting bank is to be a District bank, or by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System if the resulting bank is to be a State member bank (except a District bank), or by the Corporation if the resulting bank is to be a State nonmember insured bank (except a District bank). No insured bank shall merge or consolidate with any other insured bank or, either directly or indirectly, acquire the assets of, or assume liability to pay any deposits made in, any other insured bank without the prior written consent (i) of the Comptroller of the Currency if the acquiring, assuming, or resulting bank is to be a national bank or a District bank, or (ii) of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System if the acquiring, assuming, or resulting bank is to be a State member bank (except a District bank), or (iii) of the Corporation if the acquiring, assuming, or resulting bank is to be a nonmember insured bank (except a District bank). Notice of any proposed merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of liabilities, in a form approved by the Comptroller, the Board, or the Corporation, as the case may be, shall (except in a case where the furnishing of reports under the seventh sentence of this subsection is not required) be published, at appropriate intervals during a period (prior to the approval or disapproval of the transaction) at least as long as the period allowed under such sentence for furnishing such reports, in a newspaper of general circulation in the community or communities where the main offices of the banks involved are located (or, if there is no such newspaper in any such community, then in the newspaper of general circulation published nearest thereto). In granting or withholding consent under this subsection, the Comptroller, the Board, or the Corporation, as the case may be, shall consider the financial history and condition of each of the banks involved, the adequacy of its capital structure, its future earnings prospects, the general character of its management, the convenience and needs of the community to be served, and whether or not its corporate powers are consistent with the purposes of this Act. In the case of a merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of liabilities, the appropriate agency shall also take into consideration the effect of the transaction on competition (including any tendency toward monopoly), and shall not approve the transaction unless, after considering all of such factors, it finds the transaction to be in the public interest. In the interests of uniform standards, before acting on a merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of liabilities under this subsection, the agency (unless it finds that it must act immediately in order to prevent the probable failure of one of the banks involved) shall request a report on the competitive factors involved from the Attorney General and the other two banking agencies referred to in this subsection (which report shall be furnished within thirty calendar days of the date on which it is requested, or within ten calendar days of such date if the requesting agency advises the Attorney General and the other two banking agencies that an emergency exists requiring expeditious action). The Comptroller, the Board, and the Corporation shall each include in its annual report to the Congress a description of each merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of liabilities approved by it during the period covered by the report, along with the following information: the name and total resources of each bank involved; whether a report has been submitted by the Attorney General hereunder, and, if so, a summary by the Attorney General of the substance of such report; and a statement by the Comptroller, the Board, or the Corporation, as the case may be, of the basis for its approval. No insured State nonmember bank (except a District bank) shall, without the prior consent of the Corporation, reduce the amount or retire any part of its common or preferred capital stock, or retire any part of its capital notes or debentures."

The Citizens and Southern Banks

Branch Banking Laws of the State of Georgia and Their Effect Upon Extension of Citizens and Southern Banking Services in the Atlanta Area

A. Georgia Laws Relating to Branch Banking 1919-1960.

The proposed acquisitions by The Citizens and Southern Emory and East Point Banks of substantially all of the assets and assumption by them of all deposit liabilities of, respectively, the Citizens and Southern Banks of Chamblee, Tucker, South DeKalb, and The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank, and The Citizens and Southern Banks of Sandy Springs and North Fulton affect most directly the Atlanta metropolitan trading area. The effects and benefits of this transaction are discussed in some detail later in this Application. It is essential, however, in understanding the reasons for the proposed transaction and in measuring its effects first to review the history of the laws of the State of Georgia which deal with branch banking. The current banking picture in the Atlanta area is basically a reflection of the history of the branch banking laws of the State of Georgia, and of the Citizens and Southern system's attempt to fulfill its corporate policy of furnishing a full range of banking services in all those areas of the State which, by reason of business and population expansion, require the presence of active and competitive commercial banking alternatives to maintain and give impetus to the growth of their economies.

At the heart of the Citizens and Southern system is The Citizens and Southern National Bank. The Citizens and Southern National Bank was formerly The Citizens and Southern Bank (a Georgia banking corporation) which resulted from the merger in 1906 of the Citizens Bank of Savannah and the Southern Bank of Georgia. The principal office of the resulting banking institution was at that time in Savannah, Georgia. From 1906 through 1927, The Citizens and Southern Bank (as a state bank) established one or more branches in Athens, Atlanta, Augusta, Macon and Valdosta, Georgia. In 1927, the state bank, The Citizens and Southern Bank, was converted into The Citizens and Southern National Bank (hereinafter referred to as "C&S National"). The Citizens and Southern National Bank continued the previously established branches of The Citizens and Southern Bank. C&S National's home office has remained in Savannah, although its principal executive office is now located in Atlanta.

The Citizens and Southern Bank had been able to establish these branches because there was no legal restriction whatsoever on branch banking in Georgia prior to 1919, when the first comprehensive state banking law was adopted (Ga. Laws 1919, pp. 135, et seq.). The 1919 statute established no geographical limitations, but did set standards for the establishment of branch banks, subject to determination by the State Superintendent of Banks.

The year 1927 is a key year in the history of branch banking in the State of Georgia. In that year, the Georgia Legislature passed a statute which prescribed the method of operation of branch banks already established and prohibited absolutely the establishment of new or additional branch banks thereafter. The Citizens and Southern (sometimes hereinafter referred to as "C&S") banking system therefore, as well as other banking institutions in the State of Georgia, were after the 1927 statute "frozen" into the alignment of offices which had been established prior to 1927—even though the population of Georgia continued to grow and shift from one location to another, and within the various communities.

Facing the restrictions placed upon branching in 1927, and to meet emerging community needs for banking services, three bank holding companies were created in the State of Georgia during the period from 1927 through 1929. These were (1) the Citizens and Southern Holding Company (hereinafter referred to as the "C&S Holding Company"), which is still actively in business today; (2) Trust Company of Georgia Associates (the holding company of Trust Company of Georgia, a major Atlanta-based bank), also today active in the State of Georgia, with affiliated banks in the cities of Augusta, Columbus, Macon, Savannah and Rome, and in unincorporated DeKalb County; and (3) Hamilton National Associates (a holding company of the Hamilton National Bank of Chattanooga, Tennessee, which today maintains an interest in one Georgia bank located in North Georgia close to the Tennessee line).

The primary business purpose of the Citizens and Southern Holding Company during the years 1927 through 1929 was to afford a means of carrying out The Citizens and Southern National bank's corporate policy dedicated to the proposition that banking is, in the first instance, a public service. Through December of 1929, the activity of the Holding Company was limited to the acquisition of four state banks in smaller communities of Georgia—Dublin, Thomaston, Albany, and LaGrange. With the exception of the bank in LaGrange, each of these banks was acquired by the Holding Company in order to make banking services available in Georgia communities formerly served by banks which had failed. The bank in LaGrange was acquired from family owners desirous of selling in order to enter other business. Each of these banks is still owned and operated by the Holding Company today.

In 1929, the Georgia Legislature dealt again with branch banking, in three statutes passed at that time. The (1) first statute allowed the creation of new branch offices in cities having a population not less than 80,000 nor more than 125,000, by banks having their home office in such cities. (2) The second provided that banks having their home office in municipalities with a population of not less than 200,000 might establish branch offices in those municipalities. (3) The third statute, though not in terms a banking statute, provided for extension of the city limits of the City of Atlanta to include as "boroughs" of Atlanta, the communities of East Point, Hapeville, College Park (all in Fulton County); and Decatur, and Avondale Estates (in DeKalb County). Each of the latter five communities was at that time, and is now, a "suburb" of the City of Atlanta. Addition of the population of the City of Atlanta with the boroughs of East Point, Hapeville, College

Park, Decatur, and Avondale Estates, according to the 1930 Census, totalled in excess of 200,000. Pursuant to the 1929 law, the First National Bank of Atlanta and the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta (each having its home office in the City of Atlanta) established branch offices in the "borough" of Decatur and thus operate directly their own offices today in DeKalb County, the Georgia county with greatest recent population growth. C&S National, although it had at the time three branch offices in Atlanta proper, was not, under the terms of the new law, able to establish additional banking offices in Atlanta, since the home office of C&S National remained in Savannah. (It should be noted that the 1929 statute including in the City of Atlanta as boroughs the various suburbs noted above was repealed in 1931.)

Prior to the 1927 statute, of course, branch banks (that is to say, an office in one community of a bank whose home office was elsewhere) were on an equal competitive basis with "home office" banks in the same city. Thus, C&S National at that time was on an equal competitive footing in Atlanta through its Atlanta branch, with the various banks having their home offices in Atlanta. All this was changed by the 1927, and more particularly, by the 1929 statutes, which remained in effect until 1960.

As the economy of the State of Georgia grew, and the demand for banking services increased in metropolitan communities through the state, C&S National could not compete adequately with banks which, by accident of history, had their home offices in cities other than Savannah. This situation was particularly acute in the fast growing metropolitan areas, especially where growth typically occurred outside the corporate limits of the municipality involved. If the C&S system were to grow in order to meet the needs of the State of Georgia, it could, and did, grow only through utilization of C&S Holding Company.

B. Extension of Citizens and Southern Services in the Atlanta Area, 1929-1960.

(1) The City of Atlanta.

A characteristic example of the efforts undertaken by the C&S system to meet the convenience and needs of a given metropolitan area is the history of the C&S National and the Holding Company in the Atlanta area. It has already been noted that for a time at the end of the 1920's, some of the home office Atlanta banks were able to establish direct branches in the suburbs of Atlanta, including Decatur. After 1929, the Fulton National Bank, Trust Company of Georgia, First National Bank of Atlanta and the Bank of Georgia (now National Bank of Georgia), major banking competitors of the C&S National all having their principal office in Atlanta, also undertook the establishment of new offices throughout the City of Atlanta proper. The C&S National, on the other hand, was unable to establish any additional banking offices in the City of Atlanta (or any other city except Savannah, for that matter) and thus found itself in an adverse competitive situation.

In the Atlanta area, therefore, C&S National by 1948 found itself locked in to the then rather restrictive corporate limits of Atlanta, as the population of that city grew and moved away from the "center city," and, within the city itself, limited to its three branches established prior to 1927, all of which were located in the downtown area. In order that the C&S system could offer its banking services at other locations in the populous areas to the north of Atlanta, C&S Holding Company acquired in 1949 more than ninety per cent of the stock and control of the Citizens and Southern Bank of Atlanta and, thereafter, of the Citizens and Southern Buckhead Bank in 1951 (both of which were established, state-chartered banks). These banks were operated as part of the C&S system. Their customers had access to the technical services and facilities of C&S National. Management of the two banks was drawn from the staff of C&S National and could call upon the banking resources of C&S National. Later, these two "suburban" banks were merged. In the 1950's the city limits of Atlanta were extended to include the areas in which the resulting bank was located, and in 1960, laws making it possible for C&S National to operate offices in those areas were adopted. The "suburban" Holding Company Atlanta bank was thus merged into the C&S National Bank and its offices became offices of the C&S National branch located in the City of Atlanta.

(2) Extension of Citizens and Southern Services to Other Communities in Fulton and DeKalb Counties, 1929-1960.

Outside the city limits of Atlanta proper as they were extended over the years, the C&S System, through the Holding Company, undertook the management of three additional affiliate banks in the Atlanta metropolitan area—East Point, Emory and DeKalb. These banks were located in communities having separate and distinct identities of their own--being primarily residential and small business towns or villages where residents and businesses had need of increased banking facilities to meet their needs. Two of these communities are in DeKalb County, and one in Fulton County. This Holding Company growth was permissible under the Georgia laws relating to branch banking, which at the times involved placed no restrictions on bank holding company expansion. In 1956, however, the Georgia Legislature passed a Bank Holding Company Act, freezing and limiting Georgia bank holding companies to the future acquisition of only 15% ownership in banks, and in 1960 a further limiting law was passed reducing permissible ownership a holding company could acquire in banks other than those it controlled to 5%. This latter Act is in effect today. Consequently, since 1956 the C&S System has been unable to expand by means of direct ownership of local banks by the Holding Company.

a. The Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point. This bank was the outgrowth of a series of unfortunate economic experiences on the part of a group of banks in the area of East Point, Georgia. The bank was chartered in 1946 as East Point Commercial Bank, and its assets and liabilities were in turn assumed in 1947 by the newly formed First National Bank of East Point. Thereafter, in November, 1948, when the "group" effort began to encounter difficulties, the Holding Company acquired an interest in the bank and ultimately expanded this to approximately 90% of the stock of what is now the Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point.

East Point, Georgia has been an incorporated municipality, and a major growth area in Fulton County south of Atlanta—indeed, the City of East Point is now the seventh largest city in the State of Georgia, even though it is thought of as an Atlanta suburb. The Holding Company acquired its interest in the Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point in order adequately to serve an area of Fulton County which, though not initially growing as fast as Atlanta or the DeKalb suburbs, encompassed a significant residential and business community. As in the case of the suburban Atlanta banks in which interest was obtained by the Holding Company as set forth above, the Holding Company was used by the C&S system in the case of East Point for the purpose of extending C&S services to residents and businesses in an area of Atlanta where the National Bank itself was prohibited from operating directly.

b. The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank. Citizens and Southern Emory Bank is a banking corporation organized in 1950 under the laws of the State of Georgia, all of whose stock (save for directors' qualifying shares) was subscribed for initially and has been held since then by the Holding Company. The C&S Emory Bank is located in a community of DeKalb County which has historically been a center of residential and academic growth near Atlanta. Again, however, Georgia laws regarding branch banking prohibited the National Bank from providing banking services to residents of this community. Utilization of the Holding Company was once again the answer.

As the community has grown, and as authorized by rulings of the State Banking Superintendent with respect to the limits of the unincorporated "village" of Emory, the Citizens and Southern Emory Bank has established two additional banking offices—one in 1964 and the second in 1968. In this way, the Citizens and Southern System has been able to serve not only the community as it originally existed, but also the expanding shopping and retail business areas in the vicinity as well.

c. The Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank. This bank was chartered in 1948 and opened for business in August of 1949 as The Citizens Bank of DeKalb. The bank was located in the incorporated municipality of Avondale Estates, in DeKalb County. Avondale Estates was, and is, a small residential community with a central shopping district, surrounded by residences and some small businesses. The bank encountered business difficulty, and the Holding Company was offered the chance to acquire a substantial interest in the expectation that operation by the Holding Company would better serve the banking needs of the Avondale Estates community and, in 1954, the Holding Company acquired an interest of approximately 90%, and the bank's name was changed to The Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank. Thereafter, the bank was operated as a part of the C&S system through the Holding Company.

By 1968, the character of the Avondale Estates community and its surrounding area had changed to a decidedly more shopping center-apartment-subdivision nature than had previously been the case. Since Avondale Estates was incorporated, the Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank could not locate banking offices outside its municipal limits, and this proved to be a substantial inconvenience for residents and businesses in the area. This problem was alleviated in 1966, when legislation was enacted changing the municipal boundary, with the result that the Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank thereafter was located outside Avondale Estates. This made it possible for the Citizens and Southern Belvedere Bank, a state bank organized as a "correspondent associate" (see below) with the cooperation of the C&S system for the purpose of serving the newly opened Belvedere Shopping Center and surrounding areas. At the time of this merger, the bank continued under the name of The Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank, and it presently operates two offices.

After 1960, the Georgia laws regarding branch banking and bank holding company operation were such that, in the Atlanta area, the Citizens and Southern system could not operate its own offices (either offices of the National Bank or offices of the Holding Company affiliates in Atlanta and Fulton County described above) except within the City of Atlanta itself; within the City of East Point; within the incorporated municipality of Avondale Estates, and within the village of the community known as Emory (the limits of which had been set by the Superintendent of Banking according to Georgia law). Given the relatively small areas of Fulton and DeKalb Counties occupied by Atlanta and the three communities other than Atlanta (and the extremely small area of DeKalb County included within the city limits of Atlanta) as compared to the great size of that portion of Fulton and DeKalb Counties located outside these communities, the consequence was that the C&S system was unable to offer banking services to most of Fulton and DeKalb Counties. And it was in 1960 that the remarkable growth of just this part of the Atlanta metropolitan area began in earnest. For instance, the population of DeKalb County has increased from 256,782 in 1960 to 414,085 in 1970. Fulton County has grown from 556,326 in 1960 to 596,700 in 1970, substantially all of this growth coming in areas located outside the City of Atlanta. Most of this growth was in the form of light industry, shopping centers, and office parks in the business sectors, together with subdivisions and apartment complexes in the residential sectors. This mix of growth, if it were to continue and if the prosperity of the Atlanta metropolitan area were to be maintained, required that the full range of banking services available from the C&S system be offered there. Local identification was in many ways important, but C&S felt that the remarkable expansion and prosperity of the Atlanta area outside the City could be maintained only if the full range of C&S services were available there.

C&S, therefore, in 1960 initiated a program of working in cooperation with local residents to establish C&S "correspondent associate" banks in areas where the convenience and needs of the communities involved required the availability of full service banking and where interest was such as to encourage the establishment of a C&S banking alternative in the community. In effect, establishment of the correspondent associate banks constituted a form of de novo branching by the C&S system.

The C&S correspondent associate programs in Fulton and DeKalb Counties have worked generally as follows. C&S personnel in cooperation with interested residents and businessmen joined to establish, under state or federal law a bank, or, in the case of the community of Tucker, in DeKalb County, to reorganize an existing bank. The Holding Company purchased in the bank the allowable 5% interest. An officer of C&S system, with sufficient banking experience, was recommended by C&S to the Board of Directors of the correspondent associate bank for the office of President of the bank and, if elected, left the employment of C&S to take up these duties. In most cases there also was an infusion of additional management by C&S, and such infusion continued through the years as circumstances required. Management of each correspondent associate has been responsive to the general policy decisions of C&S. Officers of the correspondent associates attend the regular meetings of C&S officers in Atlanta. The correspondent associate banks received all aid which C&S gives to its branches and affiliates in serving the banking needs of the public. The various banking resources of C&S National, such as advice in connection with investment portfolio, market research, computer services for handling banking transactions, and credit and accounting procedures were placed at the disposal of the correspondent associates. Permission was given to each correspondent associate bank to use the "C&S" name and logo, and these banks also benefitted from coordinated advertising campaigns for C&S services. Employees of these banks have been eligible to participate in C&S pension and profit sharing plans and C&S's various employee benefits (such as group life, hospitalization, accident and long-term disability insurance) have been extended to cover employees of the correspondent associate banks in the Atlanta area.

In response to the patterns of growth and development in Fulton and Dekalb Counties the six correspondent associate banks whose acquisition by the C&S system is the subject of the two current companion Applications were organized from late 1959 through 1969 as follows.

(1) The Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs ("Sandy Springs"). Sandy Springs, Georgia, is a "bedroom" community adjoining the City of Atlanta, to the north, in Fulton County. The Sandy Springs area represented the first example of the new "boom" in residential and business growth in North Fulton County in the early 1960's. Sandy Springs was organized with the assistance of C&S as a national banking association in December, 1959, as The Citizens National Bank of Sandy Springs. The Holding Company purchased a 5% interest in the outstanding stock of the Sandy Springs bank. In October, 1969, Sandy Springs was converted to a State chartered bank under the laws of the State of Georgia as the Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs. It conducts full service banking operations as a main office in Sandy Springs. Substantial development of residential, commercial, medical and retail facilities in the immediate area of Sandy Springs all resulted in part from the availability of full C&S banking services through and from Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs.

Mr. Louis J. Fortuna, President of Sandy Springs since January, 1965, had been employed by C&S National since 1948. Two other officers of Sandy Springs had been employed by C&S National before coming to Sandy Springs.

(2) The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee ("Chamblee"). The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee was organized as a national banking association in May, 1960, as Chamblee National Bank. C&S participated with a group of businessmen from the Chamblee, Georgia area of DeKalb County in the organization of the Bank, and the Holding Company purchased 5% of the bank's outstanding stock. In October, 1969, Chamblee converted to a state-chartered bank under the laws of Georgia, as The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee.

The town of Chamblee is typical of the several communities in the Atlanta area which have contributed to growth in the Atlanta area. The town includes both residential and business areas. Businesses are both local in nature, such as car dealerships and pharmacies, and national and regional in the scope of their activities. Chamblee conducts full service banking operations through a main office and one branch office. Substantial development of residential and commercial real estate in its primary service area has been significant to Chamblee's success. Chamblee today operates, in addition to its home office, one other office within the town of Chamblee.

The current President of Chamblee is Mr. Hubert L. Harris, who has served in that post since January, 1964. Prior to joining Chamblee, Mr. Harris had been employed by C&S National since 1926. An Assistant Vice President of Chamblee, serving there since 1963, had previously been an employee of C&S since 1946.

(3) The Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker ("Tucker"). This bank was chartered under the laws of Georgia as the Bank of Tucker in 1919. Through the early 1950's the community of Tucker, in DeKalb County, was predominantly rural in character and this bank served a very limited market, and, consequently, offered very limited banking services. The bank was controlled by a single family prominent in the Tucker community, and owning substantial other businesses there. As the Tucker area began to develop rapidly as both a significant suburban residential market as well as a center for industrial and commercial growth, the bank because of limited services and lack of adequate management, found itself unable to meet the increasing need for a full range of banking services in the Tucker area. The principal stockholders did not desire to undertake direction of a full service bank. To meet these needs effectively, the principal stockholders of the Bank of Tucker requested the cooperation of C&S. Thereupon, in 1965, the Holding Company acquired a 5% interest in the outstanding stock of the Bank of Tucker and cooperated in its upgrading, and Tucker became a correspondent associate. At this time, stockholders also voted to change the name of the bank to the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker. The Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker now operates two offices in the Tucker area, offering the full range of C&S banking services.

Mr. Gus L. Connelly has been President of the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker since 1955, and prior to that time had been employed by C&S National since 1958. Two other officers of Tucker have substantial previous employment with C&S National.

(4) The Citizens and Southern Bank of North Fulton ("North Fulton"). The Citizens and Southern Bank of North Fulton was organized by residents of the area located in the further northern portion of Fulton County—characterized by a number of small incorporated municipalities, some farms, and rapidly developing residential areas—with the cooperation of C&S in May, 1967. North Fulton conducts full service banking operations from a main office in Roswell, Georgia, an established and growing municipality. The Holding Company owns the permissible 5% interest in the outstanding stock of North Fulton.

The President of North Fulton is Mr. Hugh F. Lane, who, prior to his assuming that office, had been employed since 1960 by C&S National. North Fulton's Cashier also had substantial prior experience with C&S National before being elected to that office in January, 1969.

(5) The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank ("Park National"). Since the mid-1960's, the intersection of Interstate Highway 85 and North Druid Hills Road in DeKalb County, an area adjacent to the City of Atlanta to the northeast, has developed as the largest suburban office development complex in metropolitan Atlanta—including Executive Park,

Landmark, and Corporate Square--"planned suburban major office complexes." To meet the increasing need for convenient banking services in this area, and to provide C&S services there, leading businessmen whose firms were located in the area requested the assistance of C&S in the organization of a correspondent associate. The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank thus was organized as a national banking association and began business in 1967, 5% of its outstanding stock being purchased at the time of organization by the Holding Company.

The President of Park National since its organization has been Mr. Thomas W. Hazelrig, who had been employed by C&S National since 1951. Two other officers of Park National also had substantial prior experience with C&S National.

(6) The Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank ("South DeKalb"). The Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank was organized pursuant to the laws of the State of Georgia in 1969 as a C&S correspondent associate, C&S participating with local residents and businessmen and acquiring through the Holding Company at the time of organization 5% of the outstanding stock of the bank. South DeKalb is located in an area of DeKalb County which has developed rapidly as a residential and shopping center for the southern part of the County. The bank's main office is located on the primary traffic artery between the county seat, Decatur, to the north, and the residential subdivisions and new shopping centers in the fast-growing South DeKalb area, which has enjoyed explosive growth since the opening of Interstate Highway 20 between that area and downtown Atlanta. Together with this residential growth, and associated expansion of retail businesses, establishment of substantial commercial enterprises has established a great need for the availability of the full range of C&S services. The Superintendent of Banking has recently authorized the establishment of an additional office for South DeKalb.

The President of South DeKalb, Mr. Warren L. Berry, had been employed since 1967 by C&S National. One other officer of South DeKalb also has substantial prior employment with C&S National.

D. Branch Banking Laws of Georgia—1970—and C&S in the Atlanta Metropolitan Area.

In 1970, the Georgia Legislature amended the Georgia banking laws to expand the authority of banks to establish additional banking offices in counties where the banks already operated home offices, branch banks or offices thereof (subject to certain restrictions based on population of the county, not material here). The effect of this change in the Georgia banking laws is to make it possible for (1) C&S to establish additional offices in Fulton and DeKalb Counties; (2) the Holding Company's Emory affiliate to establish additional offices in DeKalb County, and (3) the Holding Company's East Point affiliate to establish additional offices in Fulton County. This change in the Georgia laws relating to branch banks is effective as of 1970.

It is relevant to note here that the other major banks competing with C&S in the Atlanta market have also followed a course of association with localized banking organizations in order to provide their own banking services in Fulton and DeKalb Counties where direct establishment of offices was not possible.

First National Bank of Atlanta ("First National"), the second largest bank in the City, in addition to operation of its Decatur branch, cooperated in the operation of The First National Bank of Doraville (a municipality in DeKalb County adjoining Chamblee); The First National Bank of Glenwood (a residential-small business community in DeKalb County); The First National Bank of Tucker, and The First State Bank of South DeKalb Trust Company of Georgia Associates (a holding company owned by The Trust Company of Georgia—"Trust Company") has operated directly The Trust Company of Georgia Bank of DeKalb (located at Executive Park, DeKalb County) and also has been associated with Peachtree Bank and Trust Company (in the Brookhaven community of DeKalb County) and Trust Company of Georgia Bank of Sandy Springs. Fulton National Bank, which has a branch in Decatur, is believed to have assisted in the organization of Northeast Commercial Bank (located in Doraville) and has been associated with that bank and the Bank of the South (in the municipality of College Park, Fulton County, Georgia).

Now, two of these competitors—First National and Trust Company—are presently filing with the appropriate bank regulatory applications similar to this one, for approval to incorporate these associated banks directly into the corporate system of the particular banks involved. In each case the reason for the application is the same—the 1970 change in Georgia's banking laws to make possible the completion now of a branching process which originally took the form of association only because of Georgia's artificial restrictions on branch banking in the Atlanta metropolitan area.

C&S management has determined that the C&S system can best serve Fulton and DeKalb Counties (those portions outside the City of Atlanta) by utilizing the two above-named Holding Company affiliates as "county banks"—each identified with the county it will serve. For this reason applications are submitted for C&S Emory to acquire the assets of the C&S correspondent associates in DeKalb County outside Atlanta, and for C&S East Point to acquire the assets of the C&S correspondent associates in Fulton County outside Atlanta. This plan, if approved, would have, of course, the same overall effect as acquisition of the correspondent associates by C&S National--full integration of the correspondent associates into the C&S system.

The reason for the filing of these applications is simple. The stockholders of the correspondent associates have made clear their desire to bring to their respective communities, banks which offer the full range of services, and, more important, which are guided by the banking philosophy of service to the community which characterizes C&S. The correspondent associates have been organized (in the case of Tucker, strengthened and redirected) solely for the purpose of accomplishing this end.

Similarly, C&S has responded to these needs by identifying itself with these banks. By making the unique attributes of C&S banking services available to them and their customers and their communities, C&S has an investment in the correspondent associate banks; more important, C&S has a commitment to the banks, their customers, their stockholders, and their communities.

The changes in Georgia's banking laws now make it possible for C&S to implement fully its commitment, and for the stockholders of the correspondent associate banks and the communities represented thereby to realize fully their expectations of direct service by the C&S system.

The directors of the correspondent associate banks believe that the proliferation of separate banks each bearing the C&S name is undesirable and inefficient. The boards of each such bank have discussed with C&S personnel the best means of eliminating the artificial separation of the banks from each other and from C&S. The results of these discussions are the proposed plans of reorganization and these applications.

In summary, the purpose of these applications is to seek approval of transactions which will harmonize form with substance: The changes in Georgia's banking laws allow C&S to incorporate in one system of banking that which had to be kept separate in order to comply with those banking laws. C&S met its responsibilities to offer within all applicable banking laws another meaningful banking alternative to growing communities which sought C&S banking services on the only basis then available. Approval of these applications, then, will be the final step in a process begun some ten years ago—expansion by the C&S system of its banking services to all those parts of Fulton and DeKalb Counties where the convenience and needs of the communities involved justified this action.

[1]"Service area" as used herein and applied to a participating bank, a competing bank, or any head office or branch office means the geographical area from which the bank or the office derives 75 per cent or more of its deposits, both demand and time, of individuals, partnerships, and corporations. Such deposits are shown in published reports of condition of banks and are referred to herein as "IPC" deposits.

EXHIBIT I

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

An analysis of the geographic distribution of both demand and time deposits of individuals, partnerships, and corporations of C & S East Point, C & S North Fulton, and C & S Sandy Springs was made by the Marketing Research Department of The C & S Holding Company. This analysis was based on randomly selected samples of personal and commercial checking account customers ("IPC" demand); and regular savings account, savings bonds, time deposit open accounts, and individual certificates of deposit customers ("IPC" time). These samples were matched against the U.S. Bureau of the Census address coding guide for the Atlanta Metropolitan Area, prepared for the 1970 Census of Population and Housing, to determine both block and census tract locations for each customer included in the sample groups.

Since the samples were selected on a strictly random basis, the statistical accuracy of the results can be stated. At the 95 percent confidence level, the results of these analyses have a statistical reliability of plus or minus 5 percent.

Primary Service Area, C & S East Point

The primary service area, from which C & S East Point derives approximately 75 percent of its total "IPC" dollar deposits, includes the City of East Point and adjacent sectors of the cities of College Park, Hapeville, and Atlanta; as well as a portion of unincorporated South Fulton County. As defined, the C & S East Point primary service area, as shown on the attached map, encompasses all of 13 census tracts and a portion of another.

As of April 1, 1970, the defined C & S East Point primary service area had a total population of 78,367 persons. Of this total approximately one-half were residents of the City of East Point. The following table shows comparative 1960 - 70 population trends for the C & S East Point primary service area, South Fulton County, and Fulton County, as a whole.

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

The following table shows the map key number and name and location of the Main Office and Cleveland Branch of The Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point (Applicant) and The Citizens and Southern Bank of North Fulton and The Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs (Other Banks); as well as for each of the other existing 120 banking offices (17 head offices and 103 branch offices) located in Fulton County, the six approved and not open banking offices, and the nine banking offices for which applications are pending. The distances (road miles) and directions from the head office of the Applicant Bank (C & S East Point) and Other Banks (C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs); and the dates began business for each existing bank are also shown.

The basic source for arriving at total "IPC" deposits for the 20 existing banks in Fulton County is the June 30, 1970 Report of Condition. Totals shown for the Fulton National Bank, The Citizens and Southern National Bank, The First National Bank of Atlanta, The National Bank of Georgia, and Trust Company of Georgia are adjusted totals to reflect estimates of "IPC" deposits of these banks held by their branches located in adjacent DeKalb County. Both the Fulton National Bank and The First National Bank have branch operations in the City of Decatur (the county seat of DeKalb County). The Fulton National Bank, The Citizens and Southern National Bank, The National Bank of Georgia, and Trust Company of Georgia, each have a branch office located in portions of the City of Atlanta which extend into DeKalb County.

The following maps are enclosed with this application.

North Fulton County
City of Atlanta
South Fulton County

On each of these maps are shown the locations of all existing banking offices, approved and not open banking offices, and pending branch applications in each of these sectors of Fulton County. The primary service areas of C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs (Other Banks) are shown on the North

Fulton County map. The primary service areas of C & S East Point (Applicant Bank) are shown on the South Fulton County map.

Also, a separate map of Fulton County is attached, which shows the relationship of the Applicant and Other Banks to each other.

If the Applicant Bank or Other Bank has pending applications for approval of bra or has received authority to establish branches which are not yet open for business, furnish pertinent details. Such branches should be listed and assigned numbers consis the sequence established in the foregoing schedules, and should be shown and appropriat identified on the map.

See EXHIBIT III

List the assigned numbers of any branches of the participating banks, including branches approved or applied for, which it is planned to discontinue or abandon if the proposed transaction is effected, and furnish pertinent details.

No branches of participating banks, including branches applied for, are planned to be discontinued or abandoned, if the proposed transaction is effected.

State whether the service area or areas of the Resulting Bank will be predominately agricultural, industrial, residential, or mixed, and describe the growth trend over the past ten years and the present economic outlook. (A concise general statement, rather than statistical data, is desired.)

See EXHIBIT IV

which follows

Discuss the lending power and capacity of each of the participating banks in relatio to the credit needs of its service area, and how the lending power and capacity of the Resulting Bank will relate to those needs.

See EXHIBIT V

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

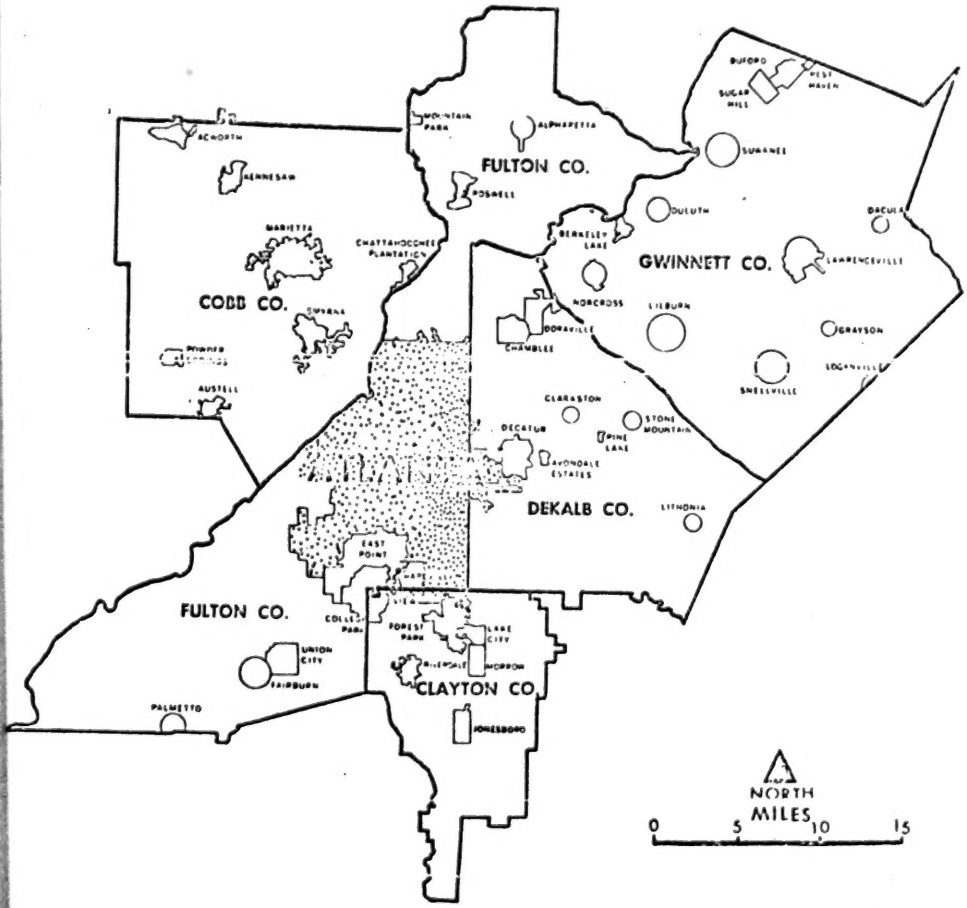
Fulton County is the largest of the five counties making up the five - county Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA). Of its total 1970 population of 596,700 persons, almost 85 percent are residents of the City of Atlanta.

Since World War II, Fulton County, along with other Metropolitan Atlanta counties, have greatly benefitted by the emergence of Atlanta as the economic center of the rapidly growing Southeast Region, as well as a city of national prominence. Within Fulton County, itself, Atlanta's requirements have generated growing "sub-economies" in both the North and South Fulton County areas outside of the City of Atlanta.

The following map of the Atlanta SMSA shows the relationship of Fulton County (and its North and South areas) -- and other metropolitan area counties -- to the central City of Atlanta. Following the map, is presented a review of major economic trends taking place in the Atlanta SMSA and Fulton County.

METROPOLITAN ATLANTA



The Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area

The Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area is the dominant economic hub of the Southeast. Although Atlanta has long been a regional distribution center, it has emerged during the 1960 - 70 decade to a new level -- taking on stronger characteristics as a city tied to the nation as well as the region it serves.

The Atlanta SMSA currently consists of five counties -- Clayton, Cobb, DeKalb, Fulton, and Gwinnett. Preliminary 1970 census figures show that as of April 1, 1970 Metropolitan Atlanta had a population of 1,375,746 persons. This is a 35.2 percent increase since 1960, compared to a 13.9 percent gain for the State of Georgia, and 14.6 percent for five of the southeastern states. Currently 30.6 percent of the State of Georgia's population resides in the Atlanta SMSA, compared to 25.8 percent in 1960

Looking ahead, the Atlanta SMSA is expected to reach a population of 1,572,900 persons by 1975, 2 million by 1983.

A review of a number of indicators clearly reflect Metropolitan Atlanta's dominant economic role in the Southeast and its emerging role as an important national center.

1. Preliminary 1970 census figures place Metropolitan Atlanta 21st in population among the nation's 231 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

2. Among the top 20 metropolitan areas in the nation, Atlanta ranked second during the 1960 - 69 period in percentage growth in non-agricultural employment, with a gain of 61.6 percent. Approximately 26,000 jobs were created in Metropolitan Atlanta each year during the 1960's for an annual average of 577,900 in 1969. Total employment should reach 780,000 by 1975. Similar to other inland regional centers (Dallas, Minneapolis - St. Paul and Kansas City) a greater proportion of Atlanta's employment is concentrated in the service-oriented categories of finance, - insurance - real estate, transportation - communications - utilities, wholesale, retail trade, and services. This employment distribution reflects Atlanta's position as the management center for the region, not only as a physical collection and distribution point, but in the central centered activities such as finance, business services, and government.

3. Total private construction during the 1959 - 69 period exceeded $3.3 billion in Metropolitan Atlanta. Construction increased from $186.7 million in 1959 to almost $450 million in 1969.

4. Indication of Atlanta's strong regional role as trade capital of the region is the presence of operations of 413 of the Fortune 500 list of the nation's largest industrial corporations. Also represented in Atlanta are 46 of the 50 largest life insurance companies, 19 of the 50 largest retailing companies and 39 of the largest transportation companies.

5. Atlanta is one of the nation's major government centers. There are 90 agencies, departments, or divisions of Federal government operations in Atlanta with approximately 28,500 employees. Total government employment exceeded 89,000 in 1969.

6. Metropolitan Atlanta easily leads the State in per household effective buying income, $11,544 compared to $9,117. It also leads the South Atlantic States ($9,294) and the United States ($10,048). By 1975 Atlanta families should have a disposable income of $15,850.

7. Retail sales more than doubled during the 1958 - 1969 period, from $1.23 billion to $2.73 billion.

8. Reflecting Metropolitan Atlanta's distribution role, wholesale sales increased from almost $4 billion in 1958 to $8.5 billion in 1967, well over a 100 percent increase.

9. Almost 160,000 housing units were constructed in Metropolitan Atlanta in the 1960 - 1969 period. Approximately 40 percent of the total were in multi-family structures. It is expected that 250,000 new housing units will be required during the 1970 - 1980 decade to meet the needs of a growing population. This means that even higher annual rate of production will take place. 25,000 units each year as compared to the 9-year average of almost 18,000 units.

In the same manner, the following list of selected national rankings illustrate the economic vigor of Metropolitan Atlanta:

	National SMSA Ranking

Fulton County

Until shortly after World War II, Fulton County was largely the sole economic beneficiary of the presence of the City of Atlanta within its borders. The growth and prosperity of the County was directly proportional to the growth of Atlanta, and the other seven Fulton municipalities were of little consequence, so overriding was Atlanta's importance. This is still true to a great extent, but Atlanta's requirements have spawned a new set of economic generators in sectors of Fulton County, outside of the City of Atlanta, as well as in the other four metropolitan area counties.

A growing "sub-economy" has grown up in the Tri-Cities area (East Point, College Park, and Hapeville) in South Fulton based, to a large degree, on the Atlanta Airport. With the opening of important traffic arteries -- I-85 and I-285 -- through the southern portion of Fulton County, the influence of this "sub-economy" is spreading southward into a predominantly rural region.

In a similar fashion, to the north in the Sandy Springs - Roswell area -- North Fulton -- new supporting and independent activities are taking place.

Basic economic trends taking place in Fulton County, as a whole, as well as in the "sub-economies" of South Fulton (in which the applicant bank -- C & S East Point -- has its main office and branch) and North Fulton (in which both C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs are located) are presented in the following pages.

Population Trends, Fulton County

As Metropolitan Atlanta's economic growth has spread into surrounding counties, its share of the total Atlanta SMSA population has decreased -- from 65.1 percent in 1950 to 43.4 percent in 1970. However, Fulton County's population base continues to grow, and with a total 1970 population of 596,700 persons it still remains well ahead of the second - largest metropolitan area county -- DeKalb -- with its 1970 population of 414,085.

Population data for the Atlanta SMSA, by counties, is summarized in the following table:

In 1950 over 95 percent of Fulton County's population resided in one of its eight municipalities. During the past twenty years this ratio has been reduced to 87 percent due to the growth of residential areas in unincorporated Fulton, principally north of the Atlanta city limits in the Sandy Springs area. The largest of these municipalities, exclusive of Atlanta, are the South Fulton cities of College Park, East Point, and Hapeville. The largest of these, East Point, increased in population by approximately 3,700 during the past decade to 39,399. The other two lost as Atlanta Airport expansion activity chewed through residential areas.

Population trends for the incorporated areas and unincorporated area of Fulton County are summarized in the following table:

Population Trends, Incorporated and Unincorporated Fulton County, 1950, 1960, and 1970

Looking ahead, Fulton County's population is expected to increase by some 33,300 persons during the next five years. With a projected 1975 population of 630,000, Fulton County will account for 40.1 percent of the Atlanta SMSA total 1975 population.

Personal Income

Fulton County ranks third among Metropolitan Atlanta's five counties in average disposable income per household with $11,133 -- following DeKalb ($13,023) and Cobb ($11,782). This is due primarily to the "heavy drag" on the average by the densely populated low-income areas in central Atlanta. Looking ahead, by 1975 it is estimated that Fulton County's average disposable income per household will reach $14,424 -- equivalent to 91 percent of the average of $15,850 projected for the Atlanta SMSA, as a whole.

Construction

During the 1964-69 period, a total of 36,855 residential building permits were issued in the City of Atlanta and unincorporated Fulton County -- with the City of Atlanta accounting for 65 percent of the total. Similar to other major cities, the great bulk of the City of Atlanta's new residential construction has been in multi-family (apartment units). Multi-family developments have also spilled over to a large degree into the unincorporated areas of the county -- which still, however, account for most of the county's new single - family construction.

	Single Family	Multi-Family	Total
City of Atlanta	3,822	20,120	23,942
Unincorporated Fulton	6,917	5,996	12,913
Total	10,739	26,116	36,855

Sources: Office of Building Inspector, City of Atlanta and Fulton County.

The total value of new construction (as per building permits) in the City of Atlanta and unincorporated Fulton County totaled almost $1.2 billion for the 1964-69 period. Of this total, the City of Atlanta accounted for 71 percent of the value of new residential construction (reflecting primarily the city's substantial apartment development) and over 85 percent of the total value of non-residential construction. Atlanta's total of over one-half billion dollars in non-residential reflects, to a large degree, the major construction, still underway, in Downtown Atlanta.

Major construction currently underway in the Atlanta downtown area included the 26-story Coastal States Life Building to cost $12 million and Stouffers Hotel, a 23 story 525 room facility which will join some 50 other hotels and motels that have been built in the metropolitan area during the past decade. Of the current inventory of 14,000 hotel and motel rooms in Atlanta, almost 10,000 were built in this decade.

Major projects on the drawing boards include the $200 million Park Place/Atlanta development near the State Capitol, and a new Federal office and courthouse building near City Hall. This building will rise 20-40 stories, depending on ground space, and will have 1,150,000 square feet of space with a daytime population of 4,700.

Downtown Atlanta added 17 new buildings with 15 or more floors in height, including the second largest merchandise mart in the nation with two million square feet and the 1,000 room Regency Hyatt House Hotel. Plans are for a 70-story office building, another 1,000 room hotel and high-rise apartments in the Peachtree Center area.

Major public facilities constructed during the 1960's include Atlanta Stadium ($18 million), Civic Center ($10 million), Memorial Arts Center ($13 million), and Atlanta Airport expansion ($20 million).

Employment

The Fulton-DeKalb County economies are so inter-twined that the Georgia Department of Labor does not break out employment between the two in its annual county employment estimates, reporting them as a single unit. Thus, reliable source for data on Fulton employment from which a time series can be formulated is the County Business Patterns of the Bureau of the Census. These statistics include only those jobs covered by FICA, excluding government employees, self-employed, domestics and certain railroad employees. Nevertheless, certain important trends can be gleamed from these reports.

In 1968, 72.7 percent of Metropolitan Atlanta jobs were in Fulton County -- down from 77.7 percent 1962 -- as other maturing counties in the SMSA have increased their share of area employment growth. During the 1962-68 period, total Fulton County employment increased from 325,527 workers to 470,240 workers.

Looking ahead, Fulton County's total employment is expected to reach over 638,000 workers by 1975 -- excluding government workers, self-employed persons, and domestics.

Fulton County employment trends for the 1962-68 period are summarized in the following table:

FULTON COUNTY EMPLOYMENT[1]

Fulton County has an awkward geographical configuration which stems from the absorption of a neighboring county and portion of another one in earlier years. The county stretches 57 miles north - south. In addition the city limits of Atlanta, which extend from Fulton's western border at the Chattahoochee River east to the DeKalb County line, separates South Fulton -- site of C & S East Point -- and North Fulton -- site of C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs. Therefore it is worthwhile to examine these two sectors of Fulton County, separately. For this analysis, North Fulton includes all of the area of Fulton County north of the Atlanta city limits -- South Fulton, the area in Fulton County south of the corporate limits of Atlanta.

In 1950, the two small municipalities in North Fulton, Alpharetta and Roswell, contained only 3,040 residents. Sandy Springs, an unincorporated area generally bounded on the south by the Atlanta city limits, west and south by the Chattahoochee River and on the east by DeKalb County, had approximately 4,000 residents, leaving 8,457 scattered throughout the rest of the North Fulton area. From 3.3 percent of the total Fulton County population in 1950, North Fulton now has 9.2 percent - 55,000 - and should reach 10.8 percent, or 60,000, by 1975. Alpharetta and Roswell advanced to a combined total of 7,894 in 1970, leaving most of the growth during the past decade to the Sandy Springs area.

South Fulton, like North Fulton, is increasing its relative share of the total county population. From 12.4 percent in 1950, South Fulton advanced to an estimated 16.9 percent - 100,800 - in 1970, and is expected to contain 19.4 percent by 1975. The Tri-Cities of College Park, East Point and Hapeville immediately south of the corporate limits of Atlanta contain most of the incorporated population. The smaller towns of Union City and Fairburn in the southwest portion are not experiencing significant growth.

Population Trends, North Fulton,
City of Atlanta, and South Fulton, 1950, 1960 and 1970

	1950	1960	1970
North Fulton	15,497	29,680	55,000*
City of Atlanta (in Fulton)	399,536	446,123	440,900
South Fulton	58,539	80,523	100,800*

U. S. Bureau of the Census.

Commercial and apartment developments in North Fulton are concentrated in a narrow corridor along Roswell Road, extending north from the corporate limits of Atlanta to Interstate 285 and on to Abernathy Road. This area is bi-sected by I-285 in an east-west direction. North Fulton Expressway, under construction from I-285 north, will bisect North Fulton in a north-south direction and eventually tie into the metropolitan expressway network, extending south across I-85 and through central Atlanta. This will bring heretofore isolated sections of North Fulton within minutes of a major portion of the metropolitan area.

DeKalb County, adjacent to North Fulton on the east, is building up rapidly, particularly with office parks and apartment complexes along I 285. This is also true of Cobb County to the west. These pressures plus a new direct, limited-access transportation route scheduled to be opened in late 1970 north to Alpharetta, portends rapid development for North Fulton during the next 5 - 10 years.

The Sandy Springs area is basically a bedroom suburb for people who work in Atlanta. Average family incomes are nearly twice the metropolitan average. The relatively high income level, coupled with low-density development, make the automobile an important part of life. There is one car for every 2.2 people, compared with one car for every 3.1 people in the metropolitan area.

Sandy Springs accounted for 1,500 of the 1,702 housing units constructed in North Fulton in 1968, and 1,913 of the 2,329 units constructed in 1969.

Since North Fulton is not served by rail and the far north portion does not have good accessibility to downtown Atlanta by automobile, industrialization has not materialized. The largest employer is Western Electric Company, just north of the Sandy Springs business area, with 2,385 employees. A new office park, Landmark VI, has been proposed for the intersection of the North Fulton Expressway and I-285.

Shopping centers in North Fulton include Sandy Springs North Plaza and Harmond Square, both in the Sandy Springs business area.

As with other parts of the metropolitan area, the opening of the interstate Highway System provided the impetus for development in South Fulton during the later years of the past decade. I-20 west from central Atlanta to Cobb County, I-285 south to Atlanta Airport, I-85 southwest to Fayette County, and the Lakewood Extension from I-75 south to I-285 provided corridors for development.

Industrialization began with the opening of the county-owned Fulton Industrial District along the Chattahoochee River six miles west of Atlanta. This 2,000 acre district now has 125 firms with a total employment of 3,500.

North and adjacent to this district is the Fulton County Airport, the busiest general aviation airport in the Southeast with approximately 300 employees. Great Southwest Industrial Park, a 3,000 acre planned development, is located south and adjacent to Fulton Industrial District. From 1965 to 1969, 71 sites were sold to industrial users. Over 90 industrial firms and 3.6 million square feet of industrial building are in the park. There are eight other industrial districts in South Fulton in various stages of development.

The Atlanta Airport employs approximately 13,000 workers. By 1980 the number should increase to approximately 30,000, making the airport an employment center next in size to downtown Atlanta. Since an estimated 85 percent of airport workers live in the southeast and southwest quadrants of the metropolitan area, this employment center has a major economic impact on South Fulton. An expansion program is currently underway that will increase investment in this facility to $200 million. Adjacent to the airport, the Ford Motor Company assembly plant employs 3,850.

With the extension of I-85 south through Fulton County, industrialization has started in the southwestern portion of the county. Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corporation has a 200,000 square foot facility under construction near Fairburn that will initially employ 200 workers with a $2.5 million annual payroll.

International Office Park, across Virginia Avenue from Atlanta Airport, currently has about 385,000 square feet of space and houses approximately 1,000 employees. Another new office park in the vicinity, Landmark XII, projects 300,000 square feet. The economy of this area is almost entirely airport-oriented, and has merged with the northern portion of Clayton County. Part of the airport property is located in Clayton County, and serious attention is being given to the possibility of expanding the airport across I-285 into Clayton County. There seems to be little question that the airport will be expanded considerably, even beyond the current expansion program. The City administration is dedicated to keeping this airport in operation when a new one is built, which will be some 5 - 10 years in the future. In any event, South Fulton will continue to thrive economically on Atlanta Airport for an indefinite period.

New developments in the near South Fulton area include the construction of Delta Airlines' reservation center near Greenbriar Shopping Center. Greenbriar is the only regional shopping center in South Fulton and is just inside the Atlanta city limits. Unannounced plans are for Delta to construct its corporate headquarters in this area in a 4-building $6 million complex. Announcement has been made for a $92 million 832 acre planned total community about 11 miles southwest of Atlanta.

CONVENIENCE AND NEED OF COMMUNITY
LENDING POWER AND CAPACITY OF PARTICIPATING BANKS

The lending power and capacity of participating banks (as well as other banks) are limited in meeting the credit needs of an individual borrower on an unsecured basis to 10% of capital and unimpaired surplus, and on a secured basis to 20% of capital and unimpaired surplus. For both state - chartered in Georgia and national chartered banks capital is defined to include: capital notes and debentures, preferred stock and common stock. For state - chartered banks in Georgia unimpaired surplus includes the surplus account only. For national - chartered banks unimpaired surplus is defined to include: surplus, undivided profits, reserve for contingencies and other capital reserves, plus 50% of the reserve for bad debt losses on loans.

As per call reports of June 30, 1970, the dollar loan limits of each of the participating banks and the Resulting Bank would be as follows:

	Dollar Loan Limit to an Individual Borrower
	Unsecured	Secured
The Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point	$112,500	$225,000
The Citizens and Southern Bank of North Fulton	60,000	120,000
The Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs	85,000	170,000
RESULTING BANK	$257,500	$515,000

As shown above, the Resulting Bank would be in a position to meet the increasing capital needs of individual market area borrowers -- especially growing small and moderate size businesses -- which now, in many cases, can only be handled by the sale of loan participations.

EXHIBIT VI

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

The consummation of the proposed transaction will result in more effective service to present customers of the participating banks. Present customers of C&S Sandy Springs and C&S North Fulton will have direct access to the full scope and variety of services of the C&S system—which services are available directly to customers of all C&S Holding Company affiliate banks—including: personal and corporate trust services, factoring, real estate lending, enterprise capital loans, international banking, and travel department.

With the availability of a single C&S bank in various areas of Fulton County outside Atlanta, suburban businesses which operate in more than one part of the County outside Atlanta will not be required to maintain banking accounts with more than one bank in order to have ready access to C&S facilities where their business is transacted. Likewise, residents living in one part of the suburban County but working in another part, will have the convenience of dealing with the same bank both at home and where they work.

In summary, there will be no decrease in the types of services now being offered by the participating banks if the proposed transaction is approved. While approval will not bring any immediate expansion of the types of banking services available through the participating banks, it will make the wide range of C&S services directly and more conveniently available to customers of the participating banks.

In addition, the Resulting Bank, because of its larger capital base will be able to serve larger corporate customers —many of which require banks of a certain size before designating them as depositories. It is believed that this factor will enable the Resulting Bank to play a more important role in the community which it will serve. Identification of businesses located in Fulton County outside Atlanta with a bank having its main office there will focus the attention of these corporate customers upon the unique opportunities and problems of the rapidly growing community served by the Resulting Bank. Similarly, the resultant larger capital base will make it possible for the Resulting Bank to service larger credit needs without the necessity of having to sell participations in loans in order to meet these needs.

The unique range and depth of banking services offered by C&S are not duplicated by other banks serving the areas served by the participating banks. Customers of the C&S correspondent associate banks have, it is felt, chosen them to do business with because of the availability of the C&S services through the banks, even though the correspondent associate status meant that in certain cases the services were available indirectly and by reference. Approval of the transaction would, therefore, enable the participating banks more fully to recognize this choice of their customers and to enlarge their abilities to implement the customer's chosen banking program.

Discuss the past record of the participating banks with respect to their growth, awareness of their responsibilities to the community, and alertness to provide new and services.

(6) CONSISTENCY OF CORPORATE POWERS

The Applicant Bank is organized pursuant to Article VIII State Banking Law of Georgia; Chapter 13-9, Code of Georgia, as amended (Give citation of State statutory provisions)

There is attached hereto a true copy of the Articles of Incorporation or Association of the bank, together with all amendments thereto. (If previously submitted, only subsequent amendments are to be attached.)

(7) EFFECT OF PROPOSED TRANSACTION ON COMPETITION
(Including Any Tendency Toward Monopoly)

The Applicant Bank is requested to furnish herewith as part of this application the following exhibits:

Exhibit A - Schedules showing the total "IPC" deposits, both demand and time, and total loans and discounts of:

1. Applicant Bank, Other Bank, and each other bank competing within the service area or areas of the Applicant Bank;

2. Other Bank, Applicant Bank, and each other bank competing within the service area or areas of the Other Bank;

3. Resulting Bank and each other bank competing within the service area or areas of the Resulting Bank; and showing for each service area the percentages of "IPC" deposits and loans and discounts of each bank in relation to the aggregates for that particular service area.

EXHIBIT VII

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

With the support of the C&S system, the participating banks have actively expanded their services to the communities in which they are located. Implementation of the C&S philosophy that a primary requirement of full-service banking is the service of meeting the growing credit needs of growing communities is illustrated in the following table which sets forth the total loans made by the participating banks during the years 1965-1970 (June 30):

Total Loans ($000)	C&S East Point	C&S North Fulton	C&S Sandy Springs
December 31, 1965	9,147.9		3,754.1
December 31, 1966	11,969.7		5,188.0
December 31, 1967	12,777.8	1,119.7	6,161.0
December 31, 1968	15,784.0	2,485.8	8,929.7
December 31, 1969	24,002.0	5,006.0	13,248.2
June 30, 1970	23,992.7	5,216.6	14,010.6

Similarly, the commitments of the participating banks to provide the resources necessary for support of the growing communities served by them is shown in the following table, which reflects the total deposits held by each of the participating banks during the years 1965-1970 (as of June 30):

Total Deposits ($000)	East Point	North Fulton	Sandy Springs
December 31, 1965	14,538.2		6,447.5
December 31, 1966	16,198.5		8,478.7
December 31, 1967	18,652.4	1,749.7	10,497.9
December 31, 1968	22,345.7	3,526.0	13,956.8
December 31, 1969	27,528.7	5,333.1	16,807.2
June 30, 1970	25,888.2	5,820.6	17,736.8

of the records of the banks involved in this transaction. Equally as important is their record of bringing to their communities the opportunity of participating in the innovative banking services and programs originated by the C&S system, such as individual tax return preparation, payroll accounting plans, bank credit cards and "enterprise lending" (specialized lending programs for small high-risk businesses). This record of expanding the types and numbers of banking services to meet the needs of changing, more economically complex communities, together with the measureable growth in banking resources and activity, demonstrates the awareness of the participating banks to the needs of their communities, and their alertness to provide needed services.

EXHIBITS B AND C
COMPETITION IN THE RELEVANT FULTON COUNTY MARKET
FROM OTHER FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

Competition from non-bank financial institutions in the relevant Fulton County market has historically been strong, and can be expected to remain a significant factor in the future. Growth trends for various categories of non-bank lending institutions -- both in terms of number of offices in operation and lending activities -- are decribed more fully in the following schedules.

Savings and Loan Associations

Atlanta and Fulton County savings and loans, unlike commercial banks, are unrestricted as to branching across county lines and consequently open new offices throughout the five-county Atlanta metropolitan area and beyond.

City of Atlanta and Fulton County savings and loan associations are active competitors for both savings deposits and loan customers, and can readily be considered bank competition in the City of Atlanta and Fulton County. While the number of existing savings and loan offices in Fulton County increased only slightly, from 30 to 35 between 1965 and 1970, total assets of all Fulton County savings and loan associations increased from $683,070,000 to $927,568,000 during the same period.

In addition to the existing S & L offices in Fulton County, as of September 1, 1970, there are currently three approved but unopened offices and one branch application pending. These offices are indicated in the following table.

Credit Unions

Credit unions in the relevant Fulton County market, as in other major metropolitan areas, are becoming increasingly competitive for personal savings and loan customers.

There are currently some 138 State and Federally-chartered credit unions in Fulton County, of which 123 are located within the City of Atlanta and 15 are situated elsewhere in Fulton County.

Year-end 1969 total asset figures are available for State-Chartered credit unions and are included in this exhibit along with names and addresses of the individual credit unions. Comparable total asset figures are not available for the same date from the United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the agency regulating Federal-Charter credit unions. However, the approximate total asset sizes of the reported Federal Credit Unions in Fulton County is indicated by the accompanying key.

Factors

Detailed statistics on Atlanta factoring operations are not available. However, The C & S National Bank, since its 1965 acquisition of Joel Hurt Factors, has operated one of the major Atlanta-based factoring operations, as a department of the bank. Trust Company of Georgia has for many years had a factoring department, and the First National Bank of Atlanta now operates a factoring department in affiliation with Walter E. Heller and Company, New York.

Mortgage Companies

At present there are 93 mortgage company offices operating in Fulton County, with virtually all of them headquartered in the City of Atlanta.

Several major Atlanta banks, including The Citizens and Southern National Bank, have acquired or are in the process of acquiring mortgage companies to supplement their existing commercial real estate operations. In 1969 The C & S National Bank purchased General Mortgage and Realty Company, Inc., of Atlanta, which has been incorporated into the Bank's real estate department. Trust Company of Georgia has announced plans to acquire the mortgage loan operations of Adair Realty and Loan Company, Atlanta, and The First National Bank of Atlanta is purchasing the mortgage loan operations of Tharpe and Brooks, another major Atlanta mortgage company.

A list of Atlanta and Fulton County mortgage company offices in operation as of December, 1969 follows.

Insurance Companies

Atlanta and Fulton County have a number of locally-based insurance companies which, along with regional offices of many of the major insurance companies, actively compete in the real estate lending field. However, there are no available statistics indicating the extent of this lending activity in the relevant Fulton County market.

EXHIBIT D

EFFECT OF PROPOSED TRANSACTION ON COMPETITION

Competition between C & S East Point (Applicant) and C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs (Other Banks), to all extent, is non-existent. Of the total randomly selected sample of 2,509 C & S East Point and 1,969 C & S Sandy Springs IPC deposit customers there was only one mutual customer. The balance of this account was $3,000 -- compared to the total IPC sample for these two banks of $10,861,512. No mutual IPC deposit customers were found between C & S East Point and C & S North Fulton.

The same basic finding also holds true for C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs. Of the total randomly selected sample of 1,024 C & S North Fulton and 1,969 C & S Sandy Springs IPC deposit customers there were only two mutual customers. The balance of these accounts was only $279 -- compared to the total IPC sample for these two banks of $7,464,613.

A review by the participating banks shows the existence of no mutual loan customers.

EXHIBIT E

EFFECT OF PROPOSED TRANSACTION ON COMPETITION

The number of "IPC" deposit accounts of both C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs that "originate" in the primary service area of C & S East Point are almost non-existent. Of the total randomly selected sample of 1,024 C & S North Fulton "IPC" accounts, only one was located in the C & S East Point primary service area. Also, only five of the randomly selected sample of 1,969 Sandy Springs accounts were located in the C & S East Point primary service area.

In the same manner, few "IPC" deposit accounts of C & S East Point "originate" in the primary service areas of C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs. Of the total randomly selected sample of 2,509 C & S East Point "IPC" deposit accounts, only 13 "originate" in the C & S North Fulton primary service area; and 20 "originate" in the C & S Sandy Springs primary service area.

The primary service areas of C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs overlap in that sector of North Fulton County extending north from Interstate Highway 285 to the Chattahoochee River. C & S Sandy Springs -- which has been in business since 1959 -- still serves a substantial number of customers in this area. Of the randomly selected sample of 1,969 C & S Sandy Springs "IPC" deposit customers, 47.5 percent reside in this area. However, C & S North Fulton, which has been in business since 1967, has only 15 percent of its "IPC" deposit customers (based on a randomly selected sample of 1,024 customers) in the C & S Sandy Springs primary service area.

EXHIBIT F

EFFECT OF PROPOSED TRANSACTION ON COMPETITION

The following schedule indicates the number and dollar amount of loans originated during calendar year 1969 by the Applicant Bank (C & S East Point) and the Other Banks (C & S Sandy Springs and C & S North Fulton). The reasons these placements were made was that these banks were unable to meet the total credit needs of their borrowers due to their legal lending limits.

Participations Sold By:

	Number of Loans	Amount of Loans	Amount Sold	Amount Retained
C & S East Point 1969	14	$1,389,458	$905,712	$483,746
C & S Sandy Springs 1969	61	$2,523,878	$1,707,826	$816,052
C & S North Fulton 1969	35	$1,939,630	$1,643,000	$296,630

EXHIBIT G

EFFECT OF PROPOSED TRANSACTION ON COMPETITION

The following schedule shows the interest rates and service charges on loans and deposits of the Applicant Bank (C & S East Point) and Other Banks (C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs). A similar schedule of rates and charges would be used by the Resulting Bank.

Schedules of rates and charges of competing banks are not of public information, but are assumed to be quite similar in view of highly competitive conditions prevailing in the relevant market.

TRUST ACTIVITIES

Neither The C & S Bank of East Point (Applicant Bank) nor the two Other Banks (C & S North Fulton and C & S Sandy Springs) have trust departments. All trust business which these banks originate in their service areas is referred to The Citizens and Southern National Bank for handling and servicing.

STOCK OWNERSHIP

Mr. Louis J. Fortuna, President of The Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs, owns 2,463 shares or 5.4 percent of the stock of this bank. Mr. A. J. Weinberg of 10 Chatham Road, N. E., Atlanta, Georgia, owns 2,910 shares or 6.4 percent of the stock of C & S Sandy Springs. The C & S Holding Company owns 2,250 shares or 5.0 percent of The Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs.

The C & S Holding Company also owns 5.0 percent of the stock in C & S North Fulton and 90.25 percent of the stock in the C & S Bank of East Point as of July 31, 1970. Neither of these banks have any officers or directors, owning five percent or more of the stock in these or any other banks.

EXHIBIT J

The Citizens and Southern Holding Company, which currently owns 90.25 percent of the outstanding stock of the C & S Bank of East Point (Applicant Bank), currently owns the following percentage of outstanding stock in seven other affiliate banks located in the State of Georgia:

The Citizens and Southern Bank of Albany	76.72%
The Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank	91.19%
The Citizens and Southern Bank of Dublin	75.87%
The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank	95.14%
The Citizens and Southern Bank of LaGrange	55.93%
The Citizens and Southern Newnan Bank	70.05%
Citizens and Southern Bank of Thomaston	91.01%

All ownership interests expressed above are as of July 31, 1970.

EXHIBIT K

The proposed transactions will not and will not adversely affect competition in the areas to be served by the Resulting Bank. In fact there will be no effect on competition. The participating banks do not now compete with one another; rather, each offers the same C&S banking services within the same C&S system and under the same C&S banking policies to customers who have chosen banking C&S-style. For like reasons, there is no potential for competition among the participating banks. These banks together now serve a single market—customers who have chosen C&S banking. After consummation of the transaction, the banks will continue to offer the same services to these same customers. If one of the participating banks were unable to offer C&S services it would not thereby become a competitor of the others, since the potential customers of the C&S correspondent associates are only those customers who have chosen C&S banking.

Given the history of the organization, growth, and operation of the correspondent associates, it is clear there is no potential for competition among the participating banks. C&S Holding provides to the correspondent associates (as is more fully discussed in the "Introduction" and "General Information" section hereinabove) the personnel, systems, direction and support which together comprise C&S banking. Further, C&S Holding maintains direct ownership interest through its holding of five per cent of the stock of the correspondent associates. More important is the active and pervasive influence of C&S philosophies of service and operation upon the management of the correspondent associates. Because of this, as has been noted throughout this Application, the correspondent associates are—so far as stockholders and residents of, and competitors in, the communities served by them are concerned—de facto C&S branches which are now intended to be made de jure branches.

Approval of this Application, therefore, would not affect the competitive situation in the Atlanta area. It would merely complete a process begun years ago in the only way possible—extension of C&S services to the metropolitan Atlanta area. It would leave intact precisely the same banking structure which now exists in Fulton and DeKalb Counties, for in no realistic respect will C&S have by virtue of this transaction any more or any fewer outlets in the areas involved than it had previously. In short, approval of this Application will make possible a long-anticipated change in the form of C&S banking in suburban Fulton and DeKalb Counties with no accompanying change in the substance of the competitive situation there.

INTRODUCTION TO APPLICATION

An introductory statement is in order because this is not the run of the mill Application.

This Application asks approval for The Citizens and Southern ("C&S") Emory Bank to acquire the assets of the C&S Banks of Chamblee, Tucker, South DeKalb and the C&S Park National Bank —all in DeKalb County (outside of the City of Atlanta), Georgia. It is a companion to the Application of The C&S Bank of East Point to acquire the assets of C&S Bank of Sandy Springs and the C&S Bank of North Fulton—all in Fulton County, Georgia.

As the names suggest, this is a family affair—it is not the typical acquisition contemplated by the Bank Merger Act of 1960 or by any of the antitrust laws. It is the product of this sequence of circumstances:

(1) In the 1960's, branch banking in Georgia was restricted within municipal and village limits.

(2) The artificiality of that limitation was pronounced in the metropolitan Atlanta area, where the convenience and needs of the community at large demanded full service banking over the entire area—especially over all of Fulton and DeKalb Counties.

(3) To meet those needs and to supply C&S full service banking to those who sought it, the C&S Holding Company joined hands with business leaders in the various communities to give birth to C&S Chamblee, South DeKalb, Park National, and rebirth to C&S Tucker.

(4) These local business leaders supplied needed sponsorship and attracted shareholders and customers; C&S Holding made the 5% share investment permitted by law and supplied the heart of banking, C&S style, to-wit: experienced, responsible management, staff and employees trained in the C&S system; latest equipment, methods and know-how; accounting services and up-to-date systems; back-up lending capacity; coordinated community-wide C&S advertising program—in short, the total metropolitan banking capacity the communities had asked for. These new banks became known as "correspondent associates" to reflect the closeness of the relationship.

(5) The shareholders and customers of the correspondent associate banks were attracted and are retained by the sponsorship of C&S Holding Company; the closeness of the correspondent associate relationship within the C&S system, and the supply of active management by C&S Holding. They have anticipated the perfection of ownership by C&S Holding as applicable laws permit . . . . C&S Holding has granted use of its name and has furnished these services, management and direction in reliance upon their being sought and followed and upon fulfillment of ownership as applicable laws permit . . . . The sponsorship, name, services, management and direction have been furnished, used and followed and as a result the correspondent associate banks are virtually operated and directed as de facto branches in the C&S system. Stockholders, customers and competitors have recognized that fact.

(6) Through the 1960's the correspondent associates, along with the C&S National Bank and the whole C&S family, have supplied the best of banking services in their areas—limited and restrained only by the very legal artificialities that caused their creation.

(7) Effective January 1, 1971, branch banking is to be permitted countywide in Georgia, and so the de facto arrangements of the 1960's may become the de jure adoptions of 1971. Had the law been otherwise in the 1960's, the original arrangements would have been de novo branches of C&S Emory Bank.

It is relevant to note that the two major competitors of the C&S in Atlanta, to-wit: Trust Company of Georgia and First National Bank of Atlanta, have experienced precisely the same history, for precisely the same reasons, and have filed or are filing precisely comparable applications with the Federal Reserve System and the Comptroller of the Currency, respectively. It is also relevant to our Application to note that the same sequences occurred in Richmond County with Georgia Railroad and Banking Company.

Finally, it is entirely relevant to note that all of the major banks competitive with C&S in Fulton and DeKalb Counties are applying for de novo branches to meet the convenience and the needs of the communities outside present city limits.

Considered together then, the acquisitions contemplated by this Application can produce no anti-competitive results under the Bank Merger Act or under any of the antitrust laws since no change is contemplated—except as to form. No competition now exists between C&S Emory Bank and the four correspondent associate banks involved, and so no competition can be eliminated. The same relationship will continue so far as competitive factors with other banks and financial institutions and customers are concerned. The only change will be the simplification of these relationships.

Thus we ask favorable treatment of the Application—to perfect and fulfill the efforts we made in the 1960's to respond to the calls and give full service banking to the metropolitan Atlanta communities outside the city limits of Atlanta, Decatur and East Point and to make the stockholders of those fine little banks full-fledged stockholders of the C&S National—a fulfillment made possible for the first time by permitted countywide branch banking in 1971.

FOR PRIOR WRITTEN CONSENT TO EFFECT A MERGER OR OTHER TRANSACTION PURSUANT TO SECTION 18(c) OF THE FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE ACT, AND INCIDENT THERETO, TO ESTABLISH A BRANCH OR BRANCHES UNDER SECTION 18(d) OF THE FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE ACT

The original and thirteen copies of this application and all documents, schedules, and exhibits are to be filed with the Supervising Examiner of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation of the District in which the head office of the Applicant Bank is located. Inquiries concerning the preparation of the application, schedules, and exhibits should be directed to that office.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reserves the right to require such additional information as it may deem necessary with respect to any matters in connection with this application, and also the Applicant Bank may supplement the data asked for, if desired. Although final action on an application will not be taken by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation until the State Banking Authority of the State in which the Applicant Bank is located has approved or expressed its intent to approve the proposed transaction, the filing of an application need not be delayed awaiting such action by State Authorities.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will furnish a form of notice and advise the Applicant Bank as to the appropriate intervals for publication of such notice under the requirements of Section 18(c) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, as amended. (12 USC 1828(c)). This subsection of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act is printed on the following page.

Section 18(c) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act
(As Amended)

"Without prior written consent by the Corporation, no insured bank shall (1) merge or consolidate with any noninsured bank or institution or convert into a noninsured bank or institution or (2) assume liability to pay any deposits made in, or similar liabilities of, any noninsured bank or institution or (3) transfer assets to any noninsured bank or institution in consideration of the assumption of liabilities for any portion of the deposits made in such insured bank. No insured bank shall convert into an insured State bank if its capital stock, or its surplus will be less than the capital stock or surplus, respectively, of the converting bank at the time of the shareholders' meeting approving such conversion, without prior written consent by the Comptroller of the Currency if the resulting bank is to be a District bank, or by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System if the resulting bank is to be a State member bank (except a District bank), or by the Corporation if the resulting bank is to be a State nonmember insured bank (except a District bank). No insured bank shall merge or consolidate with any other insured bank or, either directly or indirectly, acquire the assets of, or assume liability to pay any deposits made in, any other insured bank without the prior written consent (i) of the Comptroller of the Currency if the acquiring, assuming, or resulting bank is to be a national bank or a District bank, or (ii) of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System if the acquiring, assuming, or resulting bank is to be a State member bank (except a District bank), or (iii) of the Corporation if the acquiring, assuming, or resulting bank is to be a nonmember insured bank (except a District bank). Notice of any proposed merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of liabilities, in a form approved by the Comptroller, the Board, or the Corporation, as the case may be, shall (except in a case where the furnishing of reports under the seventh sentence of this subsection is not required) be published, at appropriate intervals during a period (prior to the approval or disapproval of the transaction) at least as long as the period allowed under such sentence for furnishing such reports, in a newspaper of general circulation in the community or communities where the main offices of the banks involved are located (or, if there is no such newspaper in any such community, then in the newspaper of general circulation published nearest thereto). In granting or withholding consent under this subsection, the Comptroller, the Board, or the Corporation, as the case may be, shall consider the financial history and condition of each of the banks involved, the adequacy of its capital structure, its future earnings prospects, the general character of its management, the convenience and needs of the community to be served, and whether or not its corporate powers are consistent with the purposes of this Act. In the case of a merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of liabilities, the appropriate agency shall also take into consideration the effect of the transaction on competition (including any tendency toward monopoly), and shall not approve the transaction unless, after considering all of such factors, it finds the transaction to be in the public interest. In the interests of uniform standards, before acting on a merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of liabilities under this subsection, the agency (unless it finds that it must act immediately in order to prevent the probable failure of one of the banks involved) shall request a report on the competitive factors involved from the Attorney General and the other two banking agencies referred to in this subsection (which report shall be furnished within thirty calendar days of the date on which it is requested, or within ten calendar days of such date if the requesting agency advises the Attorney General and the other two banking agencies that an emergency exists requiring expeditious action). The Comptroller, the Board, and the Corporation shall each include in its annual report to the Congress a description of each merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of liabilities approved by it during the period covered by the report, along with the following information: the name and total resources of each bank involved; whether a report has been submitted by the Attorney General hereunder, and, if so, a summary by the Attorney General of the substance of such report; and a statement by the Comptroller, the Board, or the Corporation, as the case may be, of the basis for its approval. No insured State nonmember bank (except a District bank) shall, without the prior consent of the Corporation, reduce the amount or retire any part of its common or preferred capital stock, or retire any part of its capital notes or debentures."

GENERAL INFORMATION

Summarize the reasons and negotiations which led to the filing of this application, and explain fully the extent of common ownership or management of the participating banks.

See Financial History and Condition - General Information.

Has any consideration, monetary or otherwise, been paid, given, or offered to any stockholder, director, or officer of either of the participating banks as compensation or inducement for assistance in consummating the proposed transaction? If so, give full details and reasons therefor.

No.

The desired effective date for the transaction is January 4, 1971. (In selecting this date, take into consideration the requirements of Section 18(c) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act relating to publication of notice of the proposed transaction.)

(1) FINANCIAL HISTORY AND CONDITION

Information provided by the Applicant should include the date of primary organization of each participating bank, and in chronological order with respect to each such bank the date of any reorganization, merger, consolidation, acquisition of assets, or assumption of deposit liabilities occurring during the past ten years, and the name and location of the head office and branches, description of area served, type of business conducted, total loans, and total deposits of each bank which discontinued operations as a result of such transactions.

Dates of Primary Organization.

The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank - December 11, 1950
The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee- December 14, 1959
The Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker- October 29, 1919
The Citizens and Southern Park-National Bank- July 5, 1967
The Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank- July 1, 1969

Other Acquisitions, etc.

None of the participating banks have within the past ten years participated in any other acquisition, merger, etc., except that in 1969, The Citizens and Southern Bank of Emory acquired the assets of The Citizens and Southern Bank of North DeKalb ("North DeKalb"). North DeKalb was chartered in 1967 under the laws of Georgia, but never opened for business. The main and only office of North DeKalb was located in the North DeKalb Shopping Center, 2052 Lawrenceville Highway, Decatur, and this office is now operated as an office of The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank.

FINANCIAL HISTORY AND CONDITION

General Information

The Citizens and Southern Banks

Branch Banking Laws of the State of Georgia and Their Effect Upon Extension of Citizens and Southern Banking Services in the Atlanta Area

A. Georgia Laws Relating to Branch Banking 1919-1960.

The proposed acquisitions by The Citizens and Southern Emory and East Point Banks of substantially all of the assets and assumption by them of all deposit liabilities of, respectively, the Citizens and Southern Banks of Chamblee, Tucker, South DeKalb, and The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank, and The Citizens and Southern Banks of Sandy Springs and North Fulton affect most directly the Atlanta metropolitan trading area. The effects and benefits of this transaction are discussed in some detail later in this Application. It is essential, however, in understanding the reasons for the proposed transaction and in measuring its effects first to review the history of the laws of the State of Georgia which deal with branch banking. The current banking picture in the Atlanta area is basically a reflection of the history of the branch banking laws of the State of Georgia, and of the Citizens and Southern system's attempt to fulfill its corporate policy of furnishing a full range of banking services in all those areas of the State which, by reason of business and population expansion, require the presence of active and competitive commercial banking alternatives to maintain and give impetus to the growth of their economies.

At the heart of the Citizens and Southern system is The Citizens and Southern National Bank. The Citizens and Southern National Bank was formerly The Citizens and Southern Bank (a Georgia banking corporation) which resulted from the merger in 1906 of the Citizens Bank of Savannah and the Southern Bank of Georgia. The principal office of the resulting banking institution was at that time in Savannah, Georgia. From 1906 through 1927, The Citizens and Southern Bank (as a state bank) established one or more branches in Athens, Atlanta, Augusta, Macon and Valdosta, Georgia. In 1927, the state bank, The Citizens and Southern Bank, was converted into The Citizens and Southern National Bank (hereinafter referred to as "C&S National"). The Citizens and Southern National Bank continued the previously established branches of The Citizens and Southern Bank. C&S National's home office has remained in Savannah, although its principal executive office is now located in Atlanta.

The Citizens and Southern Bank had been able to establish these branches because there was no legal restriction whatsoever on branch banking in Georgia prior to 1919, when the first comprehensive state banking law was adopted (Ga. Laws 1919, pp. 135, et seq.). The 1919 statute established no geographical limitations, but did set standards for the establishment of branch banks, subject to determination by the State Superintendent of Banks.

The year 1927 is a key year in the history of branch banking in the State of Georgia. In that year, the Georgia Legislature passed a statute which prescribed the method of operation of branch banks already established and prohibited absolutely the establishment of new or additional branch banks thereafter. The Citizens and Southern (sometimes hereinafter referred to as "C&S") banking system therefore, as well as other banking institutions in the State of Georgia, were after the 1927 statute "frozen" into the alignment of offices which had been established prior to 1927—even though the population of Georgia continued to grow and shift from one location to another, and within the various communities.

Facing the restrictions placed upon branching in 1927, and to meet emerging community needs for banking services, three bank holding companies were created in the State of Georgia during the period from 1927 through 1929. These were (1) the Citizens and Southern Holding Company (hereinafter referred to as the "C&S Holding Company"), which is still actively in business today; (2) Trust Company of Georgia Associates (the holding company of Trust Company of Georgia, a major Atlanta-based bank), also today active in the State of Georgia, with affiliated banks in the cities of Augusta, Columbus, Macon, Savannah and Rome, and in unincorporated DeKalb County; and (3) Hamilton National Associates (a holding company of the Hamilton National Bank of Chattanooga, Tennessee, which today maintains an interest in one Georgia bank located in North Georgia close to the Tennessee line).

The primary business purpose of the Citizens and Southern Holding Company during the years 1927 through 1929 was to afford a means of carrying out The Citizens and Southern National Bank's corporate policy dedicated to the proposition that banking is, in the first instance, a public service. Through December of 1929, the activity of the Holding Company was limited to the acquisition of four state banks in smaller communities of Georgia—Dublin, Thomaston, Albany, and La-Grange. With the exception of the bank in LaGrange, each of these banks was acquired by the Holding Company in order to make banking services available in Georgia communities formerly served by banks which had failed. The bank in LaGrange was acquired from family owners desirous of selling in order to enter other business. Each of these banks is still owned and operated by the Holding Company today.

In 1929, the Georgia Legislature dealt again with branch banking, in three statutes passed at that time. The first statute allowed the creation of new branch offices in cities having a population not less than 80,000 nor more than 125,000, by banks having their home office in such cities. The second provided that banks having their home office in municipalities with a population of not less than 200,000 might establish branch offices in those municipalities. The third statute, though not in terms a banking statute, provided for extension of the city limits of the City of Atlanta to include as "boroughs" of Atlanta, the communities of East Point, Hapeville, College Park (all in Fulton County); and Decatur, and Avondale Estates (in DeKalb County). Each of the latter five communities was at that time, and is now, a "suburb" of the City of Atlanta. Addition of the population of the City of Atlanta with the boroughs of East Point, Hapeville, College

Park, Decatur, and Avondale Estates, according to the 1930 Census, totalled in excess of 200,000. Pursuant to the 1929 law, the First National Bank of Atlanta and the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta (each having its home office in the City of Atlanta) established branch offices in the "borough" of Decatur and thus operate directly their own offices today in DeKalb County, the Georgia county with greatest recent population growth. C&S National, although it had at the time three branch offices in Atlanta proper, was not, under the terms of the new law, able to establish additional banking offices in Atlanta, since the home office of C&S National remained in Savannah. (It should be noted that the 1929 statute including in the City of Atlanta as boroughs the various suburbs noted above was repealed in 1931.)

Prior to the 1927 statute, of course, branch banks (that is to say, an office in one community of a bank whose home office was elsewhere) were on an equal competitive basis with "home office" banks in the same city. Thus, C&S National at that time was on an equal competitive footing in Atlanta through its Atlanta branch, with the various banks having their home offices in Atlanta. All this was changed by the 1927, and more particularly, by the 1929 statutes, which remained in effect until 1960.

As the economy of the State of Georgia grew, and the demand for banking services increased in metropolitan communities through the state, C&S National could not compete adequately with banks which, by accident of history, had their home offices in cities other than Savannah. This situation was particularly acute in the fast growing metropolitan areas, especially where growth typically occurred outside the corporate limits of the municipality involved. If the C&S system were to grow in order to meet the needs of the State of Georgia, it could, and did, grow only through utilization of C&S Holding Company.

B. Extension of Citizens and Southern Services in the Atlanta Area, 1929-1960.

(1) The City of Atlanta.

A characteristic example of the efforts undertaken by the C&S system to meet the convenience and needs of a given metropolitan area is the history of the C&S National and the Holding Company in the Atlanta area. It has already been noted that for a time at the end of the 1920's, some of the home office Atlanta banks were able to establish direct branches in the suburbs of Atlanta, including Decatur. After 1929, the Fulton National Bank, Trust Company of Georgia, First National Bank of Atlanta and the Bank of Georgia (now National Bank of Georgia), major banking competitors of the C&S National all having their principal office in Atlanta, also undertook the establishment of new offices throughout the City of Atlanta proper. The C&S National, on the other hand, was unable to establish any additional banking offices in the City of Atlanta (or any other city except Savannah, for that matter) and thus found itself in an adverse competitive situation.

In the Atlanta area, therefore, C&S National by 1948 found itself locked in to the then rather restrictive

corporate limits of Atlanta, as the population of that city grew and moved away from the "center city," and, within the city itself, limited to its three branches established prior to 1927, all of which were located in the downtown area. In order that the C&S system could offer its banking services at other locations in the populous areas to the north of Atlanta, C&S Holding Company acquired in 1949 more than ninety per cent of the stock and control of the Citizens and Southern Bank of Atlanta and, thereafter, of the Citizens and Southern Buckhead Bank in 1951 (both of which were established, state-chartered banks). These banks were operated as part of the C&S system. Their customers had access to the technical services and facilities of C&S National. Management of the two banks was drawn from the staff of C&S National and could call upon the banking resources of C&S National. Later, these two "suburban" banks were merged. In the 1950's the city limits of Atlanta were extended to include the areas in which the resulting bank was located, and in 1960, laws making it possible for C&S National to operate offices in those areas were adopted. The "suburban" Holding Company Atlanta bank was thus merged into the C&S National Bank and its offices became offices of the C&S National branch located in the City of Atlanta.

(2) Extension of Citizens and Southern Services to Other Communities in Fulton and DeKalb Counties, 1929-1960.

Outside the city limits of Atlanta proper as they were extended over the years, the C&S System, through the Holding Company, undertook the management of three additional affiliate banks in the Atlanta metropolitan area—East Point, Emory and DeKalb. These banks were located in communities having separate and distinct identities of their own—being primarily residential and small business towns or villages where residents and businesses had need of increased banking facilities to meet their needs. Two of these communities are in DeKalb County, and one in Fulton County. This Holding Company growth was permissible under the Georgia laws relating to branch banking, which at the times involved placed no restrictions on bank holding company expansion. In 1956, however, the Georgia Legislature passed a Bank Holding Company Act, freezing and limiting Georgia bank holding companies to the future acquisition of only 15% ownership in banks, and in 1960 a further limiting law was passed reducing permissible ownership a holding company could acquire in banks other than those it controlled to 5%. This latter Act is in effect today. Consequently, since 1956 the C&S System has been unable to expand by means of direct ownership of local banks by the Holding Company.

a. The Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point. This bank was the outgrowth of a series of unfortunate economic experiences on the part of a group of banks in the area of East Point, Georgia. The bank was chartered in 1946 as East Point Commercial Bank, and its assets and liabilities were in turn assumed in 1947 by the newly formed First National Bank of East Point. Thereafter, in November, 1948, when the "group" effort began to encounter difficulties, the Holding Company acquired an interest in the bank and ultimately expanded this to approximately 90% of the stock of what is now the Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point.

East Point, Georgia has been an incorporated municipality, and a major growth area in Fulton County south of Atlanta—indeed, the City of East Point is now the seventh largest city in the State of Georgia, even though it is thought of as an Atlanta suburb. The Holding Company acquired its interest in the Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point in order adequately to serve an area of Fulton County which, though not initially growing as fast as Atlanta or the DeKalb suburbs, encompassed a significant residential and business community. As in the case of the suburban Atlanta banks in which interest was obtained by the Holding Company as set forth above, the Holding Company was used by the C&S system in the case of East Point for the purpose of extending C&S services to residents and businesses in an area of Atlanta where the National Bank itself was prohibited from operating directly.

b. The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank.

Citizens and Southern Emory Bank is a banking corporation organized in 1950 under the laws of the State of Georgia, all of whose stock (save for directors' qualifying shares) was subscribed for initially and has been held since then by the Holding Company. The C&S Emory Bank is located in a community of DeKalb County which has historically been a center of residential and academic growth near Atlanta. Again, however, Georgia laws regarding branch banking prohibited the National Bank from providing banking services to residents of this community. Utilization of the Holding Company was once again the answer.

As the community has grown, and as authorized by rulings of the State Banking Superintendent with respect to the limits of the unincorporated "village" of Emory, the Citizens and Southern Emory Bank has established two additional banking offices—one in 1964 and the second in 1968. In this way, the Citizens and Southern System has been able to serve not only the community as it originally existed, but also the expanding shopping and retail business areas in the vicinity as well.

c. The Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank.

This bank was chartered in 1948 and opened for business in August of 1949 as The Citizens Bank of DeKalb. The bank was located in the incorporated municipality of Avondale Estates, in DeKalb County. Avondale Estates was, and is, a small residential community with a central shopping district, surrounded by residences and some small businesses. The bank encountered business difficulty, and the Holding Company was offered the chance to acquire a substantial interest in the expectation that operation by the Holding Company would better serve the banking needs of the Avondale Estates community and, in 1954, the Holding Company acquired an interest of approximately 90%, and the bank's name was changed to The Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank. Thereafter, the bank was operated as a part of the C&S system through the Holding Company.

By 1968, the character of the Avondale Estates community and its surrounding area had changed to a decidedly more shopping center-apartment-subdivision nature than had previously been the case. Since Avondale Estates was incorporated, the Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank could not locate banking offices outside its municipal limits, and this proved to be a substantial inconvenience for residents and businesses in the area. This problem was alleviated in 1968, when legislation was enacted changing the municipal boundary, with the result that the Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank thereafter was located outside Avondale Estates. This made it possible for the Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank to merge with the Citizens and Southern Belvedere Bank, a state bank organized as a "correspondent associate" (see below) with the cooperation of the C&S system for the purpose of serving the newly opened Belvedere Shopping Center and surrounding areas. At the time of this merger, the bank continued under the name of The Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank, and it presently operates two offices.

After 1960, the Georgia laws regarding branch banking and bank holding company operation were such that, in the Atlanta area, the Citizens and Southern system could not operate its own offices (either offices of the National Bank or offices of the Holding Company affiliates in Atlanta and Fulton County described above) except within the City of Atlanta itself; within the City of East Point, within the incorporated municipality of Avondale Estates, and within the village of the community known as Emory (the limits of which had been set by the Superintendent of Banking according to Georgia law). Given the relatively small areas of Fulton and DeKalb Counties occupied by Atlanta and the three communities other than Atlanta (and the extremely small area of DeKalb County included within the city limits of Atlanta) as compared to the great size of that portion of Fulton and DeKalb Counties located outside these communities, the consequence was that the C&S system was unable to offer banking services to most of Fulton and DeKalb Counties. And it was in 1960 that the remarkable growth of just this part of the Atlanta metropolitan area began in earnest. For instance, the population of DeKalb County has increased from 256,782 in 1960 to 414,085 in 1970. Fulton County has grown from 556,326 in 1960 to 596,700 in 1970, substantially all of this growth coming in areas located outside the City of Atlanta. Most of this growth was in the form of light industry, shopping centers, and office parks in the business sectors, together with subdivisions and apartment complexes in the residential sectors. This mix of growth, if it were to continue and if the prosperity of the Atlanta metropolitan area were to be maintained, required that the full range of banking services available from the C&S system be offered there. Local identification was in many ways important, but C&S felt that the remarkable expansion and prosperity of the Atlanta area outside the City could be maintained only if the full range of C&S services were available there.

C&S, therefore, in 1960 initiated a program of working in cooperation with local residents to establish C&S "correspondent associate" banks in areas where the convenience and needs of [illegible] full service banking and where interest was such as to encourage the establishment of a C&S banking alternative in the community. In effect, establishment of the correspondent associate banks constituted a form of de novo branching by the C&S system.

The C&S correspondent associate programs in Fulton and DeKalb Counties have worked generally as follows. C&S personnel in cooperation with interested residents and businessmen joined to establish, under state or federal law a bank, or, in the case of the community of Tucker, in DeKalb County, to reorganize an existing bank. The Holding Company purchased in the bank the allowable 5% interest. An officer of C&S system, with sufficient banking experience, was recommended by C&S to the Board of Directors of the correspondent associate bank for the office of President of the bank and, if elected, left the employment of C&S to take up these duties. In most cases there also was an infusion of additional management by C&S, and such infusion continued through the years as circumstances required. Management of each correspondent associate has been responsive to the general policy decisions of C&S. Officers of the correspondent associates attend the regular meetings of C&S officers in Atlanta. The correspondent associate banks received all aid which C&S gives to its branches and affiliates in serving the banking needs of the public. The various banking resources of C&S National, such as advice in connection with investment portfolio, market research, computer services for handling banking transactions, and credit and accounting procedures were placed at the disposal of the correspondent associates. Permission was given to each correspondent associate bank to use the "C&S" name and logo, and these banks also benefitted from coordinated advertising campaigns for C&S services. Employees of these banks have been eligible to participate in C&S pension and profit sharing plans, and C&S various employee benefits (such as group life, hospitalization, accident and long-term disability insurance) have been extended to cover employees of the correspondent associate banks in the Atlanta area.

In response to the patterns of growth and development in Fulton and DeKalb Counties the six correspondent associate banks whose acquisition by the C&S system is the subject of the two current companion Applications were organized from late 1959 through 1969 as follows.

(1) The Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs ("Sandy Springs"). Sandy Springs, Georgia, is a "bedroom" community adjoining the City of Atlanta, to the north, in Fulton County. The Sandy Springs area represented the first example of the new "boom" in residential and business growth in North Fulton County in the early 1960's. Sandy Springs was organized with the assistance of C&S as a national banking association in December, 1959, as the Citizens National Bank of Sandy Springs. The Holding Company purchased a 1% interest in the outstanding stock of the Sandy Springs bank. In October, 1969, Sandy Springs was converted to a State chartered bank under the laws of the State of Georgia as the Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs. It conducts full service banking operations as a main office in Sandy Springs. Substantial development of residential, commercial, medical and retail facilities in the immediate area of Sandy Springs all resulted in part from the availability of full C&S banking services through and from Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs.

Mr. Louis J. Fortune, President of Sandy Springs since January, 1965, had been employed by C&S National since 1948. Two other officers of Sandy Springs had been employed by C&S National before coming to Sandy Springs.

(2) The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee ("Chamblee"). The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee was organized as a national banking association in May, 1960, as Chamblee National Bank. C&S participated with a group of businessmen from the Chamblee, Georgia area of DeKalb County in the organization of the Bank, and the Holding Company purchased 5% of the bank's outstanding stock. In October, 1969, Chamblee converted to a state-chartered bank under the laws of Georgia, as The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee.

The town of Chamblee is typical of the several communities in the Atlanta area which have contributed to growth in the Atlanta area. The town includes both residential and business areas. Businesses are both local in nature, such as car dealerships and pharmacies, and national and regional in the scope of their activities. Chamblee conducts full service banking operations through a main office and one branch office. Substantial development of residential and commercial real estate in its primary service area has been significant to Chamblee's success. Chamblee today operates, in addition to its home office, one other office within the town of Chamblee.

The current President of Chamblee is Mr. Hubert L. Harris, who has served in that post since January, 1964. Prior to joining Chamblee, Mr. Harris had been employed by C&S National since 1926. An Assistant Vice President of Chamblee, serving there since 1963, had previously been an employee of C&S since 1946.

(3) The Citizens and Southern bank of Tucker ("Tucker"). This bank was chartered under the laws of Georgia as the Bank of Tucker in 1919. Through the early 1950's the community of Tucker, in DeKalb County, was predominantly rural in character and this bank served a very limited market, and, consequently, offered very limited banking services. The bank was controlled by a single family prominent in the Tucker community, and owning substantial other businesses there. As the Tucker area began to develop rapidly as both a significant suburban residential market as well as a center for industrial and commercial growth, the bank because of limited services and lack of adequate management, found itself unable to meet the increasing need for a full range of banking services in the Tucker area. The principal stockholders did not desire to undertake direction of a full service bank. To meet these needs effectively, the principal stockholders of the Bank of Tucker requested the cooperation of C&S. Thereupon, in 1965, the Holding Company acquired a 5% interest in the outstanding stock of the Bank of Tucker and cooperated in its upgrading, and Tucker became a correspondent associate. At this time, stockholders also voted to change the name of the bank to the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker. The Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker now operates two offices in the Tucker area, offering the full range of C&S banking services.

Mr. Gus L. Connelly has been President of the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker since 1965, and prior to that time had been employed by C&S National since 1958. Two other officers of Tucker have substantial previous employment with C&S National.

(4) The Citizens and Southern Bank of North Fulton ("North Fulton"). The Citizens and Southern Bank of North Fulton was organized by residents of the area located in the further northern portion of Fulton County—characterized by a number of small incorporated municipalities, some farms, and rapidly developing residential areas—with the cooperation of C&S in May, 1967. North Fulton conducts full service banking operations from a main office in Roswell, Georgia, an established and growing municipality. The Holding Company owns the permissible 5% interest in the outstanding stock of North Fulton.

The President of North Fulton is Mr. Hugh F. Lane, who, prior to his assuming that office, had been employed since 1960 by C&S National. North Fulton's Cashier also had substantial prior experience with C&S National before being elected to that office in January, 1969.

(5) The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank ("Park National"). Since the mid-1960's, the intersection of Interstate Highway 85 and North Druid Hills Road in DeKalb County, an area adjacent to the City of Atlanta to the northeast, has developed as the largest suburban office development complex in metropolitan Atlanta—including Executive Park,

Landmark, and Corporate Square—"planned suburban major office complexes." To meet the increasing need for convenient banking services in this area, and to provide C&S services there, leading businessmen whose firms were located in the area requested the assistance of C&S in the organization of a correspondent associate. The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank thus was organized as a national banking association and began business in 1967, 5% of its outstanding stock being purchased at the time of organization by the Holding Company.

The President of Park National since its organization has been Mr. Thomas W. Hazelrig, who had been employed by C&S National since 1951. Two other officers of Park National also had substantial prior experience with C&S National.

(6) The Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank ("South DeKalb"). The Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank was organized pursuant to the laws of the State of Georgia in 1969 as a C&S correspondent associate, C&S participating with local residents and businessmen and acquiring through the Holding Company at the time of organization 5% of the outstanding stock of the bank. South DeKalb is located in an area of DeKalb County which has developed rapidly as a residential and shopping center for the southern part of the County. The bank's main office is located on the primary traffic artery between the county seat, Decatur, to the north, and the residential subdivisions and new shopping centers in the fast-growing South DeKalb area, which has enjoyed explosive growth since the opening of Interstate Highway 20 between that area and downtown Atlanta. Together with this residential growth, and associated expansion of retail businesses, establishment of substantial commercial enterprises has established a great need for the availability of the full range of C&S services. The Superintendent of Banking has recently authorized the establishment of an additional office for South DeKalb.

The President of South DeKalb, Mr. Warren L. Berry, had been employed since 1967 by C&S National. One other officer of South DeKalb also has substantial prior employment with C&S National.

D. Branch Banking Laws of Georgia—1970—and C&S in the Atlanta Metropolitan Area.

In 1970, the Georgia Legislature amended the Georgia banking laws to expand the authority of banks to establish additional banking offices in counties where the banks already operated home offices, branch banks or offices thereof (subject to certain restrictions based on population of the county, not material here). The effect of this change in the Georgia banking laws is to make it possible for (1) C&S to establish additional offices in Fulton and DeKalb Counties; (2) the Holding Company's Emory affiliate to establish additional offices in DeKalb County, and (3) the Holding Company's East Point affiliate to establish additional offices in Fulton County. This change in the Georgia laws relating to branch banks is effective as of 1970.

It is relevant to note here that the other major banks competing with C&S in the Atlanta market have also followed a course of association with localized banking organizations in order to provide their own banking services in Fulton and DeKalb Counties where direct establishment of offices was not possible.

First National Bank of Atlanta ("First National"), the second largest bank in the City, in addition to operation of its Decatur branch, cooperated in the operation of The First National Bank of Doraville (a municipality in DeKalb County adjoining Chamblee); The First National Bank of Glenwood (a residential-small business community in DeKalb County); The First National Bank of Tucker, and The First State Bank of South DeKalb. Trust Company of Georgia Associates (a holding company owned by The Trust Company of Georgia—"Trust Company") has operated directly The Trust Company of Georgia Bank of DeKalb (located at Executive Park, DeKalb County) and also has been associated with Peachtree Bank and Trust Company (in the Brookhaven community of DeKalb County) and Trust Company of Georgia Bank of Sandy Springs. Fulton National Bank, which has a branch in Decatur, is believed to have assisted in the organization of Northeast Commercial Bank (located in Doraville) and has been associated with that bank and the Bank of the South (in the municipality of College Park, Fulton County, Georgia).

Now, two of these competitors—First National and Trust Company—are presently filing with the appropriate bank regulatory applications similar to this one, for approval to incorporate these associated banks directly into the corporate system of the particular banks involved. In each case the reason for the application is the same—the 1970 change in Georgia's banking laws to make possible the completion now of a branching process which originally took the form of association only because of Georgia's artificial restrictions on branch banking in the Atlanta metropolitan area.

C&S management has determined that the C&S system can best serve Fulton and DeKalb Counties (those portions outside the City of Atlanta) by utilizing the two above-named Holding Company affiliates as "county banks"—each identified with the county it will serve. For this reason applications are submitted for C&S Emory to acquire the assets of the C&S correspondent associates in DeKalb County outside Atlanta, and for C&S East Point to acquire the assets of the C&S correspondent associates in Fulton County outside Atlanta. This plan, if approved, would have, of course, the same overall effect as acquisition of the correspondent associates by C&S National—full integration of the correspondent associates into the C&S system.

The reason for the filing of these applications is simple. The stockholders of the correspondent associates have made clear their desire to bring to their respective communities, banks which offer the full range of services, and, more important, which are guided by the banking philosophy of service to the community which characterizes C&S. The correspondent associates have been organized (in the case of Tucker, strengthened and redirected) solely for the purpose of accomplishing this end.

Similarly, C&S has responded to these needs by identifying itself with these banks. By making the unique attributes of C&S banking services available to them and their customers and their communities, C&S has an investment in the correspondent associate banks; more important, C&S has a commitment to the banks, their customers, their stockholders, and their communities.

The changes in Georgia's banking laws now make it possible for C&S to implement fully its commitment, and for the stockholders of the correspondent associate banks and the communities represented thereby to realize fully their expectations of direct service by the C&S system.

The directors of the corporation at interface banks believe that the proliferation of separate banks each bearing the C&S name is undesirable and inefficient. The boards of each such bank have discussed with C&S personnel the best means of eliminating the artificial separation of the banks from each other and from C&S. The results of these discussions are the proposed plans of reorganization and these applications.

In summary, the purpose of these applications is to seek approval of transactions which will harmonize form with substance: The changes in Georgia's banking laws allow C&S to incorporate in one system of banking that which had to be kept separate in order to comply with those banking laws. C&S met its responsibilities to offer within all applicable banking laws another meaningful banking alternative to growing communities which sought C&S banking services on the only basis then available. Approval of these applications, then, will be the final step in a process begun some ten years ago—expansion by the C&S system of its banking services to all those parts of Fulton and DeKalb Counties where the convenience and needs of the communities involved justified this action.

A key to office numbers, scale of miles, and compass points should be shown on the map.

[1]"Service area" as used herein and applied to a participating bank, a competing bank, or any head office or branch office means the geographical area from which that bank or office derives 75 per cent or more of its deposits, both as to amount and time, of individuals, partnerships, and corporations. Such deposits are shown in published reports of condition of banks and are referred to herein as "IPC" deposits.

EXHIBIT I

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

An analysis of the geographic distribution of both demand and time deposits of individuals, partnerships, and corporations of C & S Emory, C & S Chamblee, C & S Tucker, C & S Park National, and C & S South DeKalb was made by the Marketing Research Department of The C & S Holding Company. This analysis was based on randomly selected samples of personal and commercial checking account customers ("IPC" demand); and regular savings account, savings bonds, time deposit open accounts, and individual certificates of deposit customers ("IPC" time). These samples were matched against the U.S. Bureau of the Census address coding guide for the Atlanta Metropolitan Area, prepared for the 1970 Census of Population and Housing, to determine both block and census tract locations for each customer included in the sample groups.

Since the samples were selected on a strictly random basis, the statistical accuracy of the results can be stated. At the 95 percent confidence level, the results of these analyses have a statistical reliability of plus or minus 5 percent.

Primary Service Area, C & S Emory

The primary service area, from which C & S Emory derives approximately 75 percent of its total "IPC" dollar deposits, includes the northern portion of the City of Decatur and a major sector of the west central unincorporated area of DeKalb County. As defined, the C & S Emory primary service area, as shown on the attached map, encompasses all of eight census tracts and portions of five other tracts.

As of April 1, 1970, the defined C & S Emory primary service area had a total population of 79,112 persons. This represents an increase of 23,682 persons, or 42.7 percent, since April 1, 1960.

The following table shows comparative 1960 - 70 population trends for the C & S Emory primary service area and DeKalb County, as a whole.

Primary Service Area, C & S Chamblee

The C & S Chamblee primary service area, from which the Bank derives approximately 75 percent of its total "IPC" dollar deposits, includes the City of Chamblee (home of the C & S Chamblee Bank), the adjacent City of Doraville, and a major sector of unincorporated north DeKalb County, as well as a small sector of nearby Gwinnett County. As shown on the attached map, the defined C & S Chamblee primary service area encompasses all of six census tracts and a portion of eight others.

The defined C & S Chamblee primary service area more than doubled in population between 1960 and 1970 -- with most of this growth taking place outside of the relatively small corporate area of Chamblee. As shown in the following table, the C & S Chamblee primary service area had a total population of 53,067 persons as of April 1, 1970. Of this total, approximately 17 percent -- 9,011 persons -- are located within the City of Chamblee.

Primary Service Area, C & S Tucker

The primary service area of C & S Tucker, from which the Bank derives approximately 75 percent of total "IPC" dollar deposits, includes the unincorporated community of Tucker and adjacent portions of unincorporated DeKalb and Gwinnett counties. As shown on the attached map, the defined C & S Tucker primary service area encompasses all of six census tracts and portions of 9 others.

The defined C & S Tucker primary service area represents the fastest growing market sector in DeKalb County during the 1960 - 70 decade. Between 1960 and 1970, the population of the C & S Tucker primary service area almost tripled -- from a 1960 base of 29,264 persons to a total of 82,733 persons as of April 1, 1970. Of the primary service area's current population, about one-fourth lives in the Tucker community.

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

The following table shows the map key number and name and location of the Main Office, Clairmont Road Branch, and North DeKalb Branch of The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank (Applicant); and the Main Office and Buford Highway Branch of The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee, the Main Office and LaVista Branch of The Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker, and The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank and The Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank. The same is also shown for each of the other existing 26 banking offices (13 head offices and 13 branch offices) located in DeKalb County, the three approved not-open banking offices, and the 21 banking offices for which applications are pending. Also shown are the dates began business for each existing bank.

The basic source for arriving at total "IPC" deposits for the 23 banks operating in DeKalb County is the June 30, 1970 Report of Condition. Public information is not available on "IPC" deposits for branches in DeKalb County of the Fulton National Bank, The First National Bank of Atlanta, The National Bank of Georgia, and the Trust Company of Georgia. The Fulton National Bank has three branch offices in DeKalb County -- two in the City of Decatur and one in East Atlanta -- a sector of the City of Atlanta which extends into DeKalb County. The First National Bank of Atlanta has two branch offices in the City of Decatur. Both the National Bank of Georgia and Trust Company of Georgia have a branch in the East Atlanta sector of DeKalb County. The estimated "IPC" deposits for these Atlanta banks in DeKalb County were estimated by the Marketing Research Department of The Citizens and Southern Holding Company.

The Citizens and Southern National Bank Moreland Office is located in the East Atlanta sector of DeKalb County, and the "IPC" deposits for this office are those shown on the FDIC Call, Summary of Deposits, June 30, 1970.

A separate table is also attached showing the distances (road miles) and directions from the head office of the Applicant Bank (C & S Emory) and the head offices Other Banks (C & S Chamblee, C & S Tucker, C & S Park National, and C & S South DeKalb) for all existing, approved - not open, and application pending banking locations.

A map of the relevant DeKalb County market is enclosed with this application. This map shows the location of all existing banking offices, approved and not open banking offices, and pending branch applications; as well as the primary service areas of C & S Emory (Applicant Bank) and C & S Chamblee, C & S Tucker, C & S Park National, and C & S South DeKalb (Other Banks).

(5) CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

If the Applicant Bank or Other Bank has pending applications for approval of branches or has received authority to establish branches which are not yet open for business, furnish pertinent details. Such branches are to be listed and numbered in accordance with the sequence established in the foregoing schematic, and should be shown and appropriately identified on the map.

See EXHIBIT III

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

Which follows

List the assigned numbers of any branches of the participating banks, including branches approved or applied for, which it is planned to discontinue or abandon if the proposed transaction is effected, and furnish pertinent details.

No branches of participating banks, including branches approved or applied for, are planned to be discontinued or abandoned, if the proposed transaction is effected.

State whether the service area or areas of the Resulting Bank will be predominately agricultural, industrial, residential, or mixed, and describe the growth trend over the past ten years and the present economic outlook. (A concise general statement, rather than statistical data, is desired.)

See EXHIBIT IV

which follows

Discuss the lending power and capacity of each of the participating banks in relation to the credit needs of its service area, and how the lending power and capacity of the Resulting Bank will relate to those needs.

See Exhibit V

which follows

Discuss the types of service which the Resulting Bank will offer which are not now offered by the participating banks in their respective service areas, indicating the extent to which such services are offered by other banks or financial institutions in such areas.

See EXHIBIT VI

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

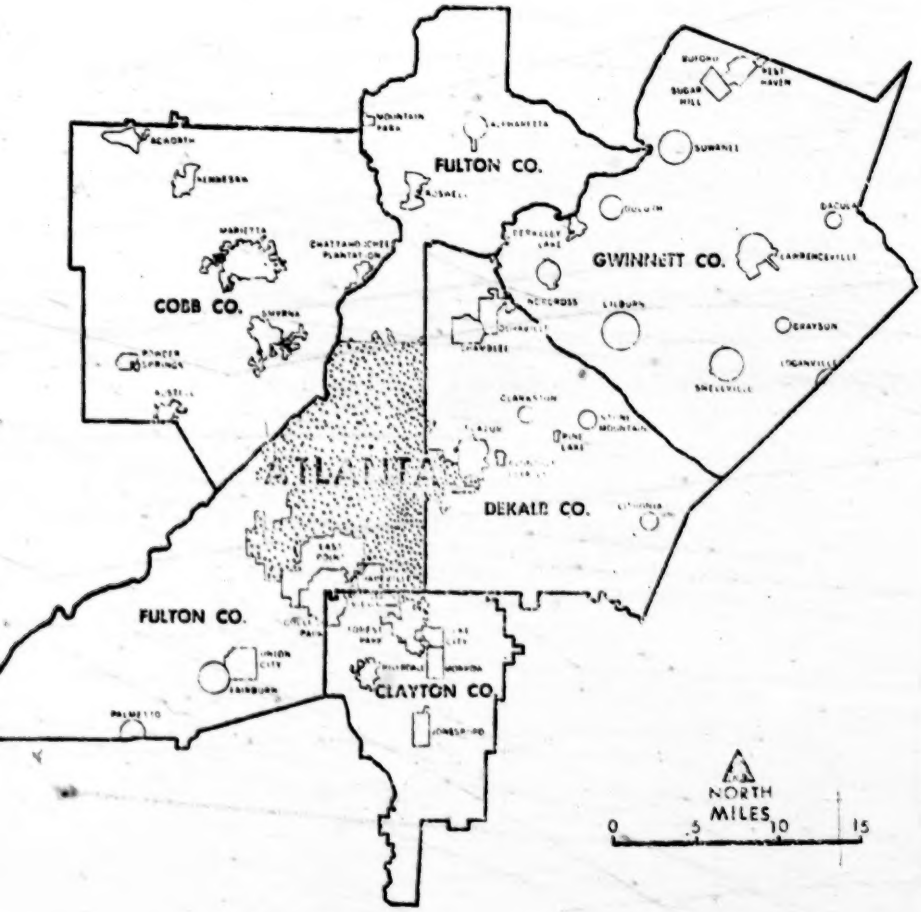
CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF THE COMMUNITY

DeKalb County is the fastest growing county within the five-county Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA). While DeKalb County's population continues to be swelled by many residents commuting to jobs in other sections of Metropolitan Atlanta, the County is sharing at an impressive rate in the increasing outward movement to the suburbs of new industrial, office, and shopping center developments. These gains in DeKalb's commercial and industrial base are bringing new strength and balance to the County's economic structure.

The following map of the Atlanta SMSA shows the relationship of DeKalb County -- and other metropolitan area counties -- to the central city of Atlanta. Following the map, is presented a review of the major economic trends taking place in the Atlanta SMSA and DeKalb County.

METROPOLITAN ATLANTA



The Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area

The Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area is the dominant economic hub of the Southeast. Although Atlanta has long been a regional distribution center, it has emerged during the 1960 - 70 decade to a new level -- taking on stronger characteristics as a city tied to the nation as well as the region it serves.

The Atlanta SMSA currently consists of five counties -- Clayton, Cobb, DeKalb, Fulton, and Gwinnett. Preliminary 1970 census figures show that as of April 1, 1970 Metropolitan Atlanta had a population of 1,375,746 persons. This is a 35.2 percent increase since 1960, compared to a 13.9 percent gain for the State of Georgia, and 14.6 percent for five of the southeastern states. Currently 30.6 percent of the State of Georgia's population resides in the Atlanta SMSA, compared to 25.8 percent in 1960.

Looking ahead, the Atlanta SMSA is expected to reach a population of 1,572,900 persons by 1975, 2 million by 1983.

A review of a number of indicators clearly reflect Metropolitan Atlanta's dominant economic role in the Southeast and its emerging role as an important national center.

1. Preliminary 1970 census figures place Metropolitan Atlanta 21st in population among the nation's 231 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

2. Among the top 20 metropolitan areas in the nation, Atlanta ranked second during the 1960 - 69 period in percentage growth in non-agricultural employment, with a gain of 61.6 percent. Approximately 26,000 jobs were created in Metropolitan Atlanta each year during the 1960's for an annual average of 577,900 in 1969. Total employment should reach 780,000 by 1975. Similar to other inland regional centers (Dallas, Minneapolis - St. Paul and Kansas City) a greater proportion of Atlanta's employment is concentrated in the service-oriented categories of finance - insurance - real estate, transportation - communications - utilities, wholesale, retail trade, and services. This employment distribution reflects Atlanta's position as the management center for the region, not only as a physical collection and distribution point, but in the central centered activities such as finance, business services, and government.

3. Total private construction during the 1959 - 69 period exceeded $3.3 billion in Metropolitan Atlanta. Construction increased from $186.7 million in 1959 to almost $450 million in 1969.

4. Indication of Atlanta's strong regional role as trade capital of the region is the presence of operations of 413 of the Fortune 500 list of the nation's largest industrial corporations. Also represented in Atlanta are 46 of the 50 largest life insurance companies, 19 of the 50 largest retailing companies and 39 of the largest transportation companies.

5. Atlanta is one of the nation's major government centers. There are 90 agencies, departments, or divisions of Federal government operations in Atlanta with approximately 28,500 employees. Total government employment exceeded 89,000 in 1969.

6. Metropolitan Atlanta easily leads the State in per household effective buying income, $11,544 compared to $9,117. It also leads the South Atlantic States ($9,294) and the United States ($10,048). By 1975 Atlanta families should have a disposable income of $15,850.

7. Retail sales more than doubled during the 1958 - 1969 period, from $1.23 billion to $2.73 billion.

8. Reflecting Metropolitan Atlanta's distribution role, wholesale sales increased from almost $4 billion in 1958 to $8.5 billion in 1967, well over a 100 percent increase.

9. Almost 160,000 housing units were constructed in Metropolitan Atlanta in the 1960 - 1969 period. Approximately 40 percent of the total were in multi-family structures. It is expected that 250,000 new housing units will be required during the 1970 - 1980 decade to meet the needs of a growing population. This means that even higher annual rate of production will take place, 25,000 units each year as compared to the 9-year average of almost 18,000 units.

In the same manner, the following list of selected national rankings illustrate the economic vigor of Metropolitan Atlanta:

DeKalb County

DeKalb County -- one of the five counties making up the Atlanta SMSA -- is Georgia's most rapidly growing county. Between 1950 and 1960, DeKalb became the State of Georgia's second largest county in population size.

Since 1960, DeKalb County has continued to expand its population at a steady upward rate. Preliminary 1970 figures show that DeKalb County has a population of 414,085 persons. Currently 30 percent of the Atlanta SMSA population of 1,375,746 persons reside in DeKalb County; compared to 25.2 percent in 1960 and 18.8 percent in 1950.

The following table shows DeKalb County's population growth since 1950 compared to other counties making up the Atlanta SMSA.

DeKalb County's population growth has been concentrated almost entirely within the large unincorporated area of the county. The largest incorporated area in DeKalb County is that portion of Atlanta in DeKalb, with a current population of 46,596. The City of Decatur is second with a population of 21,963. As shown in the following table, more than one-half of DeKalb's 1950 population was located in its nine incorporated areas. By 1960, this percentage had dropped to 31.9, and by 1970 to 23.6.

DeKalb County's population growth reflects to a significant degree its role as a "bedroom community" for the central city of Atlanta. In 1960, 56,370 workers lived in DeKalb County and crossed into Fulton County (primarily Atlanta) each day to their place of work. This represented 56.6 percent of DeKalb's employed population. By contrast, only 2.2 percent of Fulton County's employed residents worked in DeKalb.

Within the 1960 - 70 decade there has been a significant increase in the growth of major employment centers in DeKalb -- industrial districts, office parks and shopping centers. These developments have reduced the percentage of employed DeKalb residents commuting to Fulton County. However, because of the tremendous growth of jobs in the Atlanta Central Business District and other sectors of Metropolitan Atlanta, the actual number of DeKalb residents commuting to jobs in Fulton County has increased. Currently, an estimated 75,000 DeKalb residents work in Fulton County.

Looking ahead, DeKalb County is expected to continue to capture an increasing share of Metropolitan Atlanta's population during the next five years. During this period DeKalb is expected to gain 45 percent of the Atlanta SMSA population increase -- advancing to a total population of 502,800, or 32 percent of the Atlanta SMSA total in 1975.

Personal Income

DeKalb County is, to a great extent, a "white collar" professional community. In addition to providing homes for thousands of Atlanta based workers, fine colleges -- Emory, Agnes Scott, Oglethorpe, Atlanta Baptist College, Columbia Theological Seminary, and DeKalb Junior College -- attract students and faculties that add an intellectually stimulating environment. Large professional employers such as U. S. Public Health Services' Center for Disease Control and the Southeastern Region Internal Revenue Service Center add to this quality.

Reflecting its professional employment level, and its large share of resident Atlanta - employed executives, DeKalb County has the highest disposable income per household of any county in the Southeast. In 1969, DeKalb households had an average disposable income of $13,023, compared to $11,544 for the Atlanta SMSA, as a whole. Assuming a slightly reduced inflationary rate, DeKalb households should average $17,200 in disposable income in 1975; compared to $15,850 for the Atlanta SMSA.

Residential Construction

DeKalb County easily led the other four counties in Metropolitan Atlanta in residential construction during the 1960 - 69 period. Of the 88,710 single - family homes constructed in Metropolitan Atlanta during this period, 33.5 percent were built in DeKalb County. The impact of apartment construction is evidenced by the fact that 37.5 percent of total housing units constructed in DeKalb County during this period were multi-family, up from eight percent in 1960.

Retail Sales

As population and personal incomes have grown and traditional central city functions have de-centralized into DeKalb County, major retailing developments have followed. These include the North DeKalb Center at North Druid Hills Road and Lawrenceville Highway (site of the North DeKalb Branch of C & S Emory) and the South DeKalb Center (immediately across from the site of the approved - not open branch office of C & S South DeKalb). In north DeKalb County two new regional shopping centers, Northlake Center at I - 285 and La Vista Road (site of the La Vista Branch of C & S Tucker) and Perimeter Center at I - 285 and Ashford Dunwoody Road (site of a proposed branch of C & S Emory) are under construction.

Between 1963 and 1969, total DeKalb County retail sales jumped dramatically from $256.5 million to $585.7 million. As a result, DeKalb's share of total Atlanta SMSA retail sales increased from 15.8 percent to 21.5 percent.

Employment

The Fulton - DeKalb County economies are so inter-twined that the Georgia Department of Labor does not break out employment between the two in its annual county employment estimates, reporting them as a single unit. Thus, reliable source for data on DeKalb employment from which a time series can be formulated is the County Business Patterns of the Bureau of the Census. These statistics include only those jobs covered by FICA, excluding government employees, self-employed, domestics and certain railroad employees. Nevertheless, certain important trends can be gleaned from these reports.

In 1968, 14.3 percent of Metropolitan Atlanta jobs were in DeKalb, up from 12 percent in 1965 and 11.2 percent in 1962. During the 1962-68 period, DeKalb's employment increased by 84.6 percent to 67,354, almost double the Metropolitan Atlanta rate of climb of 44.5 percent.

DeKalb County is expected to continue to absorb an increasing share of Metropolitan Atlanta employment, advancing to almost 18 percent by 1975 to over 114,000 employees (excluding government employees, self-employed, domestics, and certain railway employees). Important government employers which rapidly inflate this figure are the national headquarters of the U. S. Public Health Services' Center for Disease Control with current employment of 1,534, the Internal Revenue Service Center - Southeast Region with an average of 2,500, and the government of DeKalb County with over 3,000.

Manufacturing employment almost doubled in DeKalb during the 1962-68 period to 15,342. The manufacturing profile has swung from the low-wage industries - textile, apparel, lumber and wood products and furniture and fixtures, to the high-wage categories of paper and allied products, printing and publishing, chemical and allied products and electrical machinery.

Reflecting DeKalb's merger into the Atlanta economic fabric, employment nearly doubled during the 1962-68 period in wholesale and retail trade and services, and more than doubled in the finance, insurance and real estate category.

DeKalb County 1962-68 employment is summarized in the following table:

The first planned industrial district in Metropolitan Atlanta was created in DeKalb County on Peachtree Industrial Boulevard in 1945 (site of the C & S Chamblee main office). DeKalb now has eleven industrial districts, which will likely accomodate most new industries locating in the county. Included among these are: Tucker - Stone Mountain (near the C & S Tucker Main Office), Montreal (near the C & S Tucker La Vista Branch), and Northeast Freeway (near C & S Park National).

The congestion in downtown business districts during the sixties forced the creation of suburban office parks in many of the larger cities. DeKalb County was the recipient of the first one built in Atlanta -- the 122 - acre Executive Park. This major development, as well as the Freeway, Landmark and Corporate Square office parks are within the immediate vicinity of C & S Park National.

Presently there are now eleven major office parks in DeKalb County with almost 10 million square feet of office space existing, under construction or planned. Included are the 1,100,000 square-foot Northlake development (site of the La Vista C & S Tucker Branch) and the 2,000,000 square-foot Perimeter Center development (site of the proposed C & S Emory Branch).

During 1969 industrial and commercial investment in DeKalb County exceeded $20 million, adding 1.944 million square feet and 3,190 employees to the economic base. During the first half of 1970 the investment continued at approximately the same rate with announcements of $9.6 million in new and expanded industrial and commercial facilities.

EXHIBIT V

CONVENIENCE AND NEED OF PROPOSED
LENDING POWER AND CAPACITY OF PARTICIPATING BANKS

The lending power and capacity of participating banks (as well as other banks) are limited in meeting the credit needs of an individual borrower on an unsecured basis to 10% of capital and unimpaired surplus, and on a secured basis to 20% of capital and unimpaired surplus. For both state - chartered in Georgia and national chartered banks capital is defined to include: capital notes and debentures, preferred stock and common stock. For state - chartered banks in Georgia unimpaired surplus includes the surplus account only. For national - chartered banks unimpaired surplus is defined to include: surplus, undivided profits, reserve for contingencies and other capital reserves, plus 50% of the reserve for bad debt losses on loans.

As per call reports of June 30, 1970, the dollar loan limits of each of the participating banks and the Resulting Bank would be as follows:

	Dollar Loan Limit to an Individual Borrower
	Unsecured	Secured
The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank	$ 170,000	$ 340,000
The Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee	122,500	245,000
The Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker	133,400	266,800
The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank	77,700	155,400
The Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank	55,000	110,000
RESULTING BANK	$ 532,900	$1,065,800

As shown above, the Resulting Bank would be in a position to meet the increasing capital needs of individual market area borrowers -- especially growing small and moderate size businesses -- which now, in many cases, can only be handled by the sale of loan participations.

EXHIBIT VI

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

The consummation of the proposed transaction will result in more effective service to present customers of the participating banks. Present customers of C&S Chamblee, C&S Tucker, C&S Park National and C&S South DeKalb will have direct access to the full scope and variety of services of the C&S system—which services are available directly to customers of all C&S Holding Company affiliate banks--including: personal and corporate trust services, factoring, real estate lending, enterprise capital loans, international banking, and travel department.

With the availability of a single C&S bank in various areas of DeKalb County, businesses which operate in more than one part of the County will not be required to maintain banking accounts with several banks in order to have ready access to C&S facilities where their business is transacted. Likewise, residents living in one part of the County but working in another part, will have the convenience of dealing with the same bank both at home and where they work.

In summary, there will be no decrease in the types of services now being offered by the participating banks if the proposed transaction is approved. While approval will not bring any immediate expansion of the types of banking services available through the participating banks, it will make the wide range of C&S services directly and more conveniently available to customers of the participating banks.

In addition, the Resulting Bank, because of its larger capital base will be able to serve larger corporate customers —many of which require banks of a certain size before designating them as depositories. It is believed that this factor will enable the Resulting Bank to play a more important role in the community which it will serve. Identification of businesses located in the County with a bank having its main office there will focus the attention of these corporate customers upon the unique opportunities and problems of the DeKalb community served by the Resulting Bank. Similarly, the resultant larger capital base will make it possible for the Resulting Bank to service larger credit needs without the necessity of having to sell participations in loans in order to meet these needs.

The unique range and depth of banking services offered by C&S are not duplicated by other banks serving the areas served by the participating banks. Customers of the C&S correspondent associate banks have, it is felt, chosen them to do business with because of the availability of the C&S services through the banks, even though the correspondent associate status meant that in certain cases the services were available indirectly and by reference. Approval of the transaction would, therefore, enable the participating banks more fully to recognize this choice of their customers and to enlarge their abilities to implement the customer's chosen banking program.

Discuss the past record of the participating banks with respect to their growth, awareness of their responsibilities to the community, and alertness to provide needed services.

(7) EFFECT OF PROPOSED TRANSACTION ON COMPETITION
(Including Any Tendency Toward Monopoly)

The Applicant Bank is requested to furnish herewith as part of this application the following exhibits:

Exhibit A - Schedules showing the total "IPC" deposits, both demand and time, and total loans and discounts of:

1. Applicant Bank, Other Bank, and each other bank competing within the service area or areas of the Applicant Bank;

2. Other Bank, Applicant Bank, and each of the banks competing within the service area or areas of the Other Bank;

3. Resulting Bank and each other bank competing within the service area or areas of the Resulting Bank; and showing for each service area the percentages of "IPC" deposits and loans and discounts of each bank in relation to the aggregates for that particular service area.

EXHIBIT VII

CONVENIENCE AND NEEDS OF COMMUNITY

With the support of the C&S system, all of the participating banks have actively expanded their services to the communities in which they are located. Implementation of the C&S philosophy that a primary requirement of full-service banking is the service of meeting the growing credit needs of growing communities is illustrated in the following table which sets forth the total loans made by the participating banks during the years 1965-1970 (June 30):

Total Loans ($000)	C&S Emory	C&S Chamblee	C&S Tucker	C&S Park Nat'l	C&S S.DeKalb
December 31, 1965	7,439.5	4,473 5	3,344.9
December 31, 1966	13,896.7	6,448.4	6,026.4
December 31, 1967	14,756.1	7,538.7	7,371.0	1,277.2
December 31, 1968	18,428.1	9,526.8	11,377.5	2,832.2
June 30, 1970	29,787.5	13,620.4	15,051.7	6,031.8	2,683.1

Similarly, the commitments of the participating banks to provide the resources necessary for support of the growing communities served by them is shown in the following table, which reflects the total deposits held by each of the participating banks during the years 1965-1970 (as of June 30).

Total Deposits ($000)	C&S Emory	C&S Chamblee	C&S Tucker	C&S Park Nat'l	C&S S.DeKalb
December 31, 1965	16,362.8	7,530 0	5,224.5
December 31, 1966	20.414.5	10,204.3	8,028.0
December 31, 1967	24,291.3	13,102.9	10,815.0	3,638.1
December 31, 1968	28,938.9	15,617.6	14,452.9	6,041.3
December 31, 1969	38,497.8	17,224.6	17,998.2	7,300.4	1,550.9
June 30, 1970	36,936.4	16,948.6	19,923.2	8,164.0	3,246.0

The response to the needs of their communities which is demonstrated by the growth shown on the above tables is one measure of the records of the banks involved in this transaction. Equally as important is their record of bringing to their communities the opportunity of participating in the innovative banking services and programs originated by the C&S system, such as individual tax return preparation, payroll accounting plans, bank credit cards and "enterprise lending" (specialized lending programs for small high-risk businesses). This record of expanding the types and numbers of banking services to meet the needs of changing, more economically complex communities, together with the measureable growth in banking resources and activity, demonstrates the awareness of the participating banks to the needs of their communities, and their alertness to provide needed services.

COMPETITION IN THE RELEVANT DEKALB MARKET
FROM OTHER FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

Competition from other financial institutions continues to be strong in the relevant DeKalb market. As the fastest growing sector of the Atlanta Metropolitan area, DeKalb County is experiencing continuing growth in both the number of non-bank financial institutions and deposit and loan dollar totals. These trends are indicated in the following sections of this exhibit.

Savings and Loan Associations

DeKalb County savings and loan associations are active and aggressive competitors for personal savings and real estate lending in the relevant market area. Between 1965 and 1969, the number of savings and loan offices in DeKalb County have increased from 14 to 19.

Savings and loan associations are not restricted on a geographic basis in Georgia in their branching. The Atlanta Federal Savings and Loan Association (Georgia's largest) has a branch office in the Brookhaven community of DeKalb County. Also, Standard Federal (also headquartered in Atlanta) has recently merged with Piedmont Federal, which had its main office in the Northeast Plaza Shopping Center on the Buford Highway. DeKalb County Federal, headquartered in Decatur, has a branch office in the City of Conyers -- in adjacent Rockdale County.

Total assets of the six savings and loan associations headquartered in DeKalb County have increased from $204,537,000 in 1961 to $342,240,000 in 1969.

Credit Unions

Credit unions operating within the relevant DeKalb County market are continuing to offer significant competition for both personal savings and loan customers.

There are presently 21 State and Federal chartered credit unions in DeKalb County, compared with 10 in 1962. Total asset figures for the 11 state-chartered credit unions, obtained from the Georgia Comptroller General's office, are listed in the following pages of this exhibit. Similar data on the federal-chartered credit unions in DeKalb County is not available from the Atlanta office of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the regulatory agency in charge of these organizations. The approximate total asset sizes of the reported Federal Credit Unions in DeKalb County is indicated by the following:

Factors

Since all Atlanta-area factoring operations are located in the City of Atlanta (Fulton County) competition from factoring companies is not a direct influence within the relevant DeKalb County market.

Consumer Finance Companies

Personal consumer finance companies in the DeKalb County market remain aggressive, active competitors for loan customers of various types -- auto, appliance, other durable goods, and short-term personal loans. The increasing volume of lending activity from consumer finance organizations is indicated by the following data compiled by The Georgia Comptroller General's Office.

From 1965 to 1969 the number of DeKalb County personal loan company offices increased from 30 to 48, while the total dollar amount of loans outstanding increased from $7,342,911 to $14,142,081, or 91.5 percent.

The individual offices of DeKalb County consumer finance companies are included in the following table along with the year-end 1969 loans outstanding dollar total for each office.

Mortgage Companies

As of year-end, 1969 there were 14 mortgage companies with offices located in DeKalb County. While these financial organizations do exert a significant amount of competitive influence on commercial real estate lending, there are no available statistics on the extent of their lending in the DeKalb market.

Insurance Companies

Insurance companies continue to be active competitors in the relevant DeKalb market for real estate loans, remaining a principal source of financing in this lending field. However, no accurate data is available on the exact amount of competition provided by insurance companies in the DeKalb market.

Sales Finance Companies

Financial data is not available on the total dollar or loan volume of sales finance companies within the relevant DeKalb Market. However, such national organizations as GMAC, Ford Motor Credit, Chrysler Credit Corporation, Allstate, and State Farm, through their DeKalb County offices, provide extensive competition for automobile loans.

EXHIBIT I

EFFECT OF PROPOSED TRANSACTION ON COMPETITION

Competition between C & S Emory (Applicant) and C & S Chamblee, C & S Park National, and C & S Tucker (Other Banks), to all extent, is non-existent. Of the total randomly selected sample of 4,543 C & S Emory and 1,509 C & S Park National IPC deposit customers there were only five mutual customers. The balance of these accounts was $6,211 -- compared to the total IPC sample for these two banks of $10,662,082. Comparing, the sample of 3,589 IPC deposit customers of C & S Tucker against the C & S Emory sample revealed only two mutual customers. These represented a total balance of $690 -- compared to the two-bank total of $16,624,489.

Of the randomly selected sample of 3,061 C & S Chamblee IPC customers compared to that for C & S Park National revealed only one mutual customer. The balance of this account was $921 -- compared to the two-bank total of $7,171,313.

No mutual IPC deposit customers were revealed between C & S Emory and C & S Chamblee, C & S Park National and C & S Tucker, or C & S Tucker and C & S Chamblee.

A review by the participating banks shows the existence of no mutual loan customers.

EFFECT OF PROPOSED ACQUISITION ON COMPETITION

The analysis of the geographic distribution of both demand and time deposits of individuals, partnerships, and corporations of the participating banks (See Exhibit 1, Convenience and Needs of Community) provided the necessary input to determine the extent to which "IPC" deposits (number of accounts and dollar balances) of the Applicant Bank (C&S Emory) and Other Banks (C&S Chamblee, C&S Tucker, C&S Park National and C&S South DeKalb) that originate in each other's primary service areas.

Numerous studies conducted by the Marketing Research Department of The Citizens and Southern Holding Company, other banks, and consulting firms indicate that personal banking customers consider convenience of location at a banking office to either place of residence or place of work to be of prime consideration in establishing their banking relationship. Within the primary service areas of C&S Emory, C&S Chamblee, C&S Tucker, and C&S Park National are located the bulk of the major employment centers in DeKalb County. Therefore, each of these banks serve a substantial number of customers working within the Bank's primary service area, but whose residences are located in other sectors of the County. This factor is a major reason why a number of the customers of participating banks "originate" in each other's primary service areas.

C&S Emory Primary Service Area

The primary service area of C&S Emory and C&S Park National overlap in that sector of unincorporated DeKalb County extending north from the Fork of Peachtree Creek and the Seaboard Air Line Railroad almost to the Northeast Expressway (I-85). Also, the primary service areas of C&S Emory and C&S Tucker overlap slightly in the Clarkston area to the east.

Major employment centers in the C&S Emory primary service area include the Decatur central business district with its DeKalb County government offices and major office buildings, Emory University, and the U.S. Public Health Services' Center for Disease Control.

The percentage share of "IPC" deposit accounts and dollar balances of Other Banks (C&S Chamblee, C&S Tucker, C&S Park National, and C&S South DeKalb) originating in the C&S Atlanta primary service area are as follows:

"IPC" Deposit Accounts and Dollar Balances originating in the Primary Service Area of C&S Atlanta

	C&S Chamblee	C&S Tucker	C&S Park National	C&S South DeKalb
"IPC" Deposit Accounts	14.5%	9.2%	30.8%	2.0%
"IPC" Dollar Balances	13.8%	10.5%	36.0%	2.1%
Total Samples of Each Bank
"IPC" Deposit Account	3,061	3,589	1,509	1,150
"IPC" Dollar Balances ($000)	$4,245.8	$8,897.9	$2,682.9	$1,282.8

C&S Chamblee Primary Service Area

The primary service areas of C&S Chamblee and C&S Tucker overlap in that sector of unincorporated DeKalb County north of Anderson Mill Road along the Interstate Highway 285 corridor. Also, the primary service areas of C&S Chamblee and C&S Park National overlap along the Buford Highway and the Northeast Expressway (I-85).

Major employment centers in the C&S Chamblee primary service areas include: the large Peachtree Industrial Boulevard industrial complex in which is located the Buick - Oldsmobile - Pontiac Assembly Division of General Motors (4,300 workers), and other industrial and commercial concentrations along Interstate Highway 85 and Interstate Highway 285.

The percentage share of "IPC" deposit accounts and dollar balances of the Applicant Bank (C&S Atlanta) and Other Banks (C&S Tucker, C&S Park National, and C&S South DeKalb) originating in the C&S Chamblee primary service area are as follows:

"IPC" General Account ... Dollar
Balances Originating in Primary Service Areas of C&S Chamblee

	C&S Emory	C&S Tucker	C&S Park National	C&S South DeKalb
"IPC" Deposit Accounts	12.0%	45.5%	17.8%	.7%
"IPC" Dollar Balances	10.6%	33.0%	18.4%	.2%
Total Samples of Each Bank
"IPC" Deposit Accounts	4,543	3,589	1,509	1,150
"IPC Dollar Balances ($000)	$7,736.6	$8,887.9	$2,682.9	$1,282.8

C&S Tucker Primary Service Area

As stated earlier, the C&S Tucker primary service areas overlaps with that of C&S Chamblee, and slightly with that of C&S Emory. There is also a slight overlap with the C&S Park National primary service area to the southwest.

Major employment centers in the C & S Tucker primary service area include the 2,100-acre Tucker - Stone Mountain Industrial District and the 500-acre Montreal Industrial District. Other major employment centers, including the 80-acre Northlake Office Park and Regional Shopping Center, have sprung up along Interstate - 285, which bisects the primary service area.

The percentage share of "IPC" deposit accounts and dollar balances of the Applicant Bank (C & S Emory) and other Banks (C & S Chamblee, C & S Park National, and C & S South DeKalb) originating in the C & S Tucker primary service area are as follows:

"IPC" Deposit Accounts and Dollar Balances Originating in the Primary Service Area of C&S Tucker

	C&S Emory	C&S Chamblee	C&S Park National	C&S South DeKalb
"IPC" Deposit Accounts	16.7%	46.3%	18.2%	1.7%
"IPC" Dollar Balances	13.2%	43.5%	10.9%	.8
Total Samples of Each Bank
"IPC" Deposit Accounts	4,543	3,061	1,509	1,150
"IPC" Dollar Balances ($000)	$7,736.6	$4,245.8	$2,682.9	$1,232.8

C&S Park National Primary Service Area

As stated earlier, the primary service area of C&S Park National overlaps with that of C&S Emory, and slightly with those of C&S Chamblee and C&S Tucker.

Major employment centers in the C&S Park National primary service area include the following office parks: 122-acre Executive Park, 65-acre Corporate Square, 20-acre Freeway Park, 20-acre Landmark Park and 115-acre Century Center (now under construction).

The percentage share of "IPC" deposit accounts and dollar balances of the Applicant Bank (C&S Emory) and Other Banks (C&S Chamblee, C&S Tucker, and C&S South DeKalb) originating in the C&S Park National Bank primary service area are as follows:

"IPC" Deposit Accounts and Dollar Balances Originating in the Primary Service Area of C&S Park National

	C&S Emory	C&S Chamblee	C&S Tucker	C&S Park National
"IPC" Deposit Account	37.3%	24.6%	11.5%	1.1%
"IPC" Dollar Balances	44.1%	28.2%	9.7%	.5%
Total Samples of Each Bank
"IPC" Deposit Accounts	4,543	3,061	3,589	1,150
"IPC" Dollar Balances	$7,736.6	$4,245.8	$8,887.9	$1,282.8

C&S South DeKalb Primary Service Area

The primary service area of C&S South DeKalb does not overlap with those of other participating banks.

The major employment centers in the C&S South DeKalb primary service area includes the South DeKalb Regional Shopping Center (Candler Road and Interstate 20) and other predominantly retail shopping developments along Candler and Glenwood roads.

The percentage share of "IPC" deposit accounts and dollar balances of the Applicant Bank (C&S Emory) and Other Banks, C&S Chamblee, C&S Tucker, and C&S Park National) originating in the C&S South DeKalb primary service area are as follows:

"IPC" Deposit Accounts and Dollar Balances Originating in the Primary Service Area of C&S South DeKalb

	C&S Emory	C&S Chamblee	C&S Tucker	C&S Park National
"IPC" Deposit Accounts	2.9%	.7%	1.3%	1.9%

EXHIBIT F

EFFECT OF PROPOSED TRANSACTION ON COMPETITION

The following schedule indicates the number and dollar amount of loans originated during calendar year 1969 by the Other Banks--C & S Park National, C & S Tucker, C & S Chamblee, and C & S South DeKalb. The Applicant Bank (C & S Emory) did not originate any loan participations during calendar year, 1969.

For the Other Banks these placements were made because they were unable to meet the total credit needs of their borrowers due to their legal lending limits.

Participations Sold By:

C & S Chamblee 1969	11	$1,633,678	$995,690	$637,938

TRUST ACTIVITIES

None of the Participating Banks (C & S Emory, C & S Chamblee, C & S Tucker, C & S Park National, C & S South DeKalb) have trust departments.

All trust business which these banks originate in their service areas is referred to The Citizens and Southern National Bank for handling and servicing.

STOCK OWNERSHIP

The C & S Holding Company owns 95.14 percent of the stock of The C & S Emory Bank. The C & S Emory Bank has no officers or directors owning as much as five percent of the stock of this or any other bank.

The C & S Holding Company owns 5.0 percent of The C & S Bank of South DeKalb. Warren L. Berry, President of C & S South DeKalb, owns 5.2 percent of the stock of this bank.

The C & S Holding Company owns 5.0 percent of The C & S Bank of Chamblee.

The C & S Holding Company owns 5.0 percent of The C & S Bank of Tucker.

The C & S Holding Company owns 5.0 percent of The C & S Park National Bank. Also the HLS Company, Trust Account 4415D, P. O. Box 896, Atlanta, Georgia owns 5.0 percent.

The Citizens and Southern Holding Company, which currently owns 95.14 percent of the outstanding stock of the C & S Emory Bank (Applicant Bank) currently owns the following percentage of outstanding stock in seven other affiliate banks located in the State of Georgia:

The Citizens and Southern Bank of Albany	76.72%
The Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank	91.19%
Citizens and Southern Dublin Bank	75.87%
The Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point	90.25%
The Citizens and Southern Bank of LaGrange	55.93%
The Citizens and Southern Newnan Bank	70.05%
Citizens and Southern Bank of Thomaston	91.01%

All ownership interests expressed above are as of July 31, 1970.

EXHIBIT K

The proposed transactions can not and will not adversely affect competition in the areas to be served by the Resulting Bank. In fact, there will be no effect on competition. The participating banks do not now compete with one another,—rather, each one offers the same C&S banking services within the same C&S system and under the same banking policies to customers who have chosen banking C&S-style. For like reasons, there is no potential for competition among the participating banks. These banks together now serve a single market—customers who have chosen C&S banking. After consummation of the transaction, the banks will continue to offer the same services to these same customers. If one of the participating banks were unable to offer C&S services it would not thereby become a competitor of the others, since the potential customers of the C&S correspondent associates are only those customers who have chosen C&S banking.

Given the history of the organization, growth, and operation of the correspondent associates, it is clear there is no potential for competition among the participating banks. C&S Holding provides to the correspondent associates (as is more fully discussed in the "Introduction" and "General Information" section hereinabove) the personnel, systems, direction and support which together comprise C&S banking. Further, C&S Holding maintains direct ownership interest through its holding of five per cent of the stock of the correspondent associates. More important is the active and pervasive influence of C&S philosophies of service and operation upon the management of the correspondent associates. Because of this, as has been noted throughout this Application, the correspondent associates are—so far as stockholders and residents of, and competitors in, the communities served by them are concerned—de facto C&S branches which are now intended to be made de jure branches.

Approval of this Application, therefore, would not affect the competitive situation in the Atlanta area. It would merely complete a process begun years ago in the only way possible—extension of C&S services to the metropolitan Atlanta area. It would leave intact precisely the same banking structure which now exists in Fulton and DeKalb Counties, for in no realistic respect will C&S have by virtue of this transaction any more or any fewer outlets in the areas involved than it had previously. In short, approval of this Application will make possible a long-anticipated change in the form of C&S banking in suburban Fulton and DeKalb Counties with no accompanying change in the substance of the competitive situation there.

INTRODUCTION AND OPENING STATEMENT

This Supplement to the captioned Applications is filed precisely in rebuttal of the present adverse report of the Department of Justice ("DJ") dated March 12, 1971 and in response to the much appreciated invitation of the Chairman of the FDIC to do so.

1. Purpose of the Supplement.

In the positive sense the Supplement is designed to supply additional facts and reasons to support the Applicants' view that:

(a) Ours are totally unique circumstances, resulting from political events, unlikely to recur and establish precedent, and not at all the sort of circumstances contemplated by the Bank Merger Act, and

(b) No anti-competitive results will or would occur as a consequence of the proposed mergers, since there has never been any competition between the parties, there is none now, and there will never by any, under reasonably foreseeable circumstances.

2. Matters the Supplement does not Cover.

The Supplement does not, except incidentally, address itself to:

(a) Factors other than the anti-competitive ones raised by DJ...that is, the other compelling factors that the FDIC, as the responsible banking agency will consider under the Bank Merger Act, to-wit: The financial and managerial resources and future prospects of the existing and proposed institutions and the convenience and needs of the community to be served both in the event the mergers should be approved and in the event they are not - especially in light of the significant additions of branches in the area by major competitors under the new state banking law.

(b) Identification of the relevant market in the geographical sense...although we believe the Atlanta SMSA is the smallest market that makes any economic sense and the combination of Fulton and DeKalb County is the smallest market that makes any banking sense because all major banks may now branch freely in those two counties.

(c) The total absence of substantiality to the adverse consequences the DJ attributes to the proposed mergers.

(d) Any inequities that would result from adverse action on these Applications in relation to approved mergers of major competitors of Applicants in the same area.

3. The Critical History.

We urge the Corporation never to lose sight of the historic facts that created the circumstances and atmosphere in which these Applications are made. Those facts are fully presented and summarized at the outset of the original Application. The nubbin of it all is simply that:

(a) For at least two decades the market for major banks in Atlanta has been in the process of expanding into the five county SMSA far beyond the city limits. That growth has been remarkable in the last ten years. Demands for commensurate full service banking have likewise been remarkable.

(b) Until 1971, banks could not branch beyond municipal and village limits.

(c) To provide full banking services demanded by citizens of greater Atlanta, the major Atlanta banks - led by C & S - opened de novo* de facto branch in the corporate form disclosed by these Applications. Simply by doing so and by providing good service, their shares of the market in those areas, especially in DeKalb County, increased dramatically and proportionately to the de novo efforts expended.

(d) Now that state branching laws permit it, the parties wish to make de jure that which has been de facto...no more.

4. Unimportance of Proprietary Control and of the Stone Mountain Episode.

In considering the Applications and this Supplement, we urge the Corporation to weigh considerately our strong view that the DJ has approached the issues from the wrong side when

*Nor is C & S Tucker an exception since Bank of Tucker was an insignificant factor in the market place when C & S entered the picture in 1965, since there was no competition with C & S at that time, and since Bank of Tucker was clearly headed for dismal days in the future absent the services, management and influence of C & S. See particularly Supplement §§B3, C and D3.

it gives such weight (a) to the fact - fully admitted - that C & S Holding has legal proprietary control over only 5% of the voting stock of the six small banks, and (b) to the conclusion that consequently any of them could as a matter of right disclaim C & S and operate fully apart from C & S, and (c) to the Stone Mountain episode as being proof thereof.

As this Supplement shows (§I), the Stone Mountain circumstances are clearly distinguishable from those in the present Application since that bank was not started by C & S de novo, since neither its stockholders nor its directors ever fully accepted C & S management, since a large and controlling block of stock was held by the McCurdy family.

To be effective, control need not be majority legal proprietary control. The 1970 Amendments to the Bank Holding Company Act reflect this concept in §§2(a)(2)(C) and 2(d). General corporate law recognizes the concept, especially where the remaining stock is widely held. The Federal Reserve Board found control to exist in a Clayton § case simply by virtue of evidence of effective exercise thereof (the case here) even after Transamerica had divested itself of all of its holdings in several banks (from substantially all in 1937, to 58% in that year, to 22.88% in 1948, to 7.6% in 1951, and to no interest in 1952, and no director connections after 19[illegible]. Transamerica Corp. v. Board of Governors, 206 F. 2d 163, 16[illegible], 167. Cert. denied 346 U.S. 901.

This Supplement is compiled expressly to demonstrate that effective working control was in fact exercised over all six of these banks and to demonstrate in detail just how it was exercised and most importantly to demonstrate that it was the will and expectation of stockholders, directors, officers and staff alike that such control would be exercised and that de jure mergers would occur just as soon as banking laws permitted (now), and that the many deposit and loan customers of these banks likewise have assumed and expected these consequ[illegible]

5. The Importance of the Facts of Non-Competition And of Intent, Conduct and Expectation Thereof.

In considering this Application, we urge the Corporation to consider the governing facts developed here - not a concept of legal proprietary control over 51% or more of the stock - but the fact that there has never been any competition between these banks, there is none now, and there is no reasonable possibility (much less probability) that there will ever be any. The unique history noted above is one reason why this is so. More importantly, the express intent of the stockholders (and directors, officers and staff) to be a de facto, and now de jure, part of C & S is the compelling reason. Most important the expressed vote in the fall of 1970 (.4% contra) to merge - and the overwhelming expression of stockholder identification by survey this month (May 1971) - unequivocally demonstrate the impossibility of competition in the future. There is no need to research a murky crystal ball of possibilities and conjecture when history shows no past or present competition and formal express assertion of all shareholders shows no possibility of future competition.

It is persuasive to us that all three of Clayton Act §§2(a), 3 and particularly 7, apply the causative standard... "may be substantially to lessen competition...." and in construing that standard the courts have applied standards of probability or at the very best a reasonable or forceable possibility, and not of bare legal possibility.

In American Oil Company v. F.T.C., 7 Cir., 325 F. 2d 101, 104, c.d. 377 U.S. 954, 84 S.Ct. 1631, the court said:

"The adverse effect upon competition requisite to establish the Section 2(a) violation * * * is that the price discrimination creates a reasonable probability of substantial injury to competition * * *"

In Standard Fashion Co. v. Magrane-Houston Co., 258 U.S. 346, 42 S.Ct. 360, 66 L. Ed. 653, the court stated, with reference to Section 3 of the Clayton Act:

"Section 3 condemns sales or agreements where the effort of such sale or contract of sale 'may' be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create monopoly. It thus deals with consequences to follow the making of the restrictive covenant limiting the right of the purchaser to deal in the goods of the seller only. But we do not think that the purpose in using the word 'may' was to prohibit the mere possibility of the consequences described. It was intended to prevent such agreements as would under the circumstances disclosed probably lessen competition, or create an actual tendency to monopoly.

That it was not intended to reach every remote lessening of competition is shown in the requirement that such lessening must be substantial."

"The language of Section 7 of the Clayton Act as amended whereby the ban on stock acquisitions was limited to those the effect of which 'may be' substantially to lessen competition should be interpreted as restricted to acquisitions which by a reasonable probability will be effective substantially to lessen competition." Hamilton Watch Co. v. Benrus Watch Co., 114 F. Supp. 307, at 315 (D. Conn. 1953).

"We hold that only an acquisition which in the long run may reasonably be expected to substantially lessen competition within a relevant market, will violate §7 as amended." American Crystal Sugar Co. v. Cuban-American S. Co., 259 F. 2d 524, at 527 (C.A. 2, 1958).

Since the Bank Merger Act applies these same §7 standards, the DJ and the Corporation should be controlled as a matter of law by what is reasonably probable of happening and not, as the DJ argues, what is merely possible. As one may learn at the corner store - anything is possible.

We suggest that the clear and rational view taken by the Federal Reserve Board of Trust Company of Georgia's Application to merge with its 5% associate Peachtree Bank & Trust Company is a fair and lucid statement of the position we take here. (Appendix W)

6. The Pattern of this Supplement.

As might be discernable, legal counsel have advocated the Applicants' posture in this Opening Statement. What follows in the bulk of the Supplement and Appendix is the response of the true parties at interest and through their own words - stockholders, directors, officers, staff and customers of all the C & S parties.

The arrangement of the material is set forth in the Table of Contents. The supporting documents and tables are in the Appendix. If further information or supplementation is desired, it only needs being requested.

B. ORGANIZATIONAL HISTORY OF THE SIX ASSOCIATE BANKS

The narrative of events in this section shows the activities of C&S National and of C&S Holding providing initial impetus and support of the organization of each of these six banks, except Tucker, in which case its "salvation" was brought about by C&S National and Holding. Practically all of the organizing expense for each of the five de novo banks, as well as the salaries for the President appointees during the organizational periods, were paid by the C&S. C&S Holding purchased and warehoused property for the benefit of these banks, and provided significant staff and technical services during the planning and organizing stage. The original history of the six follows:

THE CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN
BANK OF SANDY SPRINGS

The Citizens National Bank of Sandy Springs was formed after two other groups had failed to obtain permission for charters from the Superintendent of Banks of Georgia. The principals of C&S National, recognizing the spectacular business and residential growth of the Sandy Springs area, moved to establish a national banking association there to offer the full range of C&S services. A list of potential directors comprised of leading citizens of Sandy Springs was compiled and approved by Mills B. Lane, Jr., the President of C&S National.

Appropriate surveys were made and economic data assembled for an application to submit for a charter. Stock subscriptions were obtained and the charter was granted. The sponsorship and guidance of C&S National and of Mills B. Lane, Jr., and the fact that Thomas E. Cook, a Vice President of C&S National, would head the bank, were undoubtedly instrumental in the Comptroller of the Currency's favorable consideration of the application.

The site of the original bank was adjacent to property owned by one of the early directors who subsequently agreed to build a large office building and lease space to the bank.

In September, 1964, Louis J. Fortuna, an officer of C&S National, was asked to take over the management of the bank—due to very serious credit problems that had developed. Mr. Fortuna's legal and credit background and initiation of collections procedures for the C&S System was particularly appropriate to salvage the bank's loan portfolio. A National Bank Examination in 1964 showed that the bank was loaned up to 72%, with 17% of the loan portfolio substandard. Approximately $36,000 in loans were to be charged off, and another $49,000 in cash items was being carried. The Examiner also pointed out that additional capital was needed, which was subsequently supplied by the purchase of a $100,000 capital note by C&S Holding. Mr. Fortuna's salary was paid by C&S National until he was elected President in January, 1965. During this difficult period, C&S National worked very closely with C&S Sandy Springs, providing both staff and financial support without which the bank might likely have failed.

Louis Fortuna recommended to the Board of Sandy Springs, upon receiving prior approval from Mills B. Lane, that the name of the bank be changed to the Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs. This was adopted in 1967, and upon permission from the Comptroller of the Currency and later from the Georgia Superintendent of Banks, the name was changed.

The C&S not only provided initial organizational support, management and staff, but has continued to do so since 1959.

THE CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF CHAMBLEE

In the late '50's several businessmen from the Chamblee area had discussions with representatives from the Trust Company of Georgia regarding the establishment of a new bank in Chamblee. The Trust Company already had an affiliate bank in Brookhaven which was a short distance from Chamblee and declined participation. One of the men then called Mills B. Lane, Jr. and inquired if he were interested in helping them organize a new bank. Mr. Lane said that he was and met with the three representatives that afternoon.

C&S arranged for economic surveys and a meeting a week later to consolidate all efforts. Mr. Lane asked his assistants, Joe Hall and George McKinnon, to begin preparation of an application for a bank in Chamblee. George McKinnon was to prepare a list of outstanding businessmen in the Chamblee area who might act as directors. After Mr. Lane had approved their selection, Mr. McKinnon then met with those selected to determine their interest.

Mr. McKinnon and Frank Berry, who was one of the original proponents of the new bank and a director, aided by some of the other proposed directors, approached businessmen and residents of Chamblee to secure subscriptions for the new stock. In their discussions, they advised that the organizers had met with Mr. Lane of C&S National and that C&S National would assist in getting the bank operating, and would provide continued support. They also stated that C&S National would make loans to those who needed financing to purchase stock. A sizeable number of shares were also sold to friends of Mr. McKinnon and to customers of C&S National. In the sale of the stock, it was felt that it would be advantageous to place the stock with as many individuals as possible in order to secure support of the stockholders as customers of the new bank.

After the stock subscriptions had been received, Hubert Harris, Manager of the Northwest Branch of C&S, took over the planning and organization of the new bank. Mr. McKinnon and Joe Hall secured a contract to purchase a tract of land on Peachtree Industrial Boulevard, adjacent to the Chamblee Plaza Shopping Center then under construction. This land was purchased and held by C&S Holding.

Mr. Harris met with Frank Berry to arrange a lease of the only vacant building available in Chamblee which was a hardware store on Peachtree Road. Immediately upon approval of the charter, an architect was engaged to begin construction on the bank's new building. C&S Holding sold the land to the new bank at cost. They soon found that the land they had purchased was not adequate for expansion. C&S Holding then purchased the remainder of a large tract available on Peachtree Industrial Boulevard and allowed the new bank to buy any portion needed for future expansion, at cost on a per square foot basis.

About a year later, it was apparent that a branch was needed on Buford Highway adequately to service that area. C&S Holding purchased land there and held it until approval could be secured, at which time it was sold at cost.

During the entire life of the bank the other members of management and staff have been selected jointly by Mr. Harris and the Personnel Department of C&S National. The C&S National has continued to screen and interview personnel as needed.

THE CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF TUCKER

The Bank of Tucker, originally chartered in 1919, had been controlled from the start by the Cofer family, who had other substantial business interests in Tucker. The bank existed more to serve the needs of the family's building and supply business through providing financing incidental to construction than for the convenience of the general public.

Tucker in 1965 was a fairly small unincorporated village in DeKalb County consisting of a single shopping area —but the surrounding area was showing signs of real growth in both residential and shopping-service communities. As already indicated, the Bank of Tucker was a very personal operation. Its president was Mr. Reid Cofer, who ran the bank along with several other highly successful business interests. Mr. Cofer realized in 1965 that the bank could no longer be operated without experienced, professional bank management and adequately serve the needs of the Tucker community. However, Mr. Cofer (then in his sixties) was simply not interested in undertaking these responsibilities. The demand for experienced bank management was made even more apparent when it was learned in 1965 that a new bank would soon be opening in Tucker. (The organizers of the new bank based their application for charter upon a contention that the Bank of Tucker was not aggressive enough in expanding its services to meet the needs of the growing community, but had "limited" them primarily to the Cofer family enterprises.)

Throughout its history, the Bank of Tucker had dealt almost exclusively with local customers both in its commercial and personal accounts. The commercial accounts consisted of smaller businesses located in or near Tucker. Most of the bank's loans were for construction of buildings in the Tucker area. Neither C&S National nor either of its affiliates in DeKalb County drew any measurable business from the Tucker area. There was, in short, no competition between C&S and the Bank of Tucker. On the contrary, to the extent there was contact, it took the form of cooperation with C&S providing advice and assistance in various forms.

Finally, Mr. Cofer and Mr. Mills Lane were personal friends. Thus, when Mr. Cofer decided to withdraw from the banking business he talked to Mr. Lane and requested the help of C&S National in reorganizing and thereafter managing the Bank of Tucker. Mr. Lane responded that C&S would do so, and could arrange for redistribution of whatever stock the Cofer family did not want to keep—"anything from 5% to 100%." The members of the Cofer family chose to and did sell 80% of the stock in 1965. C&S Holding bought the allowable 5% interest of the outstanding stock of the bank, and the balance of the stock that was made available was placed among officers and staff of C&S National and Affiliates, friends in the community, the C&S Profit Sharing Fund, and the additional new members of the Board of Directors that were selected by C&S National. An officer of C&S National was thereafter designated as president of the bank.

Through the repeated requests by management of this bank to Mr. Lane, the Bank of Tucker was allowed to change its name to The C&S Bank of Tucker, the first correspondent associate to do so. It was felt that since C&S National controlled and stood behind the bank as it did, the change would be beneficial to all concerned.

Additional property was bought behind the old banking location for construction of a new building, which was finished in 1966. Subsequently a new branch was applied for on LaVista Road with the help of the Marketing Research Department and the Branch Supervisory staff of C&S National. The property for the branch was acquired by C&S Holding and leased to C&S Tucker until the bank was sufficiently capitalized to purchase the property. James Harden, a branch manager with C&S National, was appointed manager of this office.

A 20 year convertible $400,000 debenture was purchased by C&S National in December, 1968, to assist with capital requirements to meet the bank's growth needs. C&S National not only supplied the initial management and staff after the "re-birth" of the bank, but has continued to provide manpower since 1965.

THE CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN PARK NATIONAL BANK

In 1966 C&S National saw a need for a banking facility in the Executive Park area (an expanding community of several office parks) to offer a full range of services for the citizens and companies rapidly moving into the Park and general vicinity. Since it was expected that the bank would be oriented toward a commercial clientele comprised of national companies, Robert Hazelrig, who had experience working with national accounts and in the C&S National Bank's New York Service Office, was designated to head this bank.

The Marketing Research Department of C&S National obtained the various economic data required for application for a charter. A site was selected by Howard Starks, then Executive Vice President in charge of C&S Branches, and a lease was negotiated with Blaine Kelley, who was planning a commercial park in the area.

Robert Hazelrig, Howard Starks, and Mills B. Lane, Jr. then drew up a proposed list of directors for the bank. Each of the directors was allowed to subscribe to 500 shares of stock in the new bank, and additional smaller amounts were made available for members of their families. The directors and officers of C&S National were asked to solicit subscriptions for the new bank, and it was decided that stock would be offered to members of C&S Banks, relatives, or friends. C&S National was to be allowed an interest of 10% (5% to be held by the C&S Holding Company and 5% by the C&S Employees Profit Sharing Fund), and Robert Hazelrig was to be allowed a 10% interest.

Howard Starks and his staff from C&S made most of the arrangements for leasing the building, decorating it, the lay-out of the bank, and other details involved in setting up the physical facilities. C&S provided the other members of management and staff and has continued to provide personnel support during the entire existence of the bank.

THE CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF SOUTH DEKALB

The location of this bank is in what is known as the Candler-Glenwood area of unincorporated DeKalb County. In this same area was the Glenwood National Bank, a fairly strong independent up until the late 1960's. The closest C&S banks were at Belvedere, roughly 2-1/2 or 3 miles further east of this location, with no other C&S banking facilities either to the south or the west. In 1966 C&S National became interested in opening a branch of C&S Belvedere in that location. At the time, Belvedere had only been open for about a year; however, it was felt that a branch of that bank eventually could be obtained. Therefore a site was selected for such an office.

The site acquisition was largely put together in 1967, with all of the property purchased by C&S Holding. This area of Candler Road is a highly commercialized area, containing many retail locations as well as various professional offices, such as lawyers, doctors, dentists, real estate firms, etc. The original survey, done by C&S National's Marketing Research Department, projected a strong market and showed that everyone in that area wanting to bank with C&S had a fairly long drive to reach the nearest C&S office.

During early 1969, when it was apparent that there was to be no early change in the Georgia branch banking law, the decision was made to try to organize a new bank at that location. This was the only viable course at this time, since C&S National could not branch into that site and Belvedere was then not strong enough to support a branch of its own. C&S National selected Warren Berry, Manager of the South Expressway Branch of C&S National, to run the bank. This bank was to become the focal point of C&S activities for the South DeKalb area. Three people in the bank were helpful in selecting the organizers. Don Ingram, then President of C&S Emory, suggested four of the eventual organizers, citizens that he had known through his long association in DeKalb County. Bill Jones, President of the C&S Belvedere Bank, also suggested several candidates for director, as did Dave Skinner, the President of C&S DeKalb Bank. In addition to these names, a sizeable list of primarily corporate customers of C&S National was compiled from other sources inside C&S.

C&S National particularly wanted to get a representative from Pope and Carter, real estate developers, who were building a large housing project in the immediate area. They went to Ewell Pope, who suggested the name of Bill Ranck, the project director for "Fairington," who was subsequently made part of the organizing group. The final selection of the organizers was made by Dan Handley, now Executive Vice President for C&S branches, Warren Berry and Bill Mathis, Branch Supervisor. This list of names was reviewed with Mills Lane before those on the list were asked to serve. Once a group of ten people were selected, Warren Berry individually approached each of them with the proposal. In each case C&S National met with enthusiastic response; in fact, later several of the C&S South DeKalb organizers advised that another attempt to organize a bank in that area was unsuccessful and they were delighted to join C&S.

At the first organization meeting the C&S National representatives explained explicitly and carefully the manner in which stock subscriptions were to be obtained and allocated. It was C&S National's intent from the very beginning to have 50% of the stock placed by the local organizing directors and 50% placed by C&S National officers and staff; the organizers agreed. At this first meeting, the necessity of organizing a bank rather than a branch at that location was discussed in detail. C&S National indicated to the group that hopefully in the future C&S South DeKalb could merge into a total DeKalb County system of C&S National.

In allocating the stock, C&S National emphasized to the organizers that the President of the Bank should have at least 5%, and obviously C&S Holding would subscribe 5%. Each organizer was offered 2-1/2% or exactly half the amount held by the President and C&S Holding.

They unanimously took the maximum stock available and did a tremendous job in selling the stock in the community. Stock subscriptions were obtained shortly, and much more stock could have sold than was available.

The bank was approved in 1969 and opened up in a temporary facility. This facility has been bought by the C&S Holding Company and leased to them when they opened.

Opening promotions were handled by the C&S Marketing Department as if this were a branch bank, and many C&S staff members were recruited to help with the opening.

Warren Berry is still President of C&S South DeKalb, but in anticipation of the merger, has been transferred to head the C&S Bank of Milledgeville (another "five percent" associate of C&S National and Holding). Edward Johnson, formerly a banking officer and branch manager with C&S National, is managing South DeKalb while approval of the merger application is pending.

THE CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF NORTH FULTON

Impetus for the establishment of C&S North Fulton came from C&S National's Executive Vice President in charge of Atlanta Branches and Lou Fortuna, President of C&S Sandy Springs in 1966. They recognized that this northern portion of Fulton County had begun to grow rapidly, and felt that a full-service C&S banking operation could help to accelerate the growth of that area and service customers of the C&S National that had moved there—outside the area into which C&S National could branch.

Mr. Fortuna, the Branch Supervisory staff, and the Marketing Research Department of C&S National gathered the economic data to submit with an application for a charter for a bank to be located in Roswell. Property was purchased in March, 1967, by C&S Holding for the bank site, and was sold to North Fulton in June, 1970. A slate of candidates for directors was compiled, approved by Mills B. Lane, Jr., President of C&S National, and the individuals were approached by Hugh Lane, an officer of C&S Sandy Springs who was selected by C&S National to organize and head the bank.

C&S Holding subscribed to its maximum 5% interest of the stock in the bank and the balance was made available to directors, officers and staff of the C&S National's banks, and individuals in the Roswell area friendly toward C&S National.

Prior to his assuming the organizational responsibilities for North Fulton, Hugh Lane had been employed since 1960 in the C&S System, and had most recently been the Assistant Manager of C&S Sandy Springs. The Cashier also had substantial experience with C&S National. C&S National helped to assemble the rest of the staff, and has continued to provide personnel since the office opened in 1967.

C. STOCKHOLDINGS AND STOCKHOLDER ATTITUDE TOWARD C&S NATIONAL, HOLDING, C&S EAST POINT AND EMORY AND THE PROPOSED MERGERS*

The stockholders of the six correspondent associate banks were first asked to vote on the proposed mergers with C&S East Point and C&S Emory in the latter part of 1970. At that time, stockholders owning 236,290 of the 276,000 shares outstanding (85.6%) favored the mergers. Individuals owning only 1,496 shares voted against the proposal (.5%); the remaining shares were not voted. The holders of at least 81% of the shares of each bank voted affirmatively. The shareholders of the C&S Bank of Tucker responded with the largest vote for the merger, 87% showing approval.

In May, 1971, the stockholders of each of the banks were again asked by way of petition to indicate their feelings toward their bank's relationship with C&S. The petition stated that the stockholders purchased shares in the various banks upon the expectation and trust that:

(1) These banks would be organized and operated under the auspices and sponsorship of C&S National;

*This summary based on Exhibit A, which shows analysis of original merger vote, petition, stock ownership for each associate bank.

(2) C&S National would furnish management and financial services of the type and scope furnished to its subsidiary banks;

(3) Should the branch banking laws of the state permit, each bank would be merged into the C&S System;

(4) The stockholders at no time considered a separation from this sort of control by C&S National.

Stockholder response to the petition overwhelmingly indicated that they were aware of, and indeed favored, the relationship between these banks and C&S National. Stockholders owning 236,699 shares of 276,000 shares outstanding, or 85.7%, signed the petition. Only three stockholders, representing less than 200 shares, refused to sign. It's interesting to note that the two stockholders, representing 626 shares, who initially opposed the merger signed the petition. Stockholders owning less than 10 or 15 shares of stock were not contacted, due to the limited time available.

An analysis has been made of the shareholdings, by category of owner, since each bank's inception (or C&S' involvement at Tucker) to determine the actual working control that has been continually exercised by C&S National. Stockholders were classified into the following five groupings:

Group A — Officers, directors, and employees of C&S National and affiliates

Group B — Former officers, directors, and employees of C&S and affiliates

Group C — Officers, directors, and employees of the "5% bank" and the other "5% banks"

Group D — Customers of C&S National and affiliates

Group E — Customers of the "5% banks" and the other "5% banks," and miscellaneous.

The chart below depicts the percentage of shares owned by these groups at the time the banks were formed, compared to their percentage ownership now:

	Initially	Now
Group A	25.8%	24.9%
Group B	.8%	4.1%
Group C	20.1%	18.8%
Group D	31.1%	29.6%
Group E	22.2%	22.6%

It can be noted from the above figures that groups A, B, and D, which are or were directly associated with the

C&S National Bank, owned 57.7% of the outstanding stock initially, and have increased their composite ownership to 58.6%. Taken individually, groups A, B, and D, have increased their percentage ownership of C&S Chamblee, C&S North Fulton, C&S Sandy Springs, and C&S South DeKalb. These groups now own fewer shares of stock in C&S Tucker and C&S Park National, but they still retain over 52% of Tucker and 75% of Park National.

Individuals and groups who own the largest blocks of stock in each of these banks, and who are not directly or indirectly tied to C&S National, approved the merger and signed the petition. The Cofer Family, original owners of the Bank of Tucker, own 17% of C&S Tucker. Herbert Dickson, former Executive Vice President of C&S National, and Rountree Youmans, retired General Vice President of C&S National, each own 2% of the stock of C&S South DeKalb Bank. Henry Williams (10%-C&S Chamblee); A. J. Weinberg (6.46%-C&S Sandy Springs); and Ed F. Elson (7%-C&S Park National), who are the largest "outside" stockholders for their respective banks, either have been, or are now, directors of their respective banks.

T. A. Bartenfield, the largest outside stockholder at C&S North Fulton (2%), is a personal friend of the President and most desirous of the merger.

The stockholder vote on the original merger proposal, the subsequent petition, the analysis of the stockholder portfolio, and the desires of the largest "outside" stockholders show conclusively that the stockholders consider a merger with C&S East Point and C&S Emory to be in their best interest and that their purchase of stock was based largely on the relationship of these banks to the C&S National.

D. DIRECTORS OF THE SIX ASSOCIATE BANKS AND DIRECTOR ATTITUDES TOWARD C&S MANAGEMENT AND CONTROL AND THE PROPOSED MERGERS

1. History. Information showing the original directors of each associate bank (except Tucker), their business interests, connection with C&S, and their initial stock purchase is set forth in Exhibit B. All changes in directors which have taken place since organization of the bank (the reorganization of Tucker) is shown in Exhibit L.

2. Branch Supervision Department and Directors of the Associate Banks. A representative of Branch Supervision acts as a director or advisory member of each associate's board. Almost without exception, the suggestions and advice of this representative are accepted, and the boards have adopted for their banks the programs and procedures of C&S National.*

3. Survey. Directors of the associate banks were requested to put in writing their thoughts concerning the relationship between their bank and C&S National, particularly describing how this relationship affected their service as director of the bank. Below are summaries of the comments, together with excerpts from the letters. All the letters received are included in the Appendix as Exhibit D.

---

1. The directors were contacted by personnel of The Citizens and Southern National Bank and asked to serve. The directors agreed to serve in large measure because of the known close relationship with The Citizens and Southern National Bank. For some, continuation of this relationship is a condition of the continuation of service as a director.

"I was specifically requested to become an original director of the Sandy Springs Bank by Mills Lane personally. I would not have invested in the bank or have any knowledge of the bank had it not been for the interest of Mr. Lane in my presence on the Board." — H. Dillon Winship, Jr. (Sandy Springs)

"If there had been any reason to believe that we could lose the support and direction of C&S National, or that they would become an active competition, I never would have become involved as a stockholder or director." — E. K. Jamison (Chamblee)

2. The directors sought, appreciated and accepted guidance and advice from Citizens and Southern National Bank.

"From the very beginning we have been advised, counseled, and staffed at key positions by C&S personnel. There has always been a member of our Board from the "mother" bank, and that particular director has always influenced our Board decisions greatly.

"It has never been my thought that anybody ran that bank but Mills B. Lane and Associates." — Mr. Winship (Sandy Springs)

"We have operated under C&S policy, with C&S personnel, since we opened our doors for business, and I personally believe that 99% of the public think we are a full C&S Bank now." — Frank L. Berry (Chamblee)

3. The relationship with Citizens and Southern has been instrumental in the success of the bank.

"The Bank made excellent progress right from the beginning. Much of this was due to the cooperation of the parent bank." — Mr. Alva G. Maxwell (Sandy Springs)

". . .[T]here is no doubt that without the supervision and cooperation of the C&S Bank that [our] growth would not have been anywhere near as spectacular." — William C. Thornton, Jr. (Tucker)

4. The bank would suffer adverse consequences if the relationship with Citizens and Southern were terminated.

"There would be no benefit to the Sandy Springs Bank, its owners or its customers to break this relationship, and it has never occurred to me to think along those lines." — Mr. J. Teusher (Sandy Springs)

"I might add that if the proposed merger cannot be consummated, the future of the Park Bank will be jeopardized as a result of the recent amendment to our branch banking laws. [Five other banks] . . . will soon be established within a radius of less than one mile of the Park Bank. . ." — Mr. Ben Kohler, Jr. (Park National)

5. The directors from the beginning of their association with the bank have expected that it would ultimately become part of Citizens and Southern by merger or acquisition.

"It was always my idea that if and when the laws would allow, this unit would come under the C&S system . . ."

— Mr. Laurence L. Gellerstedt (original director of Sandy Springs; resigned in 1969 to become a director of Citizens and Southern National Bank)

"I carefully explained to all that, under the state banking regulations, this could not be more than a 5% bank, but that, come the hoped and planned for change in the law, we someday fully expected to unite with C&S National. This was completely understood and approved of before stock was sold in each case." — Mr. W. Andres Irvin (North Fulton)

E. "BRANCH SUPERVISION" OF THE SIX ASSOCIATE BANKS BY C&S NATIONAL

The overall supervision and direction of each of these six associates is administered in almost exactly the same manner as branches of C&S National and has been so administered from the outset.

1. Establishment of Goals

Each bank President—5%er, subsidiary and branch office alike—is required to establish his goals and objectives each fall for the coming year. These goals, which cover all important aspects of his bank's operation, are reviewed by his branch supervisor in C&S National to determine whether they appear to be realistic and if not, determine what changes are appropriate. A budget is then prepared and further reviewed with his supervisor.

2. Review of Goals

Quarterly, the supervisor sits down with each President to review his bank's actual performance against his goals. Variances are accounted for, and the supervisor may either offer help to enable him to reach his projections or readjustments may be necessary in the goals for subsequent quarters.

3. Personal and Bank Performance Appraisals

Periodically, the branch supervisor will review the overall performance of each President and will go over this with him in a personal appraisal interview. At this time, his strengths and shortcomings are cited, and programs for improvement are defined.

The Presidents recommend salary increases for their officers, and these are reviewed for approval by the branch supervisors of C&S National. Salary scales for employees of the associate banks are set to be consistent with those of C&S National. In case of the associate bank President's salary, the advisory board member from C&S National recommends an appropriate increase for the President based on performance to the salary committee of its board of directors. In the cases in which a salary committee does not function, the increase is handled directly by the branch supervisor with the Board of Directors.

At the end of each year, both the C&S National Executive Vice President in charge of branches and the appropriate supervisor rates the performance of each President to determine the level of discretionary cash profit sharing to be awarded. In turn, the President's rating of each of his officers for this is reviewed by the branch supervisor.

Audits made of the associate banks by the FDIC, State Banking Department, and C&S Auditing Department are reviewed by Branch Supervision and then discussed with the examining committee of each board of directors. The President prepares answers to the audits and submits them to the branch supervisor prior to the meeting, which insures that appropriate follow-up is done.

Customer service audits are performed by the Branch Supervision staff and reviewed with the Presidents in order to maintain a comparable quality of service in each C&S offic

4. Directors' Meetings

A branch supervisor serves as an advisory board member on each of the boards of these associate banks. He attends all meetings and serves as a liaison between that bank and the C&S National. He makes recommendations regarding amount of directors' fees, dividends, policy changes, salaries, operational changes, and community activities, and, in general, speaks for C&S National.

5. Geographic Coordination

The branch supervisory staff works with each of the associate banks in the Atlanta area to assure that business development activities are not duplicated by C&S banks in contiguous areas, nor are areas left unsolicited and unserved. Each bank conducts a new business program within a specific area and sends copies of his call reports to Branch Supervision of C&S National. Representatives from Branch Supervision will occasionally make joint calls with officers of the associate banks who need assistance. These may take the form of a new business solicitation or discussion of a particular loan or other banking relationship.

6. Credit Review

Each associate can and does call upon C&S National for credit analysis and technical advice. All loans in excess of $25,000 are reviewed in a regularly scheduled credit meeting of C&S National, and any suggestions or criticisms of methods of handling are discussed at that time. All loans are rated by the C&S National Credit Department, and periodically, all such rated loans are discussed with the heads of the 5% associates. Problem credits are followed very closely by Branch Supervision, working directly with the bank President, the Credit Department, and other credit specialists in salvaging such loans. The Branch Supervisor may make suggestions for collecting past dues, repossession and ultimate sale of collateral, as well as approve any charge-offs.

Branch Supervision reviews and shares in the decision to commit any loans in which C&S National purchases a participation. This department also works very closely with the Presidents in the management of their banks' investment portfolios, relating the overall needs of the C&S System and the availability of funds at a given time.

7. Operations and Work Measurement

The operations specialist in Branch Supervision works very closely with each of these associate banks on operational problems and the standardization of methods and procedures.

This department also offers assistance in work measurement and determining optimal staffing levels. Each President receives a monthly report showing his bank's work measurement index compared to the other C&S Banks in the Atlanta area.

Any requests for additional personnel must be approved by Branch Supervision.

8. Officers and Staff

The Presidents of each of the associates were originally (or in the case of Tucker at the time of its organization) designated by Branch Supervision and/or Mills Lane, as were all the assistant managers, with the concurrence of the President.* While there have been only two changes in top management in the banks since initial association with C&S (Sandy Springs and South DeKalb) there has been considerable movement at other levels—transfers from C&S to the associates and back to the C&S System (with no effect on status or benefits). In no instances has an important management position been filled directly from outside the C&S Banks In only three cases have members of management left these associate banks to accept positions outside the C&S System- (Tom Cook, Sandy Springs; Ted Murphy, North Fulton; John Montgomery, Park National), two at the request of C&S Branch Supervision.

Due to the close ties and active transferral of officers and staff among the C&S Banks, the personnel of these associate banks are very responsive to all suggestions, recommendations, and guidance of the C&S. Their opportunities for personal growth and development, as well as financial rewards, are not limited just to one bank, but are as broad as the C&S System. This realization renders highly unlikely the possibility of future competition from these banks.

F. C&S SERVICES FOR THE SIX ASSOCIATE BANKS

The management style and method of operations of the six associate banks parallels exactly that of the C&S National branches—that is, they are treated alike by C&S National. The supervisory practices, operational procedures, lending philosophy, forms, signs, logo and other symbols and practices that define style and personality are almost identical with all other C&S banks in metropolitan Atlanta. A conscious attempt is continually made to provide the degree of standardization necessary for the customer to identify each of these banks as a member of the C&S family of banks.

In providing staff and management services, there is essentially no differentiation between the C&S National branches, Atlanta affiliates, and the six associate banks. In all instances, the six associate banks derive significant economic benefits from their close association with C&S National.

1. Personnel Services.

The management and staff of each of the six associate banks are covered by the same employment, salary administration and fringe benefit programs as the staff of C&S National and affiliates.

C&S National's Personnel Department provides employment services for the six associate banks including screening, testing, orientation and training for their personnel. Experienced, trained personnel of C&S National are made available to these banks when needed to fill higher level positions. This ready access to experienced manpower provides a depth of resources that none of the banks could develop internally.

Branch Supervision of C&S provides replacement personnel in case of sickness, vacation or emergencies.

All of the staff positions in the associate banks are measured by the same job evaluation standards, and salary ranges for comparable jobs are exactly the same. Transfers of personnel among these associate banks and C&S National Bank are handled as if all were branches.

Since 1967, a total of 179 new personnel were hired by C&S National for the six associates. In addition, 39 experienced staff members were transferred to these banks from

C&S National, and 13 were transferred out of the six banks to other C&S offices.*

In addition, since January, 1967, 68 management associates of C&S National have been assigned to these six banks for on-the-job training for periods up to six months, with their salaries being borne by C&S National.

An individual's length of service at an associate bank is retained in case of transfer, and he remains in the same profit sharing and pension program as if he were at all times with C&S National. Any transferred employee is also eligible for other benefits related to length of service, such as vacations and service pins. All the employees of these banks are eligible for the same life, hospitilization, dental, group accident, travel accident, and long term disability insurance package that is offered by C&S National.

All officers and employees of the six associate banks are invited to participate in the C&S Bank Club and its sponsored activities, such as its resort on Lake Allatoona. Officers are eligible for membership in the C&S Officers Health Club. Officer and non-officer loan and charge card privileges at special low interest rates are handled in a consistent manner, with officer loans carried by other banks in the C&S System and non-officer loans handled through the Installment Loan Department of the C&S National Bank. All may participate in the C&S stock purchase plan through payroll deductions.

See Exhibit H — List of C&S National Management Associates trained at associate banks.

The rate of each associate bank's contribution to cash and deferred profit sharing is based upon the overall profitability of C&S National and its subsidiary interests. The funding for employees in the pension plan is handled in the same manner for all C&S banks. The administration of these benefits is handled centrally by the System Personnel Department of C&S National.

General communications such as interoffice memoranda, announcements, bulletins, and the C&S house organ are distributed among the staff of the associates, as in the branches.

2. Education and Training.

Opportunities to attend any of the C&S-sponsored schools, seminars, and other training programs apply equally to the staff members of all the banks. A diversity of subjects, from Consumer Lending, Teller Training, and Customer Service, to Law and Trust Services Seminars, are available. The facilities and instructors are provided in-bank at no expense to the associates. The associate bank officers and staff assist in teaching certain schools and seminars upon request. During the past 20 months, 101 staff members of the six associate banks attended one or more of 47 courses.*

3. Operations Services.

To further economize on personnel costs and to facilitate customer service, the C&S National Bank Operations Department performs almost identical services for the National Bank branches and these associate banks. All Computer Operations, Bookkeeping functions, Proof, Transit Operations,

---

*See Exhibit I — Roster of Attendance of associate bank personnel at C&S National educational programs.

See Exhibit J — General operating bulletins and memos

General Ledger, Audits, and Telephone Customer Service have been standardized and are handled centrally at one location.

The C&S helicopters and surface transportation system provide the same interoffice mail and delivery service for these associate banks as it does for branches. The Central Money Vault of C&S National provides the same coin and currency service for the associates, and extensive use of the centralized Purchasing Department of the C&S National is made by these banks, to take advantage of the economics of large scale purchasing.

Heating and air conditioning equipment, as well as teller machines, typewriters, and adding machines, are serviced by the Maintenance Department of C&S National.

The security system is standardized among all offices, and a centralized alert system is used for suspected fraud and emergencies.

Blanket bonds covering the staff of these associate banks are obtained by the insurance section of C&S National.

The C&S National Comptroller's Department handles the associate banks' accrual operations and prepares their tax returns, and performs other accounting functions.

Each of these associate banks has access to the credit and information files of each other, as well as those of C&S National. Each of these banks uses the C&S installment loan billing service. Commercial credit reports are obtained by the associate banks through the C&S National under volume contract terms. They also have access to the attorneys retained by C&S National.

The Money Management Department of C&S National acts as investment advisor for the security portfolios of the associate banks, buys and sells securities on their behalf, and provides safekeeping. This department is also consulted in quoting rates on negotiable certificates of deposits.

C&S Holding has purchased and held property for each of the banks except Park National for actual or proposed bank sites.* The Holding Company for many years charged no interest on these purchases, nor realized any capital gain on any plots eventually sold to these associates. The sale price to these banks has recently been set at actual purchase price plus a carrying charge at prime interest rate.

---

*See Exhibit K — List of properties purchased and held for associate banks, by C&S Holding.

4. Marketing.

C&S National maintains an extensive marketing staff utilized by all the Atlanta area banks. The C&S marketing program applies to the six associate banks in the same manner that it applies to branches of C&S National and its affiliate banks in the Atlanta area. The program includes market research, advertising, public relations, sales promotion, and product development. Programs are planned and executed to increase the business of all C&S Banks in the Atlanta market, without distinction. Conscious efforts are made to avoid creating distinctions in the mind of a customer.

The internal services offered consist principally of market research programs and individual consulting. Market Research has completed six extensive projects for these associate banks since 1965.

In addition, continuing consultation and the results of consumer surveys are provided to help define marketing opportunities. Specific programs for local publicity and small scale promotions are designed and executed by the marketing staff in cooperation with the bank associate president.

New services and changes in existing services apply to these banks in the same manner as to branches of C&S National.

The external services of the marketing staff include promoting bank openings and preparing news releases, publicity material, financial reports, and other "custom" material.

A principal objective of marketing is to identify all the Atlanta area banks clearly with the "C&S" name through the consistent use of the C&S logo.

Advertising is purchased on a market basis to serve the needs of all C&S banks in the Atlanta market, with no distinction between banks.

Customers who have an account at any of the C&S branch, affiliate or associate banks are encouraged to use the facilities of any other bank or branch, especially for making deposits and cashing checks. It is C&S policy to serve our customers where it is most convenient. Staff members in all C&S banks are trained and encouraged to develop business for C&S, without regard to corporate distinctions.

The marketing program includes the development and introduction of special promotions and new services. Because advertising is done under just the "C&S" name, it is critically important that all banks follow a coordinated course of action. Thus it is necessary to provide staff members with instructions and information concerning policy and necessary actions to achieve marketing objectives.*

The Atlanta telephone directory listing consciously avoids distinguishing the various banks to simplify matters for the customer. Officers and offices are merged into a single alphabetical listing. This same approach is carried out in maps and other promotional material.

*See Exhibit L — Memos to C&S staff

See Exhibit M — Telephone directory listing.

C. BANKING INTER-RELATIONSHIPS

Each of these six associate banks, the two proposed acquiring banks (C&S East Point and Emory), and C&S National enjoy complementary relationships with each other.

1. Loan Participations.

C&S National has provided lending capacity to each of the associate banks since their origination by participating in loans that would exceed the legal lending limit or funds available to these banks. These associates have also purchased loan participations from the National Bank in instances when the associate banks had excess funds available.* Normally the associate would retain or receive a higher interest rate on sale or purchase of participations than would a correspondent of C&S.

2. Transfers of Accounts.

The Presidents of these six banks were able to identify 250 commercial accounts that were referred to their banks by C&S National or transferred from the National Bank.* For example, such transfers or referrals amount to over 14% of the accounts of C&S North Fulton.

---

*See Exhibit N — Loan participations bought and sold by associate banks.

3. Charge Account Service Merchant Accounts.

These banks participate in a joint relationship with C&S National in handling Charge Account Service business. The sales staff of C&S National normally signs the merchant on the service and handles the conversion, while the associate bank carries the merchant's checking account through which sales are deposited.

4. Computer Processing.

Officers of the associates were instrumental in C&S National's acquiring 38 payroll processing, medical accounting and freight payment accounts since September 1966.

*See Exhibit O — Commercial accounts transferred or referred by C&S National to associate banks.

See Exhibit P — Charge Account Service merchants carrying accounts with associate banks.

See Exhibit Q — Computer processing accounts solicited for C&S National by associate banks.

5. Trust New Business.

Officers and staff of these six banks have received credit for acquiring 234 Trust relationships since 1968.* In fact, the President of C&S Park National was presented an award for "Outstanding Trust Development in 1969" (most pieces of business and largest dollar volume).

6. Real Estate Loans.

Significant cooperation exists between the C&S National Bank's Real Estate Finance Department and each of these associate banks on a regular basis.

7. Accounts Exceeding FDIC Limits.

Many large depositors of these banks maintain their accounts, though in excess of the amount insured by FDIC, with the associates due to their relationship with C&S and the protection that the support of a larger bank affords.

*See Exhibit R — Trust business solicited by C&S National by associate banks.

See Exhibit S — Real Estate Finance Department of C&S National coordination with associate banks.

8. Banking Hours.

Banking hours of these associate banks, C&S Emory, and C&S DeKalb are scheduled to provide Customer Service at some bank or banks in a given geographic area from 9:00 until 4:00, Monday thru Thursday; 9:00 until 6:00 on Friday; and 1/2 day on Saturday. To provide extended banking hours convenient to customers in North DeKalb County, South DeKalb County, and North Fulton County, the C&S-affiliated and associated banks in each of these areas have coordinated their respective hours so that not all must be staffed on Friday and on Saturday, but customers nevertheless will have service available within a relatively small geographic area.*

9. Deposits.

Each of the associates maintains deposit accounts with the C&S and at least one Atlanta area affiliate. None of the six carry accounts with either of the other five associates.

---

*See Exhibit T — Banking hours.

See Exhibit U — Year-end balances of deposit accounts.

H. FINANCING OF THE SIX ASSOCIATE BANKS

In order to maintain an adequate capital base on which to grow as deposits continued to increase, added capital was needed by four of these associates. C&S National has provided that capital as follows:

1. A 6% Convertible Debenture in the amount of $300,000 issued by Chamblee in December of 1968, was purchased and is held by C&S National;

2. An 8% Capital Note in the amount of $200,000 was issued by North Fulton on April 15, and was purchased and is held by C&S National;

3. A 5% Capital Note for $100,000, issued December 1, 1964; and a 6% Convertible Debenture for $125,000, issued November 1, 1968, by Sandy Springs was purchased and is held by C&S National;

4. A $400,000 6% Convertible Debenture was issued by Tucker on December 16, 1968, and was purchased and is held by C&S National.

Combining the above with the 5% stock interest held by the C&S Holding Company in each of the above banks shows the support that C&S National has given in terms of capital dollars: 33.7% of the capital of Chamblee, 36.66% of the capital of North Fulton, 37.88% of the capital of Sandy Springs and 41% of the capital of Tucker.*

(Correspondingly, the officers and staff of Chamblee, Sandy Springs, Tucker, and Park National helped to place among their customers and friends 5,670 shares of C&S National stock during C&S National's 1970 stock offering.)

I. HOW STONE MOUNTAIN IS DIFFERENT

The Stone Mountain Bank had its beginning as a result of a visit by Mills Lane to a civic group which was interested in preserving Stone Mountain and trying to dress-up the town of Stone Mountain. Apparently in the conversation, the fact was brought up that the members of this group had talked for many years about starting a bank, and Mr. Lane suggested that perhaps Mr. Arthur Drew, who was a retired former C&S officer, might be available to run such a bank. Mr. Lane offered to give them any assistance that we would normally give any correspondent bank.

The bank was then organized with the McCurdy family in Stone Mountain being the dominant group. Some assistance was given to the organizers by the Correspondent Bank Department of C&S National, just as they would have done for any prospective correspondent bank. No C&S personnel played any role in sale of stock or selection of directors.

The bank opened for business in 1957 as an independent bank. C&S had no stock interest in the bank.

In the middle of 1959 some of the original organizers came to C&S National and asked for help. They were experiencing credit problems and felt that they needed someone to help them who was more familiar with day-to-day bank operations than they were. This in itself points out that no C&S guidance was being given them during the first few years of their existence.

At that time a 5% interest was acquired by C&S Holding, and a C&S representative added to their Board of Directors. Also, a C&S officer was named President of the bank and took over the day-to-day operations. The result was gratifying, for the bank immediately began to show improvement; it was doing a good job for the community, the stockholders, and the customers. At all times, the McCurdy family and other local people who were not oriented to C&S National remained in control of a substantial majority of the bank's stock.

In summary, the following vast differences existed between the Stone Mountain situation and that of C&S Sandy Springs, North Fulton, Chamblee, Park National, South DeKalb, and Tucker (since C&S National's involvement):

1) A single related group of stockholders of Stone Mountain controlled at least 1/3 of the stock, as contrasted with a maximum of 10% being held by any individual or related group of the first five banks listed above and 17% in the case of Tucker.

2) C&S National and C&S oriented groups were never the dominant stockholders of the Stone Mountain Bank, which contrasts sharply with the other six associates.

The contrast between Stone Mountain and the first five of the banks listed above is even more vivid. Stone Mountain was treated as a correspondent and the principals came to us for help after the bank got into trouble, whereas in the other banks, C&S was the dominant organizing group, the Holding Company and closely allied groups the dominant stockholders, and the banks received the guidance and counsel of C&S from their inception to the present, and the expectation of the shareholders was from the very beginning one of being part of the C&S System of Banks.

The primary elements suggesting disaffiliation of Stone Mountain are not and have never been present in either of these six associate banks listed above that we propose to merge with C&S Emory and C&S East Point.

We the undersigned stockholders of The Citizens and Southern _____, do hereby affirm that we purchased our shares of the Bank upon the expectation and trust that the Bank would be organized and operated under the auspices and sponsorship of The Citizens and Southern National Bank and affiliates ("C & S") and that C & S would furnish management and financial services of the type and scope furnished to its subsidiary banks, and in due course, should the branch banking laws of the state permit, this Bank would be merged into the C & S. At no time did we consider a separation from this sort of control by C & S, and thus we voted that C & S acquire this Bank now that those branch banking laws permit it.

C&S SANDY SPRINGS

The largest outside stockholder for C&S Sandy Springs is Mr. A. J. Weinberg, who owns 6.46% of the outstanding stock. Mr. Weinberg was one of the original directors of C&S Sandy Springs, having been asked to serve as Chairman of the Board by Mr. Mills B. Lane, Jr. Mr. Weinberg served on the Board until his retirement in 1969. Mr. Weinberg has signed a petition.

There has been no transfer of stock in excess of 500 shares since the bank was formed in 1960. It is interesting to note that 69% of the original stockholders still hold stock, representing 70% of the original issue and 72.9% of outstanding shares on May 1, 1971.

The original merger proposal was approved by all voting stockholders except one, who represented 720 shares. All the stockholders of Sandy Springs who have been asked to sign the recent petition have done so. These stockholders hold in excess of 90% of the outstanding stock.

Due to the length of time C&S Sandy Springs has been open (eleven years), the attached stockholder chart accounts for transfers in stock ownership by year. The last two columns indicate the breakdown of stock ownership by category the year the bank opened and the present year.

C&S CHAMBLEE BANK

The largest outside stockholder group for C&S Chamblee is Henry Williams, his wife, and the profit sharing plan for his drugstore. The ownership of this group represents 10% of the outstanding stock.

Dr. Williams was one of the original organizers of the Chamblee Bank and prior to that time was a strong customer of the C&S National Bank, as that Bank made him a term loan for the purpose of ~~and~~ enabling him to start his business.

Dr. Williams is a very strong advocate of C&S Chamblee and is highly desirous of merging with the C&S National Bank. Dr. Williams has signed a petition. His one and only business interest is that of operating his drugstore. He has no knowledge of banking, and he would never have any desire to advocate any plan which would separate C&S Chamblee from C&S National Bank.

The original merger proposal was approved by all voting stockholders except three, who represented 402 shares. One of the original dissenting stockholders, representing 126 shares, has now signed a petition.

Stockholders owning over 80% of the outstanding stock have signed the petition.

Over 50% of the outstanding stock of C&S Chamblee Bank is owned by people who work for C&S National Bank or do business with the National Bank.

POOR COPY

The largest block of stock owned outside of the C&S is held by the Cofer family. This family at one time owned 100% of the bank. When C&S National Bank Holding Company bought 80%, the Cofers retained 17% ownership. The Cofer family has signed a petition.

Shortly after C&S National acquired C&S Tucker stock, the stock was held by Mr. Howard Starks and Mr. Bennett Brown both Executive Vice Presidents of the C&S National Bank, as agents. The stock was then sold to C&S officers, directors, and customers. This accounts for the large "swing" of stock ownership in 1966.

The increase in Category B in 1969 and 1970 is due to Mr. Herb Dickson, former Executive Vice President of C&S National Bank, leaving in 1969, and Mr. Rountree Youmans, former General Vice President of C&S National Bank, retiring in 1970.

The original merger proposal was approved by all voting stockholders except three, who own a total of 26 shares. The recent petition was signed by persons owning over 99% of the outstanding shares. In recent years, there has not been any transfer of stock in excess of 2%.

The largest single block of stock "outside" the C & S family is held by Mr. T. A. Bartenfeld, a personal friend of the Bank President, Mr. Hugh Lane. Mr. Bartenfeld owns 500 shares (2.5%) and has signed a petition approving the merger.

In April 1969, one of the original organizers of C & S North Fulton, Mr. George M. Couch, Jr. (age 72) resigned from the Board because he felt that there was entirely too close a relationship with the C & S family in that we had adopted practically every recommended policy of the C & S National Bank including the tenure of Directors. He did not approve of the retirement age 75 since he felt he had not outlived his usefulness.

The original merger proposal was approved unanimously by all voting stockholders. Recently, all stockholders asked to signed the petition have done so willingly.

It is interesting to note the percent ownership that C & S officers, directors, and employees, both active and retired (45.79%) and C & S customers and affiliate customers (49.48%) have in this bank.

The largest single block of stock outside of the C & S family is held by the Elson family group, headed by Edward E. Elson. Mr. Elson, a Director, owns the largest "outside" block of stock, 2,847 shares, or approximately 7% of total shares.

Included in this family group are Mr. Elson, his father, Harry, his mother, Esther, and his uncle, Louis (in trust for Edward's children).

Elson, originally a valuable depositor of the Citizens and Southern National Bank and friend of Mills B. Lane, has been one of our most helpful Directors and his companies are our second largest and second most profitable accounts. He and his family voted unanimously in favor of merger with The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank, Citizens and Southern National Banks' affiliate.

Below is a listing of transfers of stock in excess of 2%:

4-23-68 — Mills B. Lane, Jr., President of Citizens and Southern National Bank, bought 1,500 shares from Citizens and Southern National Bank customer Hilson & Company.

5-21-68 — Citizens and Southern National Bank customer Louis L. Dettelbach bought 500 shares from Citizens and Southern National Bank customer Earl Geiger.

9-2-68 — HLS Company, Citizens and Southern National Bank customer controlled by Citizens and Southern National Bank Director Hal Smith, bought 1,500 shares from Citizens and Southern National Bank President, Mills B. Lane and 500 from his wife, Anne Waring Lane.

The original merger proposal was approved by all voting stockholders except 2 who represented 525 shares. The recent petition was signed by stockholders who represent over 90% of the outstanding shares. It is interesting to note that one of the original dissenting stockholders representing 500 shares has now agreed to sign the petition.

C & S National Bank officers, directors, employees and customers and affiliate customers, again, own well over 50% of the outstanding stock.

The largest "outside" stockholders for C & S South DeKalb are Mr. Herb Dickson, a former Executive Vice President of C & S National Bank and Mr. Rountree Youmans, retired General Vice President of C & S National Bank. Mr. Dickson and Mr. Youmans own 600 shares each (2%) and have signed a petition approving the proposed merger.

The original vote on the merger indicated the strong support the stockholders have given to the proposed merger. It is interesting to note that only 100 shares out of 30,000 shares outstanding voted against the merger at that time. Presently, over 80% of the outstanding shares have again voiced their approval of the merger by signing the petition. There has only been one stockholder who has been contacted that has refused to sign.

In addition, the Board of Directors has seen fit to approve of all the recommendations of the C & S National Bank. There has not been a case of any dissenting votes on National Bank Recommendations.

Dear Jim:

Thinking back over the incorporation of the Citizens National Bank of Sandy Springs, which is now the Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs, it never entered my mind at the beginning that the bank was anything but to be controlled by The Citizens and Southern National Bank system. Certainly The Citizens and Southern National Bank could not have more than five per cent ownership in the Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs; however, I think it was the intention of the C & S to have the bank in friendly hands from the very inception of the original Board of Directors.

Our company has, for a number of years, banked with The Citizens and Southern National Bank, and my father was on the Advisory Board of the downtown bank. I was specifically requested to become an original director of the Sandy Springs bank by Mills Lane personally. I would not have invested in the bank or had any knowledge of the bank had it not been for the interest of Mr. Lane in my presence on the Board.

From the very beginning we have been advised, counseled, and staffed at key positions by C & S personnel. There has always been a member of our Board from the "mother" bank, and that particular director has always influenced our board decisions greatly.

From the outset we have attempted to identify with The Citizens and Southern National Bank. The name of the bank has constantly been as close to Citizens and Southern as we could possibly get it without being in violation of the banking laws. Our bank expansion has always been planned on the basis that ultimately the laws of Georgia would be changed and branch banking would be permitted and this bank would then become a part of the big bank.

Were we forced to be separated, or were the "mother" bank to lose interest in the Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs, I feel that our position as an independent bank would be terribly weakened since most of our key personnel presently participate in the fringes of the "mother" bank, and I think that we would lose them back into the main system. This would have a very serious effect upon the bank's earnings and the present stock's earning capacity.

I think, of the original stockholders, not one was actually living in Sandy Springs at the time we sought the bank charter, and I am sure none of us were actively engaged in any business enterprise in Sandy Springs. Local residents of Sandy Springs were not involved with the Board until after original incorporation was sought, but all of us on the original Board were either very close friends or very closely involved businesswise with the parent bank.

It has never been my thought that anybody ran that bank but Mills B. Lane and associates.

Yours sincerely,

H. Dillon Winship, Jr.

Dear Mr. Thomas:

The proposed merger of the C. & S. Bank of Sandy Springs into the C. & S. Bank of East Point appears to be a natural step to take, and in my view could be considered a formal recognition of the way we have been operating since I have been a Director. I have been in Atlanta since January 1969, as General Manager of Western Electric's Southern Region. My predecessor was a member of the Board of Directors, and I was elected to the Board in March 1969.

I have been impressed with the close working relationship our bank has with the C. & S. National Bank, and with the level of support we receive. For example, I am a member of the committee on salary compensation, and our deliberations have always included representatives from the C. & S. National Bank with the objective of keeping our salaries in line with those in other parts of the C. & S. system. Our decisions on employee benefits have also been closely coordinated with the C. & S. National Bank. As further examples, on the operating side of the business we are tied in with the C. & S. National Bank computer system, we make use of the helicopter delivery service, and we benefit directly from the advertising program of the C. & S. National Bank.

The President of our Bank came to us from the C. & S. National Bank, and if he were to leave Sandy Springs for some reason, I feel certain the Board would look to C. & S. National for a replacement. In short, we are clearly a member of the C. & S. "family" and the success of our operations has resulted to a large degree from our access to C. & S. resources.

In my opinion it is important to preserve this arrangement and, in fact, to strengthen it wherever possible. There would be no benefit to the Sandy Springs Bank, its owners or its customers to break this relationship, and it has never occurred to me to think along those lines.

Yours truly,

J Terrell

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

The undersigned Stockholder, Director, and Finance Committeeman of the C&S National Bank of Sandy Springs and former merchant in Sandy Springs concurs in the sale of said Bank to the C&S National Bank of Atlanta.

Since the Sandy Springs Bank was organized the citizens in this area were informed by me and others that this Bank was a member of the C&S system which lent valuable aid to this Bank by recommending to us and allowing the employment of competent and experienced personnel to operate our Bank from the personnel of the C&S Bank of Atlanta. In addition, the larger Bank has participated with us in loans, thus, enabling this Bank to handle profitable business which otherwise would have been too large for our small Bank to handle.

Frankly, I feel the customers and stockholders of our Bank have greatly benefited by the identity and participation from the C&S Bank of Atlanta.

However, the main reason I favor the merger of our Bank with the C&S Atlanta Bank is that recent changes in the Georgia Law permits all of the larger Banks of Atlanta to establish branches in our community where we have heretofore enjoyed the large part of the banking business in this area. Therefore, in my opinion, with competition from all of the larger Atlanta Banks in this community for the best interest of our customers and stockholders would be the merger of our Bank to the C&S Bank of Atlanta.

Sincerely,

Dear Jim,

In 1959, a group of us in the Sandy Springs neighborhood recognized the need for a local bank and therefore applied to the State Banking Department for a charter. After much consideration, the proper authorities declined to issue a charter because they did not feel as though the economic situation in that neighborhood justified a bank. No Atlanta bank could then put a branch in that community.

~~Later in~~ 1959 through the leadership and influence of Mills B. Lane, Jr., President of The Citizens and Southern Nation Bank, a national charter was obtained, and the bank was opened as an associate of The Citizens and Southern National Bank in the name of The Citizens National Bank of Sandy Springs.

At that time I purchased stock in the bank and influenced others to make a similar investment. Through the influence of Mr. Lane and others, I was made one of the original directors. I had retired after serving as Vice President of The Citizens and Southern National Bank for thirty-two years and was glad to share a program to build a strong bank in a rapidly growing community.

The bank made excellent progress right from the beginning. Much of this was due to the cooperation of the parent bank. They supplied, not only management but individual auditors, advertising material, and general support which made it possible for us to grow and prosper without too much expense.

Even though we were an individual bank, we have felt right from the beginning that we were in the family of the C&S System and continue to feel that way. Now that the law has been changed providing for county-wide banking, we know that other banks will establish branches in Sandy Springs, and for that reason the directors and stockholders urge the banking authorities to make it possible for us to become a branch of the Citizens and Southern System.

Sincerely,

A G Maxwell

Attention: Mr. James E. Thomas

Dear Jim:

Reference is made to the formation and history of, and my relationship with, the Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs.

My father was a long-time employee of the Citizens and Southern National Bank and retired in about 1955, at which time he was executive vice president; consequently, for my entire life I was "raised" as a member of the Citizens and Southern National Bank. I have also done a considerable amount of building for the C&S since I have been in the construction business.

In 1959 I received a call from Mills Lane who asked me to come to his office. When I arrived, he advised he was putting together a group of people to apply for a national bank charter in the Sandy Springs area and he wanted me to be a director. My only basis for even considering this was because of my connection with the C&S and my knowledge the C&S Bank would be behind this effort from the start. After the charter was approved, I had the privilege of serving as a director until 1969, at which time I resigned in order to accept appointment to another C&S Bank board. I was, therefore, a part of the family who saw this bank start and grow through the years.

It was always my idea that if and when the laws would allow, this unit would come under the C&S system since it would never have been founded if it had not been for the C&S, and since Tom Cook, its original president, and Lou Fortuna, its second and current president, both came out of the C&S Bank system; also, most of the key personnel has come from the C&S Bank.

When the laws of the State of Georgia were changed this past year, I immediately felt the wheels would be put in motion to make a reality of the dream that Sandy Springs would become a part of the C&S system. I feel for the good of the bank, and the good of the community this bank serves, a merger would be to the benefit of all.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daniel Hodgson
Alston, Miller & Gaines
The Citizens and Southern Bank Building

Dear Dan:

In support of the acquisition of The Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs by The Citizens and Southern National Bank through The Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point, I wish to reiterate comments made to several of the officers and directors of the bank. Since I was asked to serve and was nominated as one of the original directors, I am well aware of the organization attempts in the Sandy Springs area prior to becoming a director of this bank and the circumstances surrounding the initial sale of stock to local residents. It may be of interest to recall that there were two or three groups who had failed to organize a state bank and, in my opinion, it was the sponsoring of Mills B. Lane and The Citizens and Southern Bank that materially assured us of a successful application. The original bank name was "The Citizens National Bank of Sandy Springs" and I believe that the Citizens is part of the present name of the bank. Since branches of all C&S Banks could not be legally established outside the city's boundary, the bank adopted a name as close as possible. Tom Cook, the first president of the bank, informed me that Mills Lane suggested my name because I was a resident of the area and was interested in several businesses and was familiar with many of the local residents. I knew Mr. Lane for several years prior to this and had noted that he was an excellent businessman and banker. I, therefore, had confidence in him and was pleased to have the opportunity get Mr. Lane interested in cooperating with a bank in our community.

Obviously, I was interested in buying stock and influenced several of the people living in the community at that time to make investments in the bank and to make deposits because of the management and the sponsorship of the new bank. As time went on, I was convinced that many of the people in the community and customers of the new bank felt as strongly as I did and now do that the bank operates like a branch of the C&S National Bank. The personnel, the name, advertising and the mode of doing business in the C&S style are convincing proof of this feeling.

I have served as a director since 1959 and into 1971 and have enjoyed meeting director of other C&S banks; namely, C&S National, C&S affiliates and other C&S Fivepercenter bank directors. Such meetings have taken place at Christmas time and in the spring of the year at which Mills B. Lane presents interesting subjects to the joint membership.

I might add that the unavailability of stock in my bank is a reason for buying stock in the C&S National Bank. However, it is my belief that the closeness of these two banks make both an excellent investment, and I speak from a great deal of experience.

As a director, I am fully aware of the economic benefits derived through mutual cooperation in group purchasing, attitude, personnel, computer services, capital notes and helicopter mail service as examples.

From the beginning and currently, I have had the expectation that this bank would be acquired by the C&S to operate as a branch formation. Such resulting bank with the larger capital base will permit the granting of large loans that are necessary to meet the increasing demand in this a rapidly expanding residential and commercial area. This certainly will help this community. We feel this will continue and most probably increase the benefits to the people in our community and in this rea.

Sincerely,

Att: Mr James E. Thomas

Dear Jim:

The only thing bad about retirement is the loss of a Secretary, otherwise I wouldn't trade for anything.

Shortly after I was transferred to Atlanta in 1958 as President of Southern Grey Iron I was approached by Mr Miller Grimes and officials of the C. & S. Bank about accepting a Directorship and investing in a new bank to be organized in the growing area of Sandy Springs a suburb of Atlanta. Inasmuch as Troy was in the Sandy Springs area and Troy is not far away, I accepted the obligation with the understanding that the C. & S. National Bank was financially interested in, and was to advise and guide us in our activities and just as important to recommend competent people to manage the banks daily.

Greyhound Lines had always transacted its banking business with the C. & S. so I was familiar with some of its people and had the confidence in their ability and willingness to give us the necessary help that we sought to establish a first class banking service to a rapidly area of Fulton County that was without any banking facilities.

With the above in mind I not only became interested as a stockholder and one of the directors, but I recommended to several of my friends and business associates that they invest in the new bank — some of them did.

Needless to say the bank became an immediate success primarily because of the help, know-how and guidance furnished by the C. & S. bank in Atlanta.

I was transferred from Atlanta to Lexington, Ky. in late 1967 and had to resign my directorship but during those early years of the bank's life and continuing to the present C. & S. has had continuing interest in our activities and never ceased to be of immeasurable assistance in the many problems with which we were confronted.

Very Truly Yours

Dear Dan:

From the first time that the idea of forming a bank in Chamblee, Georgia was presented, the Citizens & Southern Bank of Atlanta has been an integral part of this business venture.

The driving force that accomplished the formation of our bank in Chamblee and the resources represented by the talent derived from its various departments, has always been provided by the Citizens & Southern Bank.

I think that everyone concerned was fully aware from the start that the Chamblee Bank would eventually take its place within the corporate framework of the Citizens & Southern.

I wish at this time to strongly endorse the proposed merger of the Citizens & Southern Bank of Chamblee into the Citizens & Southern National Bank.

Cordially,

Dear Mr. Harris:

Since I will not be in the city for the balance of this week and have just returned this morning, I would like to authorize you to sign the petition for the Justice Department, indicating that my reason for purchasing the stock in the original Chamblee National Bank was because of its connection with The Citizens & Southern National Bank. Had it not been for The Citizens & Southern National Bank, I would not even have been aware of the original Chamblee National Bank.

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

When I purchased the initial stock in The Chamblee National Bank in Chamblee, Georgia, which is now The Citizens & Southern Bank of Chamblee, I did so after being advised of its availability by Mr. Richard Carpenter, a vice president of The Citizens & Southern National Bank. I was also asked at that time to be a director of the new bank.

Since The Citizens & Southern National Bank sponsored the bank in Chamblee, I assumed that when the banking laws in Georgia were changed, that the Chamblee bank would automatically become a branch of The Citizens & Southern National Bank.

I feel that if the other downtown national banks are permitted to establish branches in the Chamblee - Doraville area, that The Citizens & Southern Bank of Chamblee will be at a very definite disadvantage.

I hope this information will be of help to you.

Yours very truly,

Dear Dan:

I am the largest stockholder in C & S Bank of Chamblee. I purchased the stock with the hope and the thought that the bank would become a part of the C & S System. Now this is possible since the law has been changed to permit it.

I became a director at the inception of C & S Chamblee, and I could see from the beginning the important assistance and directions C & S National gave in our formation and operation. The capable management and employees all came from C & S. Without C & S there would be no C & S Chamblee.

A large percentage of our customers believe we are a branch of C & S. In fact, they always mention this in my contact with them.

We will be at a disadvantage in competing with the large banks in our area. It will be impossible to furnish the scope of service that would be possible as a part of C & S.

It is my desire to be merged into C & S as soon as possible. We must give the best service possible to the customers in this area --- for that is what banking is all about.

Thank you for sharing a few thoughts and opinions.

Sincerely,

H. T. Williams

Dear Dan:

Some eleven years ago found some of us in the Chamblee-Doraville area at the end of a year and a half of work with one of the Atlanta banks in an effort to get a bank in the area. This was all to no avail, as we were refused.

It was at this time that Mr. Lane came to us offering his full cooperation in securing a bank for our area. His having already done an extensive survey put us in a position of proceeding with their help, counsel and guidance. From this time on until the present, this association has been one of a Big Family with everybody in both banks fully aware that our ultimate hope was of our joining forces as a part of C & S instead of just a five percenter.

The progress and growth of Chamblee would not have been reached as easily had we not had the very close and working association of C & S National. This is why it is so difficult for me to understand why it is meeting so much opposition. Why cannot the marriage take place after an engagement of eleven years?

Sincerely,

Harris

Dear Dan:-

I am writing this letter as one of the orig[inal] organizers of the Chamblee National Bank, as [a] stock holder and a Director of this bank.

In the Fall of 1959 a group of local citizens asked me to contact Mr Mills B. Lane of the [C & S] Bank with reference to help organize a bank [in] I did and Mr Lane was agreeable to join hands with the local group for this purpose. A meeting was called at the Peachtree Gulf Club with a large group attending (approx 75) for the purpose of Organizing. Mr Lane spoke to us at length advising us, what the C & S could do in helping to organize and staffing our bank with personnel to operate it.

Mr Lane lent us Mr George McKinnon a C & S Vice President to help us organize the bank. Mr McKinnon worked with us for several months

We organized as a C & S. 5% bank and secured a National bank charter in May 1960 and opened for business on May 15, 1960, with C & S. work personnel, (with the exception of my wife Mrs Pearl C. Berry) and elected Mr Hubert Harris, a C & S. Vice Pres., as the President of the Chamblee National Bank.

We have operated under C & S. policies with C. & S. personnel since we opened our doors for business, and I personally believe that 99% of the public think that we are a full C & S. Bank now. I firmly believe that the success of our bank has been due to guidance of the C & S. Bank.

The fact that 87% of the stock holders voted at a recent stock holders meeting to merge with the C & S. Banking Organization is further evidence of their desire.

Yours very truly

Dear Dan:

With reference to the merger of "our bank", the C & S Bank of Chamblee, into the C & S system, I would like to make several statements representing my personal position in the matter:

1. For both myself and the companies to which I relate, we were both aware of and impressed by the fact that Chamblee National initially and on a continuing basis, drew management personnel and services from the "parent" C & S organization.

2. I am convinced that without the effective operating control which the C & S key personnel and accounting systems furnished our bank, sound growth (if not actual survival), would have been highly problematical.

3. If there had been any reason to believe that we could lose the support and direction of C & S National, or that they would become an active competitor, I never would have become involved as a stockholder or director.

In summary, I see as an alternative to the consolidation or merger of the C & S affiliates, a chaotic and most dangerous situation as the several major banking organizations move to penetrate and proliferate in areas now open to them under revised state law.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dan,

As I recall when we formed the bank at Chamblee and called the original stock it was with the understanding that C+S System would furnish our man and whatever else was required to and operate the bank as a part the overall C+S System and we all felt that sometime in the future we would operate as a branch of C+S wherever the law was changed to make it possible. Our management and personnel have always been from the C+ system and we have looked to C+S for guidance in both operation and policy. Our personnel belong to the overall C+S retirement and profit Saving plans and the success of our bank has been tied to the growth of the C&S system and attendant benefits of their programs and policies which we have used exclusively over the years. In our dealings we have always cooperated rather than competed and the neighborhood has always considered us the C&S System office for the area.

Dear Dan

Some additional thoughts on the proposed merger. I remember when Frank Bevis, Bill Nasher and I met with Bill Lane to set up the bank at Chamblee. We would never have had a bank without C+S.

Their direction and personnel were the whole story in our formation and growth to the present. I have always felt that we were a direct part of C+S and have never felt that we would ever be anything else than a direct branch when the law allowed.

Dear Dan:

You have asked me to tell you of my experience with C & S National Bank, and also of my work with C & S Bank of Chamblee and the relationship of that bank with the C & S National Bank.

I am sure that you are aware that I have spent my entire business life in the C & S system. I began my work with C & S in 1926. I was first with C & S in Athens, then in the main office in Atlanta, and finally in 1950 I was asked to take over the operation of a branch office of the C & S Bank of Atlanta. This was a bank in which the C & S National Bank had acquired the controlling stock of, a short time earlier.

My duties there required that I work closely with the operating officers of the C & S National Bank and we operated as near like a C & S Bank as it was possible to do so, until the banking laws of Georgia were changed so that this bank could be merged with C & S National and operated as a branch office of that bank.

In early 1960 a group of citizens from Chamblee met with the officers of the C & S National Bank and asked the assistance of C & S in organizing a new bank in Chamblee. That area was growing and they felt the need for a new bank, but they had been denied a charter when they made application earlier.

The C & S National Bank made an extensive study of the area and provided economic information which indicated that a bank was needed in that area and that it would grow.

At that time I was asked by one of the officers of C & S National, to come to Chamblee to help in organizing the bank, securing stockholders, renting space, employing personnel, and doing all things necessary to start a new bank.

The C & S National Bank helped in selecting our Directors. They assisted in the sale of stock of the bank by making loans available to stockholders who needed to borrow money to buy stock in the Chamblee bank.

I borrowed money from the C & S National Bank to purchase stock in the new bank. I used the help of almost every department in C & S in setting up operation procedures. Many of the beginning personnel were employees of C & S who were sent to help in getting the bank started. Some of the beginning personnel are still with the bank.

As the bank grew we continued to use many of the departments of C & S National, including the credit department, audit department, investment department, business development department, international department, personnel department, printing department and the trust department.

Later we felt the need for a second office for our bank, and again we asked for and received help from C & S in preparing our application and presenting the facts required for the application for this second office.

More recently, we were requested by the supervisory authorities to increase our capital because our deposits had grown faster than our accumulated capital funds. Again, we turned to C & S National for assistance. We used that bank's experience in helping to complete plans for additional capitalization by the issuance of a convertible debenture of $300,000. which was purchased by C & S National Bank, and by the issuance of additional stock amounting to $300,000.00.

C & S helped stockholders to finance the purchase of their additional stock with loans. I also borrowed from C & S to purchase additional stock.

From this information you can see that we have been very closely related to C & S National from the very beginning of our bank, up to and including the present time.

This relationship has been unusually beneficial to C & S Chamblee and has enabled us to grow very fast. I feel that much credit for this growth should be given to C & S National for the assistance and guidance we have received during all of the years of our operations.

Sincerely,

Hubert L. Harris

Dear Dan:

About six months before The Chamblee National Bank was organized a local group of which I was a member tried to form a bank in the Doraville-Chamblee area. We thought our presentation to the state banking board was excellent, but we were turned down and told that our area would not support a bank.

After this some of this same group went to Mr.Mills Lane to solicit his help in getting a bank for our area. The C.& S.National Bank helped our group in every way to organize our bank, to secure a charter, and to start our business. We began operation as The Chamblee National Bank with C.& S. personnel and management and had available to us complete C.& S. financial services. There isn't anything the C.& S. did not do to help our bank get going, and has not done to help us operate at a profit.

The C.& S. from the start has owned 5% of our capital stock as per Georgia Law, but her influence over our affairs has been tremendously important to our success. I have believed from the beginning that when the Georgia Banking Laws were changed so as to allow county-wide branching we would become a branch of the C.& S.System.

The Chamblee National Bank (now C.& S.Bank of Chamblee) is located in a great growth area and has been tremendously successful due to sound and agressive management, a very active local board of directors, a large number of local people owning our stock,PLUS the C.& S. affiliation. This has been a real boon to us, and without it I do not believe we would have come anywhere near our present status.

Very truly yours,

Roy

Re: Proposed Merger, C & S Bank of Chamblee with Citizen & Southern Emory Bank

Dear Dan:

I have a few thoughts that I would like to pass on to you regarding the above subject.

Since the beginning of our Chamblee Bank the C & S National Bank has been, what you might say, ... the making of our bank. They provided us with experienced officers and personnel, as well as some directors. The Chamblee Directors adopted practically all of the C & S policies from time to time, which has proven very wise over the years, as a matter of fact this is really a big factor in our bank being successful.

We, as directors and stockholders, always felt that one day, when the law allowed, we would be a part of the C & S system. All of my family and friends who owns stock in the C & S Bank of Chamblee share these sentiments with me.

We are hopeful that you as our counselor will convey our thoughts to the Regulator Agencies.

We are all looking forward to the approval of the Chamblee - - C & S merger if we are not permitted to do so we feel that our bank will be placed in an unfair and possibly a noncompetitive position.

With best regards.

Dear Dan:

In regard to the proposed merger of the C&S Bank of Chamblee and the C & S National Bank Of Atlanta: I feel that if the Justice Department and the FDIC knew how closely our two banks have operated over the past 11 years they would have little doubt of the propriety of our merger.

To reminesce a bit, I recall our meeting one snowy evening in early 1960 at the Peachtree Golf Club when Mr. Mills Lane graphically drew in word pictures the need, in our community, for a strong bank offering thru our relation with the C&S National the same safety and service offered by the several large banks in Atlanta.

Before opening the Chamblee National Bank the proposed elected directors met with and were interviewed privately by the representatives of the controlling banking authorities in Washington. These interviews took place in the main officies of the C&S National Bank in Atlanta.

After our bank opened for business Mr. Lane arranged joint meetings of our directors with the directors of the C&S National so as to familiarize our group with the responsibilities of bank directors and the opportunities each of us had to serve the people of our community and our banking institution.

On the day of our opening, C&S National depositied $100,000 dollars in our bank where it remained without drawing interest for, I believe, about 2 years.

C&S National after staffing our bank with some of their best people, loaned us, on several occasions, temporary clerical help and field men to "Blitz" our community with phone calls and house to house interviews to tell our prospective customers about Chamblee National Bank.

We have, for years, had C&S banking specialists meet with our directors at their regular meetings to advise and to maintain liaison between our two banks.

C&S National investment department has advised us regularly on purchase and sale of bonds and other legal banking investments. Their helicoptor provides pickup and delivery for our checks and currency.

We have at our bank the same retirement and profit-sharing benefits for our officers and other employees as the C&S National has for theirs.

From our beginning, I believed and I think the other directors and practically all of the stockholders of our bank fully expected to become a "full partner" with C&S National when our state laws permitted us to do so. I think this new state banking law for several obvious reasons, would tend to weaken our bank, when thrown in competition with branches of the several large Atlanta banks in our immediate neighborhood as will be the case in the near future.

I sincerely hope that the governing bank authorities, before making a final ruling on our proposed merger will visit with and interview our directors and other stockholders. I believe this will give them new facts and more light in making their determination.

Dear Dan:

As you know, we have two major groups that own approximately 70% of our stock. The Cofer family with 17% and other C&S Bank officers, employees and wives with approximately 55%. In discussing with the larger individual stockholders, everyone had felt that if the branch banking laws were changed, we would be allowed to merge with C&S National or its affiliate. This feeling was strengthen by the fact the various regulatory authorities approving the large number of branches to be established by the Atlanta banks in our trade area. Northlake is now a prime example of an area being "over-banked". We have a major investment in our branch there with 6,000 square feet of floor space. Our four competitors are coming in with smaller buildings which will be much more economical to operate than ours and there is just so much business to go around.

On the subject of business we have received through our C&S National relationship - here is a breakdown:

From C&S Charge Account Service -

1. Fountain Drugs
2. Stone Mountain Ford

Listed below are accounts we were able to obtain through referrals from C&S National:

1. Allis Chalmers Material Handling	75,000
2. Corrosion Specialties	4,000
3. Hi Lo Oil Company	76,800
4. American Chain & Cable	4,000
5. Sears Roebuck Northlake	200,000
6. John J. Harte Associates	23,000
7. Morris-Wammock Company	10,000
8. Dunwoody Properties	20,000
9. Fibre Metal Southeast	15,000
10. L.C. Morris Company	55,000
11. The Quaker Oats Company	33,000
12. Litton Industries Credit Union	150,000

Also listed are accounts we obtained or assisted the National bank in acquiring.

1. Vantress Farms	100,000
2. Gulf Oil Company	2,000,000
3. International Laboratories	25,000
4. I.T.E. Imperial Corporation	100,000

In addition, we receive payrolls prepared by C&S National for delivery to the following companies:

1. Container Corporation
2. Road Machinery
3. Stone Mountain Park Association
4. Food Packaging Corporation
5. Technicarbon Corporation
6. Tucker Tool & Die
7. Raybestos-Manhattan

Also we receive large deposits from the companies listed below for transfer to C&S National or affiliates.

1. Atlanta Newspapers
2. Brown Transfer
3. Craft Shack
4. Gulf Oil Corporation

One of the reasons, this bank has been able to grow as we have, is due to the strong support we receive from C&S National in purchasing participations from us in our lines which exceed our legal limit. It's assistance far exceeds what you could expect in a normal correspondent relationship.

The following Directors were C&S customers that were asked by the C&S National Bank to be Directors of our bank when the C&S Holding Company purchased it's 5% interest.

1. Jack Fortenberry, President, F.E. Fortenberry, Inc.
2. Glen P. Robinson, Jr., President, Scientific-Atlanta, Inc.

Dear Dan:

I am very disappointed that the merger of the C & S Bank of Tucker has run into some snags.

Scientific-Atlanta began banking with the C & S National Bank in 1954 when we were located on Piedmont Road within the Atlanta city limits. When we moved to our present location near Tucker, Georgia, we still had to maintain our banking connections with the C & S Tenth Street Office since no bank convenient to us in DeKalb County could meet our service and loan needs.

When I was approached by representatives of the C & S Bank to become a Director and invest in the Bank of Tucker, I did so with the hope and understanding that this small bank would some day become a branch of the C & S when the State banking laws permitted. Even though the bank was able to significantly increase its services through its affiliations with the C & S, our needs could still not be met because of its limited size. Scientific-Atlanta would benefit by being able to bank in Tucker and would do so if the C & S Bank of Tucker were a branch of C & S Emory or a larger bank.

From a personal standpoint, my agreement to invest in the C & S Bank of Tucker was to a large extent based on the knowledge that the majority of the investors desired to merge the bank into one with a publicly traded stock. The value of my investment would be reduced considerably if a merger is not allowed.

As a citizen concerned about urban problems, I believe that open branch banking will do much toward attracting industry and population to suburban and rural areas, thereby reducing the congestion of urban centers. I wonder if a study would not show that the most prosperous small towns and cities are those that have branches of national banks?

Please let me know if I can help you in any other way.

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

I am writing this letter as both a shareholder and a director of the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker and would like to express some of my views pertaining to the possible merger of our bank with the Citizens and Southern Bank of Emory.

I became a shareholder in the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker because I knew this bank had an affiliation with the Citizens and Southern National Bank and the potential and possibilities of such a bank were exceedingly bright due to the many aids and support that could be supplied by a bank such as the Citizens and Southern National. Advantages include manpower, competent management, financial stability, excellent controls, proven good techniques and many others. I felt that a bank with the aid and assistance from a National bank could prove to be a real boost to a community such as Tucker and would be in the best interest of the banking needs of that community. I felt that if banking laws should ever change allowing county wide banking, certainly this bank would without a doubt be merged into the Citizens and Southern National Bank.

I recently had an experience through my business developing an international subsidiary which I could never have done without the connections and assistance afforded me through the International Division of the Citizens and Southern National Bank.

I would probably have found it necessary to change from the C & S Bank of Tucker to one of the major banks of Atlanta to fulfill these corporate needs. While this is an individual situation, I think it reflects the needs of a bank such as the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker to have a very strong affiliation with a national bank such as the Citizens and Southern National.

I will consider it a tremendous disadvantage to our bank in Tucker if this merger is disallowed. Thank you for permitting me to express my views on this matter and I believe this is the attitude of every shareholder of the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker.

Very truly yours,

Ferrell S. Ryan

Dear Dan:

I would like to extend to you my gratitude for the personal interest you have taken in trying to put together the merger of the C & S National Bank and the Bank of Tucker.

When I heard of the delay in this merger, I was very disappointed as I personally had been waiting six years for the C & S Bank to be able to acquire the stock of the Bank of Tucker. In 1965 when I was asked by Bennett Brown of the C & S Bank and by Reid Cofer of the Bank of Tucker if I would be interested in becoming a part of the reorganized Bank of Tucker which was to be staffed by C & S personnel, I jumped at the opportunity. I could see that with the banking experience of the C & S Bank that this would be a wonderful opportunity for the community which I was vitally interested in as well as a wonderful business opportunity for me to be part of such an organization.

As you know, in 1965 our assets were in the neighborhood of $4,000,000 which had taken some 25 years to accumulate, and now have grown in the short period of six years to around $27,000,000. I believe you will agree that this is a fantastic growth, and there is no doubt that without the supervision and cooperation of the C & S Bank that this growth would not have been anywhere near as spectacular. The advantages that the bank has offered to the community in the last six years is unestimable.

In addition to the above, the financial increase to the stockholders in the last six years has paralleled the growth of the bank. I personally invested quite heavily in the bank stock because I expected the merger of the two banks to take place when and if the state law allowed it, and I knew this would be financially profitable to the stockholders.

Speaking as a Director for the C & S Bank of Tucker and my many stockholder friends, I can assure you that we have no desire to be in competition with the C & S National Bank, but our desire is to carry through our initial plans and become a member of the C & S family.

If there is any way that I personally can be of service to you in this direction, do not hesitate to call upon me.

C&S National is able to exercise control over this bank primarily through their control over me, which is based on my respect for C&S management and method of doing business. Also, when I came out here it was understood the bank would some day merge.

I look to a C&S National Officer to recommend my salary increases and review the bank's progress with me.

As you know, there is no competition as such between us and the other C&S Banks as the National Bank has solicited customers for us, and we have done the same for them.

DEAR MR. HODGSON:

BEFORE I WAS ASKED TO BE A DIRECTOR OF THE BANK OF TUCKER, ATTAWAY AND HOWELL WAS DOING BUSINESS WITH C & S NATIONAL. GUS CONNELLY WAS OUR CONTACT AND HANDLED OUR LOANS AND ACCOUNT.

MY PARTNER AND I SET UP A COMPANY TO BUILD AND LEASE BUILDINGS, AND WE BORROWED THIS MONEY FROM C & S WITH GUS HANDLING ALL DETAILS. SEVERAL MONTHS AFTER WE MOVED TO TUCKER IN OUR NEW BUILDING, GUS WALKED IN ONE DAY AND ASKED FOR EITHER MY PARTNER OR MYSELF TO BE A DIRECTOR OF THE BANK OF TUCKER AND THAT HE WOULD BE THE NEW PRESIDENT. HE INDICATED THAT C & S NATIONAL WOULD OWN 5% AND "FRIENDS OF C & S" WOULD OWN THE REMAINDER. WE LATER LEARNED THAT MOST ALL THE EMPLOYEES WOULD MOVE FROM OR BE TRAINED BY C & S NATIONAL. WE WERE TOLD THAT WHEN THE GEORGIA BANKING LAWS COULD BE REVISED TO ALLOW "BRANCH BANKING" MORE EXTENSIVELY, WE WOULD BE BOUGHT OUT BY C & S NATIONAL. THEREFORE, FROM THE VERY BEGINNING OF OUR ASSOCIATION WITH THE BANK OF TUCKER, WE ALWAYS FELT WE WERE WORKING TOWARD BEING PART OF C & S NATIONAL.

ANOTHER FACTOR WHICH INDICATES OUR DESIRE AND ASSUMPTION THAT WE WERE PART OF C & S NATIONAL IS THAT WE CHANGED OUR NAME TO C & S BANK OF TUCKER. WE BUILT A TWO STORY BUILDING IN THE HEART OF TUCKER, AND WITH THE HELP OF C & S NATIONAL, WE WERE ABLE TO MAKE AN IMAGE IN THE TUCKER COMMUNITY THAT IT WAS A PART OF C & S NATIONAL.

WHEN I PROMOTE C & S BANK OF TUCKER, I STRONGLY INDICATE THAT IT IS A PART OF C & S NATIONAL AND ALL THE SERVICES AVAILABLE THROUGH NATIONAL C & S IS AVAILABLE THROUGH C & S TUCKER. IF WE WERE NOT BOUGHT OUT BY C & S EMORY THEN I AM SURE WE WOULD EVENTUALLY HAVE TO CHANGE OUR NAME, AND I AM SURE OUR PRESTIGE IN THE COMMUNITY WOULD SUFFER.

If we were not bought out, there are a few other items of importance that I would like to mention as follows.

1. I am sure we would lose many employees as many are loyal to C & S National. With C & S moving branch banks around us, these employees could easily move with little effort and not much change in traveling distance.

2. Many of our employees are trained by C & S National. We would not have this source of supply of trained personnel which is a major problem in the business world.

3. The greater majority of the Stockholders are C & S employees and I am sure many would immediately desire to sell C & S Tucker stock. This would tend to drive down the market value of the stock. This would be a very discouraging thing to many present stockholders since all have been pointing to the day of a merger as the converted shares would then have a greater potential.

4. The future potential of C & S Tucker's stock (or whatever name it would be changed to) would be much less, and I am sure that the market price would suffer since the number of potential stock purchases would be out considerably.

5. There is no way for an independent bank to compete with the major national banks that will be soon surrounding our bank. We are very much concerned about future growth and possibly a loss in total assets and profit.

If I can be of any further help, please contact me at your convenience.

Yours very truly,

Dear Sir:

I was appalled to hear of a tenative ruling disallowing the legal marriage of the C & S Tucker Bank and the C & S Bank because of an idea that it would void competition. I was not conscious that a real economic competitive situation existed among the C & S bankers. I felt we were working together for the purpose of giving to the communities a well balanced banking service; a service that could only be provided by such an arrangement. I must say that from the inception of the idea of the Tucker Bank using the C & S Bank management, my every consideration was predicated upon the Tucker Bank being guided by C & S Bank personnel.

During the period of consideration of a change, one person from the Tucker Bank family ask me what I thought of an arrangement such as this. I made the statement at that time and still believe such to be correct, that if they wished to serve the community, "of which my company was considered one of, but was unable to do business with them because of management, a lack of total services, and allowable amounts of funds to serve my company" - they would need such an arrangement. My company was doing business with C & S Atlanta and C & S Avondale at that time, and still does except my company now does business with the C & S Tucker Bank and certainly feel they all work as a unit.

Later when the decision was reached to follow through with the management arrangement, Mr. Reid Cofer brought Mr. Bennett Brown of C & S to my office to explain and state they would sell stock in the Tucker Bank; also, to ask me if I would serve as a Director. I stated at that time that I would serve and I would buy stock, also I would promote the sale of stock among friends, provided that C & S Bank would provide the management personnel to operate the Tucker Bank; and that we would promote a legal marriage between the two banks at such time as our State Governing bodies reconized the need for strength in community banks and would legally permit such to be done. I did buy stock and did advise some 25 people to join with us in carrying this opportunity to the community through a wide participation of the people, at that time the above arrangement was a major consideration.

I still believe as I had said at that time, a full service bank would be economically profitable and good for the community. I believe time has proven me correct.

I believe at this time the community, the bank, and everyone involved is being better served by the joint efforts of all units of the C & S family. I know my company finds no pressures from either unit of the C & S family indicating an economic competive situation between the banks.

I sincerely hope you will make every effort to carry through with our hopes in joining these two banks that we may continue to provide the total service in the future to this community.

With respect,

W. J. Fortenberry

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

I was one of the directors of the Bank of Tucker at the time the decision was made by the stockholders of the Bank to reduce the number of shares held by the major stockholders and allow the C & S National Bank to aid in the management of the Bank.

The decision to bring the C & S National Bank into the picture was made for two reasons. First, in order for the Bank of Tucker to be able to serve the needs of the community, it was necessary to expand the services offered, build a new main bank building and a branch; however, there was no one in the picture at that time capable of operating an enlarged facility except Reid Cofer, who was advancing in years and due to his health and other demands that were being made on his time, could not adequately take on the additional burden of expansion and construction necessary for the Bank to continue to grow in a more competitive atmosphere.

The second reason for bringing the C & S National Bank into the picture was due to the fact that the Bank of Tucker had maintained a very close relationship with the C & S National Bank over the years. It was felt by the directors of the Bank of Tucker that the C & S National Bank was the most progressive banking institution in the Atlanta metropolitan area and could best serve the banking needs of the Tucker community.

The Cofer family established and developed over the years, through their operation of various business enterprises in Tucker, a very close and personal relationship with the people in the community; and the primary reason the Cofer family acquired the majority of the stock in the Bank of Tucker originally was so that there would be a Bank in the Tucker community which would encourage and facilitate commercial growth in the area. They were very much concerned about the main bank remaining in the Tucker business area to serve those people which the Bank of Tucker had served for many years.

Reid Cofer had been a friend of Mills Lane for a number of years and when the offer was made to allow the C & S National Bank to assume the management of the Bank of Tucker, he was assured that the primary bank building of the Bank would remain in the Tucker community.

The C & S Bank of Tucker has continued to serve those customers who were the customers of the Bank of Tucker and has greatly enlarged the type of services offered. At the time the C & S National Bank took over the management of the Bank of Tucker, there was no formal understanding, but I personally felt, based on my conversations with the officers of the C & S Bank, that at some time, if possible, a merger of the C & S Bank of Tucker with other banks managed by the C & S National Bank would be desirable.

This certainly seemed a logical approach to me since central management of the DeKalb banks would eliminate a lot of the extra cost of record keeping and other administrative expenses associated with operating separate and independent banking facilities.

The C & S National Bank, through its guidance and furnishing of competent personnel, has increased the size of the Bank from approximately 4½ million total assets to approximately 28 million total assets in just a few years; and as long as there was no county-wide branch banking, I feel that the C & S Bank of Tucker could have continued to grow, but once branch banking was allowed, this meant that the C & S Bank of Tucker as an independent bank will be required to compete in a much more competitive banking situation with branches of the major Atlanta banks.

Now is the appropriate time for the C & S Bank of Tucker to merge with other banks managed by the C & S National Bank, and my primary concern as a director is that the shareholders of the Bank are adequately compensated for their stock in the C & S Bank of Tucker and that the customers of the bank will continue to have their banking needs met. Since a fair price was offered and an agreement reached to exchange C & S Bank of Tucker Stock for C & S National Bank stock, it is my personal opinion that the merger should take place immediately.

It is, therefore, my opinion that the regulatory authorities should reconsider their position and allow the merger to take place as planned.

Yours very truly,

Dear Mr. Hodgson,

Re: Merging C & S North Fulton with parent C & S per meeting held May 3rd at home of Dr. Irvin, Roswell.

I certainly enjoyed meeting with you and other C & S officials to learn more about how "big brother" looks after us.

To try to aid you and shed new light on the proof of long standing and positive relationship between the C & S and local North Fulton Bank, I submit the following:

a) The local uniformed man on the street has always considered North Fulton a branch of the C & S system. If you told him other wise he ~~would think~~ you were fabricating a story.

b) Examination of stock holders list reveals a very sophisticated group of Atlanta business men bought stock in North Fulton. These stock holders were not risking funds in some non descript country bank. They were aware of the magic C & S tie and a stock swap when the Georgia banking laws changed.

Also a large amount of the stock was purchased by trust accounts and by guardians for minors. These buyers were not speculators; their aim was a growth situation supported and guided by C & S National.

As in the case of any new stock issue, investors look for growth and no risk on the down side. The C & S involvement alone made this a good investment.

c) Of interest is the fact that the only president of North Fulton is Hugh Lane. It is not likely that you would find that name very far away from the C & S.

d) I'm sure you are also aware that the C & S Holding Co. owns the land and building which houses the North Fulton Bank

I hope these suggestions might spark a new approach for you. In short these banks are as insouble as Russia and Communism.

Yours very truly,

John Wayt

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

Several independent groups at various times have approched me and others in North Fulton in regards to starting a new bank. I along with others declined these offers feeling that an independent bank without the help of a larger bank would not be successful.

When C & S offered to assist in organizing and managing our present proposed bank I felt confident we could succeed and that sone day we would become a full branch of C & S.

C & S did provide organizational help, selected and recommended directors, provided management and personel.

There has never been any doubt by me that as soon as legally possible we would be a full branch of the Citizens & Southern Bank.

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

Recalling the thoughts and events that led to the creation of the C & S Bank of North Fulton, and my part and association with it, I remember that there had been numerous opinions and discussions by various members of the community concerning the feasibility and need for another competing bank in Roswell. Several attempts to do this had been made, but all had failed to get off the ground. I had been approached several times to participate, but had declined to do so because of what I considered lack of adequate support. However, when Mr. Archie Lindsey called and asked if I would be interested in helping establish a C & S Bank in Roswell, I immediately expressed interest - having done business with C & S National and having had good relations with them and admired their business ability and stability.

We met at C & S of Sandy Springs and it was explained in detail that due to the then present state banking regulations North Fulton could not at that time be a full-fledged C & S affiliate, but would operate in the same way as C & S of Sandy Springs in which I owned stock and was pleased with the support and guidance C & S National had given it. Assurances were given that C & S National would furnish trained personnel, guidance, forms and all other materials and services necessary for complete banking to comply with state and federal regulations. Of course, keeping in mind that we, as directors, had the prerogative and duty to our stockholders to accept or reject since we were in reality a separate unit within the system.

Checking with a friend who had just recently helped found an independent bank, I received the advice to "go the route with C & S", since they had realized how much easier and more logical it would have been for them had they the opportunity.

Selling stock was unbelievably easy when the name C & S was mentioned. I carefully explained to all that, under the state banking regulations, this could not at present be more than a 5% bank, but that, come the hoped and planned for change in the law, we someday fully expected to unite with C & S National. This was completely understood and approved of before stock was sold in each case The stock issue was oversold in a very short time. I bought the limit allowed and wished for more. Friends and relatives I contacted said, "A C & S ! Sure. How much can I have?" Most desired more than they received.

As a director of the C & S of North Fulton, I have always relied on the guidance - subject to my judgment - of C & S National and approved of the expected merger from inception. We have so completely merged our functions and procedures that I can visualize no other fact. My loyalties belong to the stockholders of C & S of North Fulton, and I believe that becoming a full-fledged member of the C & S system is most advantageous for all concerned. Should the merger, by Federal action, not be consumated I feel that C & S of North Fulton can survive and progress, despite dislocations that would inevitably ensue. It is my desire as a major stockholder that the merger be accomplished.

Yours very truly,

W. Andrew Irvin

Dear Dan:

In connection with the proposed merger of the Citizens & Southern Park National Bank into the Citizens & Southern National Bank, as a director of C & S Park since its founding I was fully aware of the sponsorship from the very beginning by C & S National. As a matter of fact, it was through the banking relationship of C & S National with the company of which I was then an executive, that I came to be invited to serve on the Board of Directors of C & S Park. Moreover, it is doubtful that the company would at that time have permitted me to transfer its account from C & S National to C & S Park had it not been for the assurance I gave them that C & S Park was being founded under the aegis of C & S National and that the management personnel of the new bank would come from C & S National.

There was thus, from the very outset, no question in my mind but that when it became legally possible to do so, C & S Park would be merged into C & S National.

Dear Dan:

It was very disconcerting to learn yesterday that the F.D.I.C. is opposing the merger of C & S Park National Bank with the Citizens & Southern Bank. Frankly, after this was approved by our Board Members and Stockholders, I did not anticipate any difficulty with a Federal agency.

I am sure you are aware that the Citizens and Southern Bank literally sponsored us during the formation of the Bank, furnished us with guidance as well as personnel to staff the bank. I have always felt that we were a part of the C & S family even though legally we have been a separate entity.

I was aware at the time our Bank was formed that the Georgia State law prohibited us from being legally a part of Citizens and Southern. However, I would never have consented to be a director nor purchased stock in C & S Park National if I had not felt that this Georgia law would be amended or repealed as it has, in fact, been.

I will appreciate your doing everything possible to affect this consolidation at the earliest possible moment.

Dear Dan:

When I was asked to become a Director of the Citizens and Southern Park National Bank, I knew full well of its origin within the Citizens and Southern National System and that without it the Citizens and Southern National Bank could not effectively extend its services to the Executive Park area of DeKalb County. With a direct branch system steps taken to set up a separate bank was the only way available at the time. The idea, the encouragement, the name, some of the services, the assistance and follow up came from the Citizens and Southern National Bank and its employees, including referrals of business and personal accounts.

If we had started our bank without the Citizens and Southern name, our success would have been less and far slower, even though Citizens and Southern Park National employees have all done an outstanding job. I feel with consolidation with the Citizens and Southern system that we will better serve the customers through greater strength, stability, flexibility and with a greater chance of handling directly our customers' and prospects' needs in all aspects of banking.

My fellow Directors and I have neither talked about nor considered operating our bank without the Citizens and Southern name or Citizens and Southern influence.

Operating our little bank without the close relationship with the Citizens and Southern National Bank is the farthest thing from my mind.

Dear Dan:

In July I'll celebrate my 20th Anniversary with C&S. Although I have been President and Director of "five percenter" C&S Park National Bank since July 1967, I feel that mine has been uninterrupted employment with C&S National because of my personal C&S orientation and moulding and because of C&S's sponsorship and direct ownership of part of C&S Park National, as well as the intimate working relationship between the banks.

When I was asked to seek a national bank charter for Park National, I understood that we would have the complete backing and support of C&S National which we got. When the original stock was sold, it was C&S officers, employees, customers, and friends who bought it 100%. (This has remained substantially the same.) Our Board was chosen from the more important customers of C&S National. Since we opened, we have had two important and most helpful C&S officers as official advisors to our Board. We negotiate contract after contract with C&S National to do for us those things that could be best done by them - and since our inception have been staffed by C&S-trained people. Many of their services are extensions and additions to our own which make us truly a small but full service bank. Our policies and procedures are identical.

While our C&S Park National Board and I as President and Director recognize our legal entity and responsibility, we have always looked to Mills Lane as the father of the family and to C&S National as our mother-bank. There has never been any conflict in our respective goals and interests.

In fact, the only difference between our banks is simply a legal one - and our Board, stockholders, and I have been unanimous in expressing our desire to adjust this difference.

Dear Dan:

As a Director of the C & S Park National Bank, I am quite disappointed that our planned merger with the C & S Emory Bank has not been consumated. It seems to me we should continue our efforts in this direction.

I recall that from our inception I have always considered ourselves an extension of the C & S National Bank. At the time we made application for charter, the C & S National Bank provided both research and legal help. They provided the manpower to open the bank and are now under contract to provide many basic services. We should not kid ourselves, our bank was opened because the State banking laws, at that time, prohibited the C & S National Bank from putting a branch where we are now located. From our growth it is apparent that the C & S National Bank was correct in its analysis of the banking needs of the community and filled that need with a 5% bank, the only form allowed under the State banking laws.

With my father, a member of the C & S National Bank Board of Directors, I naturally have close ties with the C & S National Bank and intend to retain them. I was never under the impression that our bank would go its merry way alone. I expected to be merged into the C & S National Bank and still hope this can be accomplished.

RE: The Citizens & Southern Park National Bank

Dear Dan:

In regard to the proposed merger of The Citizens & Southern Park National Bank ("Park Bank") into The Citizens & Southern Emory Bank, I am advised that the Department of Justice has determined that The Citizens & Southern National Bank ("the C & S Bank") does not in fact control the activities of the Park Bank. As a Director of the Park Bank, I am writing to you for the purpose of conveying my own personal knowledge of the dominant role of the C & S Bank in the organization, administration and operation of the Park Bank.

At the time the Park Bank initially applied for its charter, I was contacted by Mr. Herbert Dickson, who, as I recall, was at the time a Senior Vice President of the C & S Bank. Mr. Dickson informed me that the C & S Bank was attempting to organize a so-called "5%" bank to be located in the Executive Park area in DeKalb County, and that my name had been suggested as an initial Director. He also informed me of the other individuals who were being selected as directors. Mr. Dickson further advised that the C & S Bank would, through its holding company and pension plan, own shares of stock in the new bank to the extent permitted by the laws of Georgia. I was told that the initial stock subscription would be generally limited to established customers of the C & S Bank and that I could subscribe for 500 shares of stock in the new corporation, being the maximum number of shares allocated to any one individual. Accordingly, my introduction to the new proposed Park Bank was by and through a Senior Officer of the C & S Bank, and from the beginning there was never any doubt in my mind but that the C & S Bank in fact conceived, organized and sponsored the Park Bank.

Following issuance of the charter, at the initial Directors' meetings, we were advised and guided by Mr. Howard Starks, as to various organizational and administrative matters. Mr. Starks at that time was also a Senior Vice President of the C & S Bank and appeared at all of our meetings in the capacity of an advisor and as representative of the C & S Bank.

All Board of Directors meetings of the Park Bank have been chaired by Mr. Robert Hazelrig, who has served as President of the Park Bank since its inception, and who was formerly employed for a number of years by the C & S Bank. It has been customary at Board meetings for Mr. Hazelrig to recommend for the Directors' approval adoption of various resolutions which had the effect of closely integrating the operations of the Park Bank with the C & S Bank. For example, the employees' pension and profit sharing plan applicable to the C & S Bank was recommended by Mr. Hazelrig for adoption by our Board of Directors. Similarly, resolutions providing for utilization of various accounting and general banking facilities maintained by the C & S Bank was recommended by Mr. Hazelrig for adoption by our Directors. In each instance, all recommendations of Messrs. Hazelrig and Starks, particularly with relation to coordination with the C & S Bank, were unanimously adopted by the Directors of the Park Bank.

Mr. Starks served as the advisor and representative of the C & S Bank at our Board meetings for approximately one year, and since then he has been succeeded by other full time employe of the C & S Bank acting in similar capacities.

On several occasions during the past several years, I have had informal discussions with Herbert Dickson and Howard Starks as well as other officers of the C & S Bank concerning the likelihood of legislative changes liberalizing the restrictive Georgia branch banking laws. On each occasion, the particular officer of the C & S Bank strongly implied that if and when the Legislature liberalized such statutes, the Park Bank, along with similar affiliate banks in the Atlanta Metropolitan Area, would in some manner be merged into or with the C & S Bank. Consequently, when in 1970 the Georgia Legislature amend the branch banking laws to permit branch banking in Fulton and DeKalb Counties, I as well as the other Directors of the Park Bank, assumed that the Park Bank would promptly be acquired in some manner by the C & S Bank.

I was present at the Directors' meeting at which it was propose that the Park Bank merge with the C & S Emory Bank in exchange for shares of C & S Bank stock. The sole question discussed was the ratio of exchange of Park Bank stock for stock of the C & S Bank, as there was never any question in the minds of any Director present but that such merger would be unanimously approved by the Board of Directors.

In summary, as a Director of the Park Bank since its inception to the present time, I have considered the Bank as a practical matter, to be operated and controlled by the C & S Bank, and I feel confident that all of the other Directors have the same view.

I might add that if the proposed merger cannot be consummated, the future of the Park Bank will be jeopardized as a result of the recent amendment to our branch banking laws. The Trust Company of Georgia now has a branch bank within one block of the Park Bank, the Fulton National Bank will soon have a branch bank directly across the street, and additional branch banks of The First National Bank, National Bank of Georgia and Peoples American Bank will soon be established within a radius of less than one mile of the Park Bank. Hence, the proposed merger has now become a matter of necessity to avoid an untenable competitive position.

Very truly yours,

Ben Kohler, Jr.

Dear Dan:

As a stockholder of the Citizens & Southern Park National Bank, I want to emphasize that if it were not for the C & S National Bank, we would not be in existance and if we had not been under the control of the bank since it was formed, we would not have made a nickel.

Without the C & S National Bank, the fine national accounts we have would not be with us if they thought the National Bank was not running it.

Re: Acquisition of assets of The Citizens and Southern Park National Bank (Park) by The Citizens and Southern Emory Bank in exchange for common stock of The Citizens and Southern National Bank (C&S)

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

The application to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for approval of this acquisition has continued pending for several months. It is thought that it might be helpful to state certain matters of which I have personal knowledge regarding the relationship of Park to C&S. I was an incorporator-organizer of Park and its attorney through the organizational period - 1966 to 1967 - and I have been a stockholder and director of Park and its general counsel within our firm from the time of its organization.

In each and all of these capacities, I have been very much involved in the plain fact that the existence and everyday operations of Park, from organization through the present date, have been an effort of C&S and its officers and employees, and under C&S guidance and in fact direction.

As I have observed to be the case in quite a number of instances and locations in and around the Atlanta area and the State of Georgia - Sandy Springs, Chamblee, Tucker, Roswell, South DeKalb County, to name a few - when it appeared to the satisfaction of C&S that the banking needs and convenience of the Park National area could be best served with "Banking the C&S Way" and could support a banking office, C&S set about to establish such an office. I have been variously involved in the similar efforts in the areas mentioned above, as a member of the firm of attorneys for C&S.

Given the status of the branch banking laws of Georgia at that time (1966), the only avenue to establishing a C&S Bank was to organize a new bank, in which C&S would actually own, in a legal sense, 5% of the outstanding stock. This ownership would be in Citizens and Southern Holding Company, the wholly owned subsidiary of C&S, in accordance with the Federal and State Bank Holding Company laws.

C&S designated one of its Assistant Vice Presidents, T. Robert Hazelrig, to coordinate and carry out the organizational efforts. He remained an employee of C&S until Park was organized, at which time he became President of Park - in all truth at the direction of C&S. The economic survey with supporting documents and data, which is the heart of the application to organize, was prepared by the research specialist employees of C&S and at the expense of C&S, in identical fashion as when C&S applies for a branch. The organizers-incorporators, who of course were interim directors, were other employees of C&S or representatives of long standing good customers of C&S, carefully screened by C&S for their interest in C&S. Many of these persons were already stockholders of C&S, and were chosen in part for that reason. The permanent directors were designated by C&S from among persons of these same characteristics. Of course the stockholders of Park actually elected these directors, but, in the nature of things, essentially as a matter of course.

C&S, through Mr. Hazelrig, designated or determined to whom the stock of Park would be offered, again going to those of understood interest in C&S, often already stockholders of C&S. No effort was made to disabuse their thinking that this was "a C&S Bank". The principal stockholders, each having 5%, were Mr. Hazelrig, Citizens and Southern Holding Company and the Employees' Savings and Profit Sharing Trust Fund of The Citizens and Southern National Bank.

After organization and at the present time, Park continued under the operational and business control of C&S, of course without legal control which is prohibited. As mentioned, the President had been a C&S employee. The entire staff of Park was and is drawn from employees of C&S and as changes have occurred replacements have come from C&S or its subsidiary banks and those who have left Park but continued in banking went back to C&S or its subsidiary banks, almost without exception.

The C&S Retirement and Profit Sharing Plans and other employee benefit plans have been adopted by Park. Each amendment to such plans has been adopted as directed and in the language provided by C&S.

As is the procedure with C&S branches, Citizens and Southern Holding Company entered into the basic lease for the premises in which Park would operate. The Holding Company then subleased or assigned that lease to Park when it was organized and prepared to begin operations.

The attorneys for Park were chosen by C&S and are attorneys for C&S. The retainer to be paid was negotiated and fixed by C&S.

The data processing and bookkeeping for Park is done by C&S, under contract. Investment securities are purchased by Park, loan participations are made, and most lending activities of any substance are undertaken only on advice from C&S.

An advisory member of the Park Board of Directors who is an officer employee of C&S in its Branch Supervision Department, attends every meeting of the Park Directors.

The Directors of Park are invited to, and most attend, periodic general meetings of Directors of C&S and its subsidiary and affiliate banks where C&S banking philosophy and procedures are stated or reviewed.

Without belaboring the matter, suffice it to say that Park is furnished management and financial direction by C&S of the same nature as is provided to subsidiary banks of C&S.

The Officers and Directors of Park, in making their independent judgments in managing the Bank, do not vary in major matters from what they consider to be, and welcome as, sound banking decisions advised by C&S. Those Officers and Directors, and the Park stockholders, it is believed, have always expected that Park would become legally, as well as in point of fact, a part of the C&S System if and when the branch banking laws of Georgia permitted. Those laws now permit that result.

Sincerely,

Hewitt H. Covington

Dear Dan:

I was quite astonished to learn that there were those who considered the stockholders, directors, and employees of the C & S Park National Bank to feel that they were employees of an independent bank rather than a part of the C & S system. When I was first approached about participating as a Director in this bank, it was from C & S officials, and I was made most specifically aware that this bank would ultimately become a part of the C & S National Bank or a direct affiliate. Moreover, it was with this in mind that I subscribed myself and my family to almost 3,000 shares of C & S Park National stock, anticipating that this would be a most advantageous purchase of C & S National Bank stock. I felt I would be purchasing C & S National stock for $15.00 a share when in reality it would be worth at the time of its conversion $50.00 or $60.00 a share as a result of the C & S purchasing the bank. My astuteness and perceptivity in this purchase can well be seen by the value which the stockholders in this bank will receive now that the acquisition which I had anticipated from the beginning is closer to becoming a reality.

Indeed, for anyone to think that this bank was anything but under the total control of the C & S National Bank would require an extraordinary juxtaposition of reality. Every decision which I made while a director of this bank was conditioned on the fact that the C & S National Bank had recommended its passage. "Recommended" is a euphemism in this case. One merely needs to examine the personnel policies, welfare plans, bonus systems, and purchases of bonds and participations to see that we were not acting independently of the National Bank. One look at our sign outside of the front door would certainly confirm this. Further, I can remember on at least three occasions laughing with the other directors when someone even facetiously referred to our taking an action other than that which one of the C & S National Bank employees serving on our board brought forward. To assume that we considered ourselves anything but a part of the C & S National Bank is, without question, ludicrous and misinformed. Lastly, I must say that I was entirely satisfied with the purchase arrangement made between the C & S Emory and our bank which was arranged by the C & S National Bank in the offices of the C & S downtown. I felt that we had not received enough stock but, most certainly, I was well aware that this was the price that the C & S National Bank wanted to pay and, therefore, it was the price they would pay. I was well aware that there was no negotiating this point but accepting it was the option. I was not adverse to accepting it because it fitted in with my original concept of investing in Park National stock and I realized it was a very favorable transaction in which I was graciously allowed to participate. If several years ago C & S National Bank had not included me in these plans I would never have had the opportunity for such a windfall. Therefore, I accepted the arrangement not with reluctance but with appreciation. I would have liked to receive more but I have never felt that one should accept another's generosity with greed. Indeed, in a sense, I felt this was a gift. I hope this might shed some light to my feelings with regards to it being an "independent" bank.

Sincerely,

Dear Dan

I have been associated with the C & S Park National Bank since shortly after its origin was dreamed up by my close friends of the C & S National Bank. After being an important customer of the C & S National Bank, 10th Street Branch, for several years, I was invited to lunch by John McIntyre and Bob Hazelrigs, officers of the C & S National Bank. The purpose of the lunch was to ask me to serve on the Board of the Bank in offing, being sponsored by the C & S National Bank. I was especially interested because of being in the Executive Park area - kind of in my own back yard.

At that particular time I was delighted to work with the organizing group and was accepted as a formal member. I was appointed to the C & S Park National Bank Board, knowing full well that eventually when the laws allowed, would make the bank a branch of the "Mother Bank." During these past years since the forming of the bank, C & S worked with us "hand and glove" and we felt like an integral part of the C & S National Bank. They have performed innumerable services for us - and without their name we would never have grown as dynamic as we have grown.

Our directors were unanimously in favor of a merger with the C & S Emory Bank, a C & S affiliate, and I feel the only difference it will make is - making legal our "branch type" C & S existence.

Sincerely yours

W. W. Lively

Dear Dan — 19

I was quite surprised and also quite upset to learn that there had been a hitch in the plans to put the C & S. Park Natl. Bank into the main C & S. System.

I became a director in the C & S Park Natl. Bank nearly four years ago. I did so with the idea that Park Natl. would become part of the C & S. System and at no time did I ever consider that Park Nat. would not be eventually under the complete management and direction of the C & S. Parent Bank.

I purchased Park Nat. stock on this presumption

...the U.T.S. union has ... guide and has worked very closely with the directors and management of Park Bank since it's inception and all of us have felt we were really a part of the C & S. system.

We all voted in favor of the merger - Now we learn this may not come about.

I want to reiterate that I am still strongly in favor of this merger I feel we believe the best interest of the Executive Park Community can be served better if this merger is consummated

facilities that C & S can supply are unquestionably far more adequate than the small local bank could provide.

I therefore hope this matter will be carefully reviewed and re-presented to the Federal authorities who at present look with disfavor on this merger.

I am no longer a director but I still have a keen interest in the C & S Bank.

So, I sincerely hope this merger will be reconsidered in a favorable light.

Sincerely

C H Russell

RE: Merger of Citizens & Southern Park National Bank

Dear Dan:

It is my understanding that Federal authorities have expressed some concern about the wisdom of merging our Citizens & Southern Park National Bank with Citizens & Southern Emory Bank. I am personally convinced that the effect of such a merger will be none other than to improve the quality of service to customers of both banks. I am likewise convinced that the merger will be nothing other than formalizing, and making official "in the eyes of the public" a uniquely close relationship which already exists between the two banks.

First, I feel that I am especially qualified to make such statements about the effect of a merger because I am the real estate developer and landlord who first went to Citizens & Southern Holding Company several years ago urging them to establish or sponsor a new bank at the office complex which I was planning to develop at what has since become the headquarters of the Citizens & Southern Park National Bank. Throughout all of the negotiations for the leasing of this facility I dealt with officers of the C & S National Bank or C & S Holding Company. The long term lease for the bank facility was originally executed in the name of Citizens & Southern Holding Company, and was later assigned over to the newly formed "Park National" bank. As landlord, I can state unequivocally that the "Park National" bank was litterally put together by officials of Citizens & Southern National Bank.

Secondly, as a Director of Citizens & Southern Park National Bank, I can state that I was invited to become a Director and, in effect, a founder, of the Park National Bank by officials of Citizens and Southern National Bank when these officials first decided to sponsor the new bank several years ago. In my opinion, Citizens & Southern Park National Bank, could not and would not have attracted the calibre of Directors it may now claim had it not been for the sponsorship and backing of Citizens & Southern National Bank, and its affiliates.

Thirdly, as a stockholder of Citizens & Southern Park National Bank, I am convinced that the new Park National Bank could not have attracted the investment capital of so many and so varied a number of stockholders, hadit not been for its relationship with C & S National Bank. In this vein, it seems to me that it is of further significance that ownership of the Park National Bank is spread among a great number of people living in the DeKalb County area, and it is in no way dominated by any small number of individuals, as would have been the case if it had been founded without C & S National sponsorship.

I hope that these points are simply further evidence that a merger of the banks will simply publicly confirm a situation which has, in effect, existed for years.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

I have been privileged to be a director of the Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank since it was formed in September 1969. I accepted the position of director since I knew that the bank would be associated with the Citizens and Southern National Bank and would receive its full support.

Since we have opened, all of our staff and management have been provided by C & S personnel and we have had access to all C & S National Bank's services.

From the beginning it was understood that there was a good possibility that we would merge directly into the C & S system, if regulations were changed to permit this. Looking back on the relationship we have had with the C & S National Bank, I can state that I would not want to be a director of the C & S South DeKalb Bank if we were to cease our relationship with the C & S system.

I feel that we are directly a part of C & S, and believe that most of our bank's customers have the same idea.

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

I am writing this letter to state my position as to whether I prefer Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank to remain independent or to merge with C & S National Bank.

On two occasions before I agreed to become a director of the C & S South DeKalb Bank, I was approached by two non-banking groups to participate as a director. I declined both offers because I preferred to be associated with a bank that would be supervised by a national bank.

Needless to say, when Mr. Warren Berry, a Vice President of C & S National Bank, asked me to become a director of a proposed C & S South DeKalb Bank, I was eager to accept. It was understood at that time that C & S National Bank would supervise our bank and that more than likely at a later date we would merge with them.

Since our opening in September 1969 our bank has received the complete support of the C & S National Bank. The management that they have provided has been our greatest asset. I look forward to the time when we can merge with C & S. National.

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

At the time of the bank's inception I was asked by John F. Since I had just changed locations and the bank was convenient I moved all of our commercial business to the bank. I was proud to accept the offer to become a director of the bank.

It was my understanding from the first that C & S National Bank was the initiator of the C & S South DeKalb Bank and that they would provide management and personnel along with other guidance during the life of the bank. As directors we have relied upon the leadership of the management of the C & S National Bank.

I have openly stated since the first time the merger was considered that I would not wish to be a director of or do business with this bank if it was not a C & S Bank and was operated independently.

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

The following remarks concerning my association with the C&S Bank system and more particularly my association with the C&S South DeKalb Bank were requested by your associate, Mr. John Train.

As you may or may not be aware, C& S has been the principal bank of Crow, Pope & Carter Enterprises since the formation of the Company six years ago. The association was begun at that time through a warm relationship between Mr. Herb Dickson, formerly of the C&S Bank, and Ewell Pope and Frank Carter. About two years ago, Mr. Dickson and Mr. Pope agreed that it would be appropriate if some of the junior partners of the Company became involved as directors of the C&S affiliates, and it was through this means that I was nominated and consequently contacted by Warren Berry, a C&S vice president and president-to-be of C&S South DeKalb.

I was honored to be asked to be a director and have greatly enjoyed my association with the C&S South DeKalb Bank. I was most impressed and continue to be impressed with the professional manner of the C&S, the manner in which C&S South DeKalb was formed, and the management and control that the C&S exercises over its affiliates which has resulted in the success of the C&S South DeKalb Bank today. Even though I am aware that technically the C&S Bank owns only 5% of the South DeKalb Bank, we all know that for all practical purposes it is run and operated exactly as if it was a branch of the C&S System. I might add that the average person considers it as they do all other 5% banks---as a full branch bank of the C&S System. In addition, the physical appearance identifies it as being a full C&S Bank in the minds of the public. Therefore,

I can say without reservation that there would be no noticeable difference in the management and operation of the Bank if and when it became a full branch of the C & S Banking system. In other words, the Bank would continue to be run exactly the same under either condition.

I hope these remarks will be helpful in your dealings with the Justice Department and other regulatory agencies.

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

About two years ago, Warren Berry and Bill Jones, both employees of C & S National Bank of Atlanta, called on me at my office to ask me if I would help organize a 5% C & S Bank in South Dekalb County.

After much discussion, I told them that I would give them an answer the next day. Warren wanted to know what time to call me for my answer. I told him to call about two o'clock and I would have an answer for him. When he called the next day, my answer was that I would do everything that I could to help organize the Bank.

All of the necessary information to make application for a 5% C & S Bank in South DeKalb was secured by employees of C & S National Bank of Atlanta. After the application was approved, C & S National Bank selected all of the personnel for the new C & S Bank of South DeKalb.

The temporary building was secured and placed on the property by C & S National Bank. The building that we now occupy was designed and built by people employed by C & S National Bank.

I was able to buy fifty shares of stock in the C & S Belvedere Bank and still had the stock when the C & S Belvedere merged with C & S DeKalb Bank. I was aware that the C & S Bank of South DeKalb would eventually attempt to merge with C & S National Bank.

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

It has been a pleasure for me to have participated in the organization of the Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank and to have served on its Board of Directors.

1954 I moved just a short distance from the present location of our Bank. 1965 I moved a little further out but am still in the immediate area. During the late 1950's I became interested in banks -- primarily selling them but my real interest was created when my brother-in-law organized the bank at Ormond Beach, Florida. The Ormond Beach First National Bank had of course a rapid growth and I envisioned a bank in the Candler-McAfee area. About 1965 I discussed informally with a number of people living in the area about the possibility of the organization of a bank. Everyone I talked with was very interested.

Time continued to move and the business that I am in continued to grow. I realized that I did not have time to make surveys, talk to people nor have the time to push the organization.

The Citizens and Southern people contacted a number of us and this excited me. Having done both banking and business with the Citizens and Southern I knew from my experiences that this was the Bank to serve the people. My relationships with the individuals employed by the Citizens and Southern were far beyond the average friendships. I knew the integrity of the Bank as well as the people.

The name of C&S is phonetic -- our Bank has been successful at South DeKalb because the C&S came in and did a wonderful job in making the surveys, talking to people, arranging the sale of the stock, handling the registration, preparing the plans for the building, putting up a trailer to get us in business, supervising the construction and many other facets along this line. The executives did everything possible to educate each of the directors. After all, we are businessmen -- they called upon their wealth of experience.

Today I feel that the Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank is successful, that it serves a group in a transitional area (and the C&S National knew this when they put this kind of money into the area). The success has come from the cooperation in every way of the officers of the Citizens and Southern National Bank. I knew that eventually we would consider merging our operation into the Citizens and Southern group some way. I think it is wonderful and I must say we have never been misled.

Sincerely,

As a director of the Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank, let me make my position clear regarding our proposed merger with the Citizens and Southern Emory Bank.

In the first place, our bank was formed with the guidance and support of the C & S National Bank. All of the directors and stockholders knew from the beginning that we would be part of the C & S family, and that if and when a change in the banking laws took place, we would merge into the C & S system.

Since the beginning, C & S has provided our management and personnel, and at our director's meeting we have received the advice of Mr. John F. Ingram, a vice-president of the C & S National Bank. C & S also provided many other services to us, to the extent that most of our customers assume we are a branch of the C & S National Bank.

Dear Dan:

Here are the ways C & S and I were partners in forming and operating The C & S South DeKalb Bank.

FORMING THE BANK

1. It was C & S's idea to form the new bank. Dan Handley asked me to start the bank.

2. C & S bought and put together the land so that it was suitable for banking. South DeKalb leases the property.

3. Branch supervision, research division and many others worked nights and weekends to put the necessary information together to substantiate locating a bank in the area and to substantiate the application for charter.

4. Although I was branch manager of the South Expressway Office for several weeks, most of my time was spent in forming this bank. Dan Blackwell, Cashier, and myself were freed from our National Bank responsibilities for several months to work on the formation of South DeKalb. We were paid by the National Bank throughout 1969.

5. Directors - Extensive help was provided by the Credit Department, Officers, and Employees of The C & S Bank in naming the Directors of the new bank. Specifically:

C & S guided me on every part of forming the bank. In fact, I do not believe any of the Directors would have been willing to serve without C & S's backing. This was particularly important to Marc Morris, Roy Holland, Bill Ranck, Ray Jones, and especially Bob Mathis.

6. Personnel - C & S provided professional help. All employees were screened, tested, and interviewed by C & S before being hired by South DeKalb.

EMPLOYEE	POSITION	REFERRED BY
Fran Plunk	Secretary	Myself, previously worked for C & S Clayton County.
Jo Williams	Head Teller	Applied for employment with C & S.
Clara McCannon	P & R Teller	Employed C & S East Point.
Polly Hunt	P & R Teller	Employed C & S South Expressway
Bettye Aldrich	Loan Teller	Employed C & S Executive Park.
Dan Blackwell	Cashier	Employed C & S Moreland Branch.
Warren Berry	President	Employed C & S South Expressway.

7. Dan Lindley, Bill Mathis, Ray Herman (Research Officer), and myself submitted the bank application by making a personal call on the Superintendent of Banking State of Georgia.

8. The Building - The construction of our bank building from the thinking to the completion stage was handled entirely by the C & S Construction Department. They supervised both the cost and the construction. All bills were prior approved by either Dick Griener or Harold Vogel, both in the C & S Construction Department.

9. Telephones - The installation and quantity of telephones were coordinated with C & S National Bank.

DURING OPERATION:

1. Investments - All investments were coordinated with C & S Bond Department. C & S sold us loan participations, providing an excellent yield to the bank for all available excess funds. Because we were a new bank, C & S allowed us to continue purchasing loan participations when other banks' investments were being terminated.

2. C & S helped us in analyzing proper reserve requirements so profits could be maximized.

3. C & S audited the bank closely to see that we maintained a quality operation and loan portfolio. I called on Bruce Cowie to come out and provide us with a credit audit when the need arose.

4. Operations - Jim Finley, Assistant Vice President, Raymond LaMon, Cashier, and Dave Houston, Assistant Cashier, and Louise Dunnaway, Cashier, C & S DeKalb, all helped immeasurably when we needed help in tracing items, balancing the Due From Accounts, etc.

5. Branch supervision aided us in determining when and if we needed additional employees and where they could best be used.

6. New Business - C & S National Officers in all classifications helped us tremendously in the solicitation of new business--either the transfer of present C & S customers to our bank from other C & S banks, or in the solicitation of new business to the C & S system. Many customers placed large deposits with us simply because they knew their deposits were protected by the C & S system.

7. Advertising - We advertised very little because we received the benefit of all C & S advertising.

8. Employees - They obtained the same privileges that the C & S National employees received. This is very important because there is no question that employees would have received much less without our relationship with the C & S National. It surely would have been three or four years before any appreciable profit sharing could have been paid. Salaries and raises were examined and recommendations made by The C & S National Bank. Certainly free life insurance, hospitalization insurance, low employee interest, C-S-ta, etc. would not have been available otherwise.

9. Loans - All loans over $15,000 were reviewed by branch supervision. I attended the credit meetings on Monday morning of every week for this purpose. Any time I needed advice on the handling of a loan, The C & S was ready to help with all of their experience and information. Collection assistance was provided at no charge by the Atlanta Recovery Department

10. Security - C & S South DeKalb security system was coordinated with The National Bank. They checked our security system and substantiated that our protection was always the best possible. When we were robbed, The C & S Public Relations Department handled the publicity, and branch supervision worked directly with us covering all other matters.

11. Directors - The general supervision of the bank's operations by the directors is much easier because The C & S National Bank also supervises the operations. In fact, the question was often asked "Does C & S approve this?" or "Do other C & S banks do this?"; if so, the motion was almost automatically passed.

In summary, there is no way that The C & S South DeKalb Bank could have grown and become an influential part of the community without the tremendous and continuous assistance from The C & S National Bank.

Sincerely,

Warren L. Berry
President

TOPIC: Real Estate Mortgage Foreclosure

PAGE: 1 of 1 DATE: January 9, 1961

To: Executive Vice Presidents - National Bank
Presidents - Affiliated Banks

You are occasionally faced with the problem of holding a second mortgage on collateral where the first mortgage holder institutes foreclosure proceedings. When this is so, please contact the Comptroller's Department for suggestions as to how the problem should be handled. Buying the property in at an incorrect figure can result in financial hardship either by way of a capital gains tax being assessed or by your office having to incur a loss chargeable against your Reserve for Loan Losses.

For example, suppose your bank holds a second mortgage on real estate with a balance of $5,000.00. You learn that the first mortgage holder has begun foreclosure proceedings and the property has to be sold. If the amount of the first mortgage is $9,000.00, and you buy the property at the foreclosure sale for $9,000.00, then the bank would own the property for $9,000.00. Of the $9,000.00 which you paid for the property, the first mortgage holder would receive $9,000.00 and the first mortgage balance on your note of $5,000.00 would be extinguished by operation. This means that if the property was later sold for $15,000.00, the bank would have to pay capital gains tax on the $6,000.00 excess over the bank's book value of the property, and the $5,000.00 balance due on your second mortgage note would have to be charged against your Reserve for Loan Losses.

However, if you had appraised the property and felt that it would bring at least the $5,000.00 balance due on the second mortgage loan plus the $9,000.00 due the first mortgage holder, you could have simply purchased the note of the first mortgage holder, which you would have to do prior to the foreclosure sale, and then you could have foreclosed against both the first and second notes. This means that you would have notes totalling $14,000.00 against the property and at the foreclosure sale, you would bid up to this amount to protect the bank's interest. (To bid more would result in the excess going to the mortgagor). Then when you sell the property, you would have no loss and no capital gain unless you received more than $14,000.00 for the property. If you did receive say $15,000.00 from the subsequent sale, then you would pay capital gains tax only on $1,000.00.

If for some reason you do not have time to contact the Comptroller's office under these circumstances and you hold a second mortgage, you should take these steps. First, have the property appraised to see whether or not, in the event you acquire it, you can sell it for an amount in excess of the amount due under the first mortgage. If its resale value does not exceed the first mortgage indebtedness due, you have a charge-off on your hands. If it does, you should then seek to persuade the first mortgage holder to postpone his foreclosure and let you foreclose your second mortgage subject to his first mortgage indebtedness, handling it to him as though you hold the first mortgage. If you cannot obtain the first mortgagee's cooperation, then you should tender to the first mortgagee the balance due under the first mortgage and foreclose the two together. When you do this, you should bid the property in at the foreclosure for the total amount that your appraisal has permitted you you can sell the property for, but in no event in an amount in excess of the total of the two mortgage indebtednesses.

If you have any questions or comments, please let me know.

OPERATING BULLETIN

TOPIC: Regulation Z Summary

PAGE: 1 of 6 DATE: July 1, 1969

PURPOSE TO PROVIDE REFERENCE INFORMATION IN GOG.

The Consumer Credit Protection Act was passed by Congress in May 1968 and becomes effective July 1, 1969. Title I of this Act is entitled "Consumer Credit Cost Disclosure" and covers requirements for disclosure of credit terms and the right of a borrower to cancel or rescind certain transactions. Title I is also referred to as the Truth-in-Lending Act.

The Federal Reserve Board issued Regulation Z setting forth the requirements for member banks in disclosing credit terms to loan customers. The general provisions of Regulation Z are given in this bulletin, however, more detailed coverage will be found in various bulletins in the Consumer Credit Operating Guide.

TYPES OF CREDIT COVERED

"All credit of $25,000 or less, or if secured by real estate regardless of amount, which is primarily for personal, family, household, or agricultural purposes and made to a person."

Under this definition Regulation Z applies to most of the loans we make. For instance, all loans in CAS, Sales Finance, and almost all instalment loans are covered. In addition, a great many loans that we classify as time, term, real estate, and demand loans are covered. When making a loan, we now must always determine the purpose of the loan and the type of borrower, since these are the controlling factors as to whether the loan is regulated. Whenever there is any doubt as to whether a particular loan is covered, we should go ahead and make the required disclosures.

The Act does not cover the following:

1. Extensions of credit to corporations, partnerships, trusts, governments, and governmental agencies.

2. Extensions of credit for business or commercial purposes, other than agricultural purposes.

3. Extensions of credit for transactions in securities or commodities accounts with a broker-dealer registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

4. Non-real property transactions for amounts exceeding $25,000.

5. Certain public utility transactions for public utility services if the tariffs are filed with, reviewed by, or regulated by an agency of the Federal Government or a State or political subdivision.

REGULATION Z DISCLOSURE REQUIREMENTS

Regulation Z requires that we disclose the following on all types of credit covered except real estate loans made to purchase a dwelling:

Finance Charge
Annual Percentage Rate
Total of Payments

All items of information which must be disclosed have been incorporated in our revised notes and contract forms.

FINANCE CHARGE

Definition: "The sum of all charges imposed directly or indirectly by the creditor as a condition to the extension of credit and payable directly or indirectly by the customer to the creditor or third party by the customer, seller, or anyone else on behalf of the customer."

We will continue to use terminology such as interest, etc., but we must combine all charges into one total identified by the term "Finance Charge".

Note: Certain charges are not part of the Finance Charge if itemized and disclosed. These are:

Real Estate Transactions

1. Fees for title search, title insurance, and property surveys.
2. Fees for preparation of deeds, settlement statements, or other documents.
3. Escrow amounts for taxes, insurance, etc.
4. Fees for credit reports, appraisals, and notarizing of documents.

Other Credit Transactions

1. Fees for perfecting, releasing or determining if a security interest exists on property related to the transaction.
2. Taxes, license fees and title fees required by law.
3. Credit life and disability insurance, if the insurance is not required by the creditor and the customer signs separately indicating his desire to purchase the insurance.
4. Property insurance if the customer is given the option of purchasing the insurance through any agent of his choice and
5. Late charges or reinstatement charges if imposed for actual unanticipated occurrences.

Any Finance Charge paid separately, such as points or discounts on real estate loans, must be deducted from the proceeds and added to the Finance Charge and Annual Percentage Rate.

DEMAND LOANS

A one half year maturity will be used to compute the amount of Finance Charge and Total of Payments. Information to this effect will be printed on all revised demand notes.

ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE

One of the most important requirements of Regulation Z is that we must quote an annual percentage rate to the customer. This is to provide a rate which will supposedly allow the customer to "shop" for credit and to compare the terms and costs for a loan the same as for any other item he may purchase. All credit transactions covered must carry this disclosure.

There are certain specific ways to determine the annual percentage rate, and these are given in the Consumer Credit Operating Guide.

UNKNOWN INFORMATION ESTIMATE

If information that is required to be disclosed is not available at the time the loan is made, an estimate can be made and identified as such, as long as the actual disclosures are delivered when this information is determined.

GENERAL INFORMATION

1. Multiple Creditors

   When there is more than one creditor in a transaction, all must be identified in the note or disclosure statement. Other than requirements imposed on rescindable transactions (in which case disclosures must be made to all parties to the transaction), disclosures need only be made to one of the customers, but that customer must be a primary party, not an endorser or guarantor.

2. Evidence of Compliance

   We must keep evidence that we are complying with the Act for two years after all disclosures are made. An extra copy of the note is being provided for this purpose.

3. Charge Account Service Notification

   Certain information must be given to all new CAS customers before the first transaction and all CAS accounts during July 1969. Also, monthly statements have been revised to give required disclosures each time the customer is billed.

4. Required Deposit Balance

   If a balance in a specific amount or percentage is required to be kept with the creditor as a condition of the loan, this amount must be deducted from the "Amount Financed" when computing the "Annual Percentage Rate". Certain types of balances are exempt:

a. Escrow amounts for taxes, insurance, etc.

b. A deposit balance that will be wholly applied to the loan at maturity.

c. A deposit balance in existence prior to the date of the transaction offered as collateral in the transaction.

d. A deposit balance created by the loan and offered as collateral for the loan, if upon written request of the customer.

5. Real Estate Loans

The amount of Finance Charge, the Total of Payments, and the Right of Recission need not be disclosed on real estate loans made to purchase a dwelling, although such loans are subject to provisions of the Act with respect to disclosure of the annual percentage rate. Construction loans are considered as loans to purchase real estate, regardless of whether the customer previously owned the land, and construction loans are therefore exempt from these three disclosures.

6. Refinances, Consolidations or Increases in Existing Accounts

All loans of this type must be treated as original extensions of credit and all required disclosures must be made.

7. Add-On Contracts

Our practice is to make all required disclosures at the time of the add-on sale, regardless of whether previous collateral is released.

8. Advances Under Loan Commitments

If all disclosures are made at the time of the loan commitment, each advance made under the commitment need not carry full disclosure.

9. Transfer of Equity or Loan Assumption

All required disclosures must be made to the new customer before he becomes obligated. Our Transfer of Equity form has been revised for this purpose.

10. Extensions and Deferrals

Certain information is required to be disclosed in connection with every extension or deferral. A Notice of Extension form is to be used for these disclosures.

11. Right to Rescind or Cancel

In instances where a security interest or lien interest may be retained or acquired in real property that is expected to be used as the customer's residence, the customer can cancel the transaction during the first three day period. Notice of this right must be given to the customer and the creditor is prohibited from performing under the contract until this period has expired. The customer may waive this right under certain circumstances. Also certain transactions are exempt from this right.

ADVERTISING

1. Advertising Credit Terms

We have never advertised rates and terms to any degree and this area will not affect us too much. However, any officer who handles any advertising material should be familiar with the provision of Regulation Z with respect to advertising.

Regulation Z is quite specific in what cannot be advertised. Generally speaking, if any of the terms of an extension of credit are advertised then all must be advertised. Advertisement means any method or media used to aid or promote an extension of credit. No advertisement may state:

a. That a specific amount of credit or instalment amount can be arranged unless the creditor usually and customarily arranges or will arrange credit amounts or instalments for that period and in that amount; or

b. That no down payment or a specified down payment will be accepted unless the creditor usually and customarily accepts or will accept down payments in that amount.

2. Advertising Open End Credit

No advertisement may set forth any of the items required to be disclosed when opening a new account, or that no down payment, a specified down payment, or a specified periodic payment is required, or any of the following unless all the following items are set forth clearly and conspicuously in prescribed terminology:

a. An explanation of the time period during which any credit extended may be repaid without incurring a Finance Charge.

b. The method of determining the balance upon which a Finance Charge may be imposed.

c. The method of determining the Finance Charge, including any minimum or fixed charge that may be imposed.

d. Each periodic rate used to compute the Finance Charge, the range of balances to which each rate is applicable, and the corresponding Annual Percentage Rate.

e. The conditions under which other charges will be imposed and how they are determined.

f. The minimum periodic payment required.

3. Advertising Credit Other Than Open End

No advertisement shall state:

a. The rate of Finance Charge unless it states the rate of charge expressed as an Annual Percentage Rate.

b. The amount of down payment required or that no down payment is required, the amount of any instalment, the dollar amount of any Finance Charge, the number of instalments or period of repayment or that there is no charge for credit, unless it states all of the following in prescribed terminology:

(1) Cash price or amount of loan.

(2) Amount of down payment or that none is required.

(3) The number, amount and due dates of all payments or period of repayment if the credit is extended.

(4) The Finance Charge expressed as an Annual Percentage Rate.

(5) Except in the case of a sale of a dwelling or a purchase money loan to purchase a dwelling, the deferred payment price or the total of payments as applicable.

TOPIC: Antitrust Actions - Service Charges

PAGE: 1 of 3 DATE: May 17, 1962

To: Executive Vice Presidents - National Bank
Presidents - Affiliate Banks

I believe most of us have received communications from the Superintendent of Banks or have seen statements issued by the Comptroller of the Currency in which they ask for our directors to review the bank's service charge practices independently of any other bank and to take proper corporate action to establish a scale of service charges independent of any relationships with any other bank as a safeguard against any trust action by the Department of Justice.

Henry Miller suggests that our directors or Advisory Board members, as the case may be, should ask for a study of the schedules showing the amount of profit realized from each, the cost of the bank and the overall effect of the charge on the picture of the bank and its customer relations.

The directors can then make a determination of the adequacy and propriety of the various charges.

Here is a summary of what The Chamblee National Bank here in Atlanta drew up for their directors. We believe it can serve as a guide for you and suggest that you follow generally this outline. Of course, the amounts will be different, but the idea of the report to the directors is what I wanted to get across to you. After the report, then, of course, your directors may take appropriate action approving the report and your service charge schedules.

Joseph A. Hall, III
Vice President and Comptroller

At our Directors' Meeting of March 20, 1962, you asked me to prepare a resume of the Service Charge Schedules that we use at our Bank. It shall include information regarding Service Charges in all of our Departments in the Bank.

I. SERVICE CHARGES ON CHECKING ACCOUNTS

(a) Regular Checking Accounts:

A basic charge of 6¢ per check plus 75¢ per month. This charge is reduced at the rate of 15¢ per month for each unit of $100.00 bank balance maintained during the entire month. When the account averages more than $1,000.00 during the month no service charge is made. A copy of the Service Charge of Regular Checking Accounts is attached hereto.

(b) Special Checking Accounts:

The charge is 10¢ per check plus 25¢ per month.

(c) Analysis of Checking Accounts:

The more active accounts of our Bank are placed under analysis. A service charge is based on a schedule of 3¢ per each check deposited and 6¢ per each check drawn. The average float is deducted from the average bank balance. This makes a net collected balance. The legal Federal Reserve requirements of 13% is deducted from the collected balance and the remainder then becomes the loanable balance. An earned allowance of 3% is then allowed on this balance. In the event the account has a service cost in excess of the amount earned, a charge is made for the difference.

(d) Returned checks:

If checks are returned for "insufficient funds," a charge of $2.00 is made against the customer's account. If the check is paid and an overdraft is created the customer's account is charged $2.00. In both instances an advice is sent to the customer showing the disposition of the check.

(e) Non Par Checks:

10¢ up to $25.00. A slightly graduated charge for each check up to $500.00 when the charge is 65¢. Above

II. COLLECTION CHARGES

A charge of 50¢ is made for each item we send out for collection for our customer's. If drafts are received for collection the following charge is made:

25¢ up to $100.00
35¢ between 100.00 - $250.00
65¢ between 250.00 - 500.00
$1.00 for each draft between $500.00 and $1,000.00. On all drafts over $1,000.00 the rate is 1/8 of 1% with the maximum of $10.00.

III. SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES

$5.00 per year plus Federal Tax on our small boxes.
11.00 per year plus Federal Tax on our middle size boxes.
18.00 per year plus Federal Tax on our large size boxes.

IV. NIGHT DEPOSITORY BAGS

A basic rate of $10.00 per year is made. A second bag is given without additional cost; With the third bag there is an additional cost of $5.00.

V. LOANS

Loans secured by accounts receivable carry a rate of 7%. Most other loans carry a rate of 6% except those above $10,000.00 when the rate drops to 5½% on listed securities and Government securities. Construction loans are handled at 6% rate with a construction loan charge of 1½% up to $50,000.00. Above $50,000.00 the rate is 6% plus 1%. On all permanent loans a charge of $10.00 is made for appraisal fee. We charge 5½% on loans secured by passbooks of Savings & Loan Associations. We have a minimum charge on 30 day notes of $4.00; on 60 day notes of $5.00; and 90 day notes of $6.00.

In our Installment Loan Department the interest rate is 6% per annum on the original balance except loans on new automobiles carry a rate of 5½%. Savings accounts of $500.00 have a 5% rate. We have a basic late charge of 5¢ per $1.00 payment with the maximum charge of $2.00. This late charge is collected after the loan payment is more than seven (7) days past due.

TOPIC: Antitrust Actions - Agreements Between Banks

 DATE: February 26, 1964

MEMORANDUM TO: Executive Vice Presidents - National Bank
Presidents - Affiliate Banks

None of us would like to go to jail. None of us would like to be fined. With these thought in mind, I call your attention to the results of the civil and criminal antitrust actions against 17 Minnesota banks, the First Bank Stock Corporation and the Duluth Clearing House Association.

They were fined a total of $253,000.

Consent judgements resulted in setting forth the following antitrust guidelines for banks in general:

1. Agreements between banks to fix uniform service charges on checking accounts or to exchange data relating to service charges is prohibited. This reaffirms the consent decree in the case of the Hunterdon County Trust Company of New Jersey in 1962.

2. Agreements between banks to fix interest rates on deposits are prohibited.

3. Agreements between banks to fix the rate of interest, terms and conditions of any loans are prohibited except where the other bank is an actual party to the negotiations or the loan transaction itself.

4. Agreements between banks to restrict the advertising of interest or loan rates, service charges or other services rendered bank customers, or the media used for such advertising are prohibited.

5. Clearing Houses are prohibited from engaging in any activity except to effect the daily exchanges between members and the payment of the balances resulting from such exchanges and activities relating to civic, charitable, educational or eleemosynary promotions.

6. Agreements between banks to restrict the solicitation of business from correspondent banks are prohibited.

7. Agreement between banks concerning the furnishing of bank drafts, stationery, bank supplies or other gifts to correspondent banks are prohibited.

8. Agreements between banks to restrict absorption of exchange charges, or absorption of loss on securities, for correspondent banks are prohibited.

9. Agreements between banks to fix rebates or commissions on loans originated by correspondent banks are prohibited.

All three judgements state specifically that "transactions or communications solely between a registered bank holding company under the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956, or any servicing subsidiary of such bank holding company, and subsidiaries of such bank holding company recognized as such under such Act, shall be deemed to be transactions and communications not prohibited by this Final Judgment, . . ."

Please do review these carefully and keep them in mind in your dealings with your local competitors. Should there be any questions about any of the items, let's be sure we talk with someone else before we decide to do anything that might cause us to get into trouble with the antitrust folks.

(Dictated 1/6/60)

Mr. Joe Hall
The Citizens and Southern National Bank
Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Joe:

I am enclosing the following information on our Chambleee property per our discussion today.

1. Map of Greater Atlanta showing the location of Broad Street. There are plans to extend Broad Street under the Southern Railway track and tie it into Stone Mountain Road and this, of course, could open up our property and makeit much more accessible to residents east of the Southern Railway tracks. I could get you information on this from DeKalb County or the State Highway Department. Dr. W. F. Mosher, Councilman for the City of Chamblee, has been hand ing the negotiations for this with DeKalb County and he might also talk to you about it if you are interested in more information on it.

2. Copy of Drawing No. 524 showing in black the property we have offered to the Post Office Department for a new Chamblee Post Office, and showing in red a site of approximately four acres adjoining the above referenced site out of which we could set aside land for a bank assuming you are interested in it.

   We also have about six acres of land available on Irvindale Drive which has about 175' of frontage on Old Peachtree Road, although the Southern Railway Industrial Lead Track and Irvindale Drive itself takes up much of the frontage. The site marked "E", however, is available even though it may well be too small.

3. A group of pictures of the property on which we have shown for illustrative purposes only a "building" in red. You will note that a building erected on this property will have a good view from the Boulevard all the way from the Chamblee-Dunwoody Road.

Mr. Joe Hall January 7, 1960

I understand that a recent study made by DeKalb County School Board which Dr. Mosher worked on with Mr. Jim Cherry, Superintendent of Schools, indicated an anticipated heavy growth west of the Peachtree Industrial Boulevard. If you would like to talk to Bill Mosher, who is also Mayor Pro Tem, you can reach him at the Chamblee Animal Hospital, 5220 Peachtree Industrial Boulevard, Telephone: GLendale 7-5246. I believe he could give you more statistical information on Chamblee and its future growth than anyone I know.

I believe any good site in the proximity of the Chamblee City Hall would be a good location for a bank and assuming the Post Office Department does go ahead with our property at the corner of Broad Street and Irvindale Drive (which is the old Chamblee Animal Hospitalsite), then the site adjoining it should have excellent business potential.

I will stop by and talk to you again later on in the week.

Very truly yours,

McDONOUGH CONSTRUCTION CO. OF GA.

Re: Chamblee and Belvedere Surveys

I called Mrs. Ethel Liebscher, who is making a survey of the Chamblee area and also the Belvedere area in an attempt to determine the business potential of each area.

She said that she will have most of the information in by Monday of next week and it will take her several days to put it together. She promised to call me back Wednesday or Thursday of next week about the final report.

She offered the comment that quite a number of the people that were interviewed expressed a very strong feeling about needing a bank. This was both in the Chamblee area and in the Belvedere area. Apparently they have received some very unfavorable comments about the Glenwood National Bank and a noticeable portion of the people interviewed commented that another bank is needed in that area.

Of the two areas she said it looked like the greatest potential lay in the Chamblee area. However, she felt both of them were promising to be better than the Forest Park area which was the other area that she surveyed for us.

Just as soon as this information is in I will contact Les Bailey again about the formal application blanks.

Sincerely,

Joseph A. Hall, III

(b) If the answer to the preceding subparagraph is in the affirmative, describe each factor which supports said contention;

(c) If the answer to subparagraph (a) of this interrogatory is in the negative, describe each factor which supports that determination;

(d) If the answer to subparagraph (a) is in the negative, describe each factor which distinguishes the organization of C&S South DeKalb in 1969 from the fact situation attacked as violative of Section 7 in this complaint;

(e) State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

(a) Does the government contend in this complaint that the 1959 organization of C&S Sandy Springs as alleged in paragraph 36 of the complaint is in violation of Section 7 of the Clayton Act for which relief is here sought?

(b) If the answer to the preceding subparagraph is in the affirmative, describe each factor which supports said contention;

(c) If the answer to subparagraph (a) of this interrogatory is in the negative, describe each factor which supports that determination;

(d) If the answer to subparagraph (a) is in the negative, describe each factor which distinguishes the organization of C&S Sandy Springs in 1959 from the fact situation attacked as violative of Section 7 in this complaint;

(e) State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

113.

(a) Referring to paragraph 48 of the complaint, does the plaintiff contend that the plans of acquisition would, if effectuated, tend to create a monopoly?

(b) If so, describe in detail exactly how and in what manner said reorganizations would tend to create a monopoly.

Referring to paragraph 48(c) of the complaint, state whether the words "concentration...will be substantially increased" mean anything other than or more than that by reason of the proposed plans of reorganization the separate corporate entities of C&S Chamblee, C&S Park National, C&S South DeKalb, C&S North Fulton and C&S Sandy Springs will disappear, and that if the plans are consummated, the commercial banking business of the C&S System will increase to the extent of such business presently done by each of said banks. If so, give full explanatory details.

115.

(a) State whether or not plaintiff contends that concentration in a market, in and of itself, is unlawful;

(b) State whether plaintiff contends that any and all mergers in a concentrated market are unlawful;

(c) Describe in detail each and every way in which actual competition between and among the defendants has been and will be eliminated and unreasonably restrained as alleged in paragraph 48(a) of the complaint;

(d) Describe in detail each and every way in which competition in general has been and will be substantially lessened as alleged in subparagraph (b) of paragraph 48 of the complaint;

(e) Describe in detail each and every way in which plaintiff contends that potential for increased competition between and among the defendants has been and will be eliminated and unreasonably restrained.

116.

Referring to paragraph 47 of the complaint, does the government contend that the several effects of each of the aforesaid agreements to merge, taken separately, constitute a violation of Section 7 of the Clayton Act.

117.

(a) Does the plaintiff contend that any defendant named herein has violated the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956 [Act of May 9, 1956 (70 Stat. 1330)], as amended?

(b) If the answer to the preceding subparagraph is in the affirmative, describe in detail the facts of each such alleged violation;

(c) State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

(a) Has the plaintiff received any communication, oral or written, from any bank, bank customer, bank association, bank organization or other individual or group commenting upon the proposed reorganization of the C&S System?

(b) If the answer to the preceding subparagraph is in the affirmative, state as to each communication the following: (i) the identity of the person making such communication; (ii) the identity of the person to whom such communication was made; (iii) the date or dates thereof if said communication was written, identify each document reflecting such writing; (iv) if such communication was oral, identify each and every document which reflects or relates in any way to the subject of said oral communication.

A. Will plaintiff contend at trial that the proposed reorganization of defendants, as allegedly referred to in paragraph 37 of the complaint, will substantially lessen potential competition or tend to create a monopoly in:

(a) Georgia;

(b) the Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area as delineated by the Office of Statistical Standards of the Bureau of Budget;

(c) the Atlanta Area as defined in the complaint;

(d) North Fulton County as defined in the complaint;

(e) Fulton County;

(f) DeKalb County;

(g) any other geographic area of the country,

and if so describe precisely the boundaries of that area.

B. If the answer is affirmative as to (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), or (g) above, describe in detail the effect on potential competition and/or the factors tending to create a monopoly in the area named.

C. If the answer as to any of subparagraphs (a)-(g) above is affirmative, state as to each such affirmative answer: (i) each specific service and each specific product of commercial banking as to which said competitive effect will be felt; (ii) the geographic area which plaintiff contends is the relevant geographic market to determine such effect; (iii) the identity of the persons, banking organizations, bank offices or other businesses as to which competition will be affected.

D. State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

A. Will plaintiff contend at trial that the proposed merger of C&S Chamblee with C&S Emory, as alleged in paragraph 46 of the complaint will substantially lessen potential competition or tend to create a monopoly in:

(a) Georgia;

(b) the Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area as delineated by the Office of Statistical Standards of the Bureau of Budget;

(c) the Atlanta Area as defined in the complaint;

(d) North Fulton County as defined in the complaint;

(e) Fulton County;

(f) DeKalb County;

(g) any other geographic area of the country,

and if so describe precisely the boundaries of that area.

B. If the answer is affirmative as to (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), or (g) above, describe in detail the effect on potential competition and/or the factors tending to create a monopoly in the area named.

C. If the answer as to any of subparagraphs (a)-(g) above is affirmative, state as to each such affirmative answer: (i) each specific service and each specific product of commercial banking as to which said competitive effect will be felt; (ii) the geographic area which plaintiff contends is the relevant geographic market to determine such effect; (iii) the identity of the persons, banking organizations, bank offices or other businesses as to which competition will be affected.

D. State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

121.

A. Will plaintiff contend at trial that the proposed merger of C&S Park National with C&S Emory, as alleged in paragraph 46 of the complaint will substantially lessen potential competition or tend to create a monopoly in:

(a) Georgia;

(b) the Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area as delineated by the Office of Statistical Standards of the Bureau of Budget;

(c) the Atlanta Area as defined in the complaint;

(d) North Fulton County as defined in the complaint;

(e) Fulton County;

(f) DeKalb County;

(g) any other geographic area of the country,

and if so describe precisely the boundaries of that area.

B. If the answer is affirmative as to (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), or (g) above, describe in detail the effect on potential competition and/or the factors tending to create a monopoly in the area named.

C. If the answer as to any of subparagraphs (a)-(g) above is affirmative, state as to each such affirmative answer: (i) each specific service and each specific product of commercial banking as to which said competitive effect will be felt; (ii) the geographic area which plaintiff contends is the relevant geographic market to determine such effect; (iii) the identity of the persons, banking organizations, bank offices or other businesses as to which competition will be affected.

D. State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

A. Will plaintiff contend at trial that the proposed merger of C&S South DeKalb with C&S Emory, as alleged in paragraph 46 of the complaint will substantially lessen potential competition or tend to create a monopoly in:

(a) Georgia;

(b) the Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area as delineated by the Office of Statistical Standards of the Bureau of Budget;

(c) the Atlanta Area as defined in the complaint;

(d) North Fulton County as defined in the complaint;

(e) Fulton County;

(f) DeKalb County;

(g) any other geographic area of the country,

and if so describe precisely the boundaries of that area.

B. If the answer is affirmative as to (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), or (g) above, describe in detail the effect on potential competition and/or the factors tending to create a monopoly in the area named.

C. If the answer as to any of subparagraphs (a)-(g) above is affirmative, state as to each such affirmative answer: (i) each specific service and each specific product of commercial banking as to which said competitive effect will be felt; (ii) the geographic area which plaintiff contends is the relevant geographic market to determine such effect; (iii) the identity of the persons, banking organizations, bank offices or other businesses as to which competition will be affected.

D. State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

A. Will plaintiff contend at trial that the proposed merger of C&S Sandy Springs with C&S East Point, as alleged in paragraph 46 of the complaint will substantially lessen potential competition or tend to create a monopoly in:

(a) Georgia;

(b) the Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area as delineated by the Office of Statistical Standards of the Bureau of Budget;

(c) the Atlanta Area as defined in the complaint;

(d) North Fulton County as defined in the complaint;

(e) Fulton County;

(f) DeKalb County;

(g) any other geographic area of the country,

and if so describe precisely the boundaries of that area.

B. If the answer is affirmative as to (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), or (g) above, describe in detail the effect on potential competition and/or the factors tending to create a monopoly in the area named.

C. If the answer as to any of subparagraphs (a)-(g) above is affirmative, state as to each such affirmative answer: (i) each specific service and each specific product of commercial banking as to which said competitive effect will be felt; (ii) the geographic area which plaintiff contends is the relevant geographic market to determine such effect;

(iii) the identity of the persons, banking organizations, bank offices or other businesses as to which competition will be affected.

D. State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

124.

A. Will plaintiff contend at trial that the proposed merger of C&S North Fulton with C&S East Point, as alleged in paragraph 46 of the complaint will substantially lessen potential competition or tend to create a monopoly in:

(a) Georgia;

(b) the Atlanta Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area as delineated by the Office of Statistical Standards of the Bureau of Budget;

(c) the Atlanta Area as defined in the complaint;

(d) North Fulton County as defined in the complaint;

(e) Fulton County;

(f) DeKalb County;

(g) any other geographic area of the country, and if so describe precisely the boundaries of that area.

B. If the answer is affirmative as to (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), or (g) above, describe in detail the effect on potential competition and/or the factors tending to create a monopoly in the area named.

C. If the answer as to any of subparagraphs (a)-(g) above is affirmative, state as to each such affirmative answer: (i) each specific service and each specific product of commercial banking as to which said competitive effect will be felt; (ii) the geographic area which plaintiff contends is the relevant geographic market to determine such effect; (iii) the identity of the persons, banking organizations, bank offices or other businesses as to which competition will be affected.

D. State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

125.

With regard to your answers to the preceding six interrogatories, does the plaintiff claim a specific injury will result to:

(a) Any specific bank or any specific bank customer(s) by virtue of the effects of the alleged lessening of potential competition or tendency to create a monopoly as defined in your answers above;

(b) Identify each alleged potential injury, identify each bank and/or bank customer(s) allegedly injured;

(c) State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

126.

With regard to any field investigation conducted by the plaintiff in connection with the applications for permission to merge filed by C&S Emory and C&S East Point to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation:

(a) Identify the person or persons conducting the investigation for plaintiff;

(b) State the inclusive dates during which said field investigation was conducted;

(c) Identify each and every person interviewed or contacted by plaintiff's investigators and identify each and every document reflecting said interviews resulting therefrom;

(d) Identify all persons supplying information to plaintiff's investigators and describe the information so supplied;

(e) Identify all documents reflecting or referring to such information received from persons supplying information to the plaintiff's investigators;

(f) Describe all information developed by plaintiff's field investigation which related particularly to (i) C&S North Fulton, (ii) C&S Sandy Springs, (iii) C&S Chamblee, (iv) C&S Park National, (v) C&S South DeKalb, (vi) C&S Tucker;

(g) State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

127.

(a) Identify each individual who plaintiff has interviewed or otherwise communicated with relevant to this matter who has knowledge of any facts believed to support plaintiff's allegations stated in the complaint;

(b) Identify each individual who plaintiff has interviewed or otherwise communicated with relative to this matter who has knowledge of any facts which may be contrary to any of plaintiff's allegations made in the complaint;

(c) Identify each individual, organization, or association not a part of the federal government, who plaintiff through any regulatory or executive agency has supplied with information, documents or otherwise concerning any of the matters involved in this lawsuit, and/or concerning the applications of defendants to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, identifying separately and in detail such information and documents so supplied.

State whether plaintiff has any question as to the authenticity or genuineness of any of the documents submitted to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation as a part of or in support of the application of the Citizens and Southern Bank of East Point for prior written consent to acquire the assets of and to assume liability to pay deposits made in the Citizens and Southern Bank of Sandy Springs and the Citizens and Southern Bank of North Fulton and the application of the Citizens and Southern Emory Bank for prior written consent to acquire the assets of and to assume liability to pay deposits made in the Citizens and Southern Bank of Chamblee, the Citizens and Southern Bank of Tucker, the Citizens and Southern Park National Bank, and the Citizens and Southern South DeKalb Bank (hereinafter jointly referred to as "Applications").

State whether plaintiff has any question as to the mathematical accuracy of any of the data in any of the documents submitted to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in connection with the Applications, and, if so, identify all such data claimed to be mathematically inaccurate and state with respect to each item thereof:

(a) The figure plaintiff contends is incorrect;

(b) The figure plaintiff contends is the correct figure;

(c) The manner by which plaintiff derived the figure claimed by it to be correct; and,

(d) State all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers to this interrogatory.

130.

(a) Identify separately every document in the possession or control of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Comptroller of the Currency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, or any other department, branch or agency of the United States of America which plaintiff has examined in connection with this case;

(b) Identify separately every document, including transcripts, pleadings, orders, or other papers involved in any other lawsuits, hearings, investigations, or other similar proceedings, which relate in any way to any of the issues involved in this lawsuit which plaintiff has examined in connection with this case.

(a) Identify each person whom plaintiff expects to call as an expert witness at the trial of this matter;

(b) State the subject matter on which each such expert is expected to testify;

(c) State the substance of the facts and opinions to which each such expert is expected to testify and a summary of the ground for each opinion.

132.

Identify each individual who has assisted in the preparation of answers to these interrogatories.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF GEORGIA
ATLANTA DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Plaintiff, v. CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN NATIONAL BANK, CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN HOLDING COMPANY, CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN EMORY BANK, CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF EAST POINT, CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF CHAMBLEE, CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN PARK NATIONAL BANK, CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN SOUTH DEKALB BANK, CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF TUCKER, CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF NORTH FULTON, AND CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN BANK OF SANDY SPRINGS, Defendants.	Civil Action No. 15823 Filed: November 2, 1971

PLAINTIFF'S ANSWERS TO FIRST INTERROGATORIES OF DEFENDANT CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN SOUTH DEKALB BANK

The answers propounded herein are made without waiving, but on the contrary reserving: (1) the right to object, on the grounds of relevancy, materiality, competency, privilege or any other ground, to the use of said answers, for any purpose, in whole or in part, in any subsequent step or proceeding in this action or any other action; (2) the right to object on any and all grounds, at any time, to other interrogatories or other discovery procedure involving or relating to the subject matter of the interrogatories herein answered; and (3) the right, at any time, to revise, correct, add to or clarify any of said answers propounded herein.

Plaintiff notes that the meaning of those subparagraphs of defendants' interrogatories which, like Interrogatory 9(g), request that plaintiff "state all facts and sources of information and identify all persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies to support its answers" to the interrogatories, is unclear. Where plaintiff is asked to identify "persons and documents upon which plaintiff relies" to support answers containing or setting forth ultimate contentions, it appears that plaintiff, in effect, is being asked to identify its trial witnesses and exhibits. At this stage of the proceedings such identification would, of course, be clearly premature, as well as impossible. Stating the "sources of information...upon which plaintiff relies" could raise the same problem, since such sources could be only "persons and documents." Finally, stating "all facts... upon which plaintiff relies" could mean "all evidentiary facts" rather than the ultimate facts which are stated in the answers; presentation of all evidentiary facts is, of course, the function of trial, not pre-trial. Since plaintiff does not believe that defendants' request was intended to convey any of these objectionable meanings, plaintiff has interpreted that request as asking for the identity of persons or documents possessing or containing information used by plaintiff in answering the interrogatories.

Answer to Interrogatory 1

This interrogatory, although purportedly directed to allegations in paragraph 37 of the Complaint, inquires about something, namely "the proposed reorganization of defendants," that was not referred to in that or any other paragraph of the Complaint. Nor is plaintiff aware of what defendants intend to convey by this phrase. In paragraph 37 of the Complaint, however, plaintiff did refer to regulatory approval of the proposed mergers of C&S Chamblee, C&S Park National and C&S South DeKalb with C&S Emory and C&S Sandy Springs and C&S North Fulton with C&S East Point. Plaintiff will, therefore, answer this interrogatory in terms of those proposed mergers.

In this interrogatory plaintiff, in effect, is asked whether it will contend that consummation of the proposed mergers may substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly by virtue of the elimination of actual competition existing between or among defendants. Plaintiff will not contend that consummation of any of the proposed mergers may tend to create a monopoly in any section of the country. At this time, however, plaintiff cannot definitively state whether or not it will contend that actual competition exists between and among defendants. A determination of this issue requires knowledge concerning the extent, if any, to which C&S Chamblee, C&S Park National, C&S South DeKalb, C&S Sandy Springs, and C&S North Fulton, make independent decisions in conducting their respective businesses despite the existence of the combinations referred to in paragraphs 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, and 43 of the Complaint, and, if so, the extent of competition between and among defendants. Absent discovery, plaintiff does not have knowledge sufficient to make such determinations.

Answer to Interrogatory 2

For the reasons set forth in Answer to Interrogatory 1, plaintiff cannot definitively answer this interrogatory absent discovery except to the extent the answer is incorporated in the Answer to Interrogatory 1.

Answer to Interrogatory 3

For the reasons set forth in Answer to Interrogatory 1, plaintiff cannot definitively answer this interrogatory absent discovery except to the extent the answer is incorporated in the Answer to Interrogatory 1.

Answer to Interrogatory 4

For the reasons set forth in Answer to Interrogatory 1, plaintiff cannot definitively answer this interrogatory absent discovery except to the extent the answer is incorporated in the Answer to Interrogatory 1.

Answer to Interrogatory 5

For the reasons set forth in Answer to Interrogatory 1, plaintiff cannot definitively answer this interrogatory absent discovery except to the extent the answer is incorporated in the Answer to Interrogatory 1.

Answer to Interrogatory 6

For the reasons set forth in Answer to Interrogatory 1, plaintiff cannot definitively answer this interrogatory absent discovery except to the extent the answer is incorporated in the Answer to Interrogatory 1.

Answer to Interrogatory 7

Plaintiff does not allege any specific injury to any specific bank(s) or any specific bank customer(s) by virtue of consummation of the proposed mergers. Plaintiff's allegations are as described in Answer to Interrogatory 8.

Answer to Interrogatory 8

(a) - (c) Plaintiff does not allege any specific injury to any specific group, organization or association of banks, or any specific group, organization or association of bank customers. However, plaintiff does allege that all individuals, partnerships, corporations and other organizations which have need of commercial banking services in the Atlanta area may be adversely affected by virtue of the consummation of the proposed mergers. Such adversely affected customers in general would be those who reside or conduct business in the Atlanta area. Such customers may be adversely affected because competition in commercial banking in the Atlanta area and various portions thereof may be substantially lessened as a consequence of the fact that significant actual competition, if such exists, and the significant actual competition between and among the defendant commercial banks which would exist absent the combinations alleged, will be permanently eliminated; that commercial banking customers in the Atlanta area and portions thereof would be deprived of significant commercial banking alternatives; that the defendants, combined, would control an undue share of the commercial banking markets in DeKalb County, Fulton County, North Fulton County, the Atlanta area, or some portions of the foregoing and that concentration in commercial banking in such areas would be substantially increased.

(d) In answering this interrogatory, plaintiff relied on information contained in the documents identified in Answer to Interrogatory 71.

Answer to Interrogatory 9

The trade or commerce which plaintiff presently believes has been and continues to be unlawfully restrained by the alleged combination of C&S National, et al., and C&S Sandy Springs, et al., consists of the products and services, both severally and in the aggregate, in which such commercial banks deal. The principal banking "products" are various kinds of bank credit such as unsecured personal and business loans, mortgage loans, loans secured by securities or accounts receivable, automobile installment and consumer goods installment loans, and bank credit cards. Banking services include acceptance of demand deposits; acceptance of time and savings deposits; estate and trust planning and trusteeship services; correspondent services and investment advice.

At the present time, plaintiff is without sufficient knowledge to state specifically each of the areas of commercial banking activity in which each of the defendant commercial banks has engaged or presently engages. However, plaintiff believes that each of the defendant commercial banks offers demand deposit accounts and many of the other products and services generally provided by commercial banks. Also, plaintiff is, at present, without sufficient knowledge to state whether all of the areas of commercial banking in which C&S National, et al., and C&S Sandy Springs engage have been adversely affected as a consequence of the combination or whether only certain areas have been adversely affected.

(a) Competition between the members of the C&S System, C&S Sandy Springs and other defendant commercial banks has been and continues to be restrained as a result of the combination between C&S National, et al., and C&S Sandy Springs, et al., to create a legally independent bank, C&S Sandy Springs, and thereafter jointly direct the business activity of C&S Sandy Springs in such a way as to restrict or eliminate competition between C&S Sandy Springs, the members of the C&S System and other defendant commercial banks. Plaintiff presently believes that competition has been restrained or eliminated from the date of the formation of C&S Sandy Springs. At the present time, plaintiff lacks sufficient knowledge to specify the amount of trade or commerce restrained during the existence of the combination, but plaintiff believes that the amount involved has been and is substantial.

(b) Plaintiff is unsure of the meaning of "said initial organization" as used in this interrogatory. If it refers to the formation of the combination, then see answer as to trade or commerce above.

(c) Competition has been and is continuing to be unreasonably restrained within the Atlanta area.

(d) - (e) Plaintiff believes that all individuals, partnerships, corporations and other organizations which have need of commercial banking services in the Atlanta area have been adversely affected as a consequence of the elimination of competition resulting from this combination and the other combinations alleged to exist. Such persons have been and are being deprived of the benefits of competition between the members of the C&S System, C&S Sandy Springs, and other defendant commercial banks.

(f) Yes. The combination eliminated competition between C&S Sandy Springs, members of the C&S System, and other defendant commercial banks in providing the products and services in which these commercial banks deal. See also Answer to Interrogatory 16(f) and (g).

(g) In answering this interrogatory, plaintiff relied on information contained in the following documents:

1. Application to the FDIC by C&S Emory for approval to acquire the assets of and to assume liability to pay deposits made in, C&S Chamblee, C&S Park National and C&S South DeKalb (hereinafter referred to as "Emory Application").

2. Application to the FDIC by C&S East Point for approval to acquire the assets of and to assume liability to pay deposits made in, C&S Sandy Springs and C&S North Fulton (hereinafter referred to as "East Point Application").

3. Supplementary material submitted to the FDIC in support of the Emory Application and East Point Application (hereinafter referred to as the "Supplement").

4. Transcript of Conference between Mills B. Lane, Jr. and other C&S National and C&S Sandy Springs officers and Thomas J. O'Connell, Deputy General Counsel of the Federal Reserve System, and other officers of the Federal Reserve System and the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, held in Washington, D.C. on April 24, 1968, In the Matter of Citizens and Southern National Bank and Subsidiaries (hereinafter referred to as "1968 Fed. Hearing").

5. Report of Special Study Committee prepared by Georgia Bankers Association and adopted August 21, 1969, including Minutes of The Bank Holding Company Study Committee Meeting on August 18, 1969 and a Statement To The Legislative Banking Study Committee dated August 14, 1969, and signed by Mills B. Lane, Jr.

6. FDIC News Release PR-51-71 (10-5-71) with enclosures B-30 (10-4-71), B-31 (10-4-71) and B-32 (10-4-71) (hereinafter referred to as "FDIC News Release").

7. Deposition of Joseph A. Hall, III, taken on September 28, 1971, at 1200 C&S National Bank Building, Atlanta Georgia in the matter of Independent Bankers Association of Georgia, Inc. v. W. M. Jackson, et al.

8. Deposition of Mills B. Lane, Jr., taken on September 28, 1971, at 1200 C&S National Bank Building, Atlanta, Georgia, in the matter of Independent Bankers Association of Georgia, Inc. v. W. M. Jackson, et al.

Answer to Interrogatory 10

In this interrogatory plaintiff is apparently asked whether it contends that a separate illegal combination existed whereby C&S National and various persons associated with it contributed to the initial organization of C&S Sandy Springs. Plaintiff does not so contend. Plaintiff believes that such activity was undertaken pursuant to the combination described in Answer to Interrogatory 9.

(f) Plaintiff does not presently intend to contend that the contribution of C&S National to the initial organization of C&S Sandy Springs was illegal in and of itself. But, see Answer to Interrogatory 16.

Answer to Interrogatory 11

In this interrogatory plaintiff is apparently asked whether it contends that a separate illegal combination exists whereby C&S Holding acquired 5 percent of the outstanding shares of C&S Sandy Springs. Plaintiff does not so contend. Plaintiff believes that this action was taken pursuant to the combination described in Answer to Interrogatory 9.

(f) Plaintiff does not presently intend to contend that the acquisition of 5 percent of the outstanding shares of C&S Sandy Springs by C&S Holding was illegal in and of itself. But, see Answer to Interrogatory 16.

Answer to Interrogatory 12

In this interrogatory plaintiff is apparently asked whether it contends that a separate illegal combination exists whereby C&S National and various persons associated with it assisted in the sale of the remainder of the stock of C&S Sandy Springs. Plaintiff does not so contend. Plaintiff believes that such assistance was provided pursuant to the combination described in Answer to Interrogatory 9.

(f) Plaintiff lacks sufficient knowledge as to the nature and effect of such assistance to determine if plaintiff will contend that it resulted in a violation of law. But, see Answer to Interrogatory 16.

Answer to Interrogatory 13

In this interrogatory plaintiff is apparently asked whether it contends that a separate illegal combination exists whereby C&S National provided mutually beneficial correspondent services to C&S Sandy Springs. Plaintiff does not so contend. Plaintiff believes that such services were provided pursuant to the combination described in Answer to Interrogatory 9.

(f) Plaintiff does not contend that the provision of mutually beneficial correspondent services is illegal in and of itself. But, see Answer to Interrogatory 16.

Answer to Interrogatory 14

In this interrogatory plaintiff is apparently asked whether it contends that a separate illegal combination exists whereby C&S National allows C&S Sandy Springs to use the C&S logogram. Plaintiff does not so contend. Plaintiff believes that this was done pursuant to the combination described in Answer to Interrogatory 9.

(f) Plaintiff does not presently intend to contend that C&S National's allowing C&S Sandy Springs to use the C&S logogram is illegal in and of itself. But, see Answer to Interrogatory 16.

Answer to Interrogatory 15

In this interrogatory plaintiff is apparently asked whether it contends that a separate illegal combination exists whereby the C&S System provided C&S Sandy Springs with personnel, management, and operational assistance. Plaintiff does not so contend. Plaintiff believes that such assistance has been provided pursuant to the combination described in Answer to Interrogatory 9.

(f) Plaintiff lacks sufficient knowledge as to the nature and effect of such assistance to determine whether the provision of such assistance was illegal in and of itself. But, see Answer to Interrogatory 16.

Answer to Interrogatory 16

In this interrogatory plaintiff is apparently asked whether it contends that a separate illegal combination exists whereby C&S National and C&S Sandy Springs have, in many instances, jointly determined the competitive strategy to be followed in conducting the business of C&S Sandy Springs. Plaintiff contends that the joint determination of competitive strategy has been and is the sine qua non of the combination between C&S National, et al., and C&S Sandy Springs, et al., to create a legally independent bank, C&S Sandy Springs, and thereafter jointly direct the business activity of C&S Sandy Springs in such a way as to restrict or eliminate competition between C&S Sandy Springs, the members of the C&S System, and other defendant commercial banks.

Plaintiff contends that the joint determination of competitive strategy alone is sufficient to condemn the combination alleged. However, as has been stated in answer to previous interrogatories, plaintiff believes that all of the relationships which are described in paragraph 34 were undertaken pursuant to the combination alleged and evidence its existence and illegal purpose and contributed to achieving the joint determination of competitive strategy, thereby restricting or eliminating competition.

(f) Absent discovery, plaintiff is unable to describe in detail each of the many instances of C&S National and C&S Sandy Springs jointly determining the competitive strategy to be followed in conducting the business of C&S Sandy Springs. Plaintiff believes that such instances include virtually all major decisions which have been made concerning the business activities of C&S Sandy Springs, including decisions as to interest rates and service charges on loans and deposits, banking hours, loans in excess of $25,000, employee salaries, and business development.

(g) Plaintiff is unable to describe in detail what restraint of trade resulted from each such joint determination. Collectively, they restricted or eliminated competition between C&S Sandy Springs, members of the C&S System and other defendant banks in unreasonable restraint of the trade or commerce previously described.

Answers to Interrogatories 25, 34, 43 and 52

Plaintiff believes that these are extraneous interrogatory numbers, without an analogous interrogatory.

Answer to Interrogatory 53

(a) Plaintiff does not presently contend that the relationships referred to in this interrogatory had a coercive or restrictive effect on outsiders. However, such an effect may have occurred which is unknown to plaintiff.

(c) - (d) Plaintiff presently intends to contend that the combinations alleged to exist constitute per se violations of Section 1 of the Sherman Act in unreasonable restraint of the trade and commerce described in Answer to Interrogatories 9, 17, 26, 35, and 44 as a consequence of their purpose and effect of restricting or eliminating competition between members of the C&S System and the other defendant commercial banks. Plaintiff is unaware of what defendants consider the "main purpose" of the relationships to be.

Answer to Interrogatory 54

(a) Plaintiff is unsure of the meaning of the term "predatory conduct" as used in this interrogatory. If the term is intended to mean the use of economic coercion, then plaintiff does not presently contend that any of the defendants have engaged in predatory conduct. However, such conduct may have been engaged in which is unknown to plaintiff.

(c) Plaintiff is not presently aware of any such instances.

Answer to Interrogatory 55

(a) The "various other persons" who entered with C&S National and C&S Holding into the alleged combination with C&S Sandy Springs are those persons who participated in establishing, or in carrying out activities that resulted in, any of the relationships set forth in paragraph 34 with the knowledge or understanding that such relationship was part of, pursuant to, or would contribute to effectuating or furthering, the combination as it is more fully described in the Answers to Interrogatories 9 through 16. Such persons would include those persons, not employed by any member of the C&S System, who participated in the initial organization of C&S Sandy Springs with the knowledge or understanding defined above. The identities of all such persons are not known to plaintiff at this time. However, on the basis of information contained in the Supplement, plaintiff believes that the following persons can be identified by name (their addresses, business positions, etc., are already known to defendants):

Dr. William Cason

H. Dillon Winship, Jr.

Such persons would also include officers, directors or employees of any member of the C&S System who acted on behalf of such member in performing any of the acts as defined above with the knowledge as defined above. For example, this group would include the officers of C&S National who were responsible for the decision to allow C&S Sandy Springs to use the C&S logogram, if such officers had the "knowledge or understanding" defined above. The identities of all such persons are not known to plaintiff at this time. However, on the basis of information contained in the Supplement, plaintiff believes that the following person can be identified by name (his address, business position, etc., are of course, already known to defendants):

Mills B. Lane, Jr.

Such persons would also include C&S personnel who transferred to C&S Sandy Springs with the knowledge or understanding that while working for C&S Sandy Springs they would be part of the joint direction of the business activities of C&S Sandy Springs referred to in the Answers to Interrogatories 9 through 16. The identities of such persons are not known to plaintiff at this time. Such persons may also include individuals not employed in any capacity by the C&S System, but who have some other connection with it, such as customers of C&S National, C&S Emory or C&S East Point, who purchased stock in C&S Sandy Springs intending to vote such stock in a way that would support and further the joint direction of the business activities of C&S Sandy Springs referred to in the Answers to Interrogatories 9 through 16. The identities of such persons are, however, not known to plaintiff at this time, although plaintiff believes that their existence is suggested by the information contained in the Supplement.

There may be other persons not described herein who also joined with C&S National and C&S Holding in the alleged combination, but their existence and identities are not known at this time.

(b) The "various other persons" who entered with C&S Sandy Springs into the alleged combination with C&S National and C&S Holding are those persons who participated in establishing, or in carrying out activities that resulted in, any of the relationships set forth in paragraph 34 with the knowledge or understanding that such relationship was part of, pursuant to, or would contribute to effectuating or furthering, the combination as it is more fully described in the Answers to Interrogatories 9 through 16. Such persons would include officers, employees and directors of C&S Sandy Springs who acted on behalf of C&S Sandy Springs in performing any of the acts as defined above with the knowledge as defined above. The identities of all such persons are not known to plaintiff at this time. However, on the basis of information contained in the Supplement, plaintiff believes that the following persons can be identified by name (their addresses, business positions, etc., are, of course, already known to defendants):

Dr. William Cason

H. Dillon Winship, Jr.

There may be other persons not described herein who also joined with C&S Sandy Springs in the alleged combination, but their existence and identities are not known at this time.

(c) Assuming that the term "the C&S" means the C&S System, and assuming that the term "association" means the person's relationship with the C&S System in terms of being an officer, employee, or director of a member of said System, or of being a customer of or a stockholder in such a member, the association existing between the C&S System and each of the persons identified in (a) and (b) is already known to defendants.

(d) As noted in (a) and (b) above, the information which plaintiff relied on in arriving at the descriptions and identifications set out therein is contained in the Supplement.

Answer to Interrogatory 56

(a) The "various other persons" who entered with C&S National and C&S Holding into the alleged combination with C&S Chamblee are those persons who participated in establishing, or in carrying out activities that resulted in, any of the relationships set forth in paragraph 34 with the knowledge or understanding that such relationship was part of, pursuant to, or would contribute to effectuating or furthering, the combination as it is more fully described in the Answers to Interrogatories 17 through 24. Such persons would include those persons, not employed by any member of the C&S System, who participated in the initial organization of C&S Chamblee with the knowledge or understanding defined above. Such persons would also include officers, directors or employees of any member of the C&S System who acted on behalf of such member in performing any of the acts as defined above with the knowledge as defined above. For example, this group would include the officers of C&S National who were responsible for the decision to allow C&S Chamblee to use the C&S logogram, if such officers had the "knowledge or understanding" defined above. knowledge or understanding that while working for C&S Chamblee they would be part of the joint direction of the business activities of C&S Chamblee referred to in the Answers to Interrogatories 17 through 24. The identities of such persons are not known to plaintiff at this time. Such persons may also include individuals not employed in any capacity by the C&S System, but who have some other connection with it, such as customers of C&S National, C&S Emory or C&S East Point, who purchased stock in C&S Chamblee intending to vote such stock in a way that would support and further the joint direction of the business activities of C&S Chamblee referred to in the Answers to Interrogatories 17 through 24. The identities of such persons are, however, not known to plaintiff at this time, although plaintiff believes that their existence is suggested by the information contained in the Supplement.

There may be other persons not described herein who also joined with C&S National and C&S Holding in the alleged combination, but their existence and identities are not known at this time.

(b) The "various other persons" who entered with C&S Chamblee into the alleged combination with C&S National and C&S Holding are those persons who participated in establishing, or in carrying out activities that resulted in, any of the relationships set forth in paragraph 34 with the knowledge or understanding that such relationship was part of, pursuant to, or would contribute to effectuating or furthering, the combination as it is more fully described in the Answers to Interrogatories 17 through 24. Such persons would include officers, employees and directors of C&S Chamblee who acted on behalf of C&S Chamblee in performing any of the acts as defined above with the knowledge as defined above. The identities of all such persons are not known to plaintiff at this time. However, on the basis of information contained in the Supplement, plaintiff believes that the following persons can be identified by name (their addresses, business positions, etc., are, of course, already known to defendants):

Frank L. Berry

Harry T. Fenn

E.K. Jamison

There may be other persons not described herein who also joined with C&S Chamblee in the alleged combination, but their existence and identities are not known at this time.

(c) Assuming that the term "the C&S" means the C&S System, and assuming that the term "association" means the person's relationship with the C&S System in terms of being an officer, employee, or director of a member of said System, or of being a customer of or a stockholder in such a member, the association existing between the C&S System and each of the persons identified in (b) is already known to defendants.

(d) As noted in (a) and (b) above, the information which plaintiff relied on in arriving at the descriptions and identifications set out therein is contained in the Supplement.

(d) As noted in (a) and (b) above, the information which plaintiff relied on in arriving at the descriptions and identifications set out therein is contained in the Supplement.

Answer to Interrogatory 61

(a) The "various persons" referred to in subparagraph 34(1) are those who performed any of the acts which, altogether, resulted in a charter being obtained for each of C&S Chamblee, C&S Park National, C&S South DeKalb, C&S North Fulton and C&S Sandy Springs or in each of these banks beginning to conduct the business of commercial banking. At the present time, plaintiff lacks sufficient knowledge to identify all such persons, but on the basis of information contained in the Supplement, plaintiff believes that such persons would include the corporate members of the C&S System, particularly C&S Holding, as well as any officers, directors or employees of any member of the C&S System who acted on behalf of such member in carrying out the acts defined above. The "various persons" whom plaintiff believes can presently be identified are as follows (their addresses, business positions, etc., are already known to defendants):

Warren Berry	Mills B. Lane, Jr.
Dan Blackwell	Archie Lee Lindsey
Hewitt H. Covington	W.W. Lively
Herbert Dickson	George McKinnon
T. Robert Hazelrig	John McIntyre
Hubert Harris	Dalton Scott
Bill Jones	Howard Starks

The "various persons" referred to in subparagraph 34(3) would include any officers, directors or employees of C&S National or of any other corporate member of the C&S System, who performed any acts which, singly or collectively, resulted in the sale of stock in C&S Chamblee, C&S Park National, C&S South DeKalb, C&S North Fulton or C&S Sandy Springs. At the present time, plaintiff lacks sufficient knowledge to identify all such persons, but on the basis of information contained in the Supplement, plaintiff believes that the following can be identified (their addresses, business positions, etc.. are already known to defendants):

Bob Bailey	T. Robert Hazelrig
Herbert Dickson	W. Andrew Irvin
Edward E. Elson	Mills B. Lane, Jr.

There may be other persons associated with C&S National not described herein who also contributed to the initial organization of, or assisted in the sale of stock in, C&S Chamblee, C&S Park National, C&S South DeKalb, C&S North Fulton or C&S Sandy Springs, but their existence and identities are not known at this time.

(b) Paragraph 34(6), when referring to personnel and management provided by the C&S System to each bank, was intended to mean those persons specifically named in Exhibits F, G and H of the Supplement. At this time plaintiff has no knowledge of other personnel and management supplied by the C&S System to the other defendant banks.

(c) Paragraph 34(4), in referring to correspondent services, was intended to include the following services, as noted in the Supplement on the pages indicated:

1. Computer operations	pp. 52 and 59
2. Bookkeeping functions	p. 52

3. Proof and transit operations p. 52

4. Audits p. 53

5. Coin and currency service p. 53

6. Accrual operations and preparation of tax returns p. 53

7. Investment advice on security portfolios p. 54

8. Loan participations p. 58

9. Charge account service p. 59

Plaintiff cannot state how or in what manner these services differ from those provided by other banks to their correspondents as plaintiff has not made a survey of services provided by other banks.

(d) See Answers to Interrogatories 16(f), 24(f), 33(f), 42(f) and 51(f).

(e) Paragraph 34(6), in referring to operational assistance, was intended to include the following, as noted in the Supplement on the pages indicated:

1. Establishment and review of goals pp. 42-43

2. Personal and bank performance appraisals p. 42

3. Review of salaries and cash profit sharing pp. 42-43

4. Customer service audits p. 43

5. Credit analysis and technical advice p. 44

(f) In answering this interrogatory, plaintiff relied on information contained in the Supplement.

Answer to Interrogatory 62

The "various persons" alleged by paragraph 13 to have combined with the defendants are the same as the "various other persons" which were referred to in paragraphs 38 through 43 and which have been defined and identified in the Answers to Interrogatories 55 through 60.

Answer to Interrogatory 63

Plaintiff is presently unable to identify each of the acts performed by such various persons except to the extent these acts have been identified in Answers to Interrogatories 55 through 60 and in the Supplement.

Answer to Interrogatory 64

The phrase "otherwise contributed to the furtherance thereof" as used in paragraph 13 means anything other than the performance of acts which is attributable to the "various persons" and which contributed to effectuating or carrying out the alleged combinations. Such "other contributions" would thus generally consist of refraining from doing something as opposed to performing an act, where such refrainment was consciously part of, or in furtherance of, the alleged combinations. At this time, plaintiff lacks sufficient information to identify specific instances of such "other contributions."

Answer to Interrogatory 65

(a) Yes.

(b) All cities, towns, and municipalities which are located within DeKalb and Fulton Counties, Georgia.

(c) Plaintiff is unable to define the "Atlanta Area" more precisely than is done in paragraph 14 of the Complaint.

Answer to Interrogatory 66

(a) All cities, towns, and municipalities which are located within "North Fulton County" as defined in paragraph 15 of the Complaint.

(b) Plaintiff is unable to define "North Fulton County" more precisely than is done in paragraph 15 of the Complaint.

(c) All cities, towns and municipalities located within Fulton County and DeKalb County.

Answer to Interrogatory 67

A. Plaintiff contends, as found by the Supreme Court in United States v. Philadelphia National Bank, 374 U.S. 321 (1963) and United States v. Phillipsburg National Bank, 399 U.S. 350 (1970), that it is the cluster of products and services that commercial banks offer, termed commercial banking, which constitutes the relevant product market for the purpose of evaluating the anticompetitive effects of the proposed mergers under Section 7 of the Clayton Act.

Absent discovery, plaintiff cannot definitively state what its contentions will be at trial as to the specific relevant geographic markets involved. As to the proposed mergers described in (ii)(a), plaintiff presently believes the relevant geographic market to be DeKalb County. As to the proposed mergers described in (ii)(b), plaintiff presently believes the relevant geographic markets to be North Fulton County and Fulton County. As to the joint effect of all five proposed mergers, plaintiff presently believes the relevant geographic market is the Atlanta Area. As plaintiff uses the terms "relevant geographic market" and "section of the country," they are synonymous.

B. Plaintiff will make no contentions as to "relevant geographic markets" or "relevant product markets." Such concepts are not relevant to plaintiff's claims under the Sherman Act. With respect to the trade or commerce restrained, see Answer to Interrogatory 16.

Answer to Interrogatory 68

(a) The element of "combination" which is included within the Complaint's use of the term "C&S System" is the common control exercised by C&S National over C&S Holding, C&S Emory, Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank and C&S East Point as a result of stock ownership by C&S National and C&S Holding. The definition contained in paragraph 16 was intended to convey the fact that when using the term "C&S System" plaintiff was referring to C&S National, C&S Holding, C&S Emory, Citizens and Southern DeKalb Bank, and C&S East Point, collectively.

Answer to Interrogatory 69

Plaintiff does not contend that all commercial banks perform all the functions and/or services mentioned in paragraph 17.

(a) Plaintiff believes that the banks named defendant herein perform or provide directly or indirectly the functions and/or services mentioned in paragraph 17 of the Complaint. However, absent discovery, plaintiff lacks sufficient knowledge to state whether, in fact, certain functions and services are not performed or provided or are performed or provided to a minimum or negligible degree by each of such banks.

(b) See Answer to Interrogatory 80A(d).

(c) Plaintiff does not believe that all of said banks perform or provide all such functions and/or services. However, plaintiff lacks sufficient knowledge to state specifically which functions and services are not performed by each.

Answer to Interrogatory 70

(a) Plaintiff's allegations are based upon its understanding and belief as to the nature of the commercial banking industry and as to the unique role which the industry plays in the economy. This unique role has been recognized by the Supreme Court in finding that commercial banking comprises a distinct line of commerce. United States v. Philadelphia National Bank, 374 U.S. 321 (1963).

(b) Plaintiff has made no attempt to develop information on the services provided by other types of financial institutions in connection with this case, since commercial banking is the line of commerce involved herein and such information is wholly irrelevant. United States v. Phillipsburg National Bank, 399 U.S. 350 (1970). However, plaintiff does not believe that any other type of financial institution in Georgia provides all of the services described in paragraph 17. Plaintiff believes that generally, savings and loan associations, credit unions, finance companies, life insurance companies, and other financial institutions do provide some of these services, but for the reasons stated herein, plaintiff does not have sufficient information to identify all such institutions.

(c) Plaintiff lacks sufficient knowledge to name in descending order of importance the other financial institutions and the services performed by them.

Deposits.

Answer to Interrogatory 86

A. (a)-(e) The answer to this Interrogatory may be derived or ascertained from an examination, audit or compilation of figures included in the enclosed FDIC Summary of Deposits 1970 Bank and Branch Offices by County, State.

B. (a) See answer to A. above.

(b) Plaintiff does not know the amount of net loans and discounts of each bank office and organization.

(c) All figures are as of June 30, 1970, for which date plaintiff believes they are accurate.

(d) FDIC Summary of Deposits 1970 Bank and Branch Offices by County, State.

Answer to Interrogatory 87

(a) The term "concentrated banking market" is a legal and factual conclusion relating to the structure of a market and the degree of concentration in a banking market is a function of the number, distribution and market shares of the banks and banking groups operating in that market. A banking market becomes more concentrated as the number of banks and banking groups decrease, and as the shares of the market held by the largest banks and banking groups increase.

(b) Plaintiff has no specific formula concerning what specific number of commercial banks must hold what specific percentage of commercial bank deposits in a given banking market before plaintiff would characterize such market as "concentrated."

(c) As the number, distribution and market shares of the banks in a banking market vary, its degree of concentration varies. Plaintiff has no formula pursuant to which a given set of criteria dictates any particular characterization.

Answer to Interrogatory 88

As of June 30, 1970, the four largest banking organizations in DeKalb County were (1) The C&S System; (2) First National Bank of Atlanta; (3) Trust Company of Georgia; and (4) Fulton National Bank. Their respective shares of total county deposits can be derived from the FDIC Summary of Deposits furnished in Answer to Interrogatory 86.

Answer to Interrogatory 89

This information can be derived from the FDIC Summary of Deposits furnished in Answer to Interrogatory 86.

Answer to Interrogatory 90

The "five commercial banks" referred to in paragraph 29 of the Complaint are C&S North Fulton, C&S Sandy Springs, Fulton Exchange Bank, Roswell Bank and Trust Company Bank of Sandy Springs. Their deposits and respective shares of total North Fulton County deposits can be derived from the FDIC Summary of Deposits furnished in Answer to Interrogatory 86.

Answer to Interrogatory 91

As of June 30, 1970, the four largest banking organizations in Fulton County were the same as identified in Answer to Interrogatory 88 and the dollar amount and percentage of total Fulton County deposits held by each can be derived from the FDIC Summary of Deposits furnished in Answer to Interrogatory 86.

Answer to Interrogatory 92

As of June 30, 1970, the four largest banking organizations in the Atlanta Area were those identified in Answer to Interrogatory 88 and the dollar amount and percentage of total Atlanta Area deposits held by each can be derived from the FDIC Summary of Deposits furnished in Answer to Interrogatory 86.

Answer to Interrogatory 93

Plaintiff lacks sufficient information to enable it to respond to this Interrogatory.

Answer to Interrogatory 94

(a) The "major Atlanta banks" referred to in the first sentence of paragraph 33 are C&S National, First National Bank of Atlanta, Trust Company of Georgia, Fulton National Bank and National Bank of Georgia. The latter four banks all have their home offices and principal offices in Atlanta. The second reference to "major Atlanta banks" includes all these banks with the exception of National Bank of Georgia.

(b) The "various relationships with suburban banks" referred to in paragraph 33 were relationships (1) between First National Bank of Atlanta and First National Bank of Tucker, First National Bank of Glenwood, First Bank of South DeKalb and First National Bank of Doraville; (2) between Trust Company of Georgia and Trust Company of Georgia Bank of Sandy Springs and Peachtree Bank & Trust Company; and (3) between Fulton National Bank and Northeast Commercial Bank. (The relationships between C&S National and suburban banks referred to in paragraph 33 have, of course, been described in the Complaint.) The "suburban banks" just named are further identified, to the extent presently possible, as follows:

		Principal Place of Business
1.	First National Bank of Tucker	Tucker, Ga.
2.	First National Bank of Glenwood	Unincorporated portion of DeKalb County, Ga., south of Decatur
3.	First Bank of South DeKalb	Unincorporated portion of DeKalb County, Ga., south of Decatur
4.	First National Bank of Doraville	Doraville, Ga.
5.	Trust Company of Georgia Bank of Sandy Springs	Sandy Springs, Ga.

	Principal Place of Business
6. Peachtree Bank & Trust Company	Doraville, Ga.
7. Northeast Commercial Bank	Doraville, Ga.

On the basis of presently available information, plaintiff believes these relationships to be as follows:

1. In 1969, a former director of First National, Emory L. Cocke, purchased a controlling stock interest in First National Bank of Tucker with the proceeds of a loan from First National, represented by a note payable on demand and secured by the stock purchased. First National holds an option to purchase the pledged stock. In addition, First National has provided First National Bank of Tucker with management and operational assistance. So far as plaintiff is concerned, this relationship can be described as indirect ownership of First National Bank of Tucker by First National. See United States v. First National Bank of Atlanta, et al., (N.D. Ga., Civ. No. 14748).

2. In 1968 a director of First National, Alfred D. Kennedy, purchased over 96 percent of the stock of First National Bank of Glenwood with the proceeds of a loan from First National, represented by a note payable on demand and secured by the stock purchased. First National holds an option to purchase the pledged stock. In addition, First National has provided First National Bank of Glenwood with management and operational assistance. So far as plaintiff is concerned, this relationship can be described as indirect ownership of First National Bank of Glenwood by First National. See United States v. First National Bank of Atlanta, et al., (N.D. Ga., Civ. No. 14748).

3. In 1969 First National assisted in the organization of First Bank of South DeKalb. Plaintiff believes that most of the stock in this bank was purchased with the proceeds of loans from First National, represented by notes payable on demand and secured by the stock purchased. First National held options to purchase all of this bank's stock. First National also provided First Bank of South DeKalb with management and operational assistance.

4. In 1970 First National assisted in the organization of First National Bank of Doraville. Plaintiff believes that most of the stock in this bank was purchased with the proceeds of loans from First National, represented by notes payable on demand and secured by the stock purchased. First National also provided First National Bank of Doraville with management and operational assistance.

5. In 1966 Trust Company of Georgia ("Trust Company") was instrumental in the organization of Trust Company of Georgia Bank of Sandy Springs ("Trust Company Sandy Springs"). Trust Company's holding company subsidiary purchased 5 percent of Trust Company Sandy Springs' stock and Trust Company assisted in placing additional stock.

6. In 1960 Trust Company of Georgia assisted in the organization of Peachtree Bank & Trust Company ("Peachtree Bank"). Trust Company's holding company subsidiary purchased 5 percent of Peachtree Bank's stock and Trust Company assisted in placing additional stock. Trust Company, moreover, has provided Peachtree Bank with management and operational assistance.

7. Fulton National Bank assisted in the organization of Northeast Commercial Bank and has since provided the latter with correspondent services. Further details concerning this relationship are not presently available.

5. Herbert Megar, Senior Vice-President of Fulton National Bank; and

6. Anthony Council, Senior Vice-President of Fulton National Bank.

Answer to Interrogatory 95

(a) Plaintiff will contend that C&S Sandy Springs is a legally independent bank. However, plaintiff presently believes that actual competition between C&S Sandy Springs and the other defendant commercial banks was restrained or eliminated as a consequence of the combination described in the Answers to Interrogatories 9 through 16 and therefore C&S Sandy Springs has not been a truly independent competitive force from the date of its organization until the present time.

Answer to Interrogatory 113

(a) Plaintiff does not intend to contend that the proposed acquisition by C&S Emory of C&S Chamblee, C&S South DeKalb and C&S Park National and the proposed acquisition by C&S East Point of C&S Sandy Springs and C&S North Fulton would, if effectuated, tend to create a monopoly.

No. See Answer to Interrogatory 87.

Answer to Interrogatory 115

(a) Plaintiff does not so contend.

(b) Plaintiff does not so contend.

(c) See Answers to Interrogatories 8, 9, 17, 26, 35, and 44.

(d) The vigor of competition is, in part, a function of the degree of concentration existing in a given market. The combinations have, in effect, increased, and the proposed mergers would increase the level of concentration in the banking markets here involved, thereby reducing the vigor of competition generally.

(e) See Answers to Interrogatories 8 and 119.

Answer to Interrogatory 116

Yes.

Answer to Interrogatory 117

Plaintiff does not have sufficient knowledge, at this time, to make any contentions in this regard.

Answer to Interrogatory 118

(a) Yes.

(b) Plaintiff objects to this interrogatory on the ground that it is so broad and vague that it would require plaintiff to identify every conceivable kind of comment it or any of its attorneys may have received from any person or group no matter how remotely related to the proposed mergers and regardless of whether or not the comments were of any conceivable interest to either plaintiff or defendants. In answering defendants' other interrogatories (which inquire into virtually every allegation in the Complaint) plaintiff has already identified persons possessing information used by plaintiff in answering the interrogatories and persons whom plaintiff has interviewed in an effort to obtain information of possible use in anticipation of this litigation or for its trial. In this way plaintiff has fully complied with Rule 26(b) which permits only discovery of the "identity and location of persons having knowledge of any discoverable matter."

Plaintiff also objects to answering this interrogatory, because compilation of the information sought would be a burdensome and pointless task in that it would require a search of plaintiff's records and files and inquiry of plaintiff's personnel in order to identify communications that plaintiff does not intend to rely on or offer at the trial of this action. The vast majority of such communications have been simply statements of approval or criticism apparently provoked by defendants' extensive advertising and letters written to stockholders, customers and others, commenting on this litigation.

Plaintiff also objects on the ground that the interrogatory could require plaintiff to identify individuals who may have communicated with plaintiff in confidence but who do not possess information that plaintiff intends to use or offer at the trial of this action.

Answer to Interrogatory 119

A. Paragraph 37 of the Complaint refers to certain proposed mergers and plaintiff answers this interrogatory in terms of those proposed mergers. Plaintiff will not contend that consummation of any of the proposed mergers may tend to create a monopoly in any section of the country. Plaintiff presently intends to contend at trial that consummation of the proposed mergers may substantially lessen competition by eliminating the potential for realizing competition which would exist in the Atlanta Area, North Fulton County, Fulton County, and DeKalb County but for the combinations alleged. At this time, plaintiff cannot definitively state whether any other geographic areas (portions of the foregoing) would constitute relevant geographic markets. Such determination must await discovery.

B. The potential for competition between and among defendant commercial banks will be permanently eliminated.

C. (i) The anticompetitive effect of each of the proposed mergers will be felt in commercial banking (see Answer to Interrogatory 67).

(ii) Absent discovery, plaintiff cannot definitively state what its contentions will be as to the specific relevant geographic markets involved. As to the proposed mergers of C&S Chamblee, C&S Park National, and C&S South DeKalb into C&S Emory, plaintiff presently believes the relevant geographic market to be DeKalb County (or some portions thereof). As to the proposed mergers of C&S Sandy Springs and C&S North Fulton into C&S East Point, plaintiff presently believes the relevant geographic markets to be North Fulton County and Fulton County (or some portions thereof). Plaintiff also believes that the Atlanta area is the relevant geographic market for evaluating the combined effects of the proposed mergers by C&S Emory and C&S East Point.

(iii) Commercial banks.

Plaintiff will claim that all of the documents identified in this Answer are privileged and protected from discovery as the work-product of the attorneys involved in this litigation. Such documents were prepared through the attorneys' own efforts and contain mental impressions, conclusions, opinions and legal theories protected under Rule 26(b)(3). Defendants can, without undue hardship, obtain the substantial equivalent of these documents by other means.

(d) Plaintiff objects to answering this interrogatory on the ground that "all persons supplying information" is so vague, broad and uncertain as to make the interrogatory not susceptible of an answer. Answer to Interrogatory 126 (c) identified "each and every person interviewed or contacted by plaintiff's investigators." Plaintiff is unsure of the difference between "all persons supplying information" and "each and every person interviewed or contacted." Since plaintiff sees the questions as duplicative, plaintiff feels this interrogatory has been answered in the Answer to Interrogatory 126 (c).

Plaintiff further objects to defendants' request for the information supplied by the persons identified in the Answer to Interrogatory 126 (c) on the ground that the documents reflecting such information were prepared by attorneys for the plaintiff in anticipation of this litigation. To describe the "information so supplied" would, in effect, require disclosure of these documents when the materials contained therein are protected from discovery under Rule 26(b)(3) of Federal Rules of Civil Procedures. Since the persons interviewed are identified, defendant can, without undue hardship, obtain the substantial equivalent of the materials by other means.

(g) Not applicable.

Answer to Interrogatory 127

(a) and (b) Rule 26(b) requires only that the plaintiff identify individuals with knowledge of discoverable matter. Plaintiff has done so by identifying persons possessing information used by plaintiff in answering these interrogatories and by identifying persons interviewed in connection with its "field investigation." Plaintiff also notes that since the filing of the Complaint it interviewed Evans Bruner, Vice President, Trust Company of Georgia Associates. The rule does not require plaintiff to state whether or not any individual interviewed has knowledge of any facts believed to either support or contradict the allegations contained in the complaint. Plaintiff objects to characterizing the knowledge of these individuals in the manner requested. To do so would require plaintiff to not only make a premature judgment as to whether any of the aforementioned individuals might be witnesses for plaintiff, but also to presume upon judgments that properly can be made only by defendants in their own trial preparation. Furthermore, the characterizations requested would clearly constitute the mental impressions of plaintiff's attorneys and as such are not discoverable under Rule 26(b)(3). Defendant can, of course, as already noted, obtain the substantial equivalent of the matter requested without undue hardship.

(c) Plaintiff is unable to answer this question except with respect to information and documents that may have been supplied by the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice. Plaintiff has not supplied to any individual or group any information or documents other than information contained in, and copies of, plaintiff's Complaint, which is a matter of public record. Such individuals or groups, so far as plaintiff presently knows, do not have knowledge of any discoverable matter.

Answer to Interrogatory 128

Plaintiff at present has no question as to the authenticity or genuineness of any of the said documents submitted to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Answer to Interrogatory 129

Plaintiff presently has no reason to question the accuracy of the mathematical computations which resulted in the data set forth in the Applications. Plaintiff is not, of course, able to assess the accuracy of the data upon which such computations were performed.

Answer to Interrogatory 130

Plaintiff objects to this interrogatory in its entirety as so vague, indefinite and broad as to make the interrogatory not susceptible of an answer. Defendants asks plaintiff to identify every piece of paper which may relate in any way to any of the issues involved in this lawsuit which plaintiff or any of its attorneys has looked at in connection with this case, regardless of whether it is of any conceivable interest to any party. Plaintiff has already identified, with respect to each individual interrogatory, documents containing information used by plaintiff in answering that interrogatory and has thus complied with Rule 26(b).

This interrogatory is also objectionable on the grounds that it could require plaintiff to identify privileged and confidential information which may be furnished in confidence to plaintiff by informers and which will not be offered by plaintiff at the trial of this action.

Plaintiff further objects on the grounds that the compilation of the information sought by this interrogatory would be burdensome and oppressive in that it would constitute a detailed and intimate journal of every "documentary" step taken by plaintiff in anticipation of this litigation or in preparing for trial even though plaintiff does not even intend to rely on or offer at the trial of this case all the documents so identified.

Answer to Interrogatory 131

At this time plaintiff has not decided who will be called as an expert witness at the trial of this matter.

JUSTICE SEEKS STATE CHANGES TO FOSTER BANK COMPETITION

The Justice Department wants the Council of State Governments to help get state legislatures to foster more competition among banking institutions, particularly by reexamining those laws that govern the opening of branch banks and the establishment of new banks and holding companies.

Research Paper and Policy Statement of the United States Department of Justice Regarding State Legislation Affecting the Structure of Banking Markets

The Department of Justice believes that it would be desirable for individual states to reexamine the operation of existing state legislation which affects the structure of banking markets—particularly those laws which govern the opening of branch banks and the establishment of new banks and holding companies. The Department has become aware of the operation of state laws in this area as a result of its antitrust enforcement activities and it believes that, in certain instances, such laws are unnecessarily restrictive in terms of today's needs and are detrimental to the states' interest in promoting banking competition. This matter is of concern to the federal government, not only because the McFadden Act (12 U.S.C. §36) makes state branch banking regulations binding on nationally chartered banks as well as state chartered banks. See First National Bank of Logan v. Walker Bank & Trust Co., 385 U.S. 252 (1966). Similarly, the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956 (12 U.S.C. §1842(d)) specifically preserves any state law limitation on holding company expansion.

In many states, banking markets are insulated against the entry of new competitive forces by state legislation which prohibits or severely limits the opening of new offices ("de novo" branching) by proven successful competitors, or otherwise prevents them from entering new areas through merger or the formation of bank holding companies.

These retrictions take a variety of different forms. In 15 states branch banking is prohibited altogether. 1/ In 16 other states limited branch banking is permitted within the local markets, 2/ but within at least 5 states some additional limitations are imposed on de novo entry into markets where existing banks have home offices or branches. 3/ In addition, multiple bank holding companies are prohibited by statute in 12 states 4/ and restricted in four others. 5/ Thus, as a result of these various arrangements, there are only 13 states which have statewide de novo branching and freedom of holding company entry. 6/

These various legislative limitations on entry stem primarily from a widespread fear of overbanking, prevalent in the period following the Bank Holiday of 1933; like other bank regulatory legislation of the period (including the Federal Reserve Act of 1933 and the Glass-Steagall Act of 1932), these laws were designed to deal with the conditions that contributed to the failure of many banks at the time of general economic depression. Restrictions on market extension through branching were designed to protect expansive banks against the dangers of over-extension and to protect the market positions of local banks against substantial competitive inroads. These restrictive laws also reflected the same kinds of general policies which Congress adopted to limit competition generally in the economy and thereby preserve failing businesses during the Depression.

Conditions have changed substantially since the 1930's. The risk of bank failures on a significant scale has in large part been dissipated by national economic policies and by state and federal regulatory activities, and the serious social impact of bank failure has been greatly reduced by nearly universal federal insurance of bank deposits. 7/ In these circumstances, it now seems appropriate for the states to critically re-examine the laws controlling the structure of their banking markets in the light of today's economic conditions and needs. Some states have recently taken steps to liberalize legislative schemes which have tended to unduly insulate local banking markets from new sources of competition and thereby inhibit the improvement of banking services. 8/

The basic goal in any such re-examination of the laws governing entry to banking markets should be to promote technical progress, efficiency, and innovation, while allowing banks to offer their services to customers at the lowest possible cost.

Competition has become a much more important consideration in banking policy in recent years. This may be seen in the Congressional deliberations on the Bank Holding Company Acts of 1956, 1966 and 1970 and the Bank Merger Acts of 1960 and 1966. It is strongly emphasized in the Supreme Court decisions involving bank mergers. Thus, in its 1963 Philadelphia National Bank decision, the Supreme Court stressed that the fact that banking was a fundamental industry, although highly regulated, made competition more important rather than less important. In its 1970 Phillipsburg National Bank decision the Court again stressed this point, and particularly emphasized the importance of maintaining competition among commercial banks in smaller communities, where the commercial choices available to the customer are necessarily more limited than in large metropolitan areas. Likewise, the President's Council of Economic Advisers has in 1970 emphasized the importance of competition in regulated industries—including commercial banking—as a means of promoting efficiency in operations and satisfying consumer demands. We think these national policies in favor of competition should be given careful consideration by individual states in any re-examination of their branch banking laws.

Competition in banking has traditionally focussed primarily upon providing customers greater convenience and offering new services. In recent years, however, price competition has become a more important factor, where it is not in effect prohibited by state or federal regulation. 9/ Since pricing behavior in banking markets appears to be directly related to market concentration, 10/ increased concentration in banking markets tends to have a dampening effect on the salutary development of competitive pricing behavior and other competitive developments.

Usually, the legislative insulation of banking markets from new competition is accomplished by flat prohibitions on branching or by geographical restrictions on the areas in which banks may operate branch offices. These latter limitations typically prevent outside banks from entering specific areas by branching de novo or merging. 11/ Georgraphic restrictions on entry into new markets are often supplemented by "home office protection" statutes, which prohibit the opening of de novo branches in communities where the main office of another bank is located. The tendency of restrictions of this type is to increase concentration as competitors within the insulated areas respond to normal growth pressures. Because entry by outside banks is restricted, increased internal concentration through mergers among competitors may seem desirable as a means of providing service benefits which appear to outweigh increases in concentration. We suggest, however, that actual de novo entry of new competitors may often more effectively provide the structural alterations in a banking market which are needed in order to eliminate a noncompetitive atmosphere, or to meet unsatisfied banking needs. Where the communities affected are large and growing, geographic restrictions may substantially limit desired consumer options with respect to both price and service.

Opponents of broader access to banking markets have generally advanced two types of arguments: (1) protection against overbanking and (2) the prevention of undue concentration in broader banking markets as a result of unchecked growth through merger and de novo branching by the larger banking institutions. As noted above, policy grounds for the traditional fears of overbanking are largely unrealistic. Moreover, a premise central to industry concern about over-banking has been questioned in a recent study undertaken for the New York State Banking Department, 12/ concluding that while previously insulated banks were forced to share deposit growth with new entrants after the passage of broader branching laws, their profitability was not adversely affected to a significant extent. Given the potential benefits of eliminating absolute proscriptions on new entry into banking markets, it would appear that any lingering concern in this area could be satisfied by reliance upon state or federal regulatory approval requirements that would exist under new state law.

While the traditional fears of overbanking seem largely unjustified, essentially unrestricted branching and merging have resulted in significant increases in banking concentration in some states with relatively broad branching laws. 13/ Such increases in concentration have generally been at the state level. At the local level, the more important market for most bank customers, such liberalized de novo branching has generally decreased concentration and increased competition. Furthermore, the presence of larger banks in local markets may have benefited customers by providing more sophisticated services, larger loans, and easier access to offices over a broad area. Nevertheless, dangers do remain when a few banking organizations occupy a substantial portion of the state market. Such organizations may have the power of preventing the creation or development of rival banking groups through early branching in potentially desirable locations or through other anticompetitive practices.

11/ See, generally, Smith & Greenspun, supra. A unique example is the Virginia scheme (Code of Virginia, Section 6-26) which limits de novo branching, yet allows operation of any office acquired by merger. Since an acquiring bank does not succeed to the de novo branching rights of an acquired bank and may thus be precluded from opening further offices in its new territory, many of the state's largest institutions have expanded via formation of bank holding companies, rather than by direct mergers.

12/ Kahn and Carlo, The Competitive Impact of New Branches, December 1969.

13/ See: Our Changing Banking Structure, Remarks of FRB Governor Mitchell before the Maine Bankers Association, June 14, 1968.

This danger when it does exist can best be dealt with by careful state legislation of de novo branching on a case by case basis. Such state regulation should be concerned with overly extensive de novo branching by a banking organization in local markets where it is already a dominant factor. It would be complimentary to present laws requiring federal regulatory approval, and antitrust scrutiny, for mergers and acquisitions involving banking institutions. 14/

If regulatory agencies can thus facilitate growth in procompetitive directions, the benefits which derive from new entry into banking markets may be achieved without adverse concentration effects throughout a region or state. Such an approach would better serve the public interest than the inflexible laws which currently limit new banking competition in a considerable number of the states.

In light of competitive issues such as those herein discussed, the Department suggests that the states, as appropriate:

1. Carefully re-examine the bases for existing restrictions upon entry into new banking markets by qualified banks;

2. Explore the enactment of new legislation which maximizes the ability of banks to more freely respond to market forces;

3. Consider specifically: (a) eliminating geographic limitations within the state upon the operation of branch offices opened de novo and perhaps upon branches acquired through merger, (b) eliminating home office protection statutes, particularly in developed areas, or where such statutes protect only large banks, and (c) authorizing bank holding companies which could bring new services and competition to local banking markets;

4. Provide regulatory agencies with sufficient legal flexibility to make basic decisions affecting the evolution of banking market structures; and to apply different standards on de novo branching to areas marked by disparate economic conditions and market structures; and

5. Provide statutory standards which recognize that the convenience and needs of banking markets are usually best served by maintaining competition at the highest possible level.

14/ See, e.g., the Bank Merger Act, particularly 12 U.S.C. §1828(c)(5) and the Bank Holding Company Act, 12 U.S.C. §1842(c).

THE CITIZENS & SOUTHERN NATIONAL BANK

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

AUDIT MANUAL

E- 860

PREFACE

This manual is intended to outline the scope of internal auditing within this Bank and the division of audit responsibilities between the Local Auditors and the Traveling Auditors. It follows the outline of the Audit Questionnaire of this Bank which is itself patterned after the Bank's Statement of Condition and its Operating Statement.

It is not intended to be an ironclad set of rules and regulations from which no variance is permitted, but rather intended to be a guide to improve audit techniques. It is believed that most of these procedures can be adhered to; however, where circumstances warrant other action, the individual involved should do what he thinks will produce the best results. When such deviations occur, they should be brought to the attention of the General Auditor as soon as possible.

The Local Auditor should maintain adequate records on all work performed by him. His files should be set up in the same order as the Audit Questionnaire, and will be subject to review by the General Auditor.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDIT EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE LOCAL INSTALLMENT LOAN DEPARTMENT. COPIES OF THIS REPORT, SHOWING THE CORRECTIVE ACTION TAKEN BY THE DEPARTMENT HEAD, SHOULD BE SENT TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR AND CENTRAL INSTALLMENT LOAN DEPARTMENT.

The General Auditor's annual audit report should cover the work performed by the Local Auditor and any deficiencies therein. It should list exceptions found since the date of the last annual audit, and, where appropriate, it should outline recommended corrective action, or comment on the adequacy of corrective measures already taken.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

ASSETS CASH

IN OUR VAULTS

1. HAS CASH BEEN VERIFIED QUARTERLY TO THE GENERAL LEDGER?

TELLER CASH VERIFICATION

It is the duty of the Local Auditor to see that the cash charged to each individual teller is verified once each quarter. The cash counts must be on a surprise basis either early in the morning or in the afternoon after the tellers have placed their cash in the vault. At least once each year all tellers should be counted at one time where it is possible. In verifying tellers' cash, the Local Auditor must verify one hundred percent of the currency under straps in denominations of $5.00 and over. Ten percent to twenty percent of the strapped currency in the one dollar denomination should be selected at random and verified. All bagged silver must be opened and verified and a small percentage of wrapped coin unwrapped and verified.

In counting cash, Form No. 7-205 should be used in its entirety. Any checks held by the teller should be traced the following day to be sure they actually clear the bank. A record should be made of any items other than cash which are held as cash, and these items must be investigated. All checks or debit tickets held by the teller should be approved by an officer of the bank for holding until the next business day. AT NO TIME SHOULD A TELLER HOLD HIS OR HER OWN CHECK. If such a situation is found to exist, a copy of the item should be made and brought to the immediate attention of the Operations Officer of the bank and the General Auditor. The Local Auditor may choose to verify cash by supervising an exchange of cash between tellers whereby the tellers audit each other. When this method is used, it is very important for the teller being audited to remain in the presence of the teller performing the audit, observing the verification. Form 7-205 should be used for this purpose and signed by both tellers.

VAULT CASH VERIFICATION

When the Head Teller's vault cash is verified, the Local Auditor must verify one hundred percent of currency under straps in denominations of $5.00 and over, and ten percent to twenty percent of the strapped currency in the one dollar denomination selected at random. Thirty percent of the bagged coin must be opened and verified. In offices employing the use of scales, the Local Auditor may weigh the coin, occasionally opening a bag for inspection. The Local Auditor should also determine that bagged coin on shelves is being properly rotated by inspecting dates on bag tags. All bags should be bagged as outlined in MG 22.307.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

IN OUR VAULTS - Continued

BALANCING TO GENERAL LEDGER

When balancing the total bank cash held by each teller to the General Ledger, the Head Teller Consolidated Balance Sheet must be prepared, listing each teller's cash as shown on the Cash Count Sheet, Form No. 7-205, along with any late work totals as taken from the individual teller reports, Form No. 18-0823. All missing cash tickets must be described by teller number, transaction number, date of item and dollar amount, any outstanding credits must be described in a similar manner. Outstanding credits will in most cases represent tellers' cashed checks and these items must be brought to the attention of the Operation Officer of the bank as soon as possible after the cash count. All outstanding debit and credit items must be followed until they are cleared. As items are cleared the Local Auditor must see the actual item and attach a copy of the back and front to his cash audit work papers. (NOTE: See Audit Question 15, this section, for the proper handling of cash tickets not currently posted to the General Ledger as of the date of your cash audit.) In those larger offices where only part of the tellers are counted, obtain a copy of Head Tellers Consolidated Balance Sheet, recap the figures appearing thereon and bring to the attention of the Operations Officer of the bank any unusually old or large outstanding items.

OVERAGE AND SHORTAGE DIFFERENCES

The Local Auditor should check to be sure that tellers do not have a kitty, and, further, that any overage or shortage of five dollars or more is approved by an officer of the bank on the day the teller is out of balance. The O&S ticket must be processed no later than the following day's cut-off.

2. IS MUTILATED CURRENCY SHIPPED WITH PROPER FREQUENCY?

The Local Auditor should observe the amount of mutilated coin and currency carried and the frequency with which it is shipped to insure that this unusable money is kept to a minimum.

3. DO TELLERS VERIFY CASH BOUGHT FROM OTHER TELLERS?

The Local Auditor should determine through observation and questioning of the tellers that cash bought from other tellers is being verified. Further, it should be determined that the policies as outlined in the GOG are being adhered to.

POOR COPY

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS NOTED, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

4. ARE CASH SHIPMENTS BEING REGISTERED AND INSURED OR SHIPPED BY AUTHORIZED ARMORED CAR CARRIER?

While counting the vault cash, the Local Auditor should, through observation and questioning, determine if cash shipments are being registered and insured or consigned to an armored carrier. If an authorized car carrier is used for coin and currency shipments, the Head Teller should have readily available the list of individuals, authorized by the armored car carrier, to sign for and receive such shipments. Also, the receipt book, supplied by the armored car carrier and held by the Head Teller, should be reviewed to insure that shipments are properly described. Outgoing shipments must be stored as required by C&S System Security Department. Incoming shipments should be delivered directly to the Head Teller's vault, and "big" money housed as outlined by System Security before the Head Teller leaves the vault.

5. ARE ALL PRESCRIBED PROTECTIVE MEASURES BEING CARRIED OUT COVERING SEALER (OR CRIMPER) IN REGARD TO MONEY SHIPMENTS?

While counting the vault cash the Local Auditor should, through observation and questioning, determine if the sealer (or crimper) is being properly controlled and that it is never available to unauthorized persons. (The most logical place to store this item when not in use is in the cash vault.)

6. ARE ALL PRESCRIBED PROTECTIVE MEASURES BEING CARRIED OUT COVERING THE PREPARATION FOR AND SHIPMENT OF MONEY?

The Local Auditor should assure himself that all shipments of money are properly packaged with currency being enclosed in a paper bag sealed with manila gummed tape and the package stamped with the teller's stamp. This package of currency should then be placed in a cloth money bag that does not have any holes in it and the bag sealed with the sealer or crimper provided for that purpose. The lead seal must indicate the identification of the bank. The Local Auditor should check for compliance with the appropriate GOG's.

7. IS CASH BEING HELD TO A MINIMUM?

BANK CASH

This question can be answered only by determining the cash requirements of the bank. The most practical method for determining a bank's cash requirement is to analyze the checks cashed by the bank over a 30-day period by referring to the General Ledger and scheduling the credits to "Cash", which represent checks cashed and cash sold to the Head Teller. Cash sold to the Head Teller should be deducted in determini cash requirements. Of course, the cash requirements of a bank will exceed the amount of checks, since there must be a certain margin of safety to cover unusual withdrawals. This margin of safety, which should be estimated conservatively, will vary depending on the locati of the bank and how easy it is for the bank itself to obtain cash from the Federal Reserve or other source.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

IN OUR VAULTS - Continued

TELLER CASH

During the quarterly verification of teller cash, the Auditor must determine if cash held by the individual teller is kept within the prescribed limits. The Local Auditor should also refer to the monthly Operations Report, where applicable, and review the average cash held by the tellers. Any abnormal fluctuation should be discussed with the Operations Officer of the bank.

8. ARE TELLER OVER AND SHORTS AND CASH ITEM LOSSES NORMAL?

The Local Auditor should maintain a record of over and short entries, cash item losses, and other losses, broken down according to the individuals responsible for the overages, shortages and losses. If this procedure is followed, the Local Auditor will have a running record of which individuals in the bank are causing these overages and losses, and can determine whether or not any one individual's record is satisfactory or unsatisfactory. A monthly report must be submitted to the General Auditor by the Local Auditor by individual and/or department. Unsatisfactory records should be brought to the attention of the Operations Officer of the bank and the General Audito In reviewing such records, the absence of overages, shortages, and losses should be investigated as much as the presence of an excess number. Absence may be occasioned by the maintenance of a kitty or other unauthorized methods.

9. ARE TELLER CASH, VAULT CASH, AND C&S MONEY ORDERS BEING PROPERLY PROTECTED?

The Local Auditor, through personal observation, will be able to determine whether or not the tellers' cages, money buggies, money vaults and money orders are being properly safeguarded at all times. He should make a point to check all cages, money buggies, payroll buggies with combination locks, and vaults during the banking hours and after banking hours to ascertain that all good banking practices are being carried out. No teller, for example, should leave his or her cage or money buggy without locking up his or her money and/or money orders and taking the key with him. This means ten seconds, coffee break, lunch time, etc. Also, the Local Auditor should assure himself that the vault cash and vault supply of money orders are properly protected by periodically inspecting the vault. He should determine whether or not definite responsibility could be placed on one person if there were a shortage in the vault cash or money orders. It is the Local Auditor's responsibility to insure that the GOG covering the inspection of teller stations and the closing and locking of the vault is complied with.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

Only the Head Teller should know the combination to his cash vault, but a record of the combination should be held in another vault or safe deposit box under dual control, by the Operations Officer or Cashier, in a sealed envelope and only opened in case of death, sickness, or vacation. If it is necessary to open this combination, and as a result another person has knowledge of the combination, then the combination should be changed when the person (Head Teller) returns to work. A record of all combinations should be sent to the Comptroller in a sealed envelope as outlined in the GOG.

10. ARE ALL PRESCRIBED PROTECTIVE MEASURES BEING CARRIED OUT COVERING CASH?

The Local Auditor, in counting the tellers, should be sure that each teller has "hot money" with a record of the series numbers of the bills being held by a responsible individual, such as the Branch Manager, Assistant Manager, etc., in a safe place. The straps on these bills should have a current date and the bills should not be dog-eared. Money of the $100.00 denomination should be used. There should also be a supply of "hot money" maintained with vault cash.

11. ARE ALL TELLERS' CASHED CHECKS MICROFILMED?

Tellers' cashed checks should be microfilmed prior to being processed by the Proof Department. The Local Auditor should determine from time to time that this is being done.

12. WHEN A TELLER IS LEAVING ON VACATION, IS THE CASH COUNTED AND RETURNED TO RESERVE?

The Local Auditor should determine that this is standard practice and make periodic checks to ascertain that this is being done when tellers leave for a vacation.

13. ARE CHECKS PAYABLE TO C&S PROPERLY HANDLED?

In handling checks payable to C&S, we should be aware that when a check signed by John Doe, payable to the bank, is presented to the bank by John Smith, it is our risk if we use the proceeds of this check for anything other than something for which John Doe will clearly receive credit, unless John Doe personally directs us to do so. If any check is delivered to us and payable to us but sent to us by someone other than the drawer of the check, we must inquire of the drawer as to the use of the funds. All tellers, particularly Exchange Tellers and Loan & Discount Tellers, should be aware of this exposure, and, when the occasion arises, these tellers should refer the customer to an officer who should determine that there is no fraud involved. If such a check is presented by an employee or officer, or with our officer's initials, for any reason other than for credit to an account or loan of the maker, a copy of both the front and back of the check and the offsetting credit must be sent to the Local Auditor. The Local Auditor should review this with the tellers at frequent intervals, especially when there has been a change in personnel.

14. ARE TELLER MACHINES MADE INOPERABLE WHEN UNATTENDED?

Teller machines must be made inoperable when unattended. This is accomplished by removing the key from the machine. The purpose of locking the machine when it is unattended is to prevent anyone other than the teller responsible from validating a deposit or putting through a transaction on the machine. This means that the keys must be removed when the teller is on break, at lunch, or at any other time the teller is out of sight of the machine. At the end of the day, keys should be removed and placed in an inconspicuous place. No two or more machines in one office should be keyed the same. The following business day, it is important for the teller to clear the machine to determine that no transactions remain within. Through observation, the Local Auditor should determine compliance with this rule each time he is in the vicinity of the teller line.

15. ARE PROPER EFFORTS BEING MADE TO CLEAR CASH TICKETS NOT CURRENTLY POSTED TO THE GENERAL LEDGER?

During his periodic reconciliation of total cash, the Local Auditor should ascertain whether or not there are any old cash tickets outstanding. Normally, the cash tickets should be posted to the General Ledger on the day of the transaction and returned to the Head Teller on the morning of the following day for use by the Head Teller in balancing tellers' cash to the General Ledger. Cash tickets not clearing on the day of the transaction must be traced immediately with the Operations Department. Promptness is essential. Any cash tickets not clearing within two weeks must be cleared at the end of two weeks by debiting General Ledger Cash and crediting Unclaimed Demand Deposits for the amount of each cash ticket. A copy of the credit to Unclaimed Deposits must be forwarded to the Local Auditing Department. The credit must show the date of the transaction, transaction number, teller name and number, and the amount of the cash ticket.

16. ARE TELLERS BALANCING CASH DAILY?

All tellers should balance cash daily. If a teller has transactions after his normal balancing has been completed, the teller should rebalance before leaving for the day. It is mandatory that the Local Auditor be able to determine from a teller's report that the teller was or was not in balance after the final transaction on the date of the report.

17. HAS NO CASH BEEN SENT TO THE PROOF DEPARTMENT WITH A DEPOSIT?

The Proof Department should notify the Local Auditor any time cash is included along with a deposit. An Auditor's Exception Report should be written so that a record will be maintained on the number of occurrences a teller might have within the audit year.

18. ARE TELLERS' COPIES OF SIGNATURE CARDS PROPERLY CONTROLLED?

Tellers' copies of signature cards should be locked up overnight, and not left exposed and unattended, if possible, with the filing equipment in use. If the signature card files are not equipped with locks, and locks cannot be installed, management should be consulted for a decision on cost of new files versus exposure.

19. ARE DATES ON THE PHOTOCHECK CASHING CAMERAS CHANGED DAILY?

In branches having the equipment to photograph customers cashing checks, the equipment must be set to imprint the current calendar date on checks cashed. The time imprinted should be the same as the time shown on the equipment clock. Tellers should check the machines each morning to insure that the machine date and time are correct. The Local Auditor, during his reviews, should determine this procedure is followed.

BANK PROTECTION--BANK ROBBERY

1. ARE MONTHLY TRAINING SESSIONS, REVIEWING THE PROTECTION MANUALS OUTLINED IN THE COMPTROLLER'S DEPARTMENT BULLETINS PERTAINING TO BANK HOLDUPS, CONDUCTED WITH ALL PERSONNEL WHO MIGHT BE INVOLVED IN A BANK ROBBERY?

   Local Auditors should assure themselves that regular training session are held with all personnel who might be involved in a bank robbery, by reviewing the monthly reports of security meetings. These training sessions should review all items covered in the Comptroller's Department bulletins regarding protection measures in case of a bank holdup and, particularly, each person should practice operating the alarm device at their regular work post.

2. DOES BRANCH MANAGER OR PERSON RESPONSIBLE FOR OPERATIONS OF MAIN BANKING ROOM FLOOR AND OTHER KEY PEOPLE HAVE IMMEDIATELY AVAILABLE PHYSICAL IDENTIFICATION FORMS AND A HOLDUP CHECKLIST?

   The person in charge of the main banking room floor in the larger offices and the branch manager and other key people should be completely familiar with the recommendations on the holdup checklist and have a supply of the physical identification forms on hand.

3. DOES THE OFFICE HAVE, IN YOUR OPINION, A WELL ARRANGED PLAN OF ACTION IN THE EVENT OF A ROBBERY?

   Local Auditors should review with the Branch Manager and other personnel the plan of action in the event of a robbery to determine if in their opinion each office has made the necessary preparations.

4. IS ONE PERSON ASSIGNED THE DEFINITE RESPONSIBILITY OF TRAINING NEW EMPLOYEES IN THE OPERATION OF THE ALARM SYSTEM AND HAVE THE NEW EMPLOYEES ACTUALLY OPERATED THE ALARM DEVICES?

   One person in each office should have the definite responsibility of training all new people in the lobby, particularly tellers, in the details of the holdup procedure and the operation of the holdup devices. This person should see that the new employee operates the alarm devices until he is completely familiar with the operation and can set off the alarm without any hesitancy.

5. IS THE FILM MONITOR CHECKED EACH MORNING TO BE SURE THAT HOLDUP CAMERAS CONTAIN ADEQUATE SUPPLY OF FILM? L-T

Both Local and Traveling Auditors should satisfy themselves that the film monitor is checked each morning before the bank vault is opened to determine that the cameras have not been accidently set off during the night and the supply of film expended. A log book should be used which the individual initials daily and records the date, time, and number of frames exposed to evidence the fact that the film monitor was checked.

6. IS FILM IN HOLDUP CAMERAS CHANGED AT PROPER INTERVALS? L-T

Both Local and Traveling Auditors should satisfy themselves that the film in the cameras is changed as recommended by the Comptroller's Department Bulletin on Alarms and Cameras. Specifically, the film in the cameras should be changed each six months or after 650 frames have been exposed, whichever occurs first. The film should be sent to the Purchasing Department 8th Floor, Main Office, Atlanta, Ga., each six (6) months to have test prints developed. If trouble occurs with the cameras, test prints should be developed each time the camera is worked on or adjusted.

7. ARE CAMERAS ADEQUATELY PROTECTED FROM DAMAGE OR REMOVAL BY ROBBERS? L-T

All cameras should be protected to the extent that it would be very difficult for a robber to damage or remove them for the purpose of destroying this evidence of his crime. Protection would be adequate where the camera is encased in a container which is mounted out of reach amply secured to the wall or other stationary object. During the course of their observing bank robbery protective measures, the Local and Traveling Auditors should determin that all cameras are adequately protected in this respect.

BANK PROTECTION - BANK ROBBERY (Continued)

8. ARE, IN YOUR OPINION, SUFFICIENT CAMERAS AND ALARM DEVICES INSTALLED AND PROPERLY LOCATED? L-T

Both Local and Traveling Auditors should acquaint themselves with the location of cameras and alarm devices and decide in their opinion whether or not sufficient cameras and alarm devices are in the office, and whether they are in proper locations.

9. ARE PROPER PRECAUTIONS TAKEN BY OFFICE BEFORE AND AFTER BANKING HOURS? L-T

Both Local and Traveling Auditors should satisfy themselves by observation and questioning that proper procedures are taken early in the morning and in the afternoon after banking hours. This includes a "Code" call each morning to be handled in accordance with prescribed procedure outlined in the Holdup Protection Manual. Keys to bank entrances should be given only to employees (preferably male and officers), and, where necessary, cleaning contractors. A control list should be maintained showing all individuals having keys and signatures should be obtained upon release of a bank entrance key. Those officers equipped with the "gold key" anti-ambush alarm device should control the key to the device so that it would not be readily available to a bandit or burglar.

10. IS A RECORD OF ALARM AND CAMERA EQUIPMENT SERVICING MAINTAINED IN EACH OFFICE?

The Local Auditor should determine that alarm and camera equipment has been serviced during the past year, by reviewing the Maintenance of Equipment log in each office. We are required by the Bank Protection Act to keep a record of servicing, as outlined on Page 11-A of the Security Manual ("Red Book").

6. ARE REPORTS ON CASH ITEMS MADE TO THE LOCAL AUDITOR AND SYSTEM AUDITING WHERE REQUIRED? L

When reviewing cash items, the Local Auditor should determine that he has a report from the Branch Manager or Assistant Branch manager concerning each cash item returned because of "no account", "unknown", "signature illegible", or "unable to locate account". These reports should describe the item and the reasons, given by the teller, what item was cashed. Each item of this nature should be assigned to an individual other than the teller who originally cashed the item for the necessary collection efforts.

7. ARE PROPER EFFORTS BEING MADE TO EFFECT THE COLLECTION OF ALL ITEMS HELD AS CASH ITEMS? L

The Local Auditor should analyze the collection of non-current cash items to assure himself that the bank is making every reasonable effort to collect these items.

8. ARE CLEARINGS BALANCED QUARTERLY TO THE GENERAL LEDGER AND VERIFIED? L

Once a quarter, the Local Auditor should balance the clearing figures of the Proof Department for all clearing banks against the general ledger after balancing the clearings the figures so obtained should be verified by correspondence between the Local Auditor and the drawee banks.

9. ARE CLEARINGS RETURNS ON VERIFICATION DATE TRACED? L

In requesting verifications of the clearings balances from the drawee banks, the Local Auditor should request each drawee bank to advise him of any unusual return items in these clearings. Also, the Local Auditor should review all return items from such verified clearings to see that they are proper. Where practical, it is recommended that on the date of such verification the drawee bank be requested to return all the return items to the Local Auditor for his inspection before returning them to the bank proper.

10. IS THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANK COLLECTION ACCOUNT RECONCILED AND TRACED MONTHLY?

The bank's records detailing the Federal Reserve Bank Collection account should be balanced monthly to the general ledger by the Local Auditor. These figures should be checked against the statement of the Federal Reserve Bank after the entries have been made by them.

ASSETS CASH

11. ARE TRANSIT CASH LETTERS TRACED AND RECONCILED QUARTERLY? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should obtain a listing of the outstanding transit cash letters, balance this listing against the General Ledger and then verify each item by intercepting the remittance or advice of credit from the correspondent bank, tracing direct all items not cleared in a reasonable length of time.

12. ARE TRANSITS (CASH AND COLLECTION) SENT OUT ON DAY OF RECEIPT? L

The prompt dispatch of transits can be determined only through observation and questioning. All such collections should be sent out on the same day that they are received and none should be held over until the next business day. The Local Auditor should acquaint himself with this operation to be sure that it is being handled properly.

13. ARE TRANSIT COLLECTIONS TRACED PROMPTLY? L

This question can be answered by observation and review of the operations of the Collection Department. All outstanding items should be reviewed and those which have been outstanding for more than a reasonable length of time should be further reviewed to determine whether or not tracers have been sent. The Local Auditor should review outstanding items quarterly.

14. ARE TRANSIT DRAFTS PROPERLY AUTHORIZED? L

The Local Auditor should determine through observation and questioning that transit drafts in excess of $500.00, for which we give our customer immediate credit, are being approved by the account officer. If a customer frequently deposits such items for immediate credit, there should be a memo in file in the Collection Department, signed by the account officer, outlining the dollar amount of outstanding drafts permissible for the customer. During the Local Auditor's review, he should also determine that the depositing customer is not drafting on himself to obtain immediate credit and then using the uncollected funds.

ON DEPOSIT IN FEDERAL RESERVE AND OTHER BANKS

1. IS THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANK RESERVE ACCOUNT BEING RECONCILED BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

This account should be reconciled monthly by the Local Auditor. A file should be maintained by the Local Auditor of such reconcilements showing outstanding items, all of which should be verified by him. Exceptions in the above reconcilement should be investigated by the Local Auditor and traced to the point where he is satisfied that such exceptions are in order.

ON DEPOSIT IN FEDERAL RESERVE AND OTHER BANKS (Continued)

2. ARE LEGAL RESERVE REQUIREMENTS COMPLIED WITH? L

The Local Auditor should review the legal reserve requirements of the bank on a quarterly basis and determine whether or not these requirements have been and are being met.

3. ARE "DUE FROM CORRESPONDENT BANK" ACCOUNTS BEING RECONCILED MONTHLY BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

All "Due From Correspondent Bank" accounts (excluding "Due From C&S" accounts) should be reconciled each month by the Local Auditor. Such reconcilements should be retained in his file and examined by the Traveling Auditors.

4. ARE "DUE FROM C&S BANK" ACCOUNT RECONCILEMENTS REVIEWED BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

The "Due From C&S Bank" account statement should be reconciled within a few days after its receipt. Statements for affiliates and associate correspondent bank accounts are rendered either weekly, semi-monthly or monthly. The reconcilements of these accounts should be reviewed and the latest statement reconciled or re-reconciled by the Local Auditor at the times of his periodic reviews, but at least quarterly. All exceptions and reconcilements on "Due From C&S Bank" accounts should be traced by the Local Auditor to the point where he is satisfied such exceptions are in order. The Local Auditor should trace all official exchanges, drawn on other banks, outstanding more than twelve months.

5. IS THE LOCAL OPERATIONS OFFICER FAMILIAR WITH EXCEPTIONS IN THE "DUE FROM C&S BANK" AND OTHER DUE FROM BANK ACCOUNTS OUTSTANDING FOR EXCESSIVE PERIODS OF TIME, AND ARE PROPER EFFORTS BEING MADE TO CLEAR SUCH EXCEPTIONS? L

It is the Operations Officer's responsibility to keep abreast of the condition of these reconcilements and to initiate corrective action where warranted. Each time the Local Auditor reconciles the accounts, he should determine whether or not the Operations Officer has carried out his responsibility.

6. IS THE C&S INTER-OFFICE ACCOUNT REVIEWED? L

Monthly, the Local Auditor should review outstanding items on the C&S Inter-Office account, discuss old items with management to determine if they were being followed properly, and prepare exception reports on thirty-day old items.

ASSETS SECURITIES

U. S. GOVERNMENT BONDS
STATE, COUNTY, AND MUNICIPAL OTHER SECURITIES

1. ARE ALL SECURITIES UNDER PROPER DUAL CONTROL? L

The Local Auditor should review periodically the manner in which the bank's securities are held to determine whether or not proper dual control is exercised over their custody. The Traveling Auditors should also review this operation. A suggested method of control is the maintenance of an In and Out Book in which all additions to and withdrawals from the bank's portfolio are recorded, the entries being initialled by both parties attendant to such additions or withdrawals.

2. ARE ALL SECURITIES VERIFIED SEMI-ANNUALLY? L

The bank's entire portfolio should be verified physically at least twice a year. The verification by a Supervising Agency's Examiners may be accepted as one verification. This includes verifying securities held for us by others through correspondence. While examining the securities, the Auditor should be alert for counterfeit certificates. Anything obviously unusual about a certificate should be investigated.

3. IS ANY DEPRECIATION IN MARKET VALUE COVERED BY "RESERVE FOR LOSSES ON SECURITIES"? T

Depreciation in market value of securities should be determined by the Traveling Auditors in connection with their audit. It involves appraising the bank's portfolio on a current market basis, determining the extent of depreciation against net book value and comparing any such depreciation against the "Reserve for Losses on Securities".

4. ARE EXCHANGES HANDLED PROPERLY? L

On all exchanges, the Local Auditors should determine whether or not the new issues received in exchange for old are being set up on the bank's books at the proper figure. From a tax standpoint, we are required to set up a new issue at the current market value. This should be done periodically throughout the year.

5. ARE PURCHASES AND SALES AUTHORIZED? L

Purchases and sales of bank securities should be recorded in the minutes of the Board of Directors Meeting. The Local Auditors should inspect these minutes to determine whether or not all purchases and sales of the bank's securities have been authorized and approved by the Board of Directors. This should be done along with the work outlined above.

6. ARE ALL ENTRIES VERIFIED? L-T

In the National Bank this verification is a responsibility of the Local Auditor. The Traveling Auditors should investigate the procedure used by him. The Local Auditor should check and initial each day all entries made by the Bond Department, delivering them to the Proof Department. In reviewing these entries the Local Auditor should check all contra entries to satisfy himself that everything is in order. In the affiliate banks, the Local Auditor should verify all entries by detailed review of each transaction on a quarterly basis, paying particular attention to contra entries.

7. ARE SECURITIES RECORDS ADEQUATE? L

The Local Auditor during his audits should inspect and appraise the securities records of the bank. In particular, he should look for adequacy of descriptions, dates of purchases, and dates of sales.

1. ARE NOTE RECORDS IN BALANCE WITH THE GENERAL LEDGER?

The Local Auditor should review the listing of the notes by the Loan & Discount Department to determine that the Department is listing and balancing the notes each month. It is suggested that the Local Auditor have the Loan Department forward to him their balancing tapes each month. Any differences or exceptions should be followed by the Local Auditor. Once each year a trial balance of the notes and the Liability Ledger should be made by the Local Auditor, and in this connection, the Auditor should handle the actual listing, but it would be in order for loan personnel to check back the listirg so long as the Auditor investigates all changes.

2. ARE NOTES BEING VERIFIED ON A BI-ANNUAL BASIS?

Commercial loans should be verified with the customer by the Local Auditor so that the entire loan portfolio will be covered in a two year period. This verification should be made on a continuous basis by verifying approximately one-twentyfourth (1/24) of the loans each month. Rather than selecting a particular alphabet to verify, the method of selection should be on a RANDOM SELECTION basis. This means that it is possible for some of the loans to be verified more than once during a year - depending on the outcome of the random selection. Loan accounts to be verified should be selected from the Department's listing tape of the Liability Ledger, starting at a point on the tape indicated by the random selection method - then every twenty-fourth loan account from that point will be verified direct with the borrower. It will be necessary for the Auditor to account for the notes on all loan accounts verified, preparing verifications from the notes, and he must include all related escrow accounts. The Local Auditor should retain under his control file copies of all verifications.

3. ARE STANDARD C&S NOTE FORMS USED?

In handling the notes for various other purposes, the Local Auditor should determine that C&S note forms are being used. Any exceptions found should be directed to the attention of the officer in charge of the department or office.

4. ARE PAST DUE NOTES BEING FOLLOWED, AND ARE DELINQUENT CHARGES BEING COLLECTED?

The Local Auditor should ascertain that past due notes are being submitted to the Executive Officer and the Board of Directors for their review at least monthly. Semi-annually the Local Auditor should review the past due notes, and those past due sixty days and over should be discussed with the Executive Vice President or President. All past dues should be reviewed at the time of the annual audit. With respect to delinquent charges, in the National Bank, the Accrual Department will write a memorandum to the Local Auditor regarding any charges that are not collected, but in the Affiliate Banks the Local Auditor should spot check for these collections at the time interest received from loans is checked.

5. ARE NOTE NOTICES MAILED SEVEN DAYS IN ADVANCE OF MATURITY?

When the Local Auditor is performing other work in the Loan Department, he should make it a practice to look in the tickler file to see if there are any notices which should already have been mailed. At least semi-annually he should specifically review the department's procedure in this connection.

6. ARE PROPER LIABILITY RECORDS MAINTAINED ON INDIRECT PAPER? L

In all cases where loans are rediscounted with the bank, the endorser's total indirect liability must be reflected on a liability ledger record in order that the volume of each endorser's liability will be readily available for review and can be controlled.

It is the Local Auditor's responsibility to determine that indirect paper is posted on the liability ledger under the name of the endorser. He should make an exception of any deviation from the procedure during his continuous audits of Commercial Department loans, and follow to see that corrective action is initiated.

7. IS INDIRECT PAPER VERIFIED DIRECT WITH BOTH THE MAKER AND ENDORSER? L

When indirect paper is included in the Local Auditor's random selection of notes to be verified, he must verify the indirect loans with both the maker and the endorser. This is necessary to assure that the paper is bona-fide and that any payments made direct to the endorser are promptly forwarded to the bank.

8. ARE LOAN CLASS CODES CORRECT? L

When reviewing notes, the Local Auditor should determine that each loan reviewed is classified correctly on the computer print-out.

COLLATERAL

Notes and collateral should be audited on a continuous basis by the Local Auditor in the following manner:

The checking of notes and collateral should be tied in with the verification program. Each month, when the loans are verified, notes and collateral for these particular loans should be checked and the questions listed below applied.

One hundred percent of negotiable collateral pledged as security on loans selected for verification should be physically checked and confirmed with the customer.

THE LOCAL AUDITOR SHOULD SEND AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION REPORT TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE WITH COPIES TO THE DEPARTMENT HEAD AND THE GENERAL AUDITOR ON EACH EXCEPTION LOCATED, MAINTAINING A COPY IN HIS FILES.

1. IS COLLATERAL LISTED ON THE NOTES ON HAND?

The Local Auditor should make an exception for any collateral listed on the notes which is not in the bank's loan files.

2. IS COLLATERAL PROPERLY DESCRIBED ON NOTES?

In the course of checking collateral, the Local Auditor should determine that collateral pledged is described in a manner that positive identification can always be made. Notes secured by assigned life insurance should recite the name of the insurance company and policy number. Notes secured by bonds should recite the issuing agency, par value, interest rate and maturity. Notes secured by security agreements should recite the dates of security agreements and a brief description of type of collateral pledged. Notes secured by real estate should recite date of the security deed to real estate and a brief description as to location or property. Notes secured by savings bonds should show the issuing institution and bond numbers. Where loans are secured by stocks, the number of shares and the issuing corporation should be shown on the notes, but, in addition to this information, the certificate numbers should be shown on the collateral cards.

3. IS NEGOTIABLE COLLATERAL UNDER DUAL CONTROL AND HOUSED IN THE VAULT OVERNIGHT? L

The Local Auditor should determine through frequent observation that all negotiable collateral is maintained under strict dual control and locked in the vault overnight. Once dual control is established, the Local Auditor should guard against breakdowns in the control, especially where a change in personnel or assignments is concerned.

4. IS PROPER RECORD KEPT OF ENTRIES INTO THE NEGOTIABLE COLLATERAL? L

This record should be in the form of a journal ledger to which there shall be recorded all the additions to or withdrawals from negotiable collateral. Entries should be dated, and each entry should describe the account involved and the securities which were withdrawn or added. It is not necessary to have a detailed description of the securities by certificate number as a listing of the number of shares and kind of securities involved is ordinarily sufficient. The Local Auditor should inspect this record and question personnel no less than quarterly to be sure that it is being handled properly.

5. ARE RECEIPTS OBTAINED FOR ALL RELEASES OF NEGOTIABLE COLLATERAL? L

In the course of his collateral checking operation, the Local Auditor should spot check negotiable collateral cards to be sure that withdrawals are being receipted for. In cases where the collateral was mailed by registered mail to the borrower, there should be a receipted copy of the letter in file.

6. IS FREE COLLATERAL HELD UNDER DUAL CONTROL OR IN SAFEKEEPING IN THE NAME OF THE CUSTOMER? L

Once every year, the Local Auditor should review the collateral cards for collateral which has not been checked during his periodic reviews during the year, and determine whether or not it is "free collateral". If so, a schedule of the collateral should be made and copies sent to management and the General Auditor. This collateral should be held under dual control.

COLLATERAL - Continued

7. ARE ALL NOTES OFFICIALLY APPROVED, AND ARE ANY DEMAND NOTES OVER 20 YEARS OLD?

In reviewing the notes, the Local Auditor should check to see that each note and memorandum attached pertaining to unsecured or open amounts is approved by an officer. At the same time, he should observe whether there are any demand notes over twenty (20) years old. If any are located, this fact should be reported as an exception, and a new note with a current date should be obtained.

8. IS THERE PROPER INSURANCE COVERAGE ON ALL COLLATERAL HELD AS SECURITY?

During his review of collateral notes, the Local Auditor should be sure that the collateral is protected with insurance and that the original insurance policy or an acceptable binder or statement of coverage failure insurance is in the bank's possession. The insurance policy should be checked for expiration date, adequacy of amount, type of coverage, description of property insured and loss payable clause in favor of the bank.

9. IS THE FOLLOW-UP SYSTEM ON INSURANCE AND SUSPENSE ITEMS ADEQUATE?

To determine whether or not the follow-up system on casualty insurance is being operated properly, the Local Auditor should test check insurance expiring prior to the maturity of the loans to see if there is a follow-up card in file. Also, when he finds an expired insurance policy in file, he should check to see if a follow-up tickler had been prepared. If not, this would indicate that the system is not being operated properly. In a like manner, there should be a follow-up system, operated properly, on the Loan Department's suspense items. Each time the Auditor finds an exception pertaining to pertinent papers not on hand, he should determine if the failure is due to inadequate follow-up.

10. HAS THE BANK'S SECURITY INTEREST IN COLLATERAL BEEN PERFECTED?

Except for real estate loans, automobile loans, loans secured by consumer goods where a purchase money security interest is acquired, or where collateral is physically held, the bank's security interest in collateral is perfected by filing a "Financing Statement" with the applicable county. During the course of his checking collateral, the Local Auditor should ascertain whether statements are properly completed. (Do not fill in maturity date.) and filed with the clerk of the appropriate county. Generally speaking, a statement should be filed in all instances except as indicated above. There will, however, be instances where filing is waived, but such waivers should be held to a minimum. All waivers should be initialed by the loan officer. The Local Auditor should make a list of the loans on which the filing of a statement was waived, sending a copy to the head of the office for his information.

11. ARE ALL REAL ESTATE LOANS RECORDED?

The Uniform Commercial Code does not affect real estate loans. These should be recorded as in the past. In checking the real estate loans, the Local Auditor should determine that the deeds are properly recorded.

12. IS THE BANK'S INTEREST IN COLLATERAL SUBJECT TO THE GEORGIA MOTOR VEHICLE CERTIFICATE OF TITLE ACT BEING PERFECTED?

All automobiles, trucks (including tractor-trailer), trailers for tractors, tractors (unless farm equipment), camping trailers, and mobile homes, even if on a foundation, are covered by the Georgia Motor Vehicle Certificate of Title Act. On all 1963, 1964 and subsequent year models, a security interest is perfected by completing Form T1 (Application for Certificate of Title). The bank's name as secured party must appear on this form. A Title Certificate must be obtained on each, and a copy of the Certificate should be in the borrower's collateral file. On all 1962 and older models, a security interest is perfected by filing Form T3 (Notice of Security Interest). As a general rule, a T3 will not be filed except for collection accounts, or where the probability of future trouble is above average.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

COLLATERAL - Continued

On those requiring the filing of Form T-3, a validated copy of the T-3 central filing form must be in the collateral file, or a follow-up card in the follow-up file covering recent transactions.

In checking collateral subject to the Title Act, the Local Auditor should determine whether or not all of the above conditions are met.

13. WHEN CUSTOMERS HAVE TWO OR MORE LOANS SECURED BY THE SAME COLLATERAL, IS EACH NOTE MARKED TO INDICATE THIS FACT? L

The Local Auditor should determine when customers have two or more loans secured by the same collateral that each note is marked "PATL", "PLEDGED AGAINST TOTAL LIABILITY", or in some other manner to indicate that the collateral secures more than one loan. Failure to make some notation on each note might result in premature release of collateral and should be reported as an audit exception.

14. ARE SEPARATE STOCK POWERS OBTAINED FOR EACH CERTIFICATE OF STOCK OR REGISTERED BOND PLEDGED AS COLLATERAL, AND ARE THESE POWERS PROPERLY EXECUTED? L

During his checking of negotiable collateral, the Local Auditor should determine that each certificate or registered bond pledged as collateral is supported by a separate stock power and that the power is signed in the same manner that the stock or bond is issued, and properly completed. The Assignee line and the statement of appointment on the lower half of the form should be left blank.

15. ARE LOANS SECURED BY LISTED OR UNLISTED SECURITIES SUPPORTED BY REGULATION "U" CERTIFICATES? L

There should be a certificate in file to support all loans secured by listed or unlisted securities. This certificate should be signed by the borrower, fully completed in every respect, particularly as to the purpose of the loan, and signed by the accepting officer. The Local Auditor should determine that a properly executed certificate is in file at the time he checks the negotiable collateral. There must be a separate note and executed certificate in file for each loan made for the purpose of purchasing or carrying securities convertible into registered stocks. These certificates must be retained by the bank for at least three (3) years after the loan is paid out, which can be accomplished by attaching the Regulation "U" Certificates to the collateral record cards, which will be held for ten (10) years as the receipt for collateral released.

The Local Auditor should have in his possession a copy of "Loan Operating Procedures Relating to Uniform Commercial Code" for use as a guide in auditing collateral.

COLLATERAL - Continued

20. ON LOANS SECURED BY SAVINGS ACCOUNTS OR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES, HAVE PROPER NOTATIONS BEEN MADE ON THE SAVINGS RECORDS TO INDICATE THE ACCOUNTS ARE PLEDGED?

All savings accounts and savings certificates that have been pledged as collateral should have sufficient information on the savings records or computer records to indicate the pledge so that the funds will be held. The Local Auditor should determine that savings accounts or savings certificates records have been flagged, and that there are acknowledged change of status cards in file for those accounts or certificates that are on the computer. On exceptions noted, the Auditor should determine whether each failure is due to the Loan Department, Savings Department, or Bond Control.

For savings accounts or certificates not on the computer or with other banks, there should be properly completed assignments and acknowledgements in file.

21. HAS A PROPERLY COMPLETED "FINANCING STATEMENT" BEEN FILED COVERING ALL LOANS SECURED BY PLEDGED ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE?

It is very important that the bank's security interest be perfected by a filed Financing Statement on all accounts receivable loans. This is filed in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court in the county where the principal place of business is located, if the customer is a partnership or corporation. If the customer is an individual, the filing should be done in the county where he resides. During the course of his auditing collateral, the Local Auditor must be sure that this is done in every instance. In addition, a "Security Agreement" should be obtained in each case, and filed in the customer's collateral file along with a validated copy of the Financing Statement. It also is necessary for the Local Auditor to ascertain that prior to making the first advance, the bank has physically checked the index of Financing Statements (at Superior Court) to determine that ours is on file and that no other financing statement covering accounts receivable or inventory (with proceeds block checked) has been filed prior to ours.

COLLATERAL - Continued

22. IS THE FOLLOW-UP SYSTEM FOR FILING CONTINUATION STATEMENTS ON PLEDGED ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE OPERATED PROPERLY? L

A tickler system should be set up in order to obtain and file a new Financing Statement within six months prior to maturity of the first financing statement which is good for five years provided the space for recording maturity date of the loan was left blank. As standard practice, this space should always be left blank. The Local Auditor should check the file to see whether there is a follow-up tickler for each accounts receivable loan as he checks them, and that new financing statements actually are being filed as required.

23. ARE ALL PAYMENTS ON ALL ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE LOANS MADE BY A REMITTANCE FROM THE FIRM INVOICED, RATHER THAN A REMITTANCE OR A RENEWAL NOTE FROM OUR BORROWING CUSTOMER? L-I

Payments on all Accounts Receivable loans must be made by remittances from the firms invoiced, rather than remittances or a renewal note from our borrowing customer. It is very important that the Local Auditor determine that these loans are being handled in this manner in every instance. Also, remittances for one hundred percent of pledged receivables should be received by the bank. This is necessary to detect fictitious assigned invoices to meet margin requirements. The Local Auditor should question loan personnel thoroughly regarding their procedure, and he should review all payments received during his audit to see that the only remittances being used are those from the invoiced firms. Further, the System Credit Auditor must be appraised of all exceptions. As exceptions are determined, the Local Auditor should write to the Credit Auditor advising him of the matter, sending a copy of the report to the General Auditor. Annually, the System Auditors should include in their audit report a list of all such loans that are not handled on the proper basis.

24. ARE PLEDGED ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE CHECKED BY THE LOCAL OFFICE AS TO VALIDITY, PROMPTNESS OF PAYMENT, AND PROPER MARKING OF BORROWERS' RECORDS?

The Local Auditor, in reviewing accounts receivable loans, should determine whether or not the Local Office is checking these points in the routine handling of accounts. At the same time, he should ascertain that pledged Accounts Receivable loans are reviewed as a whole for each borrower rather than on an individual note basis.

25. IS SUBSTITUTION OF INVOICES ON ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE LOANS PROHIBITED?

The Local Auditor should include in his investigation of the handling of Accounts Receivable loans the matter of whether or not substitution of invoices is permitted. Adequate explanations should be given when substitution is made because it allows fictitious invoices to be added. Above all, this should not be a regular practice. All instances noted should be reviewed with management and listed in the Auditor's Exception Report.

26. ARE CONSTRUCTION LOAN ADVANCES SUPPORTED BY CONSTRUCTION PROGRESS REPORTS?

Prior to advancing funds on a construction loan, a Construction Progress Report should be completed and signed by the lending officer. In some instances, the builder may submit statements of completion, and these statements, if verified and signed by the lending officer, will be acceptable.

27. IS THE AUTHENTICITY OF STOCK CERTIFICATES VERIFIED?

During his quarterly review, the Local Auditor will confirm the authenticity of stocks securing loans with balances of $5,000.00 or more by verifying (using Form 07-0655-0) with the transfer agents, the number of shares held by the customer in each corporation. All of the stocks securing the customer's loan you are reviewing should be verified. Stock securing twenty-five percent of the remaining loans in the quarterly work with balances less than $5,000.00 should also be confirmed. When you prepare your verifications, the collateral cards should be marked in some way to indicate they have been verified. You should also make a list of stocks that transfer agents refuse to confirm, so you will not continue to attempt verification of certificates issued by the same corporations owned by other customers which would be included in future audits.

OTHER

1. IS LIABILITY LEDGER IN BALANCE?

From an operational standpoint, the Local Auditor should determine that the Commercial Loan Department is listing and balancing the Liability Ledger monthly. About once each quarter he should review their tapes to see that the totals are in agreement with the General Ledger. Annually, the Local Auditor should run a trial balance on the Liability Ledger himself. Preferably, this should be done at the time he lists the notes.

OTHER - Continued

2. IS ADEQUATE DESCRIPTION USED IN THE LIABILITY LEDGER?

3. ARE POSTING ERRORS IN LIABILITY LEDGER CORRECTED BY MACHINE POSTINGS?

4. ARE PARTICIPATIONS ENTERED ON THE LIABILITY LEDGER AS AN OFF-SET ACCOUNT

5. IS LIABILITY LEDGER CODED FOR THE PURPOSE OF THE CALL REPORT?

The answers to these questions should be determined whenever the Local Auditor has occasion to review the Liability records. Frequent reviews of this ledger are occasioned by the Auditors obtaining information for confirmations. The Local Auditor should keep these questions in mind or maintain a check list each time he refers to the ledger.

6. IS LIABILITY LEDGER POSTED BY SOMEONE OTHER THAN LOAN & DISCOUNT TELLER?

This is a very important question pertaining to the proper segregation of duties. The Local Auditor should be constantly aware of whether or not the proper separation is being maintained.

7. ARE LOANS COVERED BY CREDIT LIFE INSURANCE REPORTED TO THE INSURANCE COMPANY MONTHLY?

The Local Auditor should acquaint himself with the procedures in this connection, and determine from time to time that the reports are in order and are being made monthly.

8. ARE THERE NO INSTANCES OF VIOLATION OF THE FEDERAL BANK HOLDING COMPANY ACT?

The Federal Bank Holding Company Act prohibits:

(1) Loans made by a Citizens and Southern Affiliate Bank secured by stock of The Citizens and Southern National Bank or any other Citizens and Southern Affiliate Bank, unless the loan is 120 percent secured by such stock.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

(2) The sale of The Citizens and Southern National Bank to a Citizens and Southern State Bank of a loan or a participation in a loan.

(3) Any other loan or extension of credit made by a Citizens and Southern State Bank to the National Bank or by any Citizens and Southern State Bank to another Citizens and Southern State Bank.

In the course of checking the notes, the Local Auditor should determine that none of the foregoing provisions have been violated.

9. HAVE ALL NEW LOANS MADE TO OFFICERS BY THE BANK FOR WHICH THEY WORK RECEIVED PRIOR APPROVAL FROM THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS? T

The Traveling Auditors will ascertain this at the time of their annual audit when they obtain a statement of officers indebtedness to banks.

10. ARE ALL CLEARANCE LOANS PAID OUT BY REMITTANCES RECEIVED FROM THE INSURANCE COMPANY DOING THE PERMANENT FINANCING, RATHER THAN FROM OUR BORROWING CUSTOMER? L

All clearance loans should be paid by the company granting the commitment for permanent financing. Under no circumstances should any of these loans be taken up by the borrower himself. Such a practice would indicate either fictitious loans or double financing. The main protection that we have from fraud on the part of a customer in connection with these loans lies in our being sure that the checks in settlement of these loans come from the company handling the permanent financing which, of course, indicates that a valid loan has been placed on their books. The Local Auditor should investigate this in the course of his loan audits.

11. ARE SIGNATURES ON NOTES OF PARTNERSHIPS AND CORPORATIONS IN AGREEMENT WITH THE RESOLUTION FILE? L

In checking the notes, the Local Auditor should compare signatures on these particular loans with the resolution file on a spot check basis to determine that these extensions of credit are proper.

12. ARE ALL CHARGES TO RESERVE FOR LOSSES APPROVED? L

This should be ascertained by the Local Auditor on a periodic basis. Any charges to this account should be approved by the Local Finance Committee or local Board. During each audit, the Local Auditor should review the minutes of the Finance Committee or Board of Directors to determine that all charges are approved.

13. ARE OUTSTANDING CHARGE-OFFS VERIFIED? L

The Local Auditor should tie this verification in with his verification of charged-off installment loans. This should be done at the time the Local Auditor balances the profit and loss accounts with the general ledger. In verifying on a spot check basis semi-annually, he should select from five to ten percent of the loans and verify the balances direct with the customer. He should continue to follow for replies until all are received.

14. ARE NOTES OR RECEIPTS IN FILE FOR ALL CHARGE-OFF LOANS? L-T

The Local Auditor should account for all notes or receipts covering loans charged off since his last audit. This should be tied in with his review of the minutes of the local Board.

15. ARE PROCEEDS OF LOANS DISBURSED ONLY BY OFFICIAL CHECK, CREDIT TO A CUSTOMER'S ACCOUNT, OR INTERIOR TRANSFER? L

During his periodic reviews, the Local Auditor should determine through observation, questioning, and test checking, that proceeds of loans are being disbursed only by check, deposit, or interior transfer. In doing so, if the Auditor finds disbursements to someone other than the borrower, the Auditor should determine that there is a properly completed and signed borrower's authorization form in file.

15. ARE CLAIMS ON CREDIT LIFE INSURANCE COVERING TIME LOANS IN ORDER? L

Copies of claimant's Proof-of-Death forms will be forwarded to the Local Auditor by each individual office as claims are made. The Auditor should place these forms in a suspense file. Subsequently, copies of claim drafts which are issued by the insurance company will be forwarded to the respective Local Auditors by System Consumer Credit Department. At this point, the Auditor should match draft copies against claimant's Proof-of-Death forms to account for all claims. A draft not supported by a claimant's Proof-of-Death could indicate a claim purposely withheld from the Auditor. The Auditor must check all credit life claims to verify that the loan was insured the deceased was the person so insured, and that the draft was used to pay off the loan involved. He should review the note (office note tickler where note already delivered), the loan file, and correspondence in an effort to determine that the loan was not fictitious. A loan paid out by credit life insurance a short time after being placed on the books could indicate a fictitious loan made in the name of a person known to have a fatal illness. It also is important for the Local Auditor to thoroughly familiarize himself with instructions outlined in the General Operating Guide pertaining to credit life insurance so he can verify eligibility of borrowers covered and that various other provisions are met.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

17. ARE ALL PROVISIONS OF REGULATION "Z" BEING COMPLIED WITH? L

Extensions of credit subject to the regulation are those of $25,000 or less, or if secured by real estate regardless of amount, which are primarily for personal, family, household, or agricultural purposes made to a person. Not subject to the regulation are extensions of credit to corporations, partnerships, trusts, governments, or loans for business or commercial purposes, other than agricultural purposes.

It is the responsibility of the Local Auditor to determine whether or not all disclosure requirements under the Consumer Credit Protection Act (Regulation "Z") are being met. The Local Auditor must be thoroughly familiar with all provisions of the Regulation, the prescribed procedures outlined in Operating Bulletins, and must determine compliance during the course of his periodic audits of loans. The following questions must be answered in determining whether or not there are any exceptions.

HAS THE "ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE" BEEN DISCLOSED IN EVERY INSTANCE?

In reviewing the notes, the Auditor should see that the annual percentage rate is disclosed in the space provided. He should question loan personnel as to whether the customer has received a copy of the note without exception. Through observation, the Auditor should ascertain that no customers' copies of notes are filed within the bank.

ARE ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE CALCULATIONS VERIFIED ON A TEST CHECK BASIS?

Using the charts developed for this purpose, the Auditor should verify computations on a representative number of loans being audited to determine accuracy. Accuracy must be to the nearest one-fourth of one percent. The amount of the finance charge and the annual percentage rate must be computed on a basis of one-half year maturity for demand loans. The annual percentage rate need not be disclosed where the charge does not exceed $5.00 on $75.00 or less, or $7.50 on an amount financed exceeding $75.00; however, in such instances, the "finance charge" must be disclosed.

ARE THE FINANCE CHARGE AND THE TOTAL OF PAYMENTS DISCLOSED IN ALL INSTANCES?

In addition to the annual percentage rate, the Regulation requires that the finance charge and the total of payments be disclosed on all types of credits covered except real estate loans made to purchase a dwelling. All items of information which must be disclosed have been incorporated in our note and contract forms; therefore, the Auditor should determine that these spaces have been properly filled in.

OTHER - Continued

ARE CHARGES THAT ARE NOT PART OF THE FINANCE CHARGE SPECIFICALLY ITEMIZED AND DISCLOSED?

There are certain charges which are outlined in our Operating Bulletins that may be excluded from the finance charge if they are specifically itemized and disclosed. In addition to charges for credit life insurance, disability insurance, and (SALES FINANCE) property insurance, charges included in the amount financed labeled "Other Charges" must be specified in order to qualify for exclusion as a part of the finance charge. The Auditor should make an exception of any omissions in this regard.

DO LOANS FOR ADVANCES MADE UNDER LOAN COMMITMENTS CONFORM TO THE REQUIREMENTS?

Where advances are made under commitments, if the bank has disclosed the necessary information, and if the customer has approved the information disclosed, disclosure need be made only once, at the time the agreement is extended. If the bank is electing to consider such transactions to be single transactions, it must estimate amount of disbursement and payment dates and disclose this information. These estimations should be reasonably accurate.

ARE THE TERMS "FINANCE CHARGE" AND "ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE" IN PRINT MORE CONSPICUOUS THAN OTHER REQUIRED DISCLOSURES?

The forms developed for use by our banks conform to this requirement; however, the Auditor should make sure that the standard forms are being used, or where forms are revised, he should make sure that they comply in this regard.

HAS THE BORROWER SIGNED IN THE SPACE PROVIDED TO SUPPORT HIS REQUEST FOR OR TO DECLINE CREDIT LIFE AND DISABILITY INSURANCE WHEN HE IS ELIGIBLE FOR THE COVERAGE?

When the borrower is not eligible for credit life or disability insurance, the block indicating this fact must be checked and the borrower need not sign. If the borrower requests credit life insurance (and disability insurance where applicable), the applicable block must be checked and the customer must sign in the space provided indicating his desire. The cost of insurance coverage must be disclosed on the face of the note on insured loans. While Regulation "Z" does not require the customer to sign when he declines this insurance, it is bank policy to have the customer sign to the effect that he has declined the insurance coverage. In order to exclude charges for credit life and disability insurance from the finance charge, these charges cannot be conditions of the loan and this fact must be clearly and conspicuously disclosed in writing to the customer. This information is disclosed in the printed forms which must be used. We must also disclose to the customer his right to obtain property insurance from a person of his choice acceptable to the lender. The Auditor's responsibility is to determine that the applicable blocks are checked, the customer signs separately in the space provided for this purpose, and the insurance cost is shown when the customer requrests coverage.

ARE "STATEMENTS OF COST OF LOAN" COVERING REAL ESTATE LOANS PROPERLY COMPLETED IN ALL RESPECTS?

There are two statement of cost of loan forms, purchase and non-purchase. These forms incorporate all the necessary information to be disclosed in order to conform with the regulation. It is imperative that all applicable spaces be completed including the borrower's signature acknowledging receipt of a completed copy of the statement. In auditing the real estate loans, the Auditor must make sure that all of the required information is properly disclosed.

ARE TRANSFERS OF EQUITY OR LOAN ASSUMPTIONS HANDLED PROPERLY?

All required disclosures must be made to the new customer before he becomes obligated. The transfer of equity form has been revised for this purpose, and the Auditor should determine that a properly completed form signed by both the original borrower and the transferee is in file.

HAS A NOTICE OF RIGHT TO RESCIND CERTAIN REAL PROPERTY TRANSACTIONS BEEN GIVEN TO THE BORROWER?

A customer may exercise his right to rescind any transaction in which a security or lien interest may attach to his residence or real property that is expected to be used as his residence. The customer may cancel the transaction without obligation within three business days after delivery of all disclosures. The customer must receive two copies of the notice of right to rescind, and the bank must retain in file the original notice signed by the customer acknowledging receipt of his two copies of the notice. A printed form using the exact wording required by Federal law has been designed for the bank's use, and no other form of notification may be used. The Auditor must make sure that a properly completed form is in file on applicable transactions.

HAS NO MONEY BEEN DISBURSED EXCEPT IN ESCROW DURING THE THREE-DAY RESCISSION PERIOD?

Under covered transactions, it is imperative that no money be disbursed until the rescission period has expired.

BEFORE DISBURSING ANY FUNDS, HAS THE BANK REASONABLY SATISFIED ITSELF THAT THE CUSTOMER HAS NOT RESCINDED?

The bank must maintain evidence of the bank's satisfaction that the customer has not exercised his right of rescission. The satisfaction must be obtained after the right of rescission period has expired. It is the bank's policy to require a written statement signed by the customer on all applicable SALES FINANCE paper. (A form is provided for this purpose.) On applicable over-the-counter loans, verification may be made by telephone supported by a dated memorandum signed by an authorized person this effect, or by a statement signed by the customer, either delivered to the bank in person or received through the mail. A customer signed statement is preferable. The Auditor should look for evidence of compliance on a test check basis.

HAVE THE REQUIREMENTS FOR WAIVER OF THE RIGHT OF RESCISSION BEEN MET?

In cases of emergency, the customer may elect to waive his right of rescission. However, the waiver must be based on an emergency (for example, repair of roof resulting from a storm), and the waiver must be in the form of a separately dated and signed personal statement describing the situation requiring immediate remedy. Printed forms may not be used for this purpose.

OTHER (Continued)

IS EVIDENCE OF COMPLIANCE WITH THE REGULATION BEING MAINTAINED?

Evidence of compliance must be retained for two years after all disclosures are made. The disclosure copy of notes should be filed in chronological order, and all other disclosure copies, other than notes, should be filed in the credit folder. During the course of his auditing the loans, the Auditor should review the procedure and check for disclosure copies of notes covering specific transactions on a test check basis. Other disclosure copies should be accounted for when the collateral and credit folders are audited.

18. ARE WRITTEN RECORDS OF INQUIRIES IN FILE AS REQUIRED BY THE FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT?

Whenever information other than our own ledger experience is given on one of our customers in answer to a telephone inquiry, a written record of the inquiry should be placed in file. When making his periodic reviews, the Local Auditor should determine that this procedure is being followed.

19. ARE COPIES OF DECLINED APPLICATIONS RETAINED?

Copies of all applications for credit which are declined should be retained in files for at least two years.

20. ARE REQUIRED COPIES OF CUSTOMER NOTIFICATIONS OR DISCLOSURES IN FILE?

Whenever the bank requests an investigative consumer report on any consumer, the bank must notify the consumer of that fact not later than three days after the date on which the report was first requested. If the customer requests in writing the nature and scope of the investigation being conducted, the disclosure should be made in writing not later than five days from the date on which the consumer request was received or such report was first requested, whichever is the later. When an application for credit is declined, a letter must be mailed to the applicant telling of the declination when the denial of credit was wholly or partly based on information from a reporting agency or information secured from some other source. A copy of this letter should be retained in file. If we approve credit, but deny credit life and/or disability insurance as a result of our investigation, we must comply with notification provisions of the Act.

21. ARE INSURANCE CERTIFICATES MAILED PROMPTLY?

If an L&D loan is covered by credit life insurance, the insurance certificate must be mailed in time to reach the customer within ten (10) days from the date of the loan, as required by law. The Local Auditor should determine that each office is complying with this legal requirement.

WAREHOUSE RECEIPT FINANCING

1. ARE GOODS COVERED BY WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS ADEQUATELY INSURED?

   In checking loans, we should ascertain that the amount of fire and theft insurance is adequate and to whom payable.

2. ARE PARTIAL RELEASES POSTED ON WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS OR CONTROLS?

   In checking loans covered by warehouse receipts, we should be sure that all partial releases are properly posted on the warehouse receipts or controls, so the amount of inventory pledged can be determined.

3. ARE WE RECEIVING A MONTHLY REPORT FROM THE WAREHOUSE AS TO THE INVENTORY ON HAND?

   The bank should have in file from the warehouse a report covering inventory on hand, and this should be checked against warehouse receipts held by the bank by the loan officer.

4. IS A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE BANK MAKING PERIODICAL CHECKS ON THE WAREHOUSE?

   A representative of the bank should, from time to time, make spot checks to ascertain that the goods stored in the warehouse are there, are segregated from goods belonging to others, and are in good shape. Also, the building should be in good condition and adequate to cover goods stored.

5. ARE STORAGE CHARGES BEING COLLECTED?

   The representative of the bank, in making a spot check of the warehouse, should also ascertain that the warehouse is collecting its storage fees regularly (at least quarterly).

6. DO WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS BEAR NAMES OF AUTHORIZED SIGNERS?

   The Local Auditor should review the files and determine who is authorize to sign warehouse receipts. When checking loans secured by warehouse receipts, signatures on the receipts should be checked against authorize signatures, and any obvious discrepancies should be immediately reported to management and the General Auditor.

7. ARE ALL WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS LESS THAN ONE YEAR OLD?

   When revieving warehouse receipts, the Local Auditor should check the dates, and any that are one year or more old should be discussed with management and an exception report written. Except under very unusual circumstances, goods covered by warehouse receipts should be moved within a year.

BANK BUILDING

1. IS ORIGINAL COST AND ALL CAPITAL ADDITIONS REFLECTED ON THE GENERAL LEDGER?

At some time during each calendar year, the Local Auditor should make a determination as to whether or not the original cost of the bank building and the land is shown separately on the general ledger. Semi-annually, he should review all charges since last review to determine that all additions represent capital additions. Also, during his audits of the bank's expense bills, he should recognize any items charged to "Repairs and Maintenance" which should have been capitalized.

2. ARE ENTRIES APPROVED BY THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER? L

At the time he reviews the entries to the Banking House account, the Local Auditor should see that all entries to this account have been approved by the Executive Officer of the bank.

3. IS AN ALLOWANCE FOR DEPRECIATION ACCOUNT ESTABLISHED? L

Once each year the Local Auditor should check the bank's general ledger to be sure that annual depreciation charges are being credited to an Allowance account rather than against the asset account.

4. ARE ALL ENTRIES PROPER CHARGES TO THIS ACCOUNT? L

Each time the Local Auditor reviews the entries to this account he should be sure that all entries belong to the account. In particular, the Auditor should look for items charged to this account which should have been charged to "Furniture and Fixtures" or to some expense account.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

5. IS INSURANCE COVERAGE ADEQUATE? T

When the Traveling Auditors make their Annual Audit which includes a schedule of insurance protection, the Auditor in charge should review all coverages with the person responsible for handling the bank's insurance. This will include coverage for banking equipment and all other types of insurance. If, in the Auditor's opinion, the coverage is not adequate, he should report his opinion to the Comptroller or to the General Auditor.

6. ARE DEEDS AND TITLE POLICIES OR ATTORNEYS OPINIONS ON HAND FOR ALL BANK OWNED PREMISES? T

At the time of the Annual Audit the Traveling Auditors should ascertain by inspection that deeds and title policies or attorney's opinions are in file covering all bank owned premises.

BANKING EQUIPMENT

1. IS THE ORIGINAL COST AND ALL CAPITAL ADDITIONS REFLECTED ON THE GENERAL LEDGER? L

The Local Auditor will review bank expenditures either on a daily or a monthly basis depending upon the office involved. He should at that time assure himself that the proper amounts are being shown on the General Ledger for the items purchased. Also, he should determine whether or not all capital additions to "Furniture and Fixtures" are being entered to the account. To do this, he should keep in mind while auditing the bank's expense bills that no capital expenditures should be posted to the expense accounts. He also should determine that no items which should be expensed are posted to the Furniture and Fixtures Account.

2. IS AN ALLOWANCE FOR DEPRECIATION ACCOUNT ESTABLISHED? L

Once each year the Local Auditor should check the bank's general ledger to be sure that annual depreciation charges are being credited to an Allowance account rather than against the asset account.

3. IS EQUIPMENT BEING VERIFIED CURRENTLY? L

Annually, using an inventory record maintained by Data Processing Department, the Local Auditor should send a list of equipment charged to each department to the Department Head with a request that the Department Head certify that all equipment included in the list has been physically inspected and is on hand. It is very important that this verification be based on an actual physical inspection by the Department Head or one of his reliable employees acting in his behalf. The Local Auditor should maintain these confirmations in his file, and when he is performing other duties in the departments, he should select items from the inventory lists at random as a test check and account for their existence.

4. IS EQUIPMENT BEING MAINTAINED PROPERLY? L

When the Local Auditor is in the various departments, he and his men should observe the equipment to determine whether or not proper care and maintenance is being undertaken. Bank owned vehicles should also be inspected, and any apparent misuses should be brought to the attention of the head of the office, with a copy of the exception sent to the Comptroller. Misuses include personal use and insufficient mileage as well as the normal abuses.

5. IS PRIOR APPROVAL OBTAINED FROM SYSTEM PURCHASING BEFORE EQUIPMENT IS PURCHASED? L

The Local Auditor should determine during his review of equipment invoices that approval from the System Purchasing Officer had been obtained prior to purchasing items with a unit cost of $50.00 or more.

5. HAS ALL REAL ESTATE ACQUIRED D.P.C. BEEN HELD LESS THAN FIVE YEARS? L

6. ARE RECORDED DEEDS IN FILE? L

During the times the Local Auditor checks the Bank Building and Furniture and Fixture accounts, he should review the "Other Real Estate" record and answer each of the foregoing questions. Recommended procedures for checking out the majority of these questions are covered under Banking House and Banking Equipment. However, with respect to real estate to be acquired for other than banking purposes, the Local Auditor should ascertain that the Comptroller's Office is advised of any potential foreclosure before any action is taken or entries made.

CASH ON HAND AND ON DEPOSIT IN BANKS

1. HAS CASH BEEN VERIFIED QUARTERLY TO GENERAL LEDGER? L

   Any cash on hand should be verified and balanced from general ledger to the Petty Cash accounts quarterly by the Local Auditor. Proper petty cash vouchers should be completed and approved by the custodian when disbursement is made and receipts or memoranda attached to the voucher. When petty cash is reimbursed, an officer of the company should review these expenditures and approve for charging to the various expense accounts.

2. HAS THE CHECKING ACCOUNT OF THE REAL ESTATE HOLDING COMPANY BEEN RECONCILED MONTHLY? L

   Once each month, the Local Auditor should reconcile this account. In doing this, he should observe the payees and endorsements on checks to determine that they are proper.

3. ARE ALL CHECKS SIGNED AND COUNTERSIGNED BY AUTHORIZED INDIVIDUALS? L

   Each check written should be signed and countersigned by authorized persons. The Local Auditor should see that this is being done when he reconciles the account.

4. ARE PRE-NUMBERED CHECKS USED, AND ARE ALL NUMBERS ACCOUNTED FOR? L

   Pre-numbered checks should be used and always issued in numerical sequence. In reconciling the checking account, the Local Auditor should account for all numbers, including voided checks. The Auditor should also verify that the next unissued check number follows in sequence.

5. HAVE ALL CHECKS WRITTEN BEEN PROPERLY RECORDED IN THE BOOKS OF ACCOUNT? L

   At the time the Local Auditor reconciles the account each month, he should determine that all checks written have been recorded in the proper account on the Holding Company books. These should always be recorded without delay and there should be no exceptions.

6. ARE ALL DISBURSEMENTS SUPPORTED BY INVOICES OR OTHER MEMORANDUM INFORMATION PROPERLY APPROVED FOR PAYMENT? L

   The Local Auditor should satisfy himself that each disbursement is in order. Disbursements should be supported by invoices or other adequate information properly approved for payment. Regular routine disbursements such as lease payments should be in accordance with the lease agreements.

7. ARE PURCHASES AND SALES OF REAL ESTATE AUTHORIZED, AND ARE DISBURSEMENTS FOR PURCHASE OF REAL ESTATE VERIFIED WITH THE CLOSING STATEMENTS? L

Purchases and sales of real estate and investments should be authorized by the Board of Directors. The minutes should be checked on an annual basis to determine that all such transactions are authorized. Closing statements on property purchased since the last audit should be checked to determine that the amount listed on the closing statement is the amount entered on the books as the cost of the property.

INVESTMENTS

1. ARE ALL SECURITIES VERIFIED ANNUALLY? L

The Holding Company's entire portfolio should be verified at least once each year. This includes verifying those held for the Holding Company by others and those pledged as security on loans.

2. ARE PURCHASES AND SALES AUTHORIZED? L

Purchases and sales of securities should be recorded in the minutes of the Board of Directors of the Holding Company. On an annual frequency, the Local Auditor should inspect these minutes to determine whether or not all purchases and sales have been authorized by the Board.

3. IS INCOME FROM INVESTMENTS ACCOUNTED FOR? L

Once each year, income from investments should be traced into the appropriate income account.

4. ARE LEASE AGREEMENTS ON HAND AND CURRENT? L

Income should be checked to the lease agreements to determine that payments are in accordance with the leases. Any differences should be reported as exceptions, and the leases should be amended where necessary. Receipts should be deposited promptly.

5. ARE RECORDED DEEDS, ATTORNEYS' OPINIONS OR TITLE CERTIFICATES ON HAND FOR REAL ESTATE OWNED BY THE HOLDING COMPANY, AND IS INSURANCE ADEQUATE? L

On real estate acquired since the previous audit, the files of the Holding Company should be checked to determine that recorded deeds and attorneys' opinions or title certificates are on hand. Insurance on each piece of improved property should be checked annually to determine that insurance is in force and that the amounts are adequate.

1. ARE ALL ENTRIES APPROVED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS? T

The Traveling Auditors should prepare a schedule of the Surplus account and review the minutes of the Board of Directors to see that all entries to this account are proper and have been approved by the Board.

UNDIVIDED PROFITS

1. IS REMAINDER OF NET PROFITS TRANSFERRED ANNUALLY TO UNDIVIDED PROFITS? T

All entries to this account should be inspected and analyzed thoroughly by the Traveling Auditors. In preparing the schedule of this account in connection with the annual audit, they should be sure that all entries have been approved by the Board of Directors and that only one annual credit is being made rather than a monthly or quarterly credit.

MISCELLANEOUS

1. ARE STATEMENTS SUBMITTED TO THE COMPTROLLER'S DEPARTMENT CORRECT? L-T

Monthly, the Holding Company submits to the Comptroller's Department a Statement of Condition and Operating Statement. The accuracy of these statements should be verified once each year by checking the reports in the Comptroller's files against the books of the Holding Company. The Traveling Auditors should verify that last quarterly statements submitted are correct.

2. ARE LETTERS VERIFIED CURRENTLY? L

3. ARE FEES VERIFIED CURRENTLY? L

4. ARE ASSETS DEFINED PROPERLY AS TO ACCEPTANCES, ETC.? L

5. ARE ONLY NON-CASH LETTERS HANDLED? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should make an audit of the Letters of Credit. He should balance the detail record of letters of credit outstanding against the figures indicated by the General Ledger. Outstanding letters of credit should be verified annually, but rather than verifying all the letters at one particular time, it is suggested that one-fourth of the outstanding letters be verified each quarter. At the time letters of credit are verified directly with the customers, the amount of fees paid by the customers should also be verified and these fees traced into the General Ledger Income Account. During the course of this audit, the Local Auditor should ascertain that the Letters of Credit are being described properly and that no acceptances are shown as Letters of Credit or vice-versa. Also, the Local Auditor should verify that none of the letters handled are cash letters of credit. Generally speaking, we do not handle any cash letters of credit; however, any that are handled must be included as a deposit liability for purposes of F.D.I.C. Insurance.

1. ARE ALL OPEN INTERIOR TRANSFERS REVIEWED AND TRACED DAILY? L

Interior transfers should be used only when both the debit and credit will clear the same day. Through observation and questioning, the Local Auditor should ascertain that Operations is balancing interior transfers daily and determining why items that do not clear the same day are outstanding. Monthly, the Local Auditor should balance outstanding interiors, review outstanding items, particularly the reasons why outstanding credits did not clear and report any instances where only the debit interior transfers cleared as audit exceptions. Debit interiors outstanding more than one day should be considered exceptions.

2. ARE SHORTAGES ANALYZED ACCORDING TO EMPLOYEES INCURRING THE SHORTAGES? L

3. ARE SHORTAGES IN EXCESS OF $5.00 APPROVED ON THE DATE THEY OCCUR BY AN OFFICER? L

4. ARE PROPER EFFORTS MADE TO LOCATE SHORTAGES? L

5. HAS A REPORT, SHOWING EFFORTS MADE TO LOCATE THE SHORTAGE, BEEN MADE TO THE COMPTROLLER AND THE GENERAL AUDITOR ON ALL SHORTAGES OF $100.00 OR MORE? L

The Local Auditor should keep a running record of all overages and shortages broken down by employees incurring the differences so that a ready reference may be available to determine which employees are incurring shortages and overages. The Local Auditor should analyze this record frequently. Through observation and review of the records and tickets, the Local Auditor should be sure that all overages and shortages exceeding $5.00 are approved on the day they occur by an officer of the bank. Further, the tickets should be fully completed, and must not cover items which should have been charged to "Other Losses." No exceptions to this rule should be permitted. The Local Auditor should be especially alert to discover any "slush" funds which may be used by tellers to balance their cash daily. When overages and shortages occur, the Local Auditor should make certain that adequate efforts are being made to locate the differences. Where the difference is for $100.00 or more, or for a lesser amount when deemed advisable by the Auditor, a report listing efforts to locate the difference should be made to the Comptroller and the General Auditor.

6. ARE ITEMS INCLUDED IN MISCELLANEOUS ASSETS CORRECTLY CLASSIFIED, AND ARE THEY BEING VERIFIED CURRENTLY? L

The Local Auditor must review all accounts classified as Miscellaneous Assets on the General Ledger and the entries thereto at least semi-annually. He should also keep these accounts in mind when he is inspecting General Ledger tickets during the interim to be sure that none of them should be included elsewhere on the Statement of Condition. The Local Auditor must be aware of any new accounts that are opened. On a frequency of not less than semi-annually, or more often in the judgment of the Auditor, all items included in Miscellaneous Assets should be verified to determine that they actually exist. Further, the Local Auditor should render a report to the General Auditor with a copy to the Comptroller semi-annually listing each account classified as miscellaneous, explaining its purpose. The Traveling Auditors, when preparing a schedule of these accounts, should also study the accounts and their purpose, ascertaining that account titles aptly describe the nature of the accounts, in addition to determining whether the Local Auditor has audited the accounts properly.

7. IS ACCRUAL LEDGER CONTROL ACCOUNT IN BALANCE WITH ACCRUAL DEPARTMENT RECORDS? L-T

This should be verified twice each year. All Local Auditors should use the monthly report from the Accrual Department to obtain the figures relating to their office. These figures should then be checked once each year against the Accrual Ledger Control Account to determine that they are in agreement. The second annual verification should be made by the Traveling Auditors at the time they make their annual audit.

8. IS A RECORD OF MISCELLANEOUS RECEIVABLES MAINTAINED AND IS IT USED PROPERLY? L

The Local Auditor should be aware of any existing receivables such as coin books, bazaar and other items sold to customers which are floating rather than being recorded in a sundry receivables account on the General Ledger. The Local Auditor can accomplish this more effectively by being alert to the existence of such items during the time that he is making audits of the various departments.

9. ARE TRAVEL ADVANCES REVIEWED? L-T

At least quarterly, the Local Auditor should balance and review travel advance records to see that advances are being cleared promptly, generally within three (3) days of the traveler's return. The traveling auditors should also review the travel advance records when they prepare annual reports.

LIABILITIES DEPOSITS

CHECKING ACCOUNTS

Auditing procedures, in some instances, will vary depending on the bookkeeping system used. The Local Auditor will be expected to exercise his judgment with respect to the application of audit techniques.

1. IS THE TOTAL OF INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTS BALANCED TO THE GENERAL LEDGER CONTROL ACCOUNT WITH THE PROPER FREQUENCY? L

COMPUTER PROCESSED ACCOUNTS

The Local Auditor should, by observation, determine that computer produced trial balance totals are recapped and balanced to the general ledger control at the proper intervals by personnel not directly involved in the processing of the account records. He should also recap these totals and balance to the general ledger when his direct verification print-out is received.

NON-COMPUTER SYSTEMS

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should recap the department's trial balance tapes and balance the total to the general ledger control account. By observation, he should determine that the Bookkeeping Department is performing a trial balance of the account records and balancing to the general ledger at least monthly. All ledgers should be listed once each year by auditing personnel. This listing may be by book or section at various times during the year at which time the book listed will be balanced to its respective control and the controls balanced to general ledger. Also, the listing may be incorporated with the direct verification program.

2. ARE PROCEDURES IN EFFECT THAT WILL DETECT THE UNAUTHORIZED REMOVAL OF AN ACCOUNT?

COMPUTER PROCESSED ACCOUNTS

After each cycle of statements has been run by the computer, the Local Auditor should run his Interim Balance Program in order to compare the balance sent to the customer with an updated balance from the Audit Master Tape. Any differences in the two balances, changes of address, and account title changes are listed on a print-out as exceptions and should be investigated to determine the causes.

NON-COMPUTER SYSTEMS

From time to time, the Local Auditor should check back trial balance tapes to the ledgers. This should be done two or three weeks after the date of the trial balance. Strict control must be maintained over the sections selected, or the audit will be of no value. If there were any defalcations concealed in the books, and if the bookkeeper had failed to remove the account under the assumption that the section would not be subject to audit until the following year, the re-checking of the list could uncover it.

CHECKING ACCOUNTS (Continued)

3. ARE POSTING ERRORS CORRECTED BY MACHINE POSTINGS, AND ARE THE STATEMENTS CLEAN AND NEAT? L

The Local Auditor should observe, during the times that statements are handled for other audit purposes, whether or not statements are clean and neat. He should also determine that all posting errors are corrected by machine postings.

4. ARE SUSPENSE ITEMS INTERCEPTED AND TRACED BI-MONTHLY? L

Approximately once every other month, the Local Auditor should intercept all suspense and return items handled by the Bookkeeping Department to satisfy himself that all are in order by determining the source of the items and the disposition of all questionable items. A questionable item would be, for example, a check returned to a department within the bank for reason "No Account". These items should be traced to final disposition. All items should be marked with an identifying mark, preferably an Auditor's stamp which could not easily be erased. All items returned again must be referred to the Local Auditor. The Local Auditor should re-inspect the suspense items for the next week or ten days to see that none are being run-around internally, and that all items have cleared. At the beginning of the audit, it is very important for the Auditor to balance the suspense items against the Suspense account in order to account for all items in this category.

5. ARE DAILY DEBITS AND CREDITS BALANCED AT PROPER INTERVALS? L

This work should be tied in with the audit of suspense items. On the day that the Local Auditor intercepts and traces suspense items, he should also recap the debits and credits from the posting records and reconcile this figure to the total debit and credit figure charged to the department by the general ledger.

6. ARE ALL DEPOSITS POSTED DAILY? L

All deposits should be posted daily under date received. Deposits that cannot be identified should be credited the same day to an Unclaimed Deposit Suspense account ("Unclaimed Deposits-Under 60 Days") in Bookkeeping. The Local Auditor should review this account at least monthly to determine the disposition of all deposits, and that proper efforts are made to identify the depositors. After a reasonable time, but no longer than 60 days, deposits that remain unclaimed should be transferred to an Unclaimed Deposit account on the general ledger. The deposit tickets and a copy of the credit to Unclaimed Deposits should be forwarded to and controlled by the Customer Service Manager in Atlanta and the Bookkeeping Manager or Cashier in other offices. No debits against this account should be permitted without the prior initialed approval of the controlling officer and the employee handling the transaction. When a deposit is removed from the general ledger Unclaimed Deposit account, the Local Auditor must determine what disposition was made of it and send a positive verification to the depositor whose account was credited. The customer's name, address and account number will be shown on the Unclaimed Deposit debit. The Local Auditor should be particularly alert to discover unclaimed deposits being transferred to a fictitious account against which subsequent withdrawals could be made. Any deposits not claimed within six months from the date of the deposit should be transferred from Unclaimed Deposits on the general ledger to Other Recoveries, an account on which the Local Auditor will review and approve all debits prior to their being posted, or if the Local Auditor is not available, a disinterested officer and the Bookkeeping Manager will approve the debits.

11. ARE REGULAR OVERDRAFTS APPROVED BY AN OFFICER OR AUTHORIZED PERSON?

An account may be automatically overdrawn up to a specified limit provided an officer gives his authorization to do so in each instance. The Local Auditor should determine that the regular lists of overdrafts submitted to the officers are being approved by the officers. In addition, whenever the Local Auditor is running a list of the ledgers or preparing statements, he should make a notation of all the accounts which are overdrawn to see that these accounts appear on the list of overdrafts reviewed by officers.

12. ARE UNCOLLECTIBLE OVERDRAFTS CHARGED OFF WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME?

The Local Auditor should know in particular the length of time each overdraft has existed. He can determine this when reviewing the overdraft list or handling the accounts for other audit purposes. Overdrafts should be charged off as soon as practicable where there is no apparent chance of collection. Uncollected overdrafts caused by service charges should be charged back to the appropriate service charge account.

13. ARE PROPER EFFORTS MADE TO COLLECT OVERDRAFTS?

In reviewing the overdrafts, the Local Auditor should ascertain that proper efforts are being made to collect them before they are classified as uncollectible. On those that have been classified as uncollectible and charged off, the Local Auditor should satisfy himself that collection follow-up is maintained.

14. ARE DISINTERESTED PERSONS PREPARING STATEMENTS?

The Local Auditor should determine this by observation. Personnel of the Bookkeeping Department must not prepare checking account statements for mailing on accounts which they post and they must not have unrestricted access to these statements while they are being prepared by detached persons. They may, however, prepare statements on other accounts on an unannounced rotation basis.

15. IS CONTROL MAINTAINED OVER STATEMENTS UNTIL MAILED?

After the statements have been prepared for mailing, they must remain under strict control of detached persons until the statements and cancelled checks are mailed out or delivered to the customer. Each month the Local Auditor should observe whether or not maximum control is maintained over prepared statements to eliminate the possibility of alterations or changes being made on statements prior to mailing. Braille Account cancelled checks and copies of statements should be properly controlled and safeguarded by the Atlanta Marietta Street Office until mailed to the customers.

16. IS THE MAJORITY OF STATEMENTS MAILED TO CUSTOMERS? L

Generally, the majority of active customers' statements is mailed wherever possible to reduce lobby congestion and afford a more effective audit control. The Local Auditor should determine the volume of non-mail statements through observation. He should also observe the number of accumulated statements not being called for by the customers. These should be called to the attention of the Operations Officer who should have someone contact the customers in an effort to place them on the mailing list. This would reduce the Auditor's work in verifying non-mail statements.

If the bank is not mailing inactive personal checking account statements with balances under $500.00 because of no maintenance charge and our dormant control program, that fact should be reported to the Board of Directors and recorded in the minutes. These "no activity" statements should be mailed once each six months by the Local Auditor, with a negative verification enclosed. If a statement is returned by the post office as undeliverable, the account should be transferred to dormant.

17. ARE ACCOUNTS VERIFIED ANNUALLY? L

These accounts should be verified directly with the depositor on a negative basis. The verification data will be printed on the Audit Verification form using a computer program which will select at random those accounts to be verified. A random selection of about 3% per month, or 9% per quarter, of the accounts should be verified; and during a period of one year, at least 33% should be verified. If a verification is printed without a mailing address, the Local Auditor should make every effort to verify the balance with the customer on a positive basis.

18. ARE NON-MAIL STATEMENTS VERIFIED ANNUALLY? L

All non-mail statements which are included in the group being audited by the Local Auditor should be verified with the customers on a positive basis. These verifications should be maintained in the Local Auditor's files. Also, on computer processed accounts, a listing of those accounts for which a statement was not prepared by the Computer Center during the previous monthly audit period is a by-product of the Interim Balance Program runs. The Local Auditor should verify these balances on a positive basis once a year.

19. ARE BANK ORIGINATED DEBIT ENTRIES APPROVED BY AN OFFICER? L

The Local Auditor should determine whether or not debits originated by the bank against checking accounts are approved by officers or properly authorized individuals. The only exceptions permitted are as follows:

CHECKING ACCOUNTS

1. Metered Service Charges
2. Return Item Charges
3. Deposit adjustments of less than $5.00
4. Charges for overprinted checks
5. Regularly established automatic charges to a checking account--loan payments, transfer to savings, to purchase bonds, etc.

All tickets must bear adequate descriptions of transactions. No official approval is required for credit entries, except credits to Overage and Shortage accounts. Names of individuals preparing tickets, and signatures and titles of officers approving the entries, must appear on the tickets.

BRANCH OFFICES AND LARGE OPERATING DEPARTMENTS STAFFED WITH ONLY ONE OFFICER

For branch offices or large operating departments where there is only one officer assigned, a designated managerial person of the same area may approve debit tickets provided there is on file a letter indicating that the individual has authority to approve debit tickets.

20. ARE CHECKS BEING CANCELLED PROPERLY? L

At the time of review of debit entries for approval, the Local Auditor should determine that checks and other debit items have been properly cancelled.

21. ARE PAID AND CANCELLED CHECKS PROPERLY SAFEGUARDED AND NEVER AVAILABLE TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE STAFF WITHOUT RESTRICTION? L

It is necessary to be able to place responsibility for paid checks at all times. The person designated this responsibility should always approve the removal of any items, and this person should account for their return. This can be accomplished only when access to the files is limited to those authorized and when the files are locked overnight with the key(s) properly controlled. The Local Auditor should observe this frequently to assure himself of full compliance by the Bookkeeping Department.

22. ARE ACCOUNTS BEING ANALYZED AND NON-PROFITABLE ACCOUNTS BILLED FOR LOSSES?

About once every sixty to ninety days, the Local Auditor should investigate the procedure for analyzing checking accounts to determine whether or not charges are being made against each customer where such action is warranted In particular, he should question personnel regarding the practice of basing charges on past experience or an estimation, neither of which should be permitted.

23. ARE UNPOSTED CHECKS AND DEPOSITS LOCKED UP UNDER PROPER CONTROL WHEN UNATTENDED? L

All checks and deposits to be posted must be safeguarded overnight or when unattended so that unauthorized persons positively do not have access to them. This means that the keys to the file housing the items or the key to the computer room must not be left in an unlocked desk drawer. The Local Auditor should make periodic inspections, not less than one each quarter, to determine compliance.

24. ARE ALL CHECKING ACCOUNT STATEMENTS RETURNED TO THE BANK FOR CORRECT ADDRESSES REFERRED TO THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

All statements returned by the post office should be referred to the Local Auditor who, without delay, should forward them to the Operations Department for correct addresses using the "Returned Statement Check List" three-part Form #7-288 for the transmittal. The Operations Department should determine the correct address, make the proper changes, and return the statements to the Auditor for mailing.

Using his follow-up record, the Local Auditor should see that no changes have been made on these statements other than the address, then re-mail the statements to the customers enclosing a negative verification.

From the time of receipt until they are re-mailed, returned statements must be properly controlled, and never left exposed and unattended overnight. If a correct address cannot be determined, the account should be transferred to dormant.

25. ARE CHANGES OF ADDRESS ON CHECKING ACCOUNTS VERIFIED WITH THE CUSTOMER?

The Local Auditor should determine the authenticity of at least five percent of significant address changes on checking accounts by mailing a Change of Address verification form to the customer's old address. It is not necessary that a verification be mailed where the address change was not significant, e.g. a typographical or spelling error. All changes from street addresses to post office boxes must be verified. In those banks where the accounts are processed by computer and the Interim Balance Control Program is in effect, address changes may be determined by referring to the Daily Exception list or the monthly comparison of Demand Deposit Master File tapes.

26. IS THE SIGNATURE CARD FILE IN ORDER AND AVAILABLE TO BOOKKEEPERS?

The Local Auditor should, by observation, determine that the signature card file is being kept current and that it is readily available to bookkeepers. Where checks are paid during the filing operation, a signature card for each account should be in the check file guides. When reviewing the signature card file, the Local Auditor should determine that the Social Security number of at least one of the people authorized to sign is shown on any account opened after June 30, 1972. This tax identification number may be shown on a business account. The signature card files should be locked when unattended.

27. ARE CURRENT FILES REVIEWED FOR INACTIVE ACCOUNTS?

Dormant demand deposit accounts should be removed from the active files by the Local Auditor and placed under the control of Operations personnel. To accomplish this objective, the Local Auditor must do the following:

1. Identify accounts inactive for a period of twelve months or more and send a positive verification to each depositor.

2. If the depositor does not reply to the verification, the account should be reviewed with a Bookeeping Department Manager or Supervisor to establish by mutual agreement the status of the account.

3. Remove dormant status accounts from the active accounts and transfer the balances to a General Ledger account for dormant or inactive checking account balances. The final statement on each account will be used by Operations as a ledger to support the balance in the General Ledger account.

The method employed by the Auditor to identify dormant checking accounts will depend on the method by which demand deposit accounts are processed.

CHECKING ACCOUNTS (Continued)

Computer Processed Accounts--Atlanta

A computer program is used on a bi-monthly basis to audit inactive demand deposits for those banks on the Atlanta DDA computer system. This program has the following functions:

1. Bi-Monthly--Prepare a listing and punch master file change cards for those accounts inactive six months or more (suspect dormant accounts). The cards may be used in a maintenance processing run to place a "D" in the status code field of the account record.

2. Bi-Monthly--Prepare a listing, print verifications, and punch master file change cards for those accounts having activity after the account records were coded to indicate the accounts were "suspect dormant." The verifications should be mailed to the customers, and for those sucessfully verified the Master File Change Card should be used to remove the "D" status code.

3. Annually--Prepare a listing, print verifications, and punch transaction cards and "C" status cards for those accounts inactive twelve months or more. For each account in dormant status, the transaction card and "C" card may be used to close the account and to remove the account record from the file.

Computer Processed Accounts--1400 System

Every two months the Local Auditor will use a computer program to update his audit master file of demand deposit accounts by comparing date on this file with current account data. The printed output from this run lists accounts closed since the previous run and accounts having activity after an inactive period of six months. The updated audit master is a file of account records, each of which includes a date of last activity.

After six months of inactivity, the account will be coded "suspect" dormant" and a positive verification should be mailed on any of these accounts having subsequent activity. If an account which must have a statement rendered each month is inactive for twelve months, the Local Auditor will have the account coded "dormant" and add it to the list of dormant accounts in the active files.

Non-Computer Systems

The Local Auditor should identify accounts inactive twleve months by comparing statement stubs or history cards every six months. These accounts should be handled as outlined above. The result for each will be a transfer to dormant files unless the account must have a statement rendered every month.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

28. ARE DORMANT CHECKING ACCOUNT RECORDS MAINTAINED AND CONTROLLED? L

The Operations area is responsible for maintenance of the dormant checking account records, including signature cards, balancing the ledger to the General Ledger control account quarterly, and reactivating those accounts having activity. Annually, the Auditor will list the dormant ledger and balance the total to the General Ledger. By observation it should be determined that the dormant ledger is housed in a locked, fire-resistant cabinet, and that the signature cards are maintained in a locked cabinet with the key under control of a disinterest person.

29. ARE ENTRIES TO DORMANT CHECKING REVIEWED BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

The Local Auditor will receive copies of any entries to dormant checking accounts; and, in addition to reviewing the entries for authenticity and joint approval by an Operations Officer and the employee handling the transaction, he should send a positive verification to the customer on any account reactivated.

30. ARE STOP PAYMENT FILES CURRENT, AND ARE COPIES OF STOP PAYMENT ORDERS DISTRIBUTED PROPERLY? L

Procedures for handling stop payments will vary because of the differences in bookkeeping systems. At least quarterly, the Local Auditor should ascertain that the system used is adequate, old stop payments are not cluttering up the file making it difficult to locate current stop payments, and that stop payment orders are being distributed to all parties concerned.

31. ARE SIGNATURES ON CHECKS AND SIGNATURE CARDS IN AGREEMENT WITH THE CORRESPONDING CORPORATE RESOLUTIONS? L

On a random selection basis, the Local Auditor should see that there is a resolution covering corporate depositors, that the signature card is in agreement with the resolution, and that signatures on checks agree with the signature cards.

CHECKING ACCOUNTS (Continued)

32. IS THE HOUSING OF STATEMENTS FIREPROOF? L

(This question is applicable only where accounts are not processed by computer.) By observation, the Local Auditor should determine the security of statements from the standpoint of their being protected from fire and their being locked, when not in use, inaccessible to unauthorized personnel.

33. IS BOOKKEEPING PERSONNEL PROPERLY TRAINED TO RECOGNIZE THE PRACTICE OF KITING OR DRAWING CHECKS AGAINST UNCOLLECTED FUNDS? L

This should be determined by the Local Auditor. The easiest way to make this determination is by interviewing various personnel of the Bookkeeping Department on a regular routine with special emphasis placed on new personnel. The Local Auditor will want to use tact in questioning these people, and he should also instruct his clerks to be alert for kiting situations when they are handling the accounts.

34. ARE COMPUTER PRODUCED KITING SUSPECT REPORTS REVIEWED AND USED PROPERLY? L

Ability to detect kiting situations is essential. To this end, the bank's computers are programmed to produce kiting suspect reports at regular intervals. Unless these reports are reviewed, and used properly, they are meaningless. On a quarterly frequency, the Local Auditor must make a definite determination that:

(1) Reports are being received by managers and supervisors of the bookkeeping function;

(2) Reports are being reviewed and all suspect accounts followed to a satisfactory conclusion. (There should be notations written on the reports regarding conclusions.) The Auditor should occasionally discuss with the individuals responsible for reviewing reports their follow-through procedures to make sure there is complete understanding of all information contained in the reports.

35. ARE NEW CHECKING ACCOUNT CUSTOMERS PROPERLY IDENTIFIED AND INVESTIGATED? L

Frequently, a dishonest person will open an account for the purpose of defrauding the bank. It is imperative that new account customers be positively identified and proper investigation conducted. It is the Local Auditor's responsibility to determine whether or not this is being done. He should review the new account slip file on a quarterly frequency to see that slips are fully completed and that proper investigation is made. Frequent waivers of investigation should be brought to the attention of management with an Audit Exception Report.

36. DOES THE LOCAL AUDITOR VERIFY CLOSED CHECKING ACCOUNTS?

The Local Auditor should mail negative verifications to persons closing checking accounts during the month. This is to confirm that the account was properly closed by the customer. A minimum of twenty percent of closed accounts, not including those closed by service charges, should be selected at random for verification. For those accounts processed by computer, a computer program may be used for the random selection of accounts and preparation of the verification. In some locations, it may be preferable to have the final closing statement diverted to the Local Auditor for mailing. A computer print-out of accounts closed would be mandatory if statements are diverted, so the Local Auditor could select the closed account to be verified from the list, insert his verification, and mail the statement.

37. ARE PRINT-OUTS OF CHECKING ACCOUNTS PROPERLY CONTROLLED?

Computer print-outs showing information as to account numbers, balances, dates of last activity, etc., must be controlled and locked up overnight, so the information will not be available to unauthorized individuals. Outdated print-outs must be shredded or destroyed in some other manner, and not just tossed in the trash.

38. ARE CREDITS, OFFSETTING LARGE DEBITS TO CHECKING ACCOUNTS, TRACED TO DETERMINE DISPOSITION OF FUNDS?

The Local Auditor will trace all credits offsetting bank originated debits to customers' checking accounts of $50,000.00 or more each to determine that the funds were applied as instructed by the customers. In some instances, a positive verification of the transaction with the customer might be required. The Local Auditor will be provided with a computer listing of all such charges showing customer name, account number, and amount of each charge for $25,000.00 or more. At least twenty percent of the credits offsetting debits between $25,000.00 and $50,000.00 and all credits $50,000.00 or more will be traced.

39. ARE INTERIM BALANCE CONTROL EXCEPTIONS REVIEWED?

It is the Local Auditor's responsibility to review and determine the authenticity of items printed as exceptions, in his home office. If he is responsible for auditing other banks, and it is not practical to review items before statements are mailed, the checking will be performed in those banks by individuals named by the presidents. In these instances, the Local Auditor should determine that authenticity of items is being verified.

OTHER DEMAND DEPOSITS

1. ARE DEMAND CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT VERIFIED DIRECTLY? L

Any demand certificates of deposit on the books should be verified directly with the customer by the Local Auditor on an annual basis. If there is no response to the annual verification for seven consecutive years, the balance is to be transferred to Other Income.

2. ARE ALL OFFICIAL CHECKS RECONCILED MONTHLY BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

The Local Auditor should reconcile all official check accounts on the general ledger and determine that the checks are being signed with authorized manual or facsimile signatures. Reconciliation frequency will vary from office to office, but should be no less than monthly.

3. ARE OFFICIAL CHECKS OUTSTANDING TWELVE MONTHS TRACED? L

The Local Auditor should trace official checks outstanding more than twelve months. He should exercise caution in doing this, however, and make sure that he is contacting the proper persons. If there is no response from the customer, the deposit should be transferred to Other Income at the end of seven years.

4. ARE UNISSUED OFFICIAL CHECKS AND THE CHECK SIGNING MACHINE PROPERLY CONTROLLED? L

During his periodic reviews, the Local Auditor should inspect the next numbered check following the number of the last check issued by the Exchange Teller, to be sure that there are no pre-signed checks on hand. He should also determine that there are no unnumbered checks in possession of the clerk having custody of official check blanks, that only an operating supply of checks is being carried by the clerk, and that the vault supply of official checks is under proper control. The Local Auditor should determine that the check signing machine is not left unlocked and unattended, and on the day of his review of official checks he should reconcile log impressions to the machine register. These are very important considerations and should not be overlooked by the Auditor.

5. ARE CASH COLLATERAL ACCOUNTS PROVED TO THE GENERAL LEDGER SEMI-ANNUALLY? L

The cash collateral accounts, including "Direct Leasing", should be proved to the general ledger figures by the Local Auditor at least semi-annually.

6. ARE CASH COLLATERAL ACCOUNTS VERIFIED SEMI-ANNUALLY? L

The Local Auditor should verify directly with the customer each of the cash collateral accounts which are carried on the Statement of Condition under the heading "Cash Collateral Accounts". This verification should be carried out semi-annually on a positive basis.

LIABILITIES DEPOSITS

COMPUTER PROCESSED SAVINGS

1. ARE RECORDS BALANCED DAILY TO THE GENERAL LEDGER? L

Banks on the computer system should balance the totals to the general ledger daily. The Local Auditor should determine that this is a continuing practice; and on a quarterly basis, he should reconcile the computer totals with the general ledger control himself.

2. ARE SAVINGS ACCOUNT TRIAL BALANCES RUN PERIODICALLY BY AUDITING PERSONNEL? L

The Local Auditor should use his own computer program in running trial balances of the savings accounts in connection with his routine verification program.

3. ARE DAILY SAVINGS CREDITS VERIFIED AGAINST THE POSTING JOURNAL EACH DAY? L

Through questioning and observation, the Local Auditor should determine that the individual responsible for checking the daily savings work and balancing to the general ledger is also checking savings credits against the posting journal. These credits must be verified and filed daily.

4. ARE SIGNATURES ON WITHDRAWALS OF $500.00 OR MORE PROPERLY VERIFIED? L

Savings withdrawal tickets of $500.00 or more should bear the initials of two tellers -- one of whom actually handled the transaction for the customer, pulled the signature card, compared the signatures, placed a hold on the account, etc., and the other initials should belong to a teller next to the person handling the transaction, and should be placed on the withdrawal slip before the money is paid to the customer. Drive-in customers requesting withdrawals of $500.00 or more should be referred to inside tellers. This procedure will help assure us that the funds were paid to an individual at the window. Withdrawals from five percenter savings will be "file-paid" by the five percenter bookkeeper. The dates on five percenter withdrawal slips should be checked against the dates processed to be sure that none are post-dated. If one is, it could have been a slip taken in connection with an unsecured five percenter loan, which was to have been paid from a five percenter savings account at maturity, and the slip was misused. Such an entry should be traced to determine final disposition of the funds and an Audit Exception Report issued. The Local Auditor should observe and test check withdrawal slips to determine that these procedures are carried out properly.

5. ARE SAVINGS ACCOUNTS VERIFIED? L

The Local Auditor should verify savings accounts direct with the customers covering 33% or 34% of the accounts annually. Be sure to verify closed accounts as well as active. Accounts to be verified should be selected at random at unannounced intervals, using the Local Auditor's trial balance and negative verification programs.

6. ARE CURRENT FILES REVIEWED FOR INACTIVE ACCOUNTS? L

Dormant regular savings accounts should be removed from the active files by the Local Auditor and placed under the control of Operations personnel. To accomplish this objective, the Local Auditor must do the following:

1. Identify accounts inactive for a period of three years or more and send a positive verification to each depositor.

2. If the depositor does not reply to the verification, the account should be reviewed with the officer responsible for savings accounts to establish by mutual agreement the status of the account.

3. Remove dormant status accounts from the active accounts and transfer the balances to a General Ledger account for dormant or inactive savings account balances. The final statement on each account will be used by Operations as a ledger to support the balance in the General Ledger account.

The method employed by the Auditor to identify dormant savings accounts will depend on the method by which regular savings accounts are processed.

Computer Processed Accounts--Atlanta

A computer program is used on a semi-annual basis to audit inactive savings deposits for those banks on the Atlanta Regular Savings computer system. This program has the following functions:

1. Semi-Annually--Prepare a listing and punch master file change cards for those accounts inactive eighteen months or more (suspect dormant accounts). The cards may be used in a maintenance processing run to code the account record inactive.

2. Semi-Annually--Prepare a listing, print verifications, and punch master file change cards for those accounts having activity after the account records were coded to indicate the accounts were "suspect dormant." The verifications should be mailed to the customers, and for those successfully verified, the MFC card should be used to remove the inactive status code.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

3. Annually--Prepare a listing, print verifications, and punch transaction cards and status cards for those accounts inactive three years or more. For each account in dormant status, the punched cards may be used to close the account and to remove the account record from the file.

Computer Processed Accounts--1400 System

Every six months the Local Auditor will use a computer program to update his audit master file of savings accounts by comparing data on this file with current account data. The printed output from this run lists accounts closed since the previous run and accounts having activity after an inactive period of eighteen months. The updated audit master is a file of account records, each of which includes a date of last activity.

After eighteen months of inactivity, the account will be coded "suspect dormant" and a positive verification should be mailed on any of these accounts having subsequent activity. If an account is successfully verified with the customer after three years of inactivity, the Local Auditor will have the account coded "dormant" and add it to the list of dormant accounts in the active files.

Non-Computer Systems

The Local Auditor should identify accounts inactive three years by reviewing the savings ledgers annually. These accounts should be handled as outlined above. The result for each will be a transfer to dormant files if the customer does not reply to a positive verification.

7. ARE DORMANT SAVINGS ACCOUNT RECORDS MAINTAINED AND CONTROLLED? L

The Operations area is responsible for maintenance of the dormant savings account records (including signature cards), balancing the ledger to the General Ledger control account quarterly, and reactivating those accounts having activity. Annually, the Auditor will list the dormant ledger and balance the total to the General Ledger. By observation it should be determined that the dormant ledger is housed in a locked, fire-resistant cabinet, and that the signature cards are maintained in a locked cabinet with the key under control of a disinterested person.

12. ARE PRINT-OUTS OF SAVINGS ACCOUNTS CONTROLLED?

Computer print-outs showing information as to account numbers, balances, dates of last activity, etc., must be controlled and locked up overnight, so the information will not be available to unauthorized individuals. Outdated print-outs must be shredded or destroyed in some other manner, and not just tossed in the trash.

13. ARE BANK ORIGINATED DEBITS TO SAVINGS ACCOUNTS APPROVED BY AN OFFICER?

The Local Auditor should determine whether or not bank originated debits to savings accounts are approved by officers. The only exceptions permitted are:

1. Charges for excessive withdrawals.

2. Deposit adjustments less than $5.00.

All debits must bear adequate descriptions of transactions. No official approval is required for credit entries, except credits for overages. Names of individuals preparing tickets, and signatures and titles of officers approving the entries, must appear on the tickets.

BRANCH OFFICES AND LARGE OPERATING DEPARTMENTS STAFFED WITH ONLY ONE OFFICER.

For branch offices or large operating departments where there is only one officer assigned, a designated managerial person of the same area may approve debit tickets provided there is on file a letter indicating that the individual has authority to approve debit tickets.

TIME CERTIFICATES, SAVINGS BONDS AND CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT

1. ARE TIME CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT AND SAVINGS BONDS PROVED MONTHLY BY THE DEPARTMENT? L

NON-COMPUTER SYSTEMS

Time Certificates of Deposit and Savings Bonds should be listed and balanced against the general ledger control by the department at least monthly. It is the Local Auditor's responsibility to ascertain by an inspection of the tapes that this is being done by the department as a regular routine. Quarterly, the Local Auditor should recap the last balancing tapes to be sure that they are in agreement with the general ledger.

COMPUTER PROCESSED ACCOUNTS

If the records of Time Certificates of Deposit and Savings Bonds are processed by computer, a trial balance will be produced in connection with the running of the monthly Bond ledger. The Savings Bond personnel of each National bank city, affiliate, or associate correspondent should recap the totals of bonds outstanding for all branches as shown on the monthly ledger summary sheets and balance these totals to the general ledger controls. They should also balance each day's debits and credits to the totals of bonds redeemed and bonds issued on each daily journal and proofread the entries thereon in order that the records will be accurate when the monthly bond ledger is run. It is the Auditor's responsibility to determine by observation that the prescribed daily procedures are being followed by Savings Bond Department personnel and that a trial balance is being run at least monthly and the totals balanced to the general ledger.

2. ARE TIME CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT AND SAVINGS BONDS PROVED AND RECONCILED SEMI-ANNUALLY BY THE AUDITOR? L

NON-COMPUTER SYSTEMS

The Local Auditor should list and balance to the general ledger controls all Time Certificates of Deposit and Savings Bonds twice each year.

COMPUTER PROCESSED ACCOUNTS

If savings bond records are computer processed, the Local Auditor should, at least twice annually, recap the computer produced totals of bonds outstanding for all branches and balance his recap to the general ledger control accounts.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

TIME CERTIFICATES, SAVINGS BONDS AND CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT - Continued

EITHER SYSTEM

In connection with the balancing and reconciliation of these accounts, all certificate and bond numbers must be accounted for. In conjunction with this procedure, the Local Auditor should verify the purchase prices paid on growth type savings bond holdings of five percent of the customers per year. The verification of total growth bond holdings will be by branch, so the fact that the customer may have other bond holdings should be pointed out. It will not be necessary to verify the purchase price paid for bonds if we remit interest checks to the customer, since insufficient amounts of interest payments would draw customer complaints. Bonds on which maturity notices are returned by the post office, and correct addresses cannot be located, should be considered dormant deposits. Bonds on which verifications are returned by the post office, and correct addresses cannot be determined, should be considered dormant deposits.

3. ARE NO SAVINGS BONDS REDEEMED PRIOR TO MATURITY? L

Regulation "Q" prohibits the redemption of savings bonds prior to the quarterly anniversary or the maturity date except in an emergency where it is necessary to prevent great hardship to the depositor. Premature redemption under the "Hardship Rule" of outstanding bonds, whether or not they contain the redemption restriction which we printed in some of our bonds, will be permitted only when the depositor has signed an application describing fully the circumstances constituting the emergency which is deemed to justify payment of the deposit before maturity. This application must be signed by the officer of the bank who accepts the statement in good faith. Such statements cannot be accepted by individuals who are not officers of the bank. In addition, the customer must be penalized three full months' interest, except on ninety-day multiple maturities where interest from lost quarterly anniversary date is forfeited. During the course of the audit of the bank's savings bonds, the Local Auditor should determine compliance with the Regulation.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

4. IS THE SIGNATURE CARD FILE CURRENT?

During the times the Local Auditor visits the branch offices or savings departments, he should review the procedure in connection with the filing of signature cards to make sure that the file is kept current. Signature cards on closed accounts should be removed from the file currently and new cards should be filed daily. Also, in checking withdrawals, he should make an exception of any account which is not supported by a signature card.

5. ARE MATURED TIME DEPOSITS HANDLED PROPERLY?

Regulation "Q" states that, after the maturity of any time deposit, the deposit is a demand deposit, and no interest may be paid for any period subsequent to the maturity date. The Local Auditor should determine that the procedures outlined in the GOG pertaining to the handling of matured time deposits are being followed.

6. ARE SAVINGS BONDS VERIFIED?

Quarterly, the Auditor--EDP will run the Savings Bond Verification program, printing verifications (generally negative, although the positive type can be printed if needed) of all savings bonds held by a percentage of the customers of each office. A list of the bonds verified will be sent to the Local Auditors, in case questions arise. The verifications will be mailed from Atlanta, but will show the return address of the appropriate Local Auditor.

CHRISTMAS CLUBS

1. ARE CHRISTMAS CLUB ACCOUNTS PROVED AT PROPER INTERVALS BY THE DEPARTMENT? L

MANUAL

Christmas Club accounts should be balanced at regular intervals by the department. Usually, this is on a weekly basis. The Local Auditor should observe that the balancing operation is carried out properly, and quarterly, he should recap their last balancing tapes to be sure that they are in agreement with the general ledger. Semi-annually, the Local Auditor should make a listing of these accounts himself.

AUTOMATED

The computer control totals should be reconciled to the general ledger on a daily basis. Quarterly, the Local Auditor should determine that the department has been balancing back daily and at this time he should reconcile the computer totals to general ledger. Any exceptions on the reconcilement should be traced to determine if they are proper.

2. ARE ONLY CHRISTMAS CLUB ACCOUNTS INCLUDED UNDER "SPECIAL TIME DEPOSITS"? L

BOTH SYSTEMS

This account was set particularly for Christmas Club accounts and should be used as such. The Local Auditor, in running trial balances or reviewing the general ledger, should ascertain that such an account has been established and is being used only for this purpose.

3. ARE PAID CHRISTMAS CLUB COUPONS PROPERLY HOUSED? L

MANUAL SYSTEM ONLY

Each time the Local Auditor is in a branch office, he should ascertain that paid Christmas Club coupons are turned over daily, after balancing, to a person who is not connected with the Savings Department so that they may be controlled under lock and key. In the office where the Local Auditor is located, the coupons should be turned over to him daily. This is an important safeguard, and the Auditor should not consider a loosely controlled operation satisfactory.

4. IS THE SIGNATURE CARD PROPERLY COMPLETED? L

In order to establish complete computer records for each Christmas Club account, care must be exercised in opening the account to get the complete customer name, address, branch name and number. The Local Auditor should spot check the signature cards to determine that they are being completed by the branch personnel.

5. ARE PREMATURELY CLOSED ACCOUNTS HANDLED SATISFACTORILY? L

When an account closes prematurely, the customer should sign a regular savings withdrawal slip to indicate withdrawal. A $1.00 service charge should be collected at this time and credited to Other Income. On accounts that are closed prematurely, holds should be placed on the computer to prevent duplicate withdrawals.

6. ARE THE ACCOUNTS VERIFIED BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR DIRECT WITH THE CUSTOMER? L

The Local Auditor should verify on a quarterly basis sufficient accounts to equal ten percent of all accounts.

7. ARE NON-POSTED ITEMS HANDLED PROPERLY? L

The Local Auditor should determine through his balancing procedure that all rejected deposit and withdrawal items are re-entered promptly and posted to the proper account.

8. ARE RETURNED CHRISTMAS CLUB CHECKS PROPERLY CONTROLLED? L

Christmas Club checks should be mailed in envelopes with the return post office box of the Local Auditor. When received by the Local Auditor, adequate records should be maintained to insure that the checks are mailed to the customer after correct addresses are obtained or If correct addresses cannot be obtained, the Local Auditor should be so notified, and the checks filed under dual control. During his next quarterly audit, the Local Auditor should account for all undelivered checks placed in dual control since his last audit. Annually, all undelivered checks should be accounted for at one time. If a check is removed from dual control, the customer's name and correct address should be obtained and forwarded to the Local Auditor, so he can verify the transaction.

U. S. TREASURY ACCOUNTS

1. IS THE TREASURY TAX AND LOAN ACCOUNT VERIFIED MONTHLY BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR?

2. ARE EXCEPTIONS ON THE ABOVE VERIFICATION TRACED?

At the present time, the Federal Reserve Bank renders one statement each month to the Atlanta Local Auditor covering all of our National Bank offices. Each of the National Bank offices outside Atlanta should forward to the Atlanta Local Auditor a copy of their Treasury Tax and Loan Account as of the predetermined date. The Atlanta Local Auditor should reconcile the account and trace all exceptions in the reconcilement. In the affiliate banks, the Local Auditor should reconcile the statement, or, if he is not available at the time it is received at the affiliate, he should check their reconcilement, and at the same time determine that the account is reconciled by an individual not involved in making entries to the account.

3. ARE WITHHELD TAXES VERIFIED CURRENTLY?

Preferably on a monthly basis, the Local Auditor will select one day's remittances of withheld taxes taken by each office or branch and trace all individual deposits back to each depositor's checking account if on us. If payment is made by a check on another bank, this item will be traced to the extent of identifying the bank to which the item was forwarded to payment. Any cash payments of withheld taxes will be verified on a positive basis with the customer.

Where records are not conveniently available for monthly review, the above may be performed on a quarterly basis by selecting three days' payments taken at each office or branch during the current fiscal quarterly audit period.

There must be available an auditor's copy of each receipt for withholding taxes and the related remittance letter to the Federal Reserve Bank. Failure to have receipts available for all items listed in the remittance letter will be an audit exception. Information, including date, amount and employer's identification number, must be properly transcribed to the remittance letter and any differences explained. Likewise, any delay between preparation of the remittance letter and the related credit to the TT&L Account must be explained.

Tracing of individual tax payments, if drawn on us, will consist of a physical inspection of the paid check, if still in the Bookkeeping Department check files, or a review of statement film. The amount and payment date must agree with information appearing on the auditor's copy of the withheld tax receipt. Should the payment not be located in file or on film, it must be located on Proof Department tapes and traced to the conclusion.

4. IS THE SERIES "E" BOND SUSPENSE ACCOUNT HANDLED PROPERLY?

All proceeds from the sale of Series "E" Bonds should be credited to the Series "E" Bond Suspense account on the general ledger, and then transferred to the Treasury Tax and Loan account at proper intervals. The Local Auditor should ascertain that the account is being handled properly at the time he verifies bond holdings plus interim observations during the times he reviews the various general ledger accounts.

5. IS PROPER CONTROL MAINTAINED OVER SERIES "E" BONDS SO THAT DEFINITE RESPONSIBILITY CAN BE PLACED AT ALL TIMES? L

Unissued Series "E" Bonds should be under control of one individual and inaccessible to other personnel. When the individual is relieved for lunch periods and breaks, the individual responsible must issue an operating supply of bonds to the relieving person, and upon his return, account for the bonds or sales tickets in this supply. The Local Auditor should determine the adequacy of the control each time he audits the office or department.

6. ARE SERIES "E" BOND HOLDINGS VERIFIED SEMI-ANNUALLY? L

Semi-annually the Local Auditor should verify with the Federal Reserve Bank the Series "E" Bonds being held by the bank for sale. After he inventories the bonds on hand he should compare these against the last report submitted to the Federal Reserve Bank, verifying the amount debited against the suspense account and credited to the Treasury Tax and Loan Account. At the same time he should verify direct with the Federal Reserve Bank the correctness of the last bond report. At intervals the Federal Reserve Bank themselves will verify with each office their series "E" bond holdings. The Local Auditor should handle this confirmation and he may count it as one of his audits.

OTHER BANKS

1. ARE "DUE TO BANK" ACCOUNTS VERIFIED MONTHLY THROUGH RECONCILEMENT? L

This will also include "Due to C & S Bank" accounts. The Local Auditor should send verification reconcilement requests to all banks at a minimum of once each month and trace all outstanding items as reported by the depositing banks. Before sending out these reconcilement forms the accounts should be listed and balanced to the General Ledger. The banks who consistently fail to return reconcilements properly completed and signed by an authorized official should be tactfully contacted by the Local Auditor in an effort to obtain reconcilements regularly. The Local Auditor should also observe the bank ledger bookkeepers balancing frequency to determine that the ledger is kept currently in balance with the General Ledger.

2. ARE SIGNATURE FILES CURRENT? L

At intervals throughout each year the Local Auditor should observe the condition of the signature files for bank accounts to ascertain that they are kept current. He should specifically spot check the paid checks to be sure that they are signed by authorized personnel.

3. ARE ALL OVERDRAFTS APPROVED BY AN OFFICER? L

Monthly when the Local Auditor balances this ledger against the General Ledger figures, he should observe each account to see whether or not any overdrafts have occurred during the month. All overdrafts so noted should be reviewed with an officer of the bank to be sure that they are properly approved.

4. ARE LEDGERS ADEQUATELY HOUSED? L

The Local Auditor should inspect the facilities for housing the ledgers. The ledgers must be housed in fireproof containers which are kept locked each night. The Local Auditor should make a point of the fact that he should be notified of any proposed changes in the housing facilities so that he can review it immediately.

5. IS THE STOP PAYMENT FILE CURRENT? L

The Local Auditor, when balancing the bank ledger, should review the stop payment file to see that it is in current condition. He should also determine whether or not the method used to detect checks on which stop payment orders have been issued is adequate.

OTHER LIABILITIES - BILLS PAYABLE

1. ARE BILLS PAYABLE THOROUGHLY ANALYZED MONTHLY, AND ARE ALL TRANSACTIONS SATISFACTORY? L

   This question is applicable to the Local Auditor of the Atlanta Office and to the Local Auditors of the Affiliate Offices. Once each month the Local Auditor should review the bills payable account and verify all entries since the last review. Contra entries should be checked to be sure that they are made to the proper accounts and in the proper amounts. To complete the audit, the Local Auditor should verify interest paid against the borrowings.

REDISCOUNTS

1. ARE ITEMS VERIFIED CURRENTLY? L

   On a quarterly frequency, the Local Auditor should review the appropriate General Ledger account to determine if any rediscounted paper is on the books. If so, he should verify the rediscounts to ascertain that all are legitimate.

RESERVE FOR DIVIDENDS

1. HAS THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS APPROVED THE RESERVE ALLOCATED FOR PAYMENT OF DIVIDENDS, AND IS THE AMOUNT OF RESERVE FOR DIVIDENDS CORRECT? L

   The reserve allocated for payment of dividends should be approved by the Board, and the amount shown on the Statement of Condition should correspond with the amount approved by the Board. The Local Auditor should verify the Board's approval and the correctness of the amount by checking the Minutes of the Board of Directors meeting.

1. ARE OVERAGES AUDITED IN THE SAME MANNER AS SHORTAGES? L

   The questions pertaining to shortages which are outlined under "Other Assets" are applicable to overages. The only difference is that an overage represents an excess of funds and is a liability of the bank. The Local Auditor should audit overages by applying the same procedures as outlined for shortages.

2. ARE ESCROW ACCOUNTS FOR TAXES AND INSURANCE VERIFIED AT THE TIME LOANS ARE VERIFIED? L

   Where escrow accounts are maintained in connection with the loans, the Local Auditor should include the balance of the escrow account when he verifies the loans with the borrowers. If there are any such insurance or tax reserves which are being held by the bank, they should be individually verified with the borrowers.

3. ARE SUSPENSE ACCOUNT RECONCILEMENTS REVIEWED BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

   The Local Auditor should keep informed of all suspense accounts and review the reconcilements of the outstanding items to general ledger at least quarterly.

1. DOES THE REGISTER OF OUTSTANDING SHARES AGREE WITH THE GENERAL LEDGER, AND ARE SURRENDERED SHARES VERIFIED CURRENTLY BY AUDITORS? L

Annually, the Local Auditor should balance the records of the bank against the general ledger to be sure that these records are in agreement as to the number of shares of stock outstanding.

BANK STOCK EXCEPT C&S NATIONAL BANK

When performing the above operation, the Local Auditor should check all cancelled certificates since the previous audit to see that the surrendered shares are properly cancelled, properly assigned, and that the signatures are guaranteed properly. There should also be a signed receipt to evidence delivery of the new certificates to stockholders or their agents.

C&S NATIONAL BANK STOCK

When performing the balancing function, the Local Auditor should spot check a minimum of 15% of certificates cancelled since the previous audit to see that the surrendered shares are properly cancelled, properly assigned, and that the signatures are guaranteed properly.

SURPLUS

1. ARE ALL ENTRIES APPROVED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS? T

The Traveling Auditors should prepare a schedule of the Surplus account and review the minutes of the Board of Directors' meetings to see that all entries to this account are proper and have been approved by the Board.

1. ARE PROPER ANNUAL CREDITS MADE? T

All entries to this account should be inspected and analyzed thoroughly by the Traveling Auditors. 3-A. ARE INTEREST RATES ON LOANS BEING USED IN ACCORDANCE WITH PRE-ESTABLISHED RATE SCHEDULES? L

On a test check basis, the Local Auditor should determine whether or not his offices are charging the proper rate on the various types of commercial loans as called for in the schedule of interest rates for his particular office. Unsecured loans bearing interest at the rate of 4½% or 5% should generally be supported by a "Customer Request for Automatic Bond Redemption" or savings withdrawal slip form filed with negotiable collateral. Savings and savings bond records should be flagged "HOLD BALANCE". The savings withdrawal slip should be dated with the maturity date of the loan. If a withdrawal slip bears any date other than the loan maturity date, it should be reported as an audit exception. Generally speaking, deviations from the pre-established rate schedule should be almost nil. All exceptions should be reported to the Executive Vice President or President, and, in addition, if there is a too high percentage of exceptions, the matter should be referred to the head of your office, and a copy of the exception report forwarded to the General Auditor. It then is the responsibility of the office to check all their loans for rate exceptions. This observation should be incorporated with other phases of continuous audits on loans. Specifically, it should be done at times of direct verification, checking collateral and listing notes.

3-B. ARE INTEREST RATES ON LOANS SECURED BY BANK'S OWN SAVINGS BONDS OR TIME CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT IN ACCORDANCE WITH REGULATION "Q"? L

As required under Regulation "Q", the rate of interest on a loan secured by a bank's own time certificate of deposit must be not less than 2% per annum in excess of the rate of interest paid by the bank on the time deposit. During the course of his checking collateral on loans, the Local Auditor should determine that the rate charged is a minimum of 2% above the rate paid on savings bonds and time certificates of deposit. There must be no violation of this Regulation.

4. ARE EARNINGS BEING ACCRUED PROPERLY? L

In the National Bank, the Accrual Department performs this function. In the affiliates, interest generally is not accrued. However, interest should be accrued on large loans which run for a long period of time where a cash entry would materially affect the earnings of a certain period in one direction and the earnings of another period in a reverse manner. The Local Auditor should keep this in mind each time he audits the loans, and any such loans found should be brought to the attention of management, if the interest is not being accrued.

5. HAS ALL TAX FREE INTEREST BEEN CREDITED TO THE PROPER ACCOUNT? L

All loans made to state, county or municipal subdivision, including school districts, should be plainly marked in order that interest from this source will be credited to the Tax Free Account. The Traveling Auditors should ascertain that the correct procedure is being followed by a review of the credit files and notes over $3,000.

RENT - SAFE DEPOSIT DEPARTMENT

1. ARE RENTAL FEES PROPERLY CREDITED? L

The Local Auditor should verify the correctness of entries to be certain that income on rented boxes has been collected and credited to Earnings.

The Local Auditor should determine the number of rented boxes. In order to do this, it is necessary to physically check the number of keys to unrented boxes to arrive at this figure. A test check should be made of any unrented boxes to verify that they are vacant. The Local Auditor should reconcile income received according to the rent cards on rented boxes against the income received as shown by the bank's records on an annual basis. Procedures for accounting for rented and unrented boxes will require the use of a numerical check sheet. Rebates of rent on surrendered boxes should be shown on the rent record, which should be attached to the old contract card.

2. ARE SAFE DEPOSIT RENTAL RECORDS ADEQUATE?

It is important that safe deposit records be adequate as well as current. All new signature contract cards should be filed daily. Rental payments should be posted to the payment record cards as they are received and the respective Income account credited daily for payments received that day.

Visits by customers into their safe deposit boxes should be recorded at the time the box number and signature are checked. Visit or access tickets should be retained by the department at least seven years. Closed out signature cards must be retained for a period of at least seven years. Those offices that have converted to or are now using the "unnumbered key" system should maintain an alphabetical file of safe deposit customers.

3. IS PAST DUE BOX RENT BEING FOLLOWED?

The Local Auditor should determine that the proper collection efforts are being made in this connection. In addition, when he prepares a list of the past due boxes on an annual basis, he should have rent notices prepared and mail these to the box renters himself with a request to notify the Auditor if the rent has been previously paid according to the customers' records. Past due rent cards should be separated from current rent cards.

4. ARE STORAGE RENTAL RECORDS ADEQUATE?

Storage rental payments should be posted to the rental record cards as they are received, and "Rent--Safe Deposit Department" credited the day received.

Customers should be billed annually in accordance with the rate shown on the contract.

INCOME - SERVICE CHARGES ON INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTS

1. ARE SERVICE CHARGES OR ANALYSIS CHARGES BEING MADE ON ALL ACCOUNTS SUBJECT TO CHARGE? L

For the banks whose Demand Deposits are on the Computer Operation, the Local Auditor, once a year using his own program, should print out the accounts on which service charges are not being assessed. He should review this list to determine that all waivers are those authorized by the bank, and if necessary, discuss the list with the Executive Vice President. The Local Auditors outside of the Atlanta Area whose deposits are processed on the computer may request the Atlanta Local Auditor to forward him a list of these accounts affecting their respective offices for audit purposes. For the banks not on the computer operation the Local Auditor can accomplish this by obtaining the previous month's stubs and reviewing them to see that all of the accounts which should be charged have actually had service charges applied. All exceptions should be reviewed with the responsible officer and a record of the exceptions made. If the exceptions appear to be abnormal, this fact should be brought to the attention of the Comptroller.

2. ARE PROPER CHARGES BEING MADE ON ITEMS RETURNED FOR INSUFFICIENT FUNDS, AND FOR OVERDRAWING ACCOUNTS? L

The Local Auditor can best determine whether or not insufficient check charges are being assessed at the time he intercepts and audits return items. Each time he is involved in auditing checking account statements, the Local Auditor should incorporate in this audit a review of the accounts having overdrafts to determine that proper charges for overdrawing the accounts have been assessed. These audits will reveal failures to charge, and excessive waivers of the charges, for which the Local Auditor should investigate the reason.

3. ARE COMPUTATIONS CHECKED, AND ARE CHARGES CHECKED INTO THE EARNINGS ACCOUNT? L

On a quarterly frequency the Local Auditor should make a special review of the service charge income account on the General Ledger. He should analyze the service charge account to determine if the amounts collected are consistent from month to month. Any fluctuations which are out of reason should be investigated. For the accounts processed by the computer, the Local Auditor on a quarterly basis should check the accumulated total of service charge print-out by the computer and trace the totals covering one complete statement cycle to the General Ledger income account. For the banks whose accounts are not processed on the computer the Local Auditor should use statement stubs or posting journals where applicable to determine whether or not the total amount of service charges charged to the customer has been credited to the proper earnings account. Depending on the bookkeeping system employed the Local Auditor should determine on a spot check basis whether or not the equipment is computing service charges correctly or that an individual other than the one who makes the original charge is spot checking computations. A review of the debits against the service charge accounts representing refunds of insufficient check and overdraft charges should be made a part of the audit to determine that the volume, the reason for the refunds, and the offsetting credits are in order.

INCOME - EXCHANGE RECEIVED

1. ARE CASH COLLECTIONS BY TELLERS VERIFIED WITH PRESCRIBED FREQUENCY? L

The Local Auditor should intercept the work of the tellers to ascertain that all cash collections of exchange are being made properly so that each teller will be checked a minimum of twice annually, or more often where interim investigation warrants. Quarterly the Local Auditor should review one month's General Ledger credits to exchange. A spread sheet listing each teller's daily credit to the exchange account covering a period of two weeks would serve as a guide in judging whether or not any particular teller should be checked more frequently. Another guide for the Local Auditor in determining the extent exchange collections should be checked is a quarterly analysis of the Exchange Received and the Exchange Paid account. A net loss would indicate that the tellers might not be collecting or crediting the exchange properly. In making an overall analysis of the exchange accounts, the Local Auditor should determine that the deferred exchange accounts are being handled properly and whether or not other departments of the bank are absorbing exchange.

2. ARE ONLY EXCHANGE COLLECTIONS ENTERED TO THIS ACCOUNT? L

The Local Auditor should be responsible for determining that only exchange collections are credited to this account and that miscellaneous entries are not also credited. The simple review of the General Ledger Credits would reveal any exceptions. Charges other than exchange charges normally should be credited to "Other Income". If other credits are permitted to be posted to this account, the net gain or loss in non-par exchange will not be reflected correctly.

3. IS EXCHANGE CREDITED DAILY REGARDLESS OF AMOUNT - NEVER ALLOWED TO ACCUMULATE? L

It is very important that all funds received be processed on date of receipt, and this rule should be strictly enforced. At the time tellers cash is verified by the Local Auditor he should look for exchange that has been held over. The exceptions noted should be brought to the attention of management in order that immediate corrective action may be taken.

1. ARE ALL CHARGES VERIFIED? L

Semi-annually the Local Auditor should obtain a total of the non-par cash letters and relate to that the amount of non-par exchange remitted and charged to the exchange paid account to determine that the amount of exchange paid is correct. In the offices where some of the cash letters go direct to the non-par correspondent from which the correspondent deducts exchange when remitting for the cash letter, the Local Auditors should audit these on a spot check basis. Semi-annually he should select the cash letters covering a preceeding one week period and determine that the total amount of exchange deducted by these correspondents each day during the period agrees with the amount charged against the exchange paid account. He should also spot check the correspondent banks deduction calculations, and at the same time ascertain that operating personnel are verifying exchange deductions on a daily basis. The Local Auditor should keep in mind the fact that there should be no other type debits against this account in order that the account will always reflect the correct amount of exchange paid for analysis purposes.

1. ARE EARNINGS FROM CASHING OF "E" BONDS CREDITED TO THE PROPER ACCOUNT, AND ARE COMPUTATIONS ACCURATE? L

The Federal Reserve Bank reimburses each office for services rendered in connection with cashing of Series "E" Bonds on a quarterly basis, March, June, September, and December. Reimbursement is based on the number of bonds cashed. The Local Auditor should maintain a follow-up record accounting for this income each quarter. He also should check copies of the bond letters for each period in determining that the correct amount of money is received. If the amount of fee does not tie in with the bank's record of bonds cashed, the Local Auditor should verify the transaction with the Federal Reserve Bank.

2. IS OTHER MISCELLANEOUS EARNINGS OR INCOME PROPERLY ACCOUNTED FOR? L

This Income Account is more or less a catch all for unclassified income, into which income is credited from various sources. Some of this income is credited daily while other of it is credited monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually. The Local Auditor should determine the sources of miscellaneous income and maintain card records to be used as a reminder or follow-up system in accounting for it. The income that is received and credited on a daily basis should be spot checked into the General Ledger on a once a month frequency to the extent that the Auditor is satisfied that all of it is being credited. The income scheduled to be received at other intervals should be specifically accounted for. During his continuous observance of the activity in this account, the Local Auditor should also make sure that there is no income credited therein which should have been credited to classified accounts.

For the savings accounts which are processed on the automation equipment the interest is computed automatically by the computer. Under this system the Local Auditor should review the program used to determine the basis of computation and that the interest is computed as of the date of last transactions in the interest period rather than a day or two before the end of the period. The Local Auditor should also check the total interest figure from the computer to determine that it is in agreement with the amount charged to interest expense and the amount credited to savings deposits. In the banks whose savings deposits are not processed on the computer, the Local Auditor should assure himself of the fact that all computations of interest are being verified by some individual other than the one who computed the interest. He should also spot check calculations and trace the totals as indicated above. Under both systems the Local Auditor should compare current period interest with the previous period, relating total interest paid to total deposits.

2. IS INTEREST ACCRUED IN LINE WITH INTEREST PAID? L

On a semi-annual frequency the Local Auditor should review the interest paid and interest accrued figures to determine whether or not the proper amount of interest is being accrued in relation to the amount being paid.

INTEREST PAID TO SAVINGS DEPOSITORS
INTEREST - SAVINGS BONDS

1. ARE DEBITS TO INTEREST EXPENSE ON SAVINGS BONDS PROPER? L

COMPUTER SYSTEM

Monthly, the Local Auditor should determine that the "year-to-date interest paid" totals shown on the Monthly Ledger Summary Sheet are balanced by Operations to the general ledger control accounts. In other than a unit bank, it will be necessary to recap these totals for all branches in order to balance to the general ledger.

MANUAL SYSTEM

Correctness of debits to Interest Expense must be verified from debits against the general ledger, and not from entries to the bond controls. Each month, the Local Auditor should review all debits against the Interest Expense account on the general ledger to be certain they are correct and proper. Where interest is paid periodically by check, the Auditor should calculate interest from the bond controls to determine that the debit against Interest Expense used to purchase interest checks is the correct amount.

EITHER SYSTEM

About 10% of the debits to Interest Expense, other than the regular monthly entries, should be verified on a test basis against redeemed bonds to ascertain that there actually was a redeemed bond in each case and that interest paid was correct.

2. ARE PAYMENTS OF BOND INTEREST CORRECT, AND ARE THERE NO MATERIAL OVERPAYMENTS OF INTEREST? L

Monthly, the Local Auditor should review the Savings Bond Exception Report for differences of $5.00 or more in the payment of bond interest. Any which are not accrual differences, and actually are payment errors, should be handled as audit exceptions. Underpayments of $5.00 or more should be remitted to the customer. As the Local Auditor reviews replies to exception reports, he should make a notation on the exception report of the total amount of interest overpayments not recovered from customers. This total of "Unrecovered Interest Overpayments to Date" should be shown on the next exception report, so that the actual amount of loss to the bank will be accumulated and carried forward until it is reported in the annual audit. The Local Auditor should keep in mind that the accrual exception differences on the report may not represent true overpayment or underpayment of interest, and could be legitimate adjustments with no corrections needed.

3. HAS THE SUSPENSE BALANCE AS DETERMINED BY THE COMPUTER BEEN COMPARED TO THE GENERAL LEDGER SUSPENSE OR THE ACCRUAL DEPARTMENT SUSPENSE? L

All Banks on the Accrual System. The Accrual Department in Atlanta will check their records on Suspense against the Suspense balance determined by the computer, and the Atlanta Local Auditor will review this procedure with the Accrual Dept.

Cash Basis Banks. Local Auditors responsible for coverage of Associate Correspondent Banks not on the accrual system should determine that the general ledger reflects the correct accrued unpaid savings bond interest as of the end of the accounting period. Any material differences should be brought to the attention of the Accrual Department and the General Auditor.

INTEREST - BORROWED MONEY

1. ARE ALL CHARGES VERIFIED AGAINST BORROWINGS? L

At the time the Local Auditor analyzes Bills Payable he should verify all charges against Interest - Borrowed Money to verify that they are reconcilable with the amount of money borrowed by the bank.

SALARIES

SALARIES - OFFICERS

SALARIES - EMPLOYEES

1. ARE ALL SALARIES APPROVED? L

Each payroll period the Payroll Department in Atlanta should receive a list of salary changes which should be officially signed. The Local Auditors outside the Atlanta Area should determine that the payroll prelist for their respective offices is officially signed. The Local Auditor of the Atlanta Area should periodically check with the Payroll Department in Atlanta to ascertain that all salary changes are being officially approved.

2. ARE ALL SALARIES CREDITED TO CHECKING ACCOUNTS? L

The Local Auditor should be aware of this requirement in making regular audits of checking accounts on the bank's individual ledgers. Any deviation should be reported to management and to the Comptroller.

3. ARE ALL SALARIES REVIEWED ANNUALLY? T

Annually the General Auditor should discuss this procedure with the personnel officer of the bank to determine the interval at which salaries are reviewed.

4. IS WITHHELD SALARY BEING ACCRUED? L

In the National Bank, the Accrual Department accrues the withheld salary. In the Affiliates, withheld salary accrued should be checked semi-annually by the Local Auditor to be sure that this liability has been established, and that the semi-annual payments are charged to the Accrued Liability.

5. HAS THE LOCAL AUDITOR BALANCED COMPENSATION AND ACCOUNTED FOR ALL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES ON THE PAYROLL? L

The Local Auditor should account for all officers and employees on the payroll by distribu[illegible]g advices of compensation twice each year to officers and employees in the various offices for which he is responsible, or by using some other means which will accomplish the same desired result. Before the advices are distributed, the Auditor should balance total pay against salary expense to be sure that his coverage is complete. At the same time, the Local Auditor should test check officers' and employees' salaries as shown on the payroll records against files in the Personnel Department to be certain that salaries are correct. Memoranda concerning officers' salary increases will be sent to the appropriate Local Auditor during the month the salary increase is approved. In addition, the Local Auditor should spot check the computation of hours worked on employee time cards, and the computation of overtime. The distribution of advices of compensation of officers should be handled by the Local Auditor and not assigned to an employee.

OCCUPANCY - RENT

1. DOES THE AMOUNT OF RENT PAID AGREE WITH THE CURRENT LEASE? L

At least once each year, the Local Auditor should review rental payments on quarters which are leased by the bank to be certain that the amounts of the payments are in agreement with the terms of the current lease. If the lease expires in the immediate future, that fact should be brought to the attention of management, and the Auditor should again check rental payments as soon as is practical after the expiration date of the old lease.

DEPRECIATION

1. ARE AMOUNTS SHOWN AS DEPRECIATION EXPENSE PROPER? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should review the amounts charged to expense as Depreciation-Furniture & Fixtures and see that they equal the depreciation figures shown on the computer records and also the amount credited to the Depreciation Reserve account. This same procedure should be followed in checking Depreciation-Bank Building.

TAXES - OTHER THAN FEDERAL INCOME TAXES

TAXES OTHER THAN INCOME TAXES

1. ARE ALL CHARGES VERIFIED AND ARE THEY BEING ACCRUED PROPERLY? L

The Local Auditor should review this account quarterly and verify all charges against the account since his last review. He should ascertain that there are in the files supporting vouchers for all charges, and that each voucher has been approved by an officer of the bank. In the National Bank the Accrual Department maintains the accrual record which should be reviewed semi-annually by the Local Auditor. In the affiliates, the Local Auditor should observe whether or not accruals have been set up in sufficient amount to cover these taxes with the same frequency.

COST OF INSURING DEPOSITS

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE

1. IS PROPER DEPOSIT LIABILITY BASE USED? L
2. ARE COMPUTATIONS VERIFIED? L
3. ARE CHARGES ACCRUED PROPERLY? L

The Local Auditor should be aware of the proper base for deposit liability and should investigate to be sure that it is being used when reports are made. He also should verify computation and at the same time determine whether or not these charges are being accrued properly by reviewing the records of the Accrual Department in the case of the National Bank and the bank's records in the case of the Affiliate Banks.

PENSION EXPENSE

1. IS EXPENSE BEING ACCRUED PROPERLY, AND IS IT VERIFIED? L

In the National Bank the Accrual Department will accrue this expense and their records should be reviewed by the Local Auditor in Atlanta semi-annually. In the Affiliate Banks, the Local Auditor should review the records of the bank to determine whether or not they are accruing this expense properly. Annually, the Atlanta Auditor will send each Local Auditor a list of officers and employees in his area who are receiving pension checks, and the Local Auditor should verify by personal contact that the intended payee is actually receiving the funds. The Atlanta Auditor will verify the correctness of the check amounts with the trustees of the pension fund.

DIRECTORS FEES

1. ARE ALL CHARGES PROPERLY APPROVED, AND DO EXPENSES RECONCILE WITH THE MEMBERS PRESENT ACCORDING TO THE MINUTES? L

During his audit of the bank's expenses, the Local Auditor should ascertain that debits against Directors Fees expense have been approved by an authorized individual. The Local Auditor should reconcile the fees paid to Directors against the Minutes of the Directors meetings to see that the charges shown on the bank's records are proper.

Long term insurance expense is being accrued by the Accrual Department for the National Bank, and the Traveling Auditors should review this matter with them. In the Affiliates, this should be determined by the Traveling Auditors when they prepare various schedules for their audit report.

POSTAGE

1. ARE ALL CHARGES PAID TO THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT? L

2. IF NOT, ARE ALL OTHER CHARGES REASONABLE? L

Normally the biggest portion of postage expense should be paid directly to the Post Office Department. At the time the Local Auditor audits the bank's expense bills he should see that the offsetting credit entries to charges against the postage account represent checks payable to and endorsed by the Post Office Department. There usually will be some miscellaneous charges to this expense account such as petty stamp money which will be proper. However, these should be watched by the Local Auditor because they should not be allowed to run into any large amounts.

2. ARE ALL EXPENSE VOUCHERS COMPLETED PROPERLY? L

3. ARE EXPENSES INCURRED BY ALL INDIVIDUALS IN LINE WITH EACH OTHER? L

4. ARE ALL CHARGES OFFICIALLY APPROVED? L

5. IS INFORMATION REQUIRED BY THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE BEING OBTAINED? L

The Local Auditor should determine on a current basis whether or not an analysis of this account is being made, and whether or not the executive officer of the bank is kept informed of the individuals incurring expenses of this nature. An effective method of analyzing these expenses according to individuals incurring them is through maintaining subsidiary accounts in the General Ledger under the names of the individuals involved. This would provide the Local Auditor and other interested officers a ready means of comparing expense accounts of individuals of comparable rank and travel activity in determining whether or not they are in line with each other. In any event, the Local Auditor should be alert to recognize any expenses that would appear to be unreasonable, and discuss the matter with the head of the bank, or if deemed necessary, a report should be made to the Comptroller and the General Auditor. The Local Auditor should make sure that each and every expense voucher is properly completed and officially approved. In addition, the Local Auditor should be alert to detect any non-deductible entertainment expenses which do not meet the government regulations affecting travel and entertainment expenses. The regulations describe deductible entertainment expenses as being in one of two categories:

1. Directly related to active conduct of our business.

2. Associated with the active conduct of our business.

Also, the Revenue Act makes club dues non-deductible as a business expense unless the club is used more than 50% for business purposes, then only that portion of the club dues which is proportionate to the amount of time the club facilities are used for business will be deductible. The portion of club dues attributable to personal utilization will be treated as additional compensation to the individual concerned; therefore, in order to differentiate between the two, it is necessary to maintain club utilization work sheets on each individual concerned. The Local Auditor should familiarize himself with the instructions issued by the Comptroller's Department, and determine from time to time that these records are accurately kept.

6. ARE BANK OWNED AUTOMOBILES USED FOR BANK PURPOSES ONLY? L

The Local Auditor should ascertain from time to time that the bank owned automobiles are used only for bank purposes and are not used for personal use.

4. HAVE ALL DISCOUNTS BEEN TAKEN? L

5. ARE EXPENSES INCURRED IN LINE WITH BUDGET FIGURES OF THE ACCRUAL DEPARTMENT? L

6. IS INVESTED CREDIT REQUESTED ON LEASED EQUIPMENT? L

Daily or monthly, whichever is applicable, the Local Auditor should review all of the expenses and charges to the bank's expense accounts. During this review, he should be careful to note that they are being charged against the proper account. All charges should be supported by invoices, bills or other memoranda, all of which should be approved by the Cashier or other officers of the bank. The Local Auditor should make an exception of any that are not properly supported or approved. In auditing these expenses, the Auditor should place his audit stamp on expense bills to prevent them from being used again to support a subsequent disbursement. The Local Auditor should satisfy himself that all charges appear to be proper and reasonable, and he should not hesitate to question any disbursements which are out of the ordinary. Where discounts are allowed, the Local Auditor should make certain that the bank is taking advantage of the discount in every case.

Each month, the Local Auditor should review the Accrual Statement as a regular routine and discuss with the Cashier any expense items on which the cash expenditures appear to be out of relationship with the budget figures. While reviewing expenses, the Local Auditor should watch for charges for equipment recently leased. He should then determine whether the lessee of the equipment (the bank) requested that the investment credit be passed on to the bank. If so, the lessor of the equipment should have been requested to send the investment credit election statement directly to the Comptroller Department of the National Bank for (1) execution, or (2) transmittal to the appropriate bank Cashier with instructions for execution. The lessee should notify the Comptroller's Department that the election statement is forthcoming. If not, the Local Auditor should report it as an exception.

7. IS THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER THE ONLY OFFICER ATTENDING MORE THAN ONE CONVENTION, SCHOOL, SEMINAR, WORKSHOP, ETC., OUTSIDE THE CITY EACH CALENDAR YEAR? L

The Local Auditor should keep a record for each individual incurring bank travel, business development, or education and training expense involving attendance at some type of meeting or school. In addition to the name of the individual, the record should show the type of meeting, date, and expenses incurred. At the end of each calendar year, the Local Auditor should report to the General Auditor and chief executive officer of the bank involved the names of the individuals attending two or more meetings, the dates, types of meetings, and expenses incurred during the calendar year.

OTHER REAL ESTATE EXPENSES

1. ARE ALL EXPENSES VERIFIED? L

2. ARE ALL EXPENSES CORRECT AND JUSTIFIED? L

Periodically, not less than quarterly, the Local Auditor should verify all expenses charged against this account. He should raise a question regarding any items which he feels are not justifiable. The Local Auditor should exercise his own judgment in determining whether or not disbursements should be verified directly with the person to whom paid. Direct verification would be in order if he is not able in some other manner to completely satisfy himself that these expenses are proper. During his review of this account, the Local Auditor should determine that there are no entries posted therein which should have been charged to another account.

PROFIT OR LOSS ON SECURITIES SOLD

1. ARE ALL PROFITS AND LOSSES VERIFIED? L

Quarterly the Local Auditor should review all transactions handled by the Bond Department to be sure that the proper amount of profits or losses are being entered to the proper account on the records of the bank. This work should be tied in with his audit of the entries in connection with the "Reserve for Bond Account".

2. ARE PROPER TAX PERCENTAGES APPLIED TO GAINS OR LOSSES ON SECURITIES SOLD? L

In connection with the work outlined above, the Local Auditor should, at the same time, determine that the proper amount of taxes are applied in connection with the Accrued Income Tax Account and the Reserve for Income Tax Account.

TRANSFERS FROM RESERVE FOR BOND ACCOUNT

1. ARE ALL TRANSFERS THE PROPER PERCENTAGE OF LOSSES ON SECURITIES SOLD? L

In connection with his quarterly audit of profit or loss on securities sold, the Local Auditor should determine whether or not the proper percentages of losses are transferred from the Reserve for Bond Account.

RECOVERIES

1. ARE ADEQUATE RECORDS KEPT ON CHARGED-OFF ASSETS? L

2. ARE PROPER EFFORTS BEING MADE TO EFFECT RECOVERIES? L

Each bank should maintain adequate records on all charged-off assets, and responsibility for these records should be specifically assigned to an individual Proper efforts should be made to effect recoveries on a continuous basis, and in this connection, the Local Auditor should determine that a routine has been established for following these charged-off assets. Once the Local Auditor has determined that the procedures to be followed are adequate, he should not stop here, but should review with the persons responsible at least quarterly the efforts expended to effect recoveries.

3. ARE ALL DEBITS TO OTHER RECOVERIES REVIEWED AND APPROVED BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR PRIOR TO POSTING? L

Debits for unclaimed deposits, previously credited and being refunded, should be reviewed by the Local Auditor prior to posting, and verified on a positive basis with the customer. Any other debits to the account should similarly be reviewed to determine that they are proper.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

FEDERAL INCOME TAXES

1. ARE TAXES COMPUTED PROPERLY, PARTICULARLY TAXES ON CAPITAL GAINS AND LOSSES? T

   Once each year, the Traveling Auditors should review the copy of the income tax return to see whether or not taxes have been computed properly. Any questions should be directed to the Comptroller.

2. IS THE PROPER AMOUNT OF ESTIMATED TAX PAID WHEN DUE? L

   Estimated income taxes must be paid by the bank by April 15th, June 15th, September 15th, and December 15th. The Comptroller's Department will advise the Cashier of each office the amount of estimated income tax to be remitted. The Local Auditor should review these payments to determine that the amounts are correct and the remittances were forwarded when due.

ADDITION TO RESERVE FOR LOAN LOSSES

1. ARE ADDITIONS APPROVED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS? T

2. ARE ADDITIONS ACCRUED MONTHLY? T

3. ARE ALL ENTRIES PROPER INCLUDING CONTRA ENTRIES? T

   The Traveling Auditors, at the time of their annual audit, should check the minutes of the Board of Directors' meetings to verify that all additions to the Reserve for Loan Losses have been approved by the Board of Directors. At the same time, they should determine whether or not the bank is accruing these additions on a monthly basis. They also should ascertain that no credits are being made to this account that should be credited to some other account, in particular to "Other Recoveries".

CONTRIBUTION TO PROFIT SHARING TRUST FUND

1. IS THE CONTRIBUTION IN ACCORDANCE WITH TERMS OF THE TRUST FUND? T

2. IS THE PROPER AMOUNT BEING ACCRUED MONTHLY? T

   The Traveling Auditors should examine the contributions to the profit sharing fund to be sure that they are in accordance with the terms of the trust fund. They also should check the monthly accruals to the profit sharing fund to determine whether or not the monthly contributions are in the proper amount.

ADDITIONS TO RESERVE FOR BOND ACCOUNT

1. ARE SUCH ADDITIONS THE PROPER PERCENTAGE OF PROFITS ON SECURITIES SOLD?

Quarterly, and at the same time the Local Auditor audits profit and loss on securities sold, he should determine that additions to the Reserve for Bond Account are the proper percentages of profits on securities sold.

OTHER DEDUCTIONS

1. ARE ALL CHARGE-OFFS APPROVED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS?

The Local Auditor should review the minutes of the Board of Directors meetings to determine whether or not all charge-offs have been approved by the Board of Directors. The Local Auditor should also study the explanations to determine whether further questioning or investigation is in order.

DISTRIBUTION OF PROFITS

RETAINED AS PART OF CAPITAL FUNDS

1. IS REMAINDER OF NET PROFITS TRANSFERRED ANNUALLY TO UNDIVIDED PROFITS?

The Auditors should determine whether or not the remainder of net profits after dividends has been transferred to Undivided Profits on an annual basis.

OTHER TRAVELERS CHEQUES

1. ARE CHEQUES ON HAND VERIFIED PERIODICALLY WITH THE ISSUING AGENCY? L

Semi-annually the Local Auditor should verify the travelers cheques on hand with the issuing agency to make sure that all are accounted for. He should also determine that the bank is not holding an excessive supply of cheques.

2. ARE DAILY PROCEDURES BEING HANDLED PROPERLY? L

The Local Auditor is responsible for determining that daily procedures are in order. In addition to checking these procedures at the time he verifies travelers cheques with the issuing agency, he should make special observations each time he performs other work in or around the department. Although one and only one person should be charged with the overall responsibility for travelers cheques and the maintenance of the daily inventory, it is permissable for more than one employee to sell travelers cheques, provided each employee maintains a separate supply of travelers cheques for which the employee alone is responsible. If such is the case, each employee must report all sales to the person charged with the overall responsibility for travelers cheques so that the daily continuous inventory will be correct. Each morning, each employee who has a supply of cheques should check the number of the last issued cheque of the previous day against the numbers of the cheques on hand to be sure that there has been no skip in these numbers. The individual responsible for the preparation of the daily report of sales must be sure that all cheques which have been sold are in consecutive order and follow those of the previous report. The vault supply of the cheques should be under the control of the person charged with the overall responsibility, with only an adequate operating supply held by each employee selling cheques. If any person charged with the responsibility for travelers cheques is relieved of this duty, his/or her successor should be checked in as to travelers cheques on hand just like we do our tellers who handle cash so that, at all times, we will be able to pin point responsibility to one person.

FOREIGN DRAWING AND REMITTING SERVICE

1. ARE EXCHANGE RATES AND COMMISSION INCOME FROM SALES OF THIS SERVICE VERIFIED? L

In the offices offering foreign drawing and remitting service, the Local Auditor should spot check, or where the volume is not great, check 100% of the exchange conversions and trace commission income to the General Ledger. This work should be planned in conjunction with other work performed at the office or the International Department. Each office should retain in it's files office copies of the drafts and foreign transfers on which there is provided a space for recording the rate and commission charges. These foreign drafts and transfers are prenumbered and should be issued in numerical sequence.

OTHER

FOREIGN COLLECTION DEPARTMENT

1. ARE COLLECTION ITEMS UNDER NUMERICAL CONTROL? L

The Local Auditor should be aware of whether or not this control is being exercised, and through frequent observation he should determine that numerical sequence is being maintained.

2. ARE ITEMS ENTERED FOR COLLECTION VERIFIED BY BALANCING AND TRACING? L

The Foreign Collection Department should maintain daily updated control records on outstanding collections. Semi-annually the Local Auditor should balance all outstanding collections against these records, and trace their disposition of payments covering these items.

3. ARE REMITTANCES INTERCEPTED QUARTERLY WITHOUT THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, AND THE PROPER CREDITING BY THE DEPARTMENT VERIFIED? L

On a quarterly basis, the Local Auditor should intercept remittances without the knowledge of the department over a period of about three or four days. In doing this he should make a record of the remittances and after the department has put through their work, the Local Auditor should verify the proper crediting of each individual remittance. Unless remittances are intercepted without knowledge of the department, the audit is rendered ineffective. The Local Auditor should continue his efforts to intercept without knowledge of the department, but where he is not sure that this is being accomplished, he should proceed with an application of funds audit by intercepting the department's block from the Proof Department to determine the presence of any lapping of funds. For example, if the Auditor finds a remittance which should have been credited to "B" but was credited to "A", this would be a strong indication of fund lapping and must be investigated.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

OTHER

COLLECTION ITEMS - NOTES, CHECKS, DRAFTS, ETC.
(NON-CASH ITEMS)

1. ARE COLLECTION ITEMS, NOTES, CHECKS, AND DRAFTS UNDER PRE-NUMBERED NUMERICAL CONTROL? L

   The Local Auditor should be aware of whether or not pre-numbered numerical control over these items is in effect and account for all missing numbers, generally for multi-payment notes, quarterly. A division of duties is necessary whereby one person is responsible for receiving the items from the customer, preparing the collection records, and then turning them over to the Collection Department for handling.

2. IS CASH CARRIED BY THE CITY COLLECTION TELLER HELD TO A MINIMUM? L

   The cash requirements of this teller should be considerably less than the regular Paying and Receiving Teller. This cash should not be allowed to build up, and the Local Auditor should keep this fact in mind during his regular cash audits. A build-up in cash would afford a greater opportunity of withholding or lapping of funds.

3. ARE ITEMS FOR COLLECTION VERIFIED SEMI-ANNUALLY? L

   The Local Auditor should semi-annually verify direct with the maker and payee one-fourth (1/4) of all collections held, to ascertain that no funds are being withheld. The important thing to consider in this verification is that all items are accounted for and that the Auditor would detect any that were withheld. The Auditor's use of pre-numbered control would serve this purpose. In the offices where the volume is not great, one hundred percent direct verifications should be made annually.

4. ARE NON-CASH ITEM COLLECTION PAID ADVICES SENT TO THE LOCAL AUDITING DEPARTMENT DAILY? L

   As single payment items and final payments on multi-payment items are paid, the Auditor's copy of the payment tickler should be marked "PAID" and sent to the Local Auditor. The Local Auditor should accumulate these copies and file them in numerical order. The Local Auditor should check these advices against the actual credits on a spot check basis to determine that the customer has received credit as indicated. The application of funds audit is very important in this area. Not less than quarterly, the Local Auditor should intercept the department's block from the Proof Department in an effort to uncover any lapping of funds where checks are used in the lapping operation. Cash payment of items should be verified with the payer.

5. ARE OLD ITEMS HANDLED PROPERLY? L

Each time the Local Auditor is involved in any work in this department, he should ascertain that all old items which cannot be collected are being promptly returned to the customer and proper acknowledgement received from the customer, or, if the items are undeliverable, they should be placed in the Cashier's box.

6. ARE COLLECTION TELLERS ROTATED AFTER PROPER INTERVALS? L

Rotation of the collection teller is especially important from an auditing standpoint. The person who receives and processes payments in this department should serve no more than fifteen months in that capacity and should be rotated after having served that period of time. The Local Auditor should review periodically the teller's length of service, and about three months before rotation is due, the Local Auditor should point out this fact to the officer in charge.

7. ARE ENVELOPES WHICH CONTAINED PAID NOTES OR OLD UNCOLLECTIBLE NOTES HELD UNTIL YEAR END? L

During his semi-annual verification of items left for collection, the Local Auditor should determine that envelopes which contained collection notes paid out during the year, and envelopes which contained collection notes returned to our customers because of non-payment by the borrowers during the year, are held until the end of the current year in a "Paid-Out" file. The bank must file a Form 1099 on any customer receiving an aggregate total of interest of $600.00 or more during the year, regardless of the number of notes left with the bank for collection by the customer. The information needed to complete these 1099's is obtained from the note collection envelopes.

OTHER SAFE DEPOSIT DEPARTMENT

1. IS AN ADEQUATE RECORD OF ENTRIES MAINTAINED, AND HAS THE AUDITOR TEST CHECKED THE ACCESS TICKETS TO DETERMINE THAT ONLY AUTHORIZED ENTRANCE IS PERMITTED AND THAT TICKETS ARE PROPERLY COMPLETED AND INITIALED? L

The Local Auditor should satisfy himself that the Safe Deposit Department is maintaining an adequate record of entries into safe deposit boxes, or storage files. Quarterly, the Local Auditor should select a block of access tickets and compare the signatures against authorized signatures on file. All tickets should be properly initialed and completed to include the date and time of entry. The Auditor should also observe whether or not the vault custodian is comparing signatures before entry is permitted.

2. IS PROPER CUSTODY MAINTAINED OVER GUARD KEYS? L

The Local Auditor should, by observation and questioning, determine that the guard key is properly safeguarded so that there will be no possibility of unauthorized people having access to it. This should be observed each time the Local Auditor is performing work in the department or in the area.

3. ARE KEYS TO UNRENTED BOXES UNDER DUAL CONTROL? L

All keys to unrented boxes must be kept under strict dual control so that no one individual will have access to the box or compartment containing keys to unrented boxes. The important thing for the Local Auditor to keep in mind is that dual control must be constant. Therefore, the Local Auditor should specifically determine that no breakdowns in the dual control have occurred each time he is in or around the Safe Deposit Department.

4. DO ONLY CUSTOMERS REMOVE AND RETURN BOXES FROM AND TO SAFES? L

When auditing the Safe Deposit Department, the Local Auditor should observe the vault custodian's procedure of serving the customers. When the compartment door has been opened, the customer should remove his box from the safe and also return it to the compartment when the compartment has been re-opened for this purpose. Under no circumstances should the custodian enter the vault alone for the purpose of delivering a box to a customer.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

OTHER SAFE DEPOSIT DEPARTMENT

5. IS IT STANDARD PROCEDURE TO CLOSE AND LOCK THE DOOR OF A SAFE DEPOSIT BOX WHILE THE CUSTOMER IS INSPECTING THE CONTENTS OF HIS BOX? L

During his observations, the Local Auditor should determine that the vault custodian had locked the door to safe deposit boxes while the customers are inspecting the contents of the boxes. It is also important that the keys not be left hanging in the locks as the customers keys should remain in the customer's possession at all times. If the doors are left open, a box could inadvertently be replaced in the wrong compartment. If keys are left in the locks it is possible that an impression of the key for duplication purposes could be made, and in case of a claim for missing contents, the bank should always be in a position to certify that customers keys remained in the possession of the customer.

6. ARE LOCKS CHANGED UPON TERMINATION OF LEASES AND BEFORE SAFES ARE LEASED TO NEW TENANTS? L

Locks must be changed when leases are terminated. There must be no exceptions. The Local Auditor should determine that this procedure is strictly adhered to through continuous observation and questioning of safe deposit personnel.

7. ARE NEW KEYS PLACED UNDER DUAL CONTROL IMMEDIATELY UPON RECEIPT? L

When new keys are received from the Printing Department in Atlanta, they must not be accumulated and placed under dual control at a later date. It also is very important that the vault custodian not be the person who receives the new keys. Best control can be had if the keys are received by a person detached from the safe deposit operation - then this person and the vault custodian should place them in the key safe in presence of each other. In addition, the person who receives the new keys must be one who does not have access to the guard keys. The Local Auditor should review this operation frequently so that he will be aware of any deviation from prescribed procedure.

OTHER SAFE DEPOSIT DEPARTMENT

8. ARE CONTENTS OF DRILLED SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES BEING HANDLED PROPERLY? L

After rent on a safe deposit box has been past due for a year and a registered letter to the customer informing him that his box will be entered and the contents removed if rent is not paid within 30 days has brought no response, the box may be drilled for non-payment of rent. Boxes for which there are no keys or rent cards in file may be drilled after they have been sealed with an Auditor's seal for not less than two years. When a safe deposit box is drilled for rent non-payment, the contents should be inventoried and listed on a pre-numbered inventory Form No. 20-1022. The entire procedure for drilling boxes, preparing inventories, storing contents, etc., is outlined in G.O.G. 17.25, and each Local Auditor should be thoroughly familiar with what it says. It is mandatory that the procedures outlined in G.O.G. 17.25 be followed. When accounting for the contents of drilled boxes, the Local Auditor should also account for all serially numbered Inventory Forms (Form #20-1022) assigned to the office. There should be no missing numbers.

OTHER — SAFE DEPOSIT DEPARTMENT

9. DOES BANK MANAGEMENT AND VAULT CUSTODIAN KNOW THE POTENTIAL HAZARDS AND LIABILITIES OF SAFE DEPOSIT BUSINESS, AND DO THEY REALIZE THE PENALTY OF NEGLIGENCE? L-T

In making his regular audits of this department, the Local Auditor should be able to determine whether or not the people responsible recognize the potential hazards of the operation. He should make sure that they understand the reasons for the various safeguards and controls. When the situation is truly understood, the problems of control are much diminished. The Traveling Auditors should also ascertain that proper importance is placed on the prescribed safeguards in the operation of this department.

10. ARE UNRENTED SAFE COMPARTMENTS, FOR WHICH THERE ARE NO KEYS IN THE UNRENTED KEY FILE, SEALED BY THE AUDITOR? L

When accounting for keys, the Local Auditor should determine that there are two keys in the unrented key file for all unrented boxes. A report should be prepared on all exceptions. If there are no keys in the unrented file for a box that the bank has no record of renting and the rentor can not be determined by reviewing safe deposit rental income tickets or other means, the Local Auditor should seal the safe compartment by placing his audit seal over the key slots. The Local Auditor should periodically inspect his seal to determine that it has not been tampered with, and that it remains on the box for a period of two years. At the end of the two-year period, if no one has seeked access to the compartment or paid rent on it, the lock should be drilled for non-payment of rent and the contents inventoried as outlined under Question No. 8 of this same section of the Commercial Audit Manual.

1. ARE ALL ITEMS PHYSICALLY VERIFIED ANNUALLY?

Annually, the Local Auditor should verify physically all items held in storage. All items held should have a seal attached bearing a printed number that agrees with the number on the contract signed by both the customer and the bank's representative.

2. ARE ALL ITEMS HELD UNDER DUAL CONTROL?

The Local Auditor should during his annual audit insure that dual control is maintained over items held in storage.

3. ARE ITEMS HELD IN STORAGE VERIFIED WITH CUSTOMERS ANNUALLY?

At the time the Local Auditor physically verifies the presence of the items held, he should send a verification directly to the customer. The Local Auditor should also verify directly with the customer all contracts closed since his last audit.

4. IS THERE A DESCRIPTION OF THE ITEM(S) ACCEPTED FOR STORAGE ON THE CONTRACT?

The Local Auditor should during his annual physical verification of the items held in storage insure that the contracts in force bear a description sufficient enough to positively identify the item(s) held for each customer. Also, the customer must declare the value of the item(s) accepted for storage by the bank.

5. ARE STORAGE CONTRACTS UNDER NUMERICAL CONTROL AND ARE ALL NUMBERS ACCOUNTED FOR?

The Local Auditor should during his annual audit of this department insure that storage contracts are under strict numerical control and that all numbers are accounted for. When the bank enters into a contract with a customer to hold an item or items in storage for him, the customer and a representative of the bank must sign both copies of the contract. The customer receives the original contract and the duplicate is retained by the Safe Deposit Department. When the contract is terminated, the customer must sign the release protion of the contract along with two representatives of the bank, one of whom preferably is a senior employee.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

NIGHT DEPOSITORY

1. IS THE OPENING OF THE NIGHT DEPOSITORY SAFE AND THE REMOVAL OF ITS CONTENTS HANDLED PROPERLY? L

Whenever working in or around the night depository area, but not less than quarterly, the Local Auditor should determine that the night depository safe is being unlocked under strict dual control. No one person should be able to unlock the safe by himself. All contents of the safe should be removed from the depository and registered under dual control. The safe door should then be closed and locked, and the door alarm reactivated if there will be more than a five-minute delay before the main vault door is opened. Each of the individuals comprising the dual control should verify the bag numbers and the number of envelopes found in the safe, and each party of the dual control must sign the log book. It is mandatory that the bank's records support the fact that the safe was opened and the contents were removed under dual control.

2. AFTER REMOVAL FROM THE NIGHT DEPOSITORY SAFE, ARE THE CONTENTS PROPERLY SAFEGUARDED? L

After the night depository bags have been removed from the safe and logged in under dual control, they should be assigned to individuals who will be responsible for controlling the bags until they are called for by customers, or until the contents have been processed where the bank is authorized to do so. The individuals accepting the bags should initial the log book for each bag, indicating their receipt of each bag. This night depository log book should clearly indicate the employee who is responsible for holding the bag until it is called for by the customer, or the employee responsible for processing the contents of the bag.

3. ARE NIGHT DEPOSITORY BAGS DELIVERED ONLY TO PROPERLY AUTHORIZED INDIVIDUALS? L

After the individuals who are responsible for controlling and protecting night depository bags until they are called for by customers, or who are responsible for processing the contents of the bags, have receipted for the bags on the night depository log book, they should pull the customers' signature cards, and match them with the bags. The signature cards should not be housed with the bags to prevent loss of bag and card. As the bags are signed for by the customers, the signature cards should be re-filed. At the end of the day, there should be a bag remaining for each outstanding card. This will provide the employees responsible a means for accounting for all undelivered bags, which must be safeguarded overnight in the bank vault.

AS EACH EXCEPTION IS FOUND, A REPORT SHOULD BE MADE ON AN AUDITOR'S EXCEPTION FORM TO THE HEAD OF THE OFFICE, THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE DEPARTMENT, WITH COPIES TO THE GENERAL AUDITOR.

NIGHT DEPOSITORY

4. ARE KEYS TO BAGS WHICH THE BANK IS AUTHORIZED TO OPEN PROPERLY CONTROLLED? L

All keys held to bags that the bank is authorized to open by customers who have elected to accept the "bank's count" should be controlled by those individuals whose responsibility it is to verify the contents of the bags. If one teller is responsible for processing the contents of such bags, the keys to the bags should be kept in that teller's cash drawer. If more than one teller processes bags, the keys should be held by an individual not connected with the dual control opening of the safe, and assigned with the bags to specific tellers. Keys to night depository bags should never be left exposed and unattended.

5. IS THE CHECK DEPOSITORY OPENED UNDER DUAL CONTROL? L

The check depository is frequently used by customers for cash deposits. Therefore, it is mandatory that the check depository be opened under dual control. Under no circumstances do we want to put one of our employees in the position of having individually remove the contents of the check depository, and then have a customer make a claim for a missing cash deposit.

6. ARE ALL CASH DEPOSITS FOUND IN EITHER THE CHECK DEPOSITORY OR THE NIGHT DEPOSITORY SAFE VERIFIED UNDER DUAL CONTROL? L

Envelopes found in either the night depository safe or the check depository should be opened under dual control, and those containing cash should be recorded in a log book, which should be initialed by the two individuals opening the deposits. If one of the two parties of the dual control is a teller, the teller can go ahead and process the cash deposits. Otherwise, the cash deposits should be turned over to a teller, who should receipt the log book for the deposits, and then process them. Envelopes which do not contain cash need not be recorded except for the total number found. These should then be passed on to other tellers for processing in the normal manner.

7. ARE UNRENTED NIGHT DEPOSITORY BAGS AND KEYS PROPERLY PROTECTED? L

All keys to unrented night depository bags should be tagged with the corresponding bag number and held under dual control until the bag is rented. Unrented night depository bags should be held in the cash vault by the head teller.

NIGHT DEPOSITORY

8. ARE NIGHT DEPOSITORY RECORDS ADEQUATE? L

The Local Auditor should test check customers' signature cards (bag receipt cards), rental agreements, indemnity agreements, and lost bag statements. He should determine that bags are not being delivered to unauthorized individuals, indemnity letters, rental agreements, etc., are being fully completed and properly signed, and that missing bags are supported by lost bag statements.

9. IS THE NIGHT DEPOSITORY OPERATING PROPERLY? L

During his quarterly reviews, the Local Auditor should determine that the night depository head is operating properly, that it is fish-proof, and in the case of new installations, that the safe and chute are encased in reinforced concrete.

OPERATIONS

1. HAS THE LOCAL AUDITOR OR COMPTROLLER'S DEPARTMENT APPROVED ALL NEW ACCOUNTS OPENED ON THE GENERAL LEDGER? L

The Local Auditor must be sure that he is made aware of any new accounts contemplated for the general ledger before they are put into use, regardless of whether they be Asset, Liability, Income or Expense accounts. All accounts that are opened on the general ledger must be pre-approved by the Local Auditor or Comptroller's Department.

If, in the judgment of the Auditor, the establishment of an account would conflict with normal banking practices or auditing procedures, the matter should be discussed with the Operations Officer. In the absence of mutual agreement, the matter should be referred to the Comptroller or the General Auditor.

2. DISCUSS BRIEFLY ANY RECOMMENDED CHANGES. L

In any audit work, the Auditor should observe the systems and methods being used and constantly seek improvements. When the Auditor feels that improvements can be made in a system or procedure in use by the bank, it would be best to discuss the matter with the Operations Officer in the bank. If both the Auditor and the Operations Officer feel that the change would be wise, steps should be taken to effect the change. If the discussion does not lead to mutual agreement, it would be advisable for the Auditor to present the matter to the Comptroller for his action.

3. ARE EDP SERVICE CONTRACTS ON FILE?

If the bank being audited either performs a computer service for another bank, or has another bank perform any computer service for it, there should be an EDP service contract in file (except between offices of the same bank). Annually, the Local Auditor should determine that these contracts are in file.

4. ARE GENERAL LEDGER DEBITS OFFICIALLY APPROVED?

The Local Auditor should determine whether or not debits to general ledger accounts are approved by officers or properly authorized individuals. The only exceptions permitted are as follows:

1. Interior Transfers.
2. Proof Department resume entries, and subsequent entries made by control clerks to effect changes to adjust general ledger accounts for the particular day's transactions.
3. Entries to Cash.

OPERATIONS - Continued

All tickets must bear adequate descriptions of transactions. No official approval is required for credit entries, except credits to Overage and Shortage accounts. Names of individuals preparing tickets, and signatures and titles of officers approving the entries, must appear on the tickets.

BRANCH OFFICES AND LARGE OPERATING DEPARTMENTS STAFFED WITH ONLY ONE OFFICER

For branch offices or large operating departments where there is only one officer assigned, a designated managerial person of the same area may approve debit tickets, except debits to income accounts, expense accounts, and either debits or credits to "Over and Short", provided there is on file a letter indicating that the individual has authority to approve debit tickets.

5. DOES AN OFFICIAL OR SENIOR MALE EMPLOYEE OF THE BANK EITHER CLOSE OR WITNESS [illegible] VAULT, AND CHECK [illegible]

Two people should close the bank's vaults each day, one of whom preferably should be an officer of the bank. If it is not practical for an officer to be present because of meetings, business calls, etc., a senior responsible male employee may assist the Head Teller with the vault closing. This official or senior employee should verify that the vault time has been placed on the time locks, the clocks are running, the door is properly closed, and the combination dial spun. A log book should be maintained in which the date, time, number of hours, and initials of the two individuals are recorded. The Local Auditor should inspect the log book at monthly intervals to determine that all closings have been properly witnessed and recorded.

6. IS INCOMING MAIL [illegible] BY DESIGNATED PARTIES? L

Incoming mail should be routed through a mail department which preferably should be under the control of the Local Auditor. Where it is not practical for mail department to come under the supervision of the Local Auditor, he should investigate from time to time in checking the ultimate disposition of monies received in order that the possibilities of loss might be held to a minimum.

7. IS INCOMING REGISTERED MAIL RECEIPTED FOR BY THE RESPONSIBLE DEPARTMENTS?

The Local Auditor should determine whether or not responsibility can be placed on an individual with respect to incoming registered mail. He should check the registered mail book and question personnel at least quarterly in determining the adequacy of the system and whether or not there have been any breakdowns in the control.

8. IS THE REVIEW AND CONTROL OF OLD RECORDS ADEQUATE AND IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE FINANCIAL RECORDKEEPING AND REPORTING ACT?

The Local Auditor should assure himself that the operating personnel are reviewing old records, retaining those which need to be retained, and controlling their location effectively. He also should check to see whether or not operating personnel are destroying old records as allowed and suggested by the bank's destruction schedule. In particular, the Local Auditor should see that the records providing audit trails, and the records required by the Financial Recordkeeping and Reporting Act, are not destroyed prematurely. When new systems are adopted, the Local Auditor should immediately review the retention of records schedule.

9. DOES THE BANK MAINTAIN PROPER FACILITIES FOR HANDLING LATE CUSTOMERS?

The Local Auditor should ascertain from time to time that the bank maintains proper facilities for handling late customers. Normally, this would be in the form of after-hour teller windows to take deposits. Usually, Installment Loan customers should have access to the department until five o'clock.

10. IS THE BANK'S CURRENT CHARTER IN FILE?

Once each year, the Local Auditor should determine that the bank's charter is in file, where appropriate, and that the thirty-year expiration date has not been overlooked. The Local Auditor should review the minutes of the annual stockholders' meeting and see that the charter expiration date is shown, in accordance with GOG 26.372.

11. IS INFORMATION ON VARIOUS STATISTICAL REPORTS BEING COMPUTED ACCURATELY?

Semi-annually, the Local Auditor should review copies of the last statistical reports, particularly the Monthly Operations Report, to ascertain that the reports are being properly made to the Comptroller's Department and that this statistical information is being accurately compiled. In doing this, the Local Auditor should keep in mind that, for example:

A small error in the number of personnel reported in a given area could result in a large error in the final analysis. Accuracy in compiling statistical information is very important; therefore, the Local Auditor should keep himself well versed on all instructions in connection with this subject.

12. HAS THE FILE "THINGS OF INTEREST TO THE CASHIER" BEEN REVIEWED AND FOUND IN ORDER?

Annually, the Local Auditor should ascertain by inspecting the safe deposit box issued to the Cashier that this box only holds the proper instruments for the bank's use and that it does not contain illegal collateral, signed blank notes, or such other items of that nature which are not on the bank's records.

13. ARE AT LEAST TWO FIRE EXTINGUISHERS AVAILABE FOR EMERGENCY USE?

At least semi-annually, the Local Auditor should check each office and determine that at least two fire extinguishers are conveniently located and that the service dates have not expired. Preferably these extinguishers should be all-purpose type which could be used on electric, gasoline or any type fire. If all-purpose extinguishers are not used, at least one of the extinguishers should be of the type for use on electric fires, and at least one other should be the type used on gasoline and other fires.

14. IS THE LIST OF CUSTOMERS WHO REGULARLY HAVE LARGE CURRENCY TRANSACTIONS CURRENT?

The Financial Recordkeeping and Reporting Act requires each teller and the Branch Manger of each office should have a copy of the list of customers who regularly have currency transactions of more than $10,000.00. These list must be reviewed, and kept current and accurate.

15. IS A CURRENCY TRANSACTION REPORT PREPARED WHEN NECESSARY?

Through observation and questionning, the Local Auditor should determine that a Currency Transaction Report is being properly completed on unusual transactions involving more than $10,000.00 cash. Generally, the Head Teller will prepare the reports.

16. DOES THE OFFICE HAVE A FOREIGN TRANSACTION FILE?

The Financial Recordkeeping and Reporting Act requires that banks maintain records of transactions of more than $10,000.00 involving a person, account, or place outside the United States. A copy of each such transaction should be placed in the Foreign Transactions File.

17. ARE EMPLOYEES AWARE OF THE PENALTIES THAT MAY BE IMPOSED FOR FAILURE TO FILE CURRENCY TRANSACTION REPORTS?

Willful failure to file a fully and accurately prepared Currency Transaction Report when required could cause the bank and the employee to be assessed a civil penalty not exceeding $1,000.00 or be imprisoned not more than one year. All employees handling currency transactions should be aware of these penalties.

PERSONNEL

1. DO THE OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES SEEM HAPPY IN THEIR WORK? L

2. ARE THE OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GIVEN PROPER INSTRUCTIONS AS TO THEIR DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES? L

3. ARE THE OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES EFFICIENT? L

4. ARE SALARIES ADJUSTED ANNUALLY ON MERIT RATHER THAN SENIORITY EXCEPT FOR EXCEPTIONAL CASES AND AUTOMATIC RAISES? L

5. ARE DEPARTMENT HEADS RESPONSIBLE INDIVIDUALS? L

6. ARE DEPARTMENT HEADS PART OF MANAGEMENT? L

7. ARE OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES NEAT IN THEIR WORK? L

8. ARE OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES COURTEOUS AND COOPERATIVE IN DEALING WITH CUSTOMERS? L

9. ARE INEFFICIENT EMPLOYEES WEEDED OUT AS SOON AS PRACTICAL? L

All the foregoing questions under this heading can be determined only through personal observation by the Local Auditor. This phase is a very important aspect of any audit. It is a responsibility of all auditing personnel to be alert at all times in order that they may properly evaluate the personnel situation to the best of their ability.

10. ARE ALL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES BEING ROTATED AFTER PROPER INTERVALS? L

Rotation of personnel is a very important audit safeguard in addition to serving as a training tool. There are a number of jobs and departments which should be classified as critical areas with respect to rotation of personnel. The Local Auditor should be able to recognize these as he carries out his duties and in studying the audit manual. He should keep records of the people and the length of time served in those capacities, bringing this fact to the attention of management far enough in advance in order that the rotation program may be effectively carried out. During the annual review it should be determined that a program of rotation is in effect, and in the report should be listed any instances in need of attention not covered by the program.

E-985

PERSONNEL

11. ARE ALL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES REQUIRED TO TAKE ANNUAL VACATIONS? L

The Local Auditor should determine that all officers and employees are taking annual vacations. Where practical, it is suggested that the Local Auditor obtain a list of the vacation schedule in determining that all personnel are included.

12. ARE NO OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES ALLOWED TO SPLIT THEIR VACATIONS WITHOUT THE PRESCRIBED PERMISSION AND WITHIN THE LIMITS OF THE BANK'S POLICY? L

The Local Auditors should determine adherence to this policy. The bank's policy on this subject is as follows: In the case of one or two weeks' vacation, the period away from work must not be split. The entire vacation is expected to be taken at one time except where special permission for a "split" vacation is granted by the Personnel Officer, Department Manager, and the General Auditor.

In the case of three or four weeks' vacation, at least two weeks should be taken at one time, and this period should cover a month's end. The number of weeks in excess of two may be transferred to the following year, but the vacation carried forward must be taken the second year, either with accrued vacation or separately. When vacations of three or four weeks are split for two consecutive years, the entire vacation must be taken in the third year without a split. Any exception to this policy must be satisfactorily explained.

13. WERE ALL REPORTS OF DIRECT AND INDIRECT INDEBTEDNESS OF OFFICERS TO OWN AND/OR OTHER BANKS FULLY COMPLETED IN EVERY DETAIL AND TURNED IN DURING THE AUDIT? L

The General Auditor, or his officer assistant, at the beginning of the audit, should deliver forms for this purpose to all officers. He should request that these forms be completed and turned in by the end of the audit. The General Auditor should make an exception on any that have not been turned in fully completed, commenting on the reason under the "Specific Comments" section of his report.

14. HAVE ALL LOANS MADE TO OFFICERS OR THEIR SPOUSES BEEN CLEARED THROUGH THE PROPER CHANNELS? L

Loans made to officers or their spouses should be cleared through the Executive Vice Presidents of the National Bank offices and the Presidents of the Affiliated banks. The annual audit should include a list of these loans.

E-526

PERSONNEL

15. IS THE PROPER DIVISION OF DUTIES ADEQUATE IN ALL JOBS AND IN ALL RESPECTS? L

The proper segregation of duties is an all important audit tool. Normally, responsibility for an entry from origination through final disposition vests too much control in one individual. The Local Auditor should be familiar with the various job assignments in order that he may determine whether or not there is proper division of duties. In making this test, the Local Auditor should keep in mind the fact that proper division of duties should always provide the work of one individual to serve as a check on the work of another individual.

16. ARE LOANS TO OFFICERS, OFFICERS' SPOUSES, OR EMPLOYEES SEGREGATED AND CARRIED UNDER SEPARATE TOTALS? L

Officers' loans, loans to officers' wives or husbands, and loans to employees should be segregated and carried under separate totals to facilitate their being reviewed periodically by management and to provide a more accurate means of obtaining this information for audit reports. During his periodic audits of loans, the Local Auditor should determine that this is being done. Annually, the Auditor will prepare a schedule of these loans for inclusion in the annual audit report.

CASH

1. HAS THE CASH HELD BY THE DEPARTMENT BEEN RECONCILED QUARTERLY WITH THE AMOUNT CHARGED TO THE DEPARTMENT? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should count the cash and reconcile the total with the amount charged to the department.

2. IN THE RECONCILIATION OF CASH, WERE ALL DEBIT ITEMS CURRENT AND IMMEDIATELY COLLECTIBLE? L

In verifying the cash, the Local Auditor must take into consideration all debit and credit items in the work at the time. To make sure all debit items are valid, they should be traced to their final payment. Checks drawn on the bank being audited can be verified with the Bookkeeping Department, and all other checks should be replaced with an interior transfer, the checks marked with an Auditing Department stamp and re-deposited. All return items so marked should be returned to the Local Auditor. The Auditor should keep in mind the possibility of a shortage being covered through floating invalid checks.

3. IS CASH DRAWER LOCKED WHEN UNATTENDED WITH ONLY ONE PERSON HAVING ACCESS TO EACH FUND, OR OTHERWISE HANDLED SO THAT DEFINITE RESPONSIBILITY CAN BE ESTABLISHED AT ALL TIMES? L

The Local Auditor can determine this through observation and questioning. Observations should be made on a surprise basis at intervals frequent enough to insure compliance. In addition to reviewing all exceptions with management, the Local Auditor should make a record of the dates and names of tellers involved. Where no exceptions were noted, the Local Auditor's record should indicate dates observations were made.

4. IS CASH HELD TO A MINIMUM AT ALL TIMES? L

The matter of whether cash held by the Installment Loan Department is excessive or insufficient should be determined by the Local Auditor when he verifies the tellers' cash. Particularly should the department avoid keeping excess cash on hand. Where the Local Auditor feels that too much or too little cash is being held, the matter should be discussed with the management of the department in order to arrive at the true operating requirements.

5. IS OVER AND SHORT RECORD OF TELLERS NORMAL? L

The Local Auditor should maintain a record of the over and short entries, by the names of the individuals responsible for the overages and shortages. If this procedure is followed, the Local Auditor will have before him at all times a cumulative record of the individuals in the bank causing overages and shortages, and, depending upon the individual jobs concerned, can determine if any individual's record is unsatisfactory. Unsatisfactory records should be brought to the attention of the Operations Officer and the Department Manager. In reviewing such records, the absence of overages and shortages should be investigated as much as the presence of an excess number. Absence may be occasioned by the maintenance of a "kitty" or other unauthorized methods.

BALANCING AND POSTING

1. ARE ALL DETAIL RECORDS LISTED MONTHLY AND BALANCED TO THE SUBSIDIARY CONTROLS AND THE GENERAL LEDGER? L-T

MANUAL SYSTEM

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should recap the trial balance tapes run by the Installment Loan Department to determine that they are in agreement with the general ledger. Corrections and changes in the listings should be verified at the same time. It is very important that the same person does not run the same section of the ledger more than one month in succession, and the Local Auditor must determine this each time he checks the tapes. The individual balancing each classification should sign or clearly initial each tape so that the Auditor can keep a running record of the rotation from month to month. The Local Auditor should place his audit stamp and initial on each tape.

In addition to checking the department's trial balance tapes, the Local Auditor, on a quarterly frequency, should actually balance one or more classifications selected on a random basis. The number of classifications selected would depend on the size of the operation. In the smaller operations, he should cover all accounts. Also, 5% of the accounts in these classifications should be verified on a positive basis with the customer. The Local Auditor's tapes and verifications should be kept for inspection by the Traveling Auditors.

The Local Auditor should keep a running record of all over and short entries in connection with the department's balancing, and the General Auditor should include a schedule of all such entries since last audit in his audit report together with any controls that are still out of balance.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

Installment Loan Control or Installment personnel should reconcile computer totals to the general ledger daily. The Local Auditor should review these balancing sheets at least quarterly and actually reconcile the computer totals to general ledger during his review.

2. ARE ALL PAYMENTS AND CONTROLS POSTED PROMPTLY, AND IS THE TELLER AND POSTING OPERATION SEPARATED? L

MANUAL SYSTEM

When the Local Auditor is performing other work in the department, he should determine whether or not payments are being posted promptly. Any delay beyond the day after payments were made should be investigated and an explanation requested. A written report of any such occurrences should be made to the General Auditor. Also, it is important for the Local Auditor to determine that the tellers are always separated from the posting operation.

2. ARE ALL PAYMENTS AND CONTROLS POSTED PROMPTLY, AND IS THE TELLER AND POSTING OPERATION SEPARATED? L (Continued)

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

No later than the following business day, entry should be made to the general ledger account for all payments posted. In banks using the Suspense account, each day the ILD Individual-Suspense balance for the previous day should be reversed, and each payment included the prior day should be cleared. Exceptions uncovered when reconciling computer totals to general ledger should be reported.

EITHER SYSTEM

Customer disputes over the dates payments were paid should be reported to the Local Auditor immediately.

3. ARE PROPER EFFORTS MADE TO LOCATE OVERAGES AND SHORTAGES? L

The Local Auditor should satisfy himself that adequate efforts are being made to locate all overages and shortages. All differences over $100.00, and customer disputes over payments or balances should be reported to the Local Auditor the day they occur.

4. ARE CORRECTIONS TO LEDGER CARD POSTINGS MADE BY REVERSING ENTRIES RATHER THAN ERASURES OR ELIMINATION OF THE ORIGINAL INCORRECT ENTRY? L

MANUAL SYSTEM

The only acceptable method of making a correction to a ledger card posting is that of making a reversing and correcting entry. The Local Auditor should determine if this is being done properly in the course of his routine handling of the ledger card records. No erasures should appear on a ledger card. A debit ticket should be made explaining the correction. This ticket should be posted as a short payment, and the ledger card marked "POSTED IN ERROR" so that the error in posting will not be confused with a short payment resulting from a returned check.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

Monthly, the Auditor, EDP, Atlanta, will compare the master file for the current month against the prior month master file and print double labels on address changes and a list of changes showing old name and address and new name and address, and in addition, if the new balance increases, old balance and new balance. This information will be forwarded to each of the Local Auditors so that he can verify address changes or determine the cause of the increased balance by using the date of last activity, shown on the print-out, in looking up the necessary tickets.

BALANCING AND POSTING (Continued)

5. ARE RETURN ITEMS "REVERSED" ON THE LOAN RECORDS PROMPTLY? L

Any returned checks or other payments that cannot be cleared within 24 hours should be debited back to the loan as outlined in the Operating Bulletin. The Local Auditor should check this operation and question personnel during the course of his continuous audits. Where no exceptions have been located, the Local Auditor's record should indicate the dates on which this work was performed.

6. ARE UNUSED RETURN ITEMS PROPERLY VOIDED AND FILED? L

MANUAL SYSTEM

During his periodic thumbing operations, the Local Auditor should pull a representative number of ledger cards on which payments have been re-instated because of returned checks since his last audit. If the re-instated payments have not been paid, the returned checks should be attached to the ledger cards. If the re-instated payments have been paid, there should be no returned checks attached to the ledgers, and the Local Auditors should review the collection folders to determine that any returned checks, covering payments subsequently paid by other means, have been properly voided and placed in file.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

The monthly address change print-out will list all loans which have had payments reinstated during the month. The Local Auditor should determine during his quarterly audits that checks covering reinstated payments have been voided and filed in the customer's folder.

7. IS THE NEW LOAN LOG COMPARED TO THE FILE MAINTENANCE REPORT DAILY? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should determine that Installment personnel are comparing the New Loan Log against the File Maintenance Report daily, and that differences are promptly corrected.

8. ARE EXCEPTIONS SHOWN ON THE ACTION REPORT CORRECTED PROMPTLY? L

Exceptions shown on the Action Report will appear only one time, and prompt corrective action should be taken. Quarterly, the Local Auditor should review the Action Reports for at least one week, and by checking subsequent computer records, determine that action was taken. The employee responsible for adjusting items shown on the Action Report should not make entries pertaining to balance increases for insurance coverage.

DEALER RESERVES

1. HAS THE TOTAL OF THE DEALER RESERVE STATEMENTS MAILED TO DEALERS BEEN BALANCED TO THE GENERAL LEDGER SEMI-ANNUALLY, AND DOES THE DETAIL UNDER EACH DEALER CHECKED AGREE WITH THE RESPECTIVE STATEMENTS? L

   At least twice each year, the Local Auditor should list the original dealer reserve statements which he receives each month and balance the total with the general ledger. If on a manual system, he should then select 10% of all dealer reserve accounts and balance the permanent reserve cards to the statements.

2. ARE DEALER RESERVES VERIFIED ON A SEMI-ANNUAL BASIS? L

   All dealer reserve statements should be delivered to the Local Auditor each month for mailing. This permits the Auditor to select a time to perform the work without the knowledge of the department. Semi-annually (not the same months each year), he should balance the total to the general ledger and verify by negative verification all dealer reserve accounts. This verification may be incorporated in the work in #1 above. The Local Auditor must not delay the mailing of these statements. They should be mailed on the same day received.

3. ARE MONTHLY STATEMENTS OF DEALER RESERVES SUBMITTED TO ALL DEALERS REGARDLESS OF ACTIVITY ON ACCOUNTS? L

   Since the statements are delivered to the Local Auditor monthly for mailing, any exceptions will be obvious at the time the Local Auditor balances the total to the general ledger. Statements should be rendered to all dealers without exception, and failure to do so should be reported.

4. ARE PROPER EFFORTS MADE TO DISPOSE OF DEALERS RESERVE ACCOUNTS WHEN ALL CONTRACTS ARE PAID OUT? L

   The Local Auditor, when auditing dealer reserve statements, should also determine whether or not there are any inactive accounts where all contracts have been paid that have not been remitted to the respective dealers. If not paid immediately, it is most important that the balances be transferred to dormant checking accounts and subsequent disposition of the funds verified. Copies of the reserve statements will reveal absence of activity.

5. ARE DEBITS TO DEALER RESERVE ACCOUNTS PROPER, AND HAS A PERCENTAGE OF THE DEBITS BEEN TRACED? L

   Debits are made to dealer loss reserve accounts for rebates of reserve to customers, payment of earned reserve to dealers, commissions on C&S agency insurance if policies are cancelled within 60 days of issue date, and for the cancellation of reserve on a contract being repurchased by a dealer. The two times a year the Local Auditor balances the reserve statements, he should, at that time, trace the debits from the general ledger to the related accounts to determine whether proper or not. The Local Auditor's record should indicate dates audited, number of debits checked and exceptions, if any.

DELINQUENTS AND EXTENDED ACCOUNTS

1. ARE PAST DUE LOANS VERIFIED BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

At least 5% of the loans past due 15 days or more must be verified by the Local Auditor each quarter. The Auditor, E.D.P., in Atlanta, will send printed verifications, and a print-out for follow-up, on any of the banks whose installment loan accounting is done on the computer.

2. ARE ALL ACCOUNTS ON WHICH PAYMENTS ARE DELINQUENT IN EXCESS OF AUTOMATIC NOTICE PERIOD IN THE HANDS OF THE COLLECTION DEPARTMENT? L

MANUAL SYSTEM

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should review one-fourth of the current ledger cards to be sure that no past due cards are in the current file. All accounts found in the current trays which should have been in the hands of the Collection Department should be verified by the Local Auditor direct with the customer. One hundred percent (100%) return must be obtained on these accounts. At least every 30 days, all ledger cards should be checked by the department for past due "sleepers". The Local Auditor should keep a record of all exceptions showing all pertinent information.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

The Local Auditor should determine that collection cards were produced for all accounts listed on the print-out of verifications sent on past due loans, and that these cards are in the hands of the Collection Department. Verification of accounts on which there is no collection card in file must be followed for 100% return. Also, Installment personnel should be questioned to see if they are checking the past due list against collection cards monthly.

3. ARE ALL LATE CHARGES AND LATE CHARGES ONLY CREDITED TO SERVICE CHARGES ON LOANS? L

MANUAL SYSTEM

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should verify at least one day's work to be sure that all late charges collected on that day have been credited to Service Charges on Installment Loans. This should be done by reviewing the coupons and reconciling the amount of late charges as indicated on the coupons against the entries to the general ledger. In addition to being sure that all charges have been credited, the Local Auditor should also be sure that no extension fees or other miscellaneous charges have been included in the entries to this general ledger account.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should select two weekly periods, not consecutive, and trace all late charges as shown on the Daily Transaction Journal to Service Charges on Installment Loans on general ledger. Larger debits to the late charges account should be reviewed to see that the offsetting credits are proper. The File Maintenance Lists and input documents should be reviewed for excessive waivers of late charges, which should be reported to management. After review, the lists and input items may be destroyed.

4. ARE THE BILLING AND COLLECTION OF LATE CHARGES SHOWN PROPERLY ON THE LEDGER CARDS? L (Applicable only to Manual System.)

In connection with the above verification of late charges collected, the Local Auditor should also check the posting of these late charges on the ledger cards and check the proper entry of the billing of these late charges on the ledger cards as outlined in the Installment Loan Department Operational Guide. When reviewing the payment coupons, it should be kept in mind that late charges due but unpaid should be recorded on the ledger cards for subsequent billing.

5. ARE CORRECT EXTENSION FEES COLLECTED ON ALL LOANS EXTENDED, AND ARE THEY CREDITED TO INTEREST AND DISCOUNT-INSTALLMENT LOANS? L-T

MANUAL SYSTEM

Each quarter when the Local Auditor thumbs the ledger cards and at the time verification of late charges is made, he should also verify the correctness of all extension fees in that particular work. In addition to this verification of fee computations, the Local Auditor should check a small percentage of ledger cards (about 25% normally) on accounts which have been extended and verify the collection of the fees to the extent of checking them through the bank's general ledger. The general rule on collection of extension fees is to collect 1% of the unpaid balance for each 30-day period that the account is extended. All extension fees should be credited to Interest and Discount-Installment Loans. The Local Auditor should maintain a record by classification of the number of extensions granted together with any exceptions noted so the General Auditor can review the file from a standpoint of audit coverage.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

Monthly, the Local Auditor should review the monthly Accrual and Exception Report for each of his banks for the dollar amounts of current extension fees, which will be shown under the column "Disc on New Loans and Changes This Month". An amount followed by an "E" will be the extensions collected during the month. By using the loan number and video, the Local Auditor can determine the balance of each loan extended, apply the 1% per month extended factor, and check the computation of extensions. Normally, 25% of the extension fees recomputed should be traced to Interest and Discount-Installment Loans. This 25% should include the fees which will be verified with the customers. To locate accounts extended with no fee paid, look on the Accrual and Exception Report under the heading "This Month" column, "Adjustment to Accrual" for an amount followed by a minus (-) sign. If the extension column shows the account has been extended, and there is no amount followed by an "E" under the "Disc. on New Loans & Changes This Mo*" column, probably no fee was collected, and the file should be checked.

6. ARE EXTENSION FEES PROPERLY RECORDED? L

MANUAL SYSTEM

In reviewing the ledger cards for extension fees during his quarterly thumbing operation, the Local Auditor should appraise the manner in which these fees are recorded. The ledger cards should be marked to indicate the date of extension, the term of extension, the amount of extension fee paid, and should be initialed by a person authorized to grant the extension. Extensions should not be granted until the extension fee is paid, and extensions should be properly recorded on the ledger card without exception. The Local Auditor's record should indicate the number of instances extension fees were not recorded on the ledger cards and the total number of accounts extended in the classifications being audited.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

Quarterly, when the Local Auditor receives his verifications, he will also receive a print-out which will show any loan extended, since the prior quarterly report, where the computer records do not reflect the extension. The reason for each exception should be determined, and unexplained exceptions should be verified with the borrowers. The computer file must be corrected to reflect the unauthorized exception in every instance.

7. HAVE OUTSTANDING ACCOUNTS ON WHICH EXTENSIONS HAVE BEEN GRANTED BEEN VERIFIED DIRECT WITH THE CUSTOMER BY THE AUDITOR? L

During his quarterly checking of extension fees, monthly on Automated System, the Local Auditor should verify direct with the customer a minimum of 10% of accounts on which extensions have been granted since the last audit. The verification letter should indicate the amount of the fee and date paid. Second and third requests should be sent if necessary. The fees verified should have been included in the fees traced to the general ledger.

8. ARE THE DEPARTMENTAL RECORDS ON PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNTS IN AGREEMENT WITH THE GENERAL LEDGER? L

The Recovery Department should balance "Collectible" charge-offs to the general ledger quarterly, and the "Non-Collectibles" semi-annually. Annually, the Local Auditor should review the departmental listing tapes, and then list and balance the records of the Recovery Department of each of his banks to the general ledger account "Loan Losses and Recoveries".

9. ARE OUTSTANDING CHARGE-OFFS BEING VERIFIED DIRECT WITH THE CUSTOMER? L

At the time the Local Auditor balances the Profit and Loss accounts with the general ledger, he should verify whatever percentage of these accounts he believes necessary direct with the customer. He should verify enough to provide a good test check coverage, and the important thing in this verification is that whatever percent is verified, the return must be 100%. This would require that he continue to follow those from which replies have not been received.

COLLATERAL

The following auditing procedure in connection with the checking of collateral should be applied by the Local Auditor on a quarterly basis, by reviewing loans made since the date of the last quarterly audit.

The Local Auditor should examine the notes and related papers on loans:

(a) in excess of $3,000.00 minimum or a less amount to be determined at the time of the audit (percent of coverage to be determined by the Local Auditor),

(b) made during a one-week period since the date of the prior quarterly audit, and

(c) secured by negotiable collateral and savings passbooks or certificates which must be held under dual control.

1. IS ALL COLLATERAL PROPERLY DESCRIBED ON THE NOTE OR SECURITY INSTRUMENT, AND IS THE COLLATERAL IN FILE? L

The Local Auditor, in verifying the existence of collateral, should check the note or security instrument to see that it contains an adequate description of all collateral so that positive identification can be made.

2. IS ALL NEGOTIABLE COLLATERAL UNDER DUAL CONTROL AND HOUSED IN THE VAULT OVERNIGHT? L

Adherence to the prescribed method of dual control over negotiable collateral should be ascertained by the Local Auditor each time he audits the department. Also, he should determine that adequate records of entries are maintained to substantiate dual control.

3. ARE SEPARATE STOCK POWERS OBTAINED FOR EACH CERTIFICATE OF STOCK OR REGISTERED BOND PLEDGED AS COLLATERAL, AND ARE THESE POWERS PROPERLY EXECUTED? L

At the time collateral is checked, the Local Auditor should determine that each certificate of stock or registered bond pledged as collateral is supported by a separate stock power, and that these powers are signed in the same manner that the stock or registered bond is issued and properly completed. The Assignee line and the statement of appointment on the lower half of the form should be left blank.

4. ON LOANS SECURED BY SAVINGS ACCOUNTS OR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES, HAVE PROPER NOTATIONS BEEN MADE ON THE SAVINGS RECORDS TO INDICATE THE ACCOUNTS ARE PLEDGED? L

All savings accounts and savings certificates that have been pledged as collateral should have sufficient information on the savings records or computer records to indicate the pledge so that the funds will be held. The Local Auditor should determine that savings accounts or savings certificates records have been flagged, and that there are acknowledged change of status cards in file for those accounts or certificates that are on the computer. On exceptions noted, the Auditor should determine whether each failure is due to the Loan Department, Savings Department, or Bond Control.

For savings accounts or certificates not on the computer or with other banks, there should be properly completed assignments and acknowledgements in file.

COLLATERAL (Continued)

5. IS THERE PROPER INSURANCE COVERAGE ON COLLATERAL HELD AS SECURITY? L

In reviewing loans secured by insurable collateral, the Local Auditor should be certain that the collateral is protected with insurance and that the original insurance policy, an acceptable binder, a signed copy, or a letter of acknowledgement of insurance coverage properly completed and signed by the agent is in the possession of the Installment Loan Department. Evidence of insurance coverage should be checked by expiration date, adequacy of amount, type of coverage, description of property insured and loss payable clause. In addition to reviewing insurance coverage on real estate loans made since last audit, the Local Auditor should spot check insurance coverage on at least 10% of other real estate loans. In the smaller offices, a larger percent would be desirable. Through observation when making periodic reviews, the Local Auditor should determine that the Installment Loan Department's special endorsement stamp is being used on checks issued to agents for insurance coverage.

6. ARE ALL WAIVERS OF INSURANCE INDICATED ON THE DISCOUNT SHEET? L

When examining the collateral on loans, the Local Auditor should be sure that where there is no insurance, the discount sheet is so marked. The circling of (N) in answer to the question "Outside Coverage Required" would constitute a waiver. Normally, waivers of insurance would be the exception rather than the rule. With this in mind, if the Auditor should find an exceptionally large number of waivers, he should discuss them with management, and prepare an Exception Report.

7. IS THE COLLATERAL FOLLOW-UP PROCEDURE OPERATED PROPERLY? L

During the course of each of his audits, the Local Auditor should review the department's follow-up procedure. This includes all pertinent papers as well as insurance. In the course of checking the collateral, notations should be made of evidence of insurance coverage which expires prior to the final maturity of the related note. These notations should be cross-checked with the collateral follow-up file to determine if a follow-up tickler is on hand for each item. The Local Auditor should keep a record of all exceptions located.

8. ARE WRITTEN APPRAISALS IN FILE COVERING ALL USED CAR LOANS AND LOANS SECURED BY OTHER TYPES OF COLLATERAL WHERE CONDITION OF EQUIPMENT IS A FACTOR IN DETERMINING VALUE? L

In checking the collateral, the Local Auditor should be sure that wherever necessary, a written appraisal complete in every detail has been obtained on the merchandise financed. The greatest majority of these cases will be loans secured by used automobiles. However, there will be other instances in addition to used car loans which require written appraisals. If appraisal or inspection is waived, a logical reason should appear on the discount sheet, and the letter (N) in answer to the question "Appraisal Needed" should be circled.

COLLATERAL (Continued)

9. IS THERE EVIDENCE OF DISBURSEMENT OF THE PROCEEDS OF EACH LOAN REVIEWED FILED IN THE CREDIT COLLECTION FOLDER? L

The Local Auditor, in reviewing the credit collection folders, should also look for evidence of disbursement of the proceeds of each loan. This will be in the form of copies of official checks or deposit tickets, indications showing that the loan was refinanced, or notations as to the account and account number to which the proceeds were credited.

10. IS THE PROPER TYPE OF INSTRUMENT, PROPERLY EXECUTED, BEING USED ON ALL CLASSES OF LOANS? L

In reviewing the notes and checking the collateral for various purposes, the Local Auditor should also look at the type of instrument used and satisfy himself that the proper type has been used on each loan and that each note has been properly executed, including assignment.

11. ARE ALL PARTIES EXECUTING NOTES AND OTHER SECURITY INSTRUMENTS AUTHORIZED TO DO SO? L

This question has particular reference to powers of attorney, corporate resolutions and other authorizations whereby one party signs for another party or for a corporation. In checking the collateral and notes, the Local Auditor should verify the existence of proper authorizations for the execution of a representative number of instruments held by the bank in connection with these notes. The easiest way to do this is to make notations while going through the notes and security instruments -- then check this information against the resolutions or other files.

12. ARE STANDARD PRINTED FORMS OR APPROVED CONTRACTS AND NOTES USED? L

Our own forms have been reviewed by our attorneys and are kept up-to-date through periodic review. Where other forms are used, the Installment Loan Department records should show that such forms have been approved by our attorneys. The Local Auditor should check this at the time of their quarterly audits.

13. ARE FINANCING STATEMENTS FILED OR OTHER SUPPORTING PAPERS RECORDED WHEN NECESSARY? L

The bank's policy with respect to the filing or recordation of instruments is that all instruments securing loans should be filed or recorded except as outlined in the current Installment Loan Department Operational Guide. The Local Auditor should familiarize himself with these instructions so that he will be able to detect exceptions when checking collateral.

14. ARE LOANS SECURED BY LISTED OR UNLISTED SECURITIES SUPPORTED BY REGULATION "U" CERTIFICATES? L

There should be a certificate in file to support each loan secured by listed or unlisted securities. This certificate should be signed by the borrower, fully completed in every respect, particularly as to the purpose of the loan, and signed by the accepting officer. The Local Auditor should determine that a properly executed certificate is in file at the time he checks the negotiable collateral. There must be a separate note and executed certificate in file for each loan made for the purpose of purchasing or carrying securities convertible into registered stocks. These certificates must be retained by the bank for at least three years after the loan is paid out, which can be accomplished by attaching the Regulation "U" Certificates to the collateral record cards, which will be held for 10 years as the receipt for collateral released.

15. ARE OFFICERS' CERTIFICATES AND ATTORNEYS' OPINIONS OR TITLE CERTIFICATES AND RECORDED DEEDS BEING OBTAINED ON REAL ESTATE LOANS? L

In making his quarterly audit of the Installment Loan Department, the Local Auditor should review all Real Estate loans made since the prior audit and apply the various questions, account for all instruments and determine that all requirements are met. On real estate loans, this includes Appraisal Certificates, Attorneys' Opinions or Title Certificates, and Recorded Deeds.

16. ARE LOANS SECURED BY READILY MARKETABLE COLLATERAL PROPERLY MARGINED? L

Loans secured by readily marketable collateral should be margined in accordance with the bank's policy. In checking these type loans, the Local Auditor should determine the value of collateral where possible to be sure that the loans are properly margined. A record of exceptions should be kept and these exceptions brought to the attention of management in order that they may take appropriate action.

17. IS THE BANK'S SECURITY INTEREST IN COLLATERAL SUBJECT TO THE GEORGIA MOTOR VEHICLE CERTIFICATE OF TITLE ACT BEING PERFECTED? L

In checking loans covered under the Title Act, a Title Certificate must be obtained on each showing the bank as first security interest holder.

(1) A copy of the Certificate should be in the customer's folder correctly identifying the customer, the vehicle, and the security interest holder -- or

(2) A collateral card (19-984) must be in the collateral follow-up file covering recently handled transactions on which the Title Certificates have not been received.

1962 and older model motor vehicles and mobile homes must either be supported by a validated copy of the T-3 Central Filing Form; a collateral follow-up card should be in file, or the filing of the T-3 should be waived and initialed.

COLLATERAL (Continued)

18. ARE TRANSFERS OF EQUITY PROPERLY HANDLED? L

MANUAL SYSTEM

While conducting the quarterly audit, the Local Auditor should watch for ledger cards for secured loans where equity in the collateral has been transferred. Any such transactions occurring since the date of the prior quarterly review should be checked to determine that the transfer forms were properly completed and retained in file in accordance with Regulation "Z", and that a transfer charge ($25.00 on automobiles, airplanes, farm equipment and property improvement; and $15.00 on all others) was collected and credited to Interest and Discount-Installment Loans. Audit exception reports should be prepared if the transfer of equity form was not properly completed or if the transfer fee was not collected and credited, unless the fee was waived by an authorized individual. Insurance coverage, where required, should be checked to be sure that the collateral is properly covered in the name of the new owner. The insurance statement should be completed as required under Regulation "Z".

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

On an automated system, the monthly "New Loan Report" should be used to determine loans with a "Source Code" of 6, which indicates transfers of equity. These loan files should be pulled and checked as outlined above.

19. WHEN CUSTOMERS HAVE TWO OR MORE LOANS SECURED BY THE SAME COLLATERAL, IS EACH NOTE MARKED TO INDICATE THIS FACT? L

The Local Auditor should determine where customers have two or more loans secured by the same collateral that each note is marked "PATL", "PLEDGED AGAINST TOTAL LIABILITY", or in some other manner to indicate that the collateral secures more than one loan. Failure to make some notation on each note might result in premature release of collateral and should be reported as an audit exception.

20. ARE NOTES SECURED BY ASSIGNED LIFE INSURANCE SUPPORTED BY ADEQUATE INFORMATION FROM WHICH THE VALUE CAN BE DETERMINED? L

All assigned life insurance should have sufficient current data furnished by the insurance company to determine the value of policies pledged and the current status of these policies, indicating cash value, accrued dividends, automatic premium clauses, disposition of dividends, dates thru which premiums are paid, etc.. The Local Auditor should ascertain that the bank is obtaining this information.

SALES FINANCE

1. ON SALES FINANCE PAPER, ARE CONTRACTS ASSIGNED TO THE BANK IN ACCORDANCE WITH CURRENT AGREEMENTS WITH THE DEALERS? L

Normally, the majority of Sales Finance paper is discounted under an agreement that permits a non-recourse assignment. If no written agreement exists, notes and contracts should be endorsed as called for in the arrangement with the dealer. At the time collateral is checked, the Local Auditor should spot check Sales Finance contracts of dealers in the sections audited by comparing contracts against dealer agreements.

2. ARE PAYMENTS ON SALES FINANCE PAPER CODED AS TO THE SOURCE OF PAYMENT AT THE TIME THE RETAIL POSTING IS MADE? L

(APPLICABLE ONLY TO MANUAL SYSTEM.)

The Sales Finance ledger cards included in the Local Auditor's quarterly audits should be reviewed at that time to determine that all payments are coded according to source of payment. If any payments are found not marked, the Auditor should determine whether the teller or the posting clerk is at fault. As a check on teller performance, remittances should be checked against coupons during the audit and at times when teller cash is being audited. The posting operation should be checked by checking a day's coupons against the ledger card markings, and the easiest time to do this is after the clerk has posted and before the cards are released to the files, but it is important to remember that the posting clerk must have no forewarning.

3. HAS RETAIL BANKING BALANCED ALL SALES FINANCE MEMO ACCOUNTS MONTHLY? L (APPLIES ONLY TO ATLANTA LOCAL AUDITOR.)

Quarterly, the Atlanta Local Auditor will review the records of Retail Banking to be certain they are determining that all balances in various S.F. "Memo" accounts on general ledgers of C&S National offices are offset by balances in the same accounts on the general ledger of National System Undistributed. At least semi-annually, Atlanta Local Auditing will actually perform the offsetting of the various memo accounts to see that they net out to zero.

REPORTS

1. WAS THE DOLLAR AMOUNT OF LOANS OUTSTANDING AS SHOWN ON THE LAST REPORT OF OUTSTANDINGS AND PAST DUES REPORTED CORRECTLY BY LOAN CLASSIFICATION? L (APPLICABLE ONLY TO MANUAL SYSTEM.)

   Each Installment Loan Department maintains a control sheet on each class of loan showing the dollar amount outstanding. They also maintain a master control sheet showing dollar amount outstanding of all loan classes combined. Once each year, the Local Auditor should check these control figures against those shown on the last Report of Outstandings and Past Dues to make sure that they appear correctly on the report.

2. IS THE ANALYSIS OF PAST DUE ACCOUNTS BEING REPORTED CORRECTLY ON THE OUTSTANDING REPORT, DEALER CONDITION REPORT AND POTENTIAL LOSS REPORT? L (APPLICABLE ONLY TO MANUAL SYSTEM.)

   Annually, the Local Auditor should check the Report of Outstandings and Past Dues, the Dealer Condition Report and the Potential Loss Report to verify that all past due accounts have been shown correctly. A report of his findings should be made to the General Auditor upon completion of this check.

3. WERE ALL ACTIVE DEALERS LISTED ON LAST DEALER CONDITION REPORT? L (APPLICABLE ONLY TO MANUAL SYSTEM.)

   In conjunction with the work above, the Local Auditor should check the dealer purchase guide against the last dealer condition report to make sure that all dealers with retail outstandings over $10.0M, all dealers with wholesale activity and/or wholesale outstandings, and all dealers with accounts on the potential loss report are listed.

4. WERE RETAIL OUTSTANDINGS REPORTED CORRECTLY ON LAST DEALER CONDITION REPORT? L (APPLICABLE ONLY TO MANUAL SYSTEM.)

   As a part of the office's monthly balancing operation, dealer outstandings are listed separately. These tapes should be checked against the figures shown on the last dealer condition report. This check should be made by the Local Auditor in conjunction with the work above.

5. WERE RESERVES ENTERED CORRECTLY ON LAST DEALER CONDITION REPORT? L (APPLICABLE ONLY TO MANUAL SYSTEM.)

   Each dealer receives a statement monthly showing the balance of his dealer reserve and his dealer contingent reserve. The Local Auditor should compare the accounts shown on these statements with the latest dealer condition report when checking out the various statistical reports on an annual basis.

REPORTS (Continued)

6. WERE ALL DIRECT INSTALLMENT AND COMMERCIAL LOANS TO DEALERS REPORTED ON THE LAST DEALER CONDITION REPORT? L

Annually, and at the same time other statistical information is checked, the Local Auditor should check the dealer condition report against the alphabetical departmental file (wheeldex file) and the liability ledger of the Loan and Discount Department to determine that direct loans are reported. Determine date of the month that figures are secured and compare with same date on ledger card or liability ledger to see if correctly reported. Figures should be secured between 25th and 30th of reporting month and where possible, should be reported as of the same date each month. Any exceptions noted should be included in the Local Auditor's report to the General Auditor and others.

7. WERE THE WHOLESALE DEALER OUTSTANDINGS CORRECT ON THE LATEST DEALER CONDITION REPORT? L

Annually, the Local Auditor should compare the amounts shown on the latest dealer condition report with the control balance on each dealer's wholesale as of the date of the dealer condition report. Where the dealer has more than one class of wholesale outstanding, the detail must be checked to be sure that the report is correct. Any exceptions should be reported as previously stated.

8. HAS ALL WHOLESALE PAPER FINANCED OVER SIX MONTHS BEEN REPORTED CORRECTLY ON THE DEALER CONDITION REPORT? L

The Local Auditor should determine this by checking the wholesale ledger records against the dealer condition report at the same time he checks #7 above.

9. WERE CHARGE-OFFS ACCURATELY REPORTED ON THE LATEST "SUMMARY OF CHARGE-OFFS AND RECOVERIES BY BRANCH" REPORT? L

Semi-annually, the Local Auditor should compare the net of debit and credit entries to the "Reserve for Losses on Loans" for the preceding month against the "Summary of Charge-Offs and Recoveries by Branch" Report for the month. Any unreconcilable differences should be handled as audit exceptions.

ATLANTA ONLY - In addition, semi-annually, the Atlanta Local Auditor should determine that Retail Banking is balancing charge-off history sheets against general ledger debits each month.

10. WERE UNINSURED LOANS REPORTED ON THE POTENTIAL LOSS REPORT?

Loans secured by insurable collateral, which are not supported by adequate evidence of insurance within 30 days of the date of the loan, must be reported on the next Potential Loss Report if coverage is not received by the day the report is prepared.

WHOLESALE

1. IS THERE A NOTE AND SUPPORTING PAPERS IN THE FILE TO SUPPORT EACH WHOLESALE LEDGER CARD? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should check 10% to 15% of all wholesale ledger cards of each dealer to determine if there is a properly executed note, bill of sale, current invoice from the distributor or manufacturer, etc., in file to support each ledger card, checking the serial number on invoices against the security agreements.

2. ARE THE BANK'S POWERS OF ATTORNEY FROM DEALERS EXECUTED PROPERLY?

All powers of attorney from dealers authorizing the bank to execute notes in the names of dealers must be properly prepared and in the bank's possession The Local Auditor, after having accounted for the powers of attorney from all dealers on the books, should thereafter check for powers of attorney, properly prepared, on each new dealer signed. He should do this at the time he reviews the wholesale notes. In addition, once every two years, the Local Auditor should review powers of attorney from all dealers to make sure that none previously accounted for have been misplaced.

3. ARE WHOLESALE RECORDS POSTED PROMPTLY? L

All payments should be posted to the wholesale ledger records not later than the day after payments are received. The Local Auditor should determine from observation and questioning whether or not this procedure is being followed. This should be checked during the course of each of the Local Auditor's audits.

4. ARE ALL LOANS NOT INSURED BY THE BANK PROTECTED BY INSURANCE FURNISHED BY THE DEALER? L

Dealers who furnish their own insurance can be determined by checking the wholesale insurance reports. Semi-annually, the Local Auditor should determine these dealers -- then review the policies to see that the amount of insurance is sufficient to cover our outstandings, and that the coverage and expiration dates are in order.

5. ARE IRREGULARITIES NOTED ON INDIVIDUAL LEDGER SHEETS AND SUMMARIZED ON THE WHOLESALE CHECKING SUMMARY? L

Floorplan Checking Reports should be reviewed at least quarterly and verified against the wholesale ledgers to determine if irregularities found in checking are noted under the individual items, and exceptions are properly summarized on the Record of Wholesale Checking. The Local Auditor should review 25% of the dealers each quarter so that all of the dealers' checking reports and ledgers will be verified within the period of one year.

WHOLESALE (Continued)

6. DO DEALERS PAY WHOLESALE PROMPTLY AS MERCHANDISE IS SOLD? L-T

When reviewing Floorplan Checking Reports for irregularities (No. 5 above), the Local Auditor should also review the Record of Wholesale Checking for each dealer to determine that the information shown on the Record of Wholesale Checking has been transcribed accurately from the monthly checking reports. It is not necessary to check each Floorplan Checking Report for every dealer against the Record of Wholesale Checking, but the Local Auditor should satisfy himself that the information is being transcribed and reported accurately. Periodically, Central Installment will review the Record of Wholesale Checking to determine the amount of delay in paying for wholesale merchandise sold.

While reviewing the Record of Wholesale Checking for accuracy, the Local Auditor should note any dealer with habitual delays of six days or more in paying for wholesale sold, prepare an Auditor's Exception Report on the dealer to bring it to the attention of management, and disburse the copies of the Exception Report in the usual manner.

Annually, the traveling auditors will review the Record of Wholesale Checking for the previous quarter, and use the information shown to prepare the schedule "Dealer Delay in Paying for Wholesale Sold" for the annual report.

7. ARE STATEMENTS OF WHOLESALE INTEREST COMPUTED PROPERLY? L

Statements of wholesale interest are rendered to dealers through the 25th of each month. The person rendering these statements should compute the average daily balance of wholesale outstandings for the 30-day period preceding the billing date. The Local Auditor should review the file copies of interest statements covering one month on a semi-annual frequency. He should determine that all dealers have been billed, and verify computations on 25% of the statements.

8. IS WHOLESALE INTEREST PROPERLY CREDITED TO INTEREST AND DISCOUNT-INSTALLMENT LOANS-WHOLESALE? L

At the time interest computations are checked, the Local Auditor should trace all payments into the general ledger covering the month under audit. Any delinquencies should be noted and followed until payment is received -- then these payments must be traced into the general ledger. The Local Auditor should keep a record of the months checked together with any discrepancies found.

9. IS A FINANCING STATEMENT FILED ON EACH DEALER WITH WHOLESALE OUTSTANDING? L

A financing statement, not more than five years old, covering inventory should be filed on each dealer with wholesale outstandings.

WHOLESALE (Continued)

10. IS THERE AN ADEQUATE FOLLOW-UP SYSTEM FOR FILING CONTINUATION STATEMENTS? L

There should be a follow-up card in file for filing a continuation statement on each dealer for whom we floorplan. The continuation statement may be filed any time within six months prior to the expiration date of the current financing statement, which is five years from date of filing.

NOTES

1. IS THERE A NOTE IN FILE TO SUPPORT EACH RETAIL ACCOUNT? L

Each quarter when the Local Auditor checks collateral and other phases of the operation, he should determine that a minimum of 5% of the loans made since the last audit are supported by notes in file. Where any exceptions are located, the Local Auditor should send a positive verification letter to the borrower.

2. ARE NOTES FILED IN NUMERICAL ORDER IN A FIREPROOF CABINET? L

Through observation, the Local Auditor should determine that this is being done. In particular, the Local Auditor should watch for any changes in the housing equipment or revisions in the method of filing.

3. ARE PAID-IN-FULL NOTES REMOVED AND RETURNED TO THE CUSTOMER OR DEALER? L

From inspection of the note file, the Local Auditor can determine this, inasmuch as the notes are filed numerically, which automatically brings paid-out and unreturned notes to the front of the file. In addition, the Local Auditor should check paid loans on the Daily Transaction Journals for at least a one-week period to be sure that the paid notes have been pulled. This should be checked quarterly by the Local Auditor when he pulls notes for other purposes.

4. ARE ALL NOTES APPROVED BY AN INDIVIDUAL AUTHORIZED BY THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE INSTALLMENT LOAN DEPARTMENT? L

The Local Auditor in reviewing both retail and wholesale notes for other purposes should at the same time check to see that each note is approved by an authorized individual. All exceptions should be brought to the attention of management.

5. ARE ALL PAPERS OTHER THAN THE NOTE ITSELF IN THE COLLECTION FOLDER OF THE ACCOUNT? L

During his review of the notes and collateral, the Local Auditor should pay particular attention to whether or not any other related documents are filed with the notes, rather than in the collateral file as they should be.

6. ARE ALL PROVISIONS OF REGULATION "Z" BEING COMPLIED WITH? L

Extensions of credit subject to the regulation are those of $25,000 or less, or if secured by real estate regardless of amount, which are primarily for personal, family, household, or agricultural purposes made to a person. Not subject to the regulation are extensions of credit to corporations, partnerships, trusts, governments, or loans for business or commercial purposes, other than agricultural purposes.

NOTES (Continued)

It is the responsibility of the Local Auditor to determine whether or not all disclosure requirements under the Consumer Credit Protection Act (Regulation "Z") are being met. The Local Auditor must be thoroughly familiar with all provisions of the Regulation, the prescribed procedures outlined in Operating Bulletins, and must determine compliance during the course of his periodic audits of loans. The following questions must be answered in determining whether or not there are any exceptions:

HAS THE "ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE" BEEN DISCLOSED IN EVERY INSTANCE?

In reviewing the notes, the Auditor should see that the annual percentage rate is disclosed in the space provided. If it was not, and 10 days have elapsed, no corrective action should be taken. He should question loan personnel as to whether the customer has received a copy of the note without exception. Through observation, the Auditor should ascertain that no customers' copies of notes are filed within the bank.

ARE ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE CALCULATIONS VERIFIED ON A TEST CHECK BASIS?

Using the charts developed for this purpose, the Auditor should verify computations on a representative number of loans being audited to determine accuracy. Accuracy must be to the nearest one-fourth of one percent. The amount of the finance charge and the annual percentage rate must be computed on a basis of one-half year maturity for demand loans. The annual percentage rate need not be disclosed where the charge does not exceed $5.00 on $75.00 or less, or $7.50 on an amount financed exceeding $75.00; however, in such instances, the "finance charge" must be disclosed.

ARE THE FINANCE CHARGE AND THE TOTAL OF PAYMENTS DISCLOSED IN ALL INSTANCES

In addition to the annual percentage rate, the Regulation requires that the finance charge and the total of payments be disclosed on all types of credits covered except real estate loans made to purchase a dwelling. If either was not, and 10 days have elapsed, no corrective action should be taken. All items of information which must be disclosed have been incorporated in our note and contract forms; therefore, the Auditor should determine that these spaces have been properly filled in.

ARE CHARGES THAT ARE NOT PART OF THE FINANCE CHARGE SPECIFICALLY ITEMIZED AND DISCLOSED?

There are certain charges which are outlined in our Operating Bulletins that may be excluded from the finance charge if they are specifically itemized and disclosed. In addition to charges for credit life insurance, disability insurance, and (SALES FINANCE) property insurance, charges included in the amount financed labeled "Other Charges" must be specified in order to qualify for exclusion as a part of the finance charge. The Auditor should make an exception of any omissions in this regard.

NOTES (Continued)

DO LOANS WHEREBY ADVANCES ARE MADE UNDER LOAN COMMITMENTS CONFORM TO THE REQUIREMENTS?

Where advances are made under commitments, if the bank has disclosed the necessary information, and if the customer has approved the information disclosed, disclosure need be made only once, at the time the agreement is extended. If the bank is electing to consider such transactions to be single transactions, it must estimate amount of disbursement and payment dates and disclose this information. These estimations should be reasonably accurate.

ARE THE TERMS "FINANCE CHARGE" AND "ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE" IN PRINT MORE CONSPICUOUS THAN OTHER REQUIRED DISCLOSURES?

The forms developed for use by our banks conform to this requirement; however, the Auditor should make sure that the standard forms are being used, or where forms are revised, he should make sure that they comply in this regard.

HAS THE BORROWER SIGNED IN THE SPACE PROVIDED TO SUPPORT HIS REQUEST FOR OR TO DECLINE CREDIT LIFE AND DISABILITY INSURANCE WHEN HE IS ELIGIBLE FOR THE COVERAGE?

When the borrower is not eligible for credit life or disability insurance, the block indicating this fact must be checked and the borrower need not sign. If the borrower requests credit life insurance (and disability insurance where applicable), the applicable block must be checked and the customer must sign in the space provided indicating his desire. The cost of insurance coverage must be disclosed on the face of the note on insured loans. While Regulation "Z" does not require the customer to sign when he declines this insurance, it is bank policy to have the customer sign to the effect that he has declined the insurance coverage. In order to exclude charges for credit life and disability insurance from the finance charge, these charges cannot be conditions of the loan and this fact must be clearly and conspicuously disclosed in writing to the customer. This information is disclosed in the printed forms which must be used. We must also disclose to the customer his right to obtain property insurance from a person of his choice acceptable to the lender. The Auditor's responsibility is to determine that the applicable blocks are checked, the customer signs separately in the space provided for this purpose, and the insurance cost is shown when the customer requests coverage.

ARE "STATEMENTS OF COST OF LOAN" COVERING REAL ESTATE LOANS PROPERLY COMPLETED IN ALL RESPECTS?

There are two statement of cost of loan forms, purchase and non-purchase. These forms incorporate all the necessary information to be disclosed in order to conform with the regulation. It is imperative that all applicable spaces be completed including the borrower's signature acknowledging receipt of a completed copy of the statement. In auditing the real estate loans, the Auditor must make sure that all of the required information is properly disclosed.

NOTES (Continued)

ARE TRANSFERS OF EQUITY OR LOAN ASSUMPTIONS HANDLED PROPERLY?

All required disclosures must be made to the new customer before he becomes obligated. The transfer of equity form has been revised for this purpose, and the Auditor should determine that a properly completed form signed by both the original borrower and the transferee is in file.

ARE EXTENSIONS OF INSTALLMENT LOAN PAYMENTS PROPERLY DISCLOSED TO THE CUSTOMER?

When a payment is extended and a fee is charged, the following must be disclosed to the customer: Amount extended; time period or date to which payment is extended; and the amount of fee charged. A properly completed "Notice of Extension" must be given to the customer, and a copy of this notice must be retained in the bank's files. In auditing extension fees, the Auditor should check to see if a properly completed form is in the credit folder.

ARE DEALERS MAKING THE PROPER DISCLOSURES ON SALES FINANCE CONTRACTS?

It is the bank's responsibility to determine that dealers are disclosing the required information on conditional sales contracts. In auditing the dealer paper, the Auditor should check for omissions and ascertain whether or not the department is checking the dealer paper adequately. Also, on sales finance property improvement loans, there must be a copy of the customer's right of rescission in the credit folder of the account.

HAS A NOTICE OF RIGHT TO RESCIND CERTAIN REAL PROPERTY TRANSACTIONS BEEN GIVEN TO THE BORROWER?

A customer may exercise his right to rescind any transaction in which a security or lien interest may attach to his residence or real property that is expected to be used as his residence. The customer may cancel the transaction without obligation within three business days after delivery of all disclosures. The customer must receive two copies of the notice of right to rescind, and the bank must retain in file the original notice signed by the customer acknowledging receipt of his two copies of the notice. A printed form using the exact wording required by Federal law has been designed for the bank's use, and no other form of notification may be used. The Auditor must make sure that a properly completed form is in file on applicable transactions.

HAS NO MONEY BEEN DISBURSED EXCEPT IN ESCROW DURING THE THREE-DAY RESCISSION PERIOD?

Under covered transactions, it is imperative that no money be disbursed until the rescission period has expired.

NOTES (Continued)

BEFORE DISBURSING ANY FUNDS, HAS THE BANK REASONABLY SATISFIED ITSELF THAT THE CUSTOMER HAS NOT RESCINDED?

The bank must maintain evidence of the bank's satisfaction that the customer has not exercised his right of rescission. The satisfaction must be obtained after the right of rescission period has expired. It is the bank's policy to require a written statement signed by the customer on all applicable SALES FINANCE paper. (A form is provided for this purpose.) On applicable over-the-counter loans, verification may be made by telephone supported by a dated memorandum signed by an authorized person to this effect, or by a statement signed by the customer, either delivered to the bank in person or received through the mail. A customer signed statement is preferable. The Auditor should look for evidence of compliance on a test check basis.

HAVE THE REQUIREMENTS FOR WAIVER OF THE RIGHT OF RESCISSION BEEN MET?

In cases of emergency, the customer may elect to waive his right of rescission. However, the waiver must be based on an emergency (for example, repair of roof resulting from a storm), and the waiver must be in the form of a separately dated and signed personal statement describing the situation requiring immediate remedy. Printed forms may not be used for this purpose.

IS EVIDENCE OF COMPLIANCE WITH THE REGULATION BEING MAINTAINED?

Evidence of compliance must be retained for two years after all disclosures are made. The disclosure copy of notes should be filed in chronological order, and all other disclosure copies should be filed in the credit folder. During the course of his auditing the loans, the Auditor should review the procedure and check for disclosure copies of notes covering specific transactions on a test check basis. Other disclosure copies should be accounted for when the collateral and credit folders are audited.

7. ARE LOAN CLASS CODES CORRECT? L

When reviewing installment notes, the Local Auditor should determine that each loan reviewed is classified correctly on the computer print-out.

8. ARE PROPER RATE CHARTS BEING USED?

Once each year, the Local Auditor should review the rate charts being used to see if they are the ones recommended in the Installment Lending Operating Guide. If not, an exception report should be submitted, and a recheck made on the next audit.

REBATES

1. ARE AMOUNTS OF REBATES CORRECT? L

The Local Auditor should spot check rebates and verify correctness of rebates granted on one day of each month (or more, depending upon volume and size of the office). In doing this, he will need to use the Standard Rebate Chart or computer records. On a manual system, he should review the respective paid-out ledger cards to determine whether or not rebates are correct in all respects. He should especially observe whether uncollected late charges have been deducted. The "Action Report" will show rebates paid for larger amounts than the computer calculations. The Local Auditor should place his audit stamp or mark on all tickets checked.

2. ARE INTEREST AND DISCOUNT AND DEALER RESERVE REBATES RECEIPTED FOR OR DUALLY APPROVED? L

As the Local Auditor reviews manually calculated rebate tickets each quarter, he should verify the fact that all manually calculated rebates are receipted for by the customer or dually approved by two parties. Further, if on a manual system, the Local Auditor should determine that each of the parties approving the rebate balanced the ledger card to rebate ticket and remittance. The Local Auditor should make sure that the second party actually does check the rebate and remittance to the ledger card, and verifies the original computation rather than merely initialing the tickets solely to meet the dual approval requirements. No exceptions should be permitted.

On an automated system, rebates will be checked by sending positive verifications of the net amount paid on 10% of the loans on which rebates were allowed since the last audit.

3. IS THE AMOUNT OF REBATE GIVEN TO EACH CUSTOMER RECORDED ON THE PAID-OUT RECORD? L

The amount of the rebate should, in all cases, be noted on the paid ledger card in the space provided on a manual system, and on the "Closed Loan Card" on an automated system. Any exceptions noted should be brought to the attention of management.

4. ARE REBATES MADE ON ALL ACCOUNTS WHERE UNEARNED INTEREST AMOUNTS TO $1.00 OR MORE? L

On a manual system, a review of the paid-out and unfiled ledger cards will reveal whether or not this is being done. The Local Auditor should observe this at the same time he checks ledger cards for recording of rebates. The Action Report will show rebates due on an automated system.

BANK LIABILITY REPOSSESSIONS

1. DOES THE CONDITION OF EACH REPOSSESSION ON HAND AGREE WITH THE APPRAISAL SHEET PREPARED AT THE TIME OF REPOSSESSION? L

   At the time the Local Auditor makes his quarterly audits of the Installment Loan Department, he should determine if there are any repossessions on hand. If so, he should physically inspect the repossession to see whether the appraisal sheet has been properly prepared.

2. HAS THE SALE OF EACH REPOSSESSION BEEN VERIFIED WITH THE PURCHASER? L

   Upon receipt of charge-off history sheets, the Central Installment Loan Department will prepare letters to verify the purchase price of repossessed collateral with the buyers. These letters will then be forwarded to the appropriate Local Auditor who will mail them out with an Auditing Department return envelope enclosed. As these letters are returned, the Local Auditor will compare them against the follow-up copies and immediately notify the General Auditor if any discrepancies are discovered. Verification letters will not be mailed on sales handled through the courts.

3. ARE REPOSSESSIONS PROPERLY COVERED BY INSURANCE? L

   With the exception of domestic appliances, repossessions are presumably covered by outside insurance policies. This insurance should remain in force until the repossessions have been disposed of and, to be valid, the insurance company must be notified by letter of the change of status in the account as soon as the repossession is made. Coverage failure insurance will suffice where the bank was originally protected by this insurance. If, because of cancellation or other reasons, there is no insurance in effect at the time of repossession, no outside insurance need be purchased. In these cases, the bank will self-insure for property damage. However, we must be sure that repossessed automobiles are covered under our liability policy for bodily injury. Also, reasonable care should be taken to protect the collateral from exposure to loss. The Local Auditor should determine from the files that the insurance has been properly handled.

4. ARE COMPETITIVE BIDS OBTAINED PRIOR TO SALE OF REPOSSESSIONS? L

   At the time the Local Auditor makes his quarterly audit of the Installment Loan Department, he should determine if any respossessions were sold since his last audit. If so, he should review each file pertaining to the repossession in order to determine that at least three competitive bids, in writing if possible, were obtained in order to establish reasonable value and in order to obtain the best price. The Potential Loss Report will assist in the review of repossessions sold.

5. WAS A WRITTEN NOTICE GIVEN TO THE CUSTOMER PRIOR TO SALE OF THE REPOSSESSION? L

   Written notice should be given to the customer of our intent to sell at least five days before the sale is made. The letter does not have to specify the date of the sale, but only our intent to sell after some specified date. The letter should also describe the goods, and the highest bid obtained.

6. ARE RECEIPTS AND "VOLUNTARY SURRENDER" LETTERS OBTAINED?

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should review the files of customers who have had collateral repossessed to be certain that a Receipt for Mortgaged Property and a "Voluntary Surrender" letter is obtained in each instance.

MISCELLANEOUS

1. ARE RETURNED COUPON BOOKS AND THOSE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THE BANK REFERRED TO THE LOCAL AUDITOR FOR VERIFICATION? L

Returned coupon books should be sent direct to the Local Auditor who will fill out Form No. 7-289 as outlined in COG: 26.44. The original copy of the form will be forwarded with the coupon book and jacket to the Installment Loan Department of the appropriate office. The copy of the form will be retained for follow-up. The Installment Loan Department will determine the correct address on all returned coupon books, prepare change of address labels, affix the labels to the wallets, and return the coupon books and wallets to the Local Auditor for mailing. The Local Auditor should check these books and wallets against his follow-up copies of Form No. 7-289 to be sure all are received and mailed. Where addresses are changed for reasons other than typographical error or discount sheet not legible, the Local Auditor should hold his follow-up copy of Form 7-289 and review the loan at the time of his next Installment Loan Department audit. On accounts addressed in care of the bank, a physical or telephone verification should be made by the Local Auditor.

2. HAVE ALL ACCOUNTS ON WHICH FOUR OR MORE PAYMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE AT THE SAME TIME BEEN VERIFIED WITH THE CUSTOMER AND EXISTENCE OF COLLATERAL DETERMINED? L

Accounts paid in advance may indicate:

(1) Internal fraud.

(2) In the case of secured accounts or dealer paper, the disposition of our collateral with only part of the proceeds being paid to us.

(3) Accounts paid out except for rebate, but not closed out on our books.

MANUAL SYSTEM

As accounts are thumbed for sleepers quarterly by the Local Auditor, accounts with four or more payments paid in advance should be set aside for further handling. Verification letters should be sent out on 25% of these accounts as a check against internal fraud. For categories Two and Three, accounts should be discussed with the officer in charge of the Installment Loan Department to determine proper action. The Local Auditor should keep a follow-up file to be sure that action decided upon has been taken.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

The Auditor, E.D.P., will print verifications quarterly on 25% of prepaid loans, and forward them to the appropriate Local Auditor for mailing.

MISCELLANEOUS (Continued)

3. IS THE UNEARNED INTEREST ACCOUNT ON THE GENERAL LEDGER IN AGREEMENT WITH THE RECORDS OF INSTALLMENT LOAN CONTROL?

Installment Loan Control should verify their records monthly with the Unearned Interest account on the general ledger. The Local Auditors, where applicable, should check these figures semi-annually.

4. HAS ALL TAX FREE INTEREST BEEN CREDITED TO THE PROPER ACCOUNT?

All loans made to state, county or municipal subdivisions, including school districts, either direct or through a dealer, should be plainly marked on the discount sheet in order that interest from this source will be credited to the TAX FREE account. The Local Auditor should ascertain that the correct procedure is being followed when he reviews the credit files and notes over $3,000.00. The Local Auditor should also question management regarding what loans of this nature are on the books--he could check to see that the interest from these loans is being properly credited.

5. ARE INSURANCE REPORTS COVERING ALL BLANKET INSURANCE POLICIES PROPERLY PREPARED, AND IS PREMIUM CORRECTLY COMPUTED?

MANUAL SYSTEM

The correct method of computing insurance premiums on blanket insurance policies (floorplanned automobile, floorplanned appliance, retail fire and theft, credit life and disability insurance) is covered in the Operating Guide. The Local Auditor should select the last insurance report on a semi-annual basis and check it out to see that the report is accurate in all respects. In doing this, he should also question responsible employees to determine that the prescribed procedures are fully understood.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

The Local Auditor should check the debit to Unearned Discount against the computer record, and then determine that this amount was remitted to the insurance company or Atlanta.

6. ARE ALL BLANKET INSURANCE CLAIMS ON CREDIT LIFE AND DISABILITY INSURANCE IN ORDER?

The Local Auditor should determine that claim drafts issued are credited to the loan account of the insured. By using the copies of the drafts, 100 percent of death claims should be checked. At the same time, the proceeds of rebates of unearned finance charges, unearned disability insurance, and unearned fire and theft insurance (not credit life), should be traced to the estate of the insured on a spot-check basis. At least 25 percent of the disability claims should be checked, using draft copies. Associate Correspondent Banks generally do not issue their own claim checks for disability insurance, and the doctors' certificates supporting claims in such instances will be forwarded to Consumer Insurance Service here in Atlanta. In such situations, you may send the Atlanta Local Auditor the pertinent information on the loan, or a copy of your draft copy, and he will check the Consumer Insurance Service file for the certificate. If the office issues its own claim drafts (all National and Affiliate Banks, plus two Associate Correspondents), the doctor's certificate should be in file in the office. On claims checked, the customer's folder should be reviewed to be sure the loans were not fictitious or made in anticipation of claims being submitted. When checking for proper credit of a draft, the Local Auditor should also determine that the computer payment code indicates payment was made by life or disability insurance.

MISCELLANEOUS (Continued)

7. IS THE CORRECT AMOUNT OF UNEARNED INTEREST AND DISCOUNT CREDITED TO GENERAL LEDGER? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should trace unearned discount on all notes made during one week since the date of the prior audit from the notes to the discount sheets to general ledger.

8. HAS THE INCOME ON PARTICIPATIONS PURCHASED BEEN TRACED INTO THE INCOME ACCOUNT? L

At least quarterly, the Local Auditor should trace interest on participations purchased and determine that the correct amount is credited to "Interest and Discount-Indirect Collections".

IN ATLANTA ONLY, the Local Auditor will review the procedure for the computation of interest on participations sold to be certain that they are figured by one individual, recomputed by a second individual independently, and compared to be sure that the two amounts are in agreement. Any differences should be referred to management, who would determine the correct amount of the interest. The Local Auditor in Atlanta will review the amounts credited to the participating banks to see that they are proper and that they equal the amount charged as interest on participations sold. The Atlanta Local Auditor will verify all participations sold with the purchasing banks at least once every six months on a positive basis.

9. ARE LOANS VERIFIED BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR? L

MANUAL SYSTEM

During his quarterly audit of loans, the Local Auditor should verify at least 5% of the loans reviewed, in addition to "sleepers", extensions, and prepaid loans, on a positive basis. Ten percent (10%) of the loans verified, determined at the time verifications are typed, must be followed to a 100% conclusion.

AUTOMATED SYSTEM

Quarterly, the Auditor, E.D.P., will, without notification, send the Local Auditor printed verifications for each of his banks. These verifications will cover 5% of outstandings, plus 25% of loans prepaid four payments as of verification date. In addition, a print-out of all loans verified and second request printed verifications on 10% of the loans verified will be included. This 10% must be followed for 100% return.

MISCELLANEOUS (Continued)

10. ARE ITEMS SHOWN ON THE ERROR CONDITIONS REPORT REVIEWED AND CLEARED? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should determine, by questioning, if management in the Installment Loan Department is reviewing the Error Conditions Report each month. More important items, such as re-scheduling needed, balance less than available rebate, loan balance $5.00 or less, missing insurance codes, last transaction code indicated pay-off but balance remains, etc., should be cleared prior to the next monthly report being printed.

11. ARE MISCELLANEOUS DEBITS SHOWN ON THE ACCRUAL AND EXCEPTIONS REPORT PROPER? L

The Local Auditor should review miscellaneous adjustments to Unearned Interest and Discount as shown on the Accrual and Exceptions Report, and trace a percentage selected at random, plus the larger amounts, to determine that the credits are proper.

12. ARE ILD CASHIERS' CHECKS ISSUED IN NUMERICAL SEQUENCE, AND CREDITS TO OUTSTANDING OFFICIAL CHECKS PROCESSED THE SAME DAY? L

A daily credit to Official Checks Outstanding should be processed each day to offset all ILD Cashiers' checks issued since the previous day's closing. These checks should be issued in numerical sequence. Any check issued without the corresponding credit being processed the same day or issued out of sequence is an exception.

13. ARE CHARGES TO "MISC. EXPENSE-GENERAL-AUTO INSURANCE PARTICIPATION" PROPER? L

Quarterly, the Local Auditor should trace one week's debits to this expense account and determine that offsetting credits are made to the Dealer Contingent Reserve account.

14. ARE WRITTEN RECORDS OF INQUIRIES IN FILE AS REQUIRED BY THE FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT? L

Whenever information other than our own ledger experience is given on one of our customers in answer to a telephone inquiry, a written record of the inquiry should be placed in file. When making his periodic reviews, the Local Auditor should determine that this procedure is being followed.

15. ARE COPIES OF DECLINED APPLICATIONS RETAINED? L

Copies of all applications for credit which are declined should be retained in file for at least two years.

16. ARE REQUIRED COPIES OF CUSTOMER NOTIFICATIONS OR DISCLOSURES IN FILE? L

Whenever the bank requests an investigative consumer report on any consumer, the bank must notify the consumer of that fact not later than three days after the date on which the report was first requested. If the consumer requests in writing the nature and scope of the investigation being conducted, the disclosure should be made in writing not later than five days from the date on which the consumer request was received or such report was first requested, whichever is the later. When an application for credit is declined, a letter must be mailed to the applicant telling of the declination when the denial of credit was wholly or partly based on information from a reporting agency or information secured from some other source. A copy of this letter should be retained in file. If we approve credit, but deny credit life and/or disability insurance as a result of our investigation, we must comply with notification provisions of the Act.

C&S FINANCIAL CORPORATION

1. ARE PROMISSORY NOTES ISSUED IN NUMERICAL ORDER AND ACCOUNTED FOR BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR?

   Promissory notes are issued by the Money Management Department and by our New York Service Office. Each of the departments should issue notes in numerical order from their respective supplies. This should be checked during each quarterly audit.

2. ARE PROMISSORY NOTES VERIFIED QUARTERLY BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR?

   On a quarterly basis, at least ten percent of the notes should be verified with the purchaser using a "random" selection basis and positive verification forms.

3. ARE PAID PROMISSORY NOTES CANCELLED?

   Paid promissory notes should be cancelled and filed in numerical order. These notes should be checked on each quarterly audit and used by the Local Auditor in maintaining numerical control by marking his records to indicate that these notes have been paid.

4. ARE PROMISSORY NOTE PAYMENTS IN THE CORRECT AMOUNTS?

   Using a "random" selection of ten percent of the paid notes, the Local Auditor should determine that all notes were redeemed for the proper amounts and that disbursements were made to the proper entities.

5. ARE PROMISSORY NOTES OUTSTANDING BALANCED MONTHLY BY THE CORPORATION AND QUARTERLY BY THE LOCAL AUDITING DEPARTMENT?

   During each quarterly audit, the Local Auditor should review the balancing tapes where the Corporation has listed the promissory notes each month. At the time of the audit, the outstanding notes should actually be listed by Local Auditing personnel and reconciled to the General Ledger.

6. ARE BANK ACCOUNTS RECONCILED MONTHLY BY THE CORPORATION AND QUARTERLY BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR?

   The Central Accounting Section is responsible for reconciling all of the Corporation's checking accounts, including the operating accounts of the out-of-town branches. When reviewing the reconcilements, make sure that all outstanding items are being traced and that management is reviewing the reconcilements on a monthly basis.

7. ARE PARTICIPATIONS PURCHASED VERIFIED?

At the time of the quarterly audit, the Local Auditor should verify all current participations with the issuing agent.

8. ARE PARTICIPATIONS SOLD VERIFIED?

At the time of the quarterly audit, the Local Auditor should reconcile the Participations Sold account on the Corporation's General Ledger to the Participations Purchased account on the Bank's General Ledger.

9. ARE PARTICIPATIONS SOLD CERTIFICATES ISSUED MONTHLY?

On a quarterly basis, the Local Auditor should review the Financial Corporation's copies of participations sold certificates and determine that a participation certificate has been issued to the bank each month.

10. ARE THE CONTROLS FOR PARTICIPATIONS PURCHASED AND PARTICIPATIONS SOLD POSTED DAILY?

On a quarterly basis, the Local Auditor should review the controls on participations purchased and participations sold and determine that the controls are posted daily. When this review is made, the controls should be reconciled to the General Ledger.

11. IS INTEREST PAID ON PARTICIPATIONS SOLD DEBITED TO THE EXPENSE ACCOUNT IN THE CORRECT AMOUNT?

Semi-annually, the Local Auditor should trace the interest paid on participations sold from the Expense account to the final disbursement for one full month's activity.

12. IS INTEREST RECEIVED ON PARTICIPATIONS PURCHASED CREDITED TO THE "INCOME" ACCOUNT IN THE CORRECT AMOUNT?

Semi-annually, the Local Auditor should determine the amount of interest that should have been collected on participations purchased and trace this interest payment to the "Income" account for one full month's activity.

13. IS THERE A PARTICIPATION AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE BANK AND THE CORPORATION IN FILE?

On an annual basis, the Local Auditor should check the files and determine that there is a participation agreement between the Bank and the Corporation in file outlining the method that the daily purchases of participation will be handled.

14. ARE THE COMPUTER TOTALS ON LOANS BALANCED TO THE GENERAL LEDGER DAILY BY THE CORPORATION AND QUARTERLY BY THE LOCAL AUDITOR?

On a quarterly basis, the Local Auditor should review the daily Installment Loan journals and determine that the computer totals are being reconciled to the General Ledger daily. Local Auditing personnel should actually reconcile the computer totals to General Ledger for the day of the audit.

15. IS THERE PROPER SEPARATION OF DUTIES IN THE CENTRAL ACCOUNTING SECTION?

On a quarterly basis, the Local Auditor should, by observation and questioning, determine that a proper separation of duties is being maintained. Determine that the same individuals who make the entries to the Corporation's General Ledger and to the Bank's books do not reconcile the General Ledger accounts and Bank checking accounts.

16. ARE ALL ENTRIES POSTED TO THE GENERAL LEDGER "UNPOSTED SUSPENSE" ACCOUNT CORRECTED DAILY?

On a quarterly basis, the Local Auditor should review the Unposted Suspense account for two separate weeks in the quarter in order to determine that all entries posted to this account are cleared out the next day and that the entries have been made to the proper accounts.

17. IS THE CORRECT AMOUNT CHARGED TO MANAGEMENT FEES AND CREDITED TO THE BANK?

The Local Auditor should obtain the log where the management fee is figured by the Corporation, and trace this amount to the Corporation's Expense account. From the Expense account, trace item through the checking account to the Income account of the Bank's General Ledger. If an error is made in any of these entries, make a determination as to where the error occurred. If made in the Corporation, type exception to the Corporation; and if it occurs in the Bank, send exception to Commercial Banking.

CONSUMER CREDIT OPERATING GUIDE #_____

ASSIGNED ON: June 30, 1972

ASSIGNED TO: Justice Department

DX-311

BANK OR OFFICE: Atlanta

PLEASE FILE THIS AS THE FIRST PAGE IN SECTION I. EVERY SECTION INDEX CARRIES A FOOTNOTE REFERRING TO THIS PAGE.

☒ This C&S Consumer Credit Operating Guide has been assigned, by location, on a permanent basis. The Guide is up to date when it is assigned. The branch manager will see that it is kept in current condition.

☐ This C&S Consumer Credit Operating Guide has been assigned to you, for as long as you need it. You are responsible for keeping it in current condition. Please take it with you when you transfer. Be sure to notify Retail Banking immediately of your new address so that current bulletins can continue to reach you without delay.

USING YOUR GUIDE

This manual has been designed both as a training tool and a reference guide. It contains not only step-by-step illustrated procedures for Consumer Credit functions but also both C&S Consumer Credit policy and a great deal of the philosophy behind that policy. Its value, however, depends entirely upon its intelligent use. Newcomers to Consumer Credit will find that it provides answers to many questions of "how" and "why". "Old-hands" can use it as a ready-reference guide and refresher for the details of day-to-day operations.

SECTIONS

As with any new reference book, it is absolutely essential that you thoroughly familiarize yourself with the manner in which it is organized. The Guide is divided into eight functional sections:

I	Assignment, Memorandums & Correspondence
II	Accounting and General Operations	Bulletins in these four sections usually apply to more than one lending segment (CAS,OTC,SF). Most apply to all three segments. Each sectional index now shows applicability.
III	Collections
IV	Insurance
V	Lending General
VI	Over-The-Counter
VII	Sales Finance
VIII	CAS	This section contains ONLY those bulletins that have application to other lending segments. Other detailed C&S operating information is in the Procedure Handbook.

INDEXES

The first page of each section is a section index. All bulletins in each section are listed alphabetically by their subject headings, and by topics within a given subject heading. New indexes are published each January and July. They are double-spaced to allow insertion of new or revised bulletins recently issued. A column now shows area of applicability of the bulletins (CAS, OTC, SF) in sections II, III, IV, V.

At the end of each index a listing of bulletins deleted during the previous six months is given. [illegible] from Retail Banking.

BULLETINS

Bulletins are issued for all Consumer Credit Operating Guides from Retail Banking as they are developed or revised. You will always know whether one is new, or replaces another bulletin, or replaces only certain pages, by information appearing between the two lines just above the text of each bulletin. When revisions are made that affect only a moderate or small portion of a bulletin, marginal letters are frequently used to show where the change occurred. This will permit the reader to read only the change, without having to search through the entire bulletin to find the change. These marginal letters are very simple to remember - R, or REV means revised material. N or NEW means new material. D means deleted material.

Nearly all bulletins show, at the end, one or more related bulletins. This is on the increase because our business continues to become more complex. It still seems to be the best way so far to "tie it all together."

CONSUMER CREDIT TRAINING OUTLINE

This outline is available from Retail Banking on request. A large portion of it is based upon the Consumer Credit Operating Guide, and is in a sequence which will probably be of the most help to the new employee in a branch.

SUBJECT DEALER RESERVE

TOPIC EARNED RESERVE LIST

 Date 8-1-69

NEW BULLETIN

For years we have kept Dealer Reserve and Dealer Contingent Reserve cards filed separately in "earned" and "unearned" grouping. Due to increased volume and the fact that we very seldom pay reserves on the basis of what reserves are earned, a revision in this procedure is necessary.

All dealer accounts should be reviewed to determine what percentage of reserve to outstanding should be held to protect the Bank from loss. These percentages will vary by class of paper and the quality of paper generated by the dealer. If the present percentage being maintained is adequate when paying the reserve on an "earned" basis, then you should establish that percentage.

Once these percentages have been determined, only the excess (now considered earned) over the required percentage will be paid at the agreed upon intervals.

When Dealer Reserve cards are received from Central Billing (monthly), they should be filed, by dealer, until a statement containing those entries has been rendered. The cards should then be filed for 60 days for statement verification only. After that period of time they may be destroyed.

Where a holdback is required on a specific transaction this reserve will be "contingent" reserve and these amounts should not be considered when computing the amount of reserve to be paid.

Replaces Bulletin: ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - STATEMENT OF INTEREST Dated 1-29-63

This bulletin explains the use of the revised STATEMENT OF INTEREST and outlines standardized procedures for handling the requests through the use of the Interest Inquiry Request and Worksheet. It also ties in with our Personal Income Tax Service.

When a customer contacts one department and requests information, he expects that department to contact all other departments for information on additional loans he may have with the Bank. Consequently, it is important that we set up a routine procedure for consolidating this information and sending it to our customer upon his request. It is advisable to designate a department or one person to act as a clearing point where these requests can be routed and processed.

CUSTOMER SERVICE

All departments are requested to give one-day service on interest computation requests. This is the only way we can live up to what we tell our customers.

INFORMATION ALREADY PROVIDED TO CUSTOMER

1. Installment Loans made after conversion to the computer show interest amounts and computation information on the payment book name and address insert. (Exception: Irregular payment schedule loans require manual computation of interest.) Examples A and B show the front and back of the payment book name and address insert.
2. CAS interest is printed on the December statement (Example C).

EXAMPLE A

This book contains a card for each of your payments showing the amount and due date. When making payments by mail please forward your payment card to the address shown below. Send only the card for the payment you are making. Please use registered mail when you send cash.

C & S NATIONAL BANK
P. O. BOX 4,687
ATLANTA, GA. 30302

Payments may also be made to any teller when accompanied by this book. Protect your credit and avoid a late fee by making your payment on the due date. When contacting the bank about your loan, use the account number shown below.

Account Number

Year		Each intervening full year		Total
Tax Deductible Interest
No. of Payments Due

EXAMPLE B

Computation of Income Tax Deduction

For your convenience in preparing your income tax return, the interest charges for this loan are shown on the reverse side.

One method to determine the amount of interest paid each year is to divide the total interest amount by the total number of payments and multiply the result by the number of payments made during the year.

Example:

$48.00 Total Interest	÷	24 Total Number Payments	=	$2.00 Interest Per Payment	$2.00 Interest Per Payment	× 11 Payments Made During Yr.	= $22.00 Interest Paid During Yr.

The amounts of interest shown on the front by year were determined by this method but were based on the number of payments scheduled to be made each year. If the number of payments made is different from the number scheduled, the interest paid in any year should be calculated on the basis of the number of payments actually made.

If your loan is paid in full ahead of schedule, an adjustment should be made for any interest refunded. If "irregular schedule" is indicated on the front, the interest amount for any year may be calculated by the above or other appropriate method.

Consult your tax adviser or Internal Revenue for the most up-to-date information and advice regarding your tax return.

Walk-In and Telephone Requests:

Automated locations - determine whether interest information desired is only CAS and/or Installment Loan. If so, mention that the information is already available to them in their payment card books and December statements. If they still want you to get it, follow steps below.

All locations -

1. Fill out the Interest Inquiry Request and Worksheet as completely as possible. Show customer's full name (not initials), current address, and his previous address if he has moved during the past year. If the customer volunteers information that he thinks may help us locate the loan (dealer name, endorser, co-signer, transferor), show it also. Get a telephone number where the customer can be contacted during the day. Be sure to mention our Personal Income Tax Service.
2. Forward the Worksheet to the person or department acting as a central clearing point (Interest Inquiry Department in Atlanta).
3. Interest Inquiry Department will forward requests for information to those departments that are not yet automated.
   They will secure information from the following sources for automated offices:
   a. CAS will be on a printout specifically for this purpose by yearend. All accounts on which there was any activity during the year will be on the printout. It is prepared during December, by cycle. It should be retained for the year.
   b. Installment Loans:
      Active Loans will be on a printout specifically for this purpose approximately January 10. It will be prepared for the Interest Inquiry Department for each city.
      Closed Loan interest will be shown on closed loan cards.

MANUAL PROCEDURE FOR INTEREST COMPUTATION

INSTALLMENT LOANS

In reporting "Payments - Number Paid", use the number paid during the calendar year for which the return is to apply, including prepayments. The information is to be reported on each loan the customer may have had in the Installment Loan Department during the year. The procedure as outlined is to be used regardless of the base rate that may have been charged to the customer.

1. Subtract "Interest and Discount" and "Dealer Reserve" from "Total Note" to determine the amount advanced. (Do not subtract contingent reserve.)

2. Multiply the amount advanced by the appropriate 6% per annum factor, depending upon the number of months in the contract; i.e., 8 months - 4%, 12 months - 6%, 18 months - 9%, 24 months - 12%, etc. This gives the amount of "Interest Charged" to report to the customer. (There may be a case where a rate was charged, including life insurance, etc., which is less than the 6% factor, such as a 5% rate. If the amount of interest shown on the ledger card is less than the amount determined by using the 6% factor, report to the customer the full amount shown on the ledger card.)
3. On prepaid accounts on which a rebate was allowed, recompute the rebate without deducting the "minimum handling charges"; then use the "interest charged" as determined by Step 2 above as the amount to which the rebate percentage applies. Subtract the amount of the adjusted rebate from the interest charged and report the net amount to the customer. For example, on a $1,000 loan for 24 months paid out in 4 months:

Interest at 6%	- $120.00
Rebate Factor	- .700
Adjusted Rebate	- 84.00
Net Interest	- $ 36.00

4. On irregular or seasonal loans, refer to the discount sheet and recompute, using the 6% factor applicable to the principal on each payment date. For example, on a $2,000 loan, repayable $1000 at the end of 12 months and $1000 at the end of 24 months, multiply $2000 (principal at second payment date) by 6%($60.00), giving a total interest charged of $180.00.
5. On single payment transactions, the interest should be computed on an 8% per annum factor for the appropriate number of months.

TIME OR DEMAND NOTE

On loans in Loan & Discount, the Comptroller's Department recommends that the interest be recomputed using the original base rate, exclusive of any minimum charges, base charges, or insurance charges. 8% is the maximum legal rate.

REAL ESTATE OR MORTGAGE NOTE

Most real estate or mortgage loans have an amortization schedule which accompanies each, and the total interest charged for the year can be obtained from this schedule. If on a real estate or mortgage loan an add-on rate was charged, then the interest must be recomputed in the same manner as on an installment loan (manual procedure).

COLLECTION NOTE

On notes for collection, report the total interest paid.

STATEMENT OF INTEREST

When all departments involved have furnished the necessary interest figures, Interest Inquiry will prepare the 19-896 Statement of Interest. It should be mailed in the 9-351 window envelope, along with a statement stuffer on our Personal Income Tax Service.

SUBJECT LOSSES

TOPIC NON-COLLECTIBLE ACCOUNTS

 Date 10/24/69

NEW BULLETIN

Non-collectible accounts are a large portion of the charged-off accounts in each office. To simplify the handling of the non-collectibles, as well as to facilitate audit control, inactive non-collectible accounts should be eliminated from your Recovery Department's ledger trays. This bulletin sets forth procedures for purging inactive non-collectibles, and reactivating as needed.

INACTIVE NON-COLLECTIBLE ACCOUNT DEFINED

For our purposes, an inactive account is a non-collectible ledger with no activity for five years or longer.

PROCEDURE

The following procedure should be coordinated with the local auditor.

1. Recovery personnel should age the non-collectible ledgers according to number of years since last activity.
2. If more than one control group on non-collectibles exists, be sure to keep each group separate.
3. Run adding machine tapes on each year group of inactive ledgers.
4. The local auditor will verify the totals, and satisfy himself that only non-collectible accounts having no activity within the last five years are included.
5. Prepare a dummy ledger for each control group, labeled "Control Ledger, Inactive Non Collectibles, (CAS, ILD or L&D) control, (Originating office) Branch".
6. Post the total balances of each year group on the control ledger and substitute it in your file in place of the inactive ledgers, plus the inactive control ledger, and balance to the controls).
7. Note the current balance on the wheeldex card.
8. Type a list of the account numbers, loan type (CAS, ILD or L&D) names, and balances of the accounts involved.
9. Send a copy to System Consumer Credit, Atlanta.
10. Place the ledgers in dead storage, with instructions to destroy after 15 years.
11. Keep folders, notes, and wheeldex listings on these accounts in their present locations.
12. Going forward, purge non-collectible files annually to eliminate inactive ledgers.
13. Notify the local auditor by memo approximately a week prior to the time ledgers are purged.
14. Add the total balances of the ledgers purged to the control ledger, and place the ledgers in dead storage.

NEW BULLETIN

REACTIVATION

If it becomes necessary to reactivate one of these ledgers:

1. Take it from storage and return it to the file.
2. Subtract the balance on the reactivated ledger from the balance on the control ledger.
3. Notify the local auditor of the reactivation, via memo, giving account name, number and balance reactivated.

FINAL DISPOSITION

On accounts inactive over 20 years:

1. Destroy the ledger card, folder, etc., pursuant to the Consumer Credit Operating Guide Bulletin ACCOUNTING AND GENERAL OPERATIONS - RECORD RETENTION.
2. Lower the controls by the total of the balances of the cards destroyed.

SUBJECT PAYMENTS

TOPIC ADJUSTER & DEALER PROCEDURE

 Date 8/24/70

Replaces Bulletin: ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - PAYMENTS - RECEIPT BOOK Dated 6-25-57

Our accounting system for payments is most efficient when there is a high percentage of unmutilated customer payment cards received with payments. Everyone who accepts payments must encourage customers to use their payment card book when they send or bring their payments. If the customer needs a new payment card book, order one on form 19-1215, Installment Loan Payment Book Reorder.

RECEIVING PAYMENTS

When the customer has his payment card book,

1. Determine the exact status of the account.
   a. Dealers can use customer's payment card book and past due list.
   b. Adjusters refer to collection card, audio, video, or Past Due list.
2. Collect the proper amount due, including late charges.
3. Remove the appropriate payment card(s) from the payment card book.
4. Date and initial the appropriate stub(s).
5. If amount collected differs from pre-printed amount on payment card, write it in the Amount Paid portion of the card. Also write it on the stub.
6. Give the payment card book back to the customer.

If the customer does not have his payment card book,

1. Determine account number and exact status of account.
2. Collect the proper amount due, including late charges.
3. If payment is check or money order, write in the customer's account number.
4. Fill out a Customer Receipt.
5. Give the customer the original (Customer Receipt Copy).

CUSTOMER RECEIPT BOOK (19-947 Rev. 7/70)

We provide our adjusters and dealers with a Customer Receipt Book. It should normally be used only when the customer does not have his payment book. Each receipt carries wording supplied by our attorney indicating that the payment is accepted as agent for the customer. The Receipt Book is designed in "pocket size" so that it may be conveniently carried by the dealer and our adjustors in making outside calls. Sufficient receipts are in each book to take care of the requirements of all except the larger dealers who will need to be supplied with more books. The receipts are triplicate snap-out sets, and the second copy is for use as a substitute payment card.

Replaces Bulletin: ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - PAYMENTS - RECEIPT BOOK Dated 6-25-57

Previously, a separately prepared substitute ticket was required. For this reason, we should encourage dealers to use our books in preference to others. Instructions for dealers and adjusters are printed in each Receipt Book. However, if we are to gain a saving in time through the use of the Receipt Book and dealer payment procedure, a constant dealer educational program will be necessary in requiring that all dealers follow the instructions.

The receipts have transaction code 42 (regular payment, possibly including late charge) already printed. The code 42 should be crossed through and code 12 (late charge only), or code 63 (extension fee) entered when applicable.

The Account Number portion should be filled in completely. The first three spaces are for the 3-digit bank code (until 3-digit bank codes are published, use the present 2-digit bank code preceded by "0".). The next two spaces are for branch code, and the last five spaces are for the loan number.

EXTENSIONS

When an extension fee is collected, it is also necessary to complete a Notice of Extension (19-1400). See COLLECTIONS- EXTENSIONS.

REPLACES BULLETIN "ACCOUNTING - PAYMENTS - CHARGE ACCOUNTS" DATED 9-20-49

In checking with our offices, it has been found that a variety of methods are being used in charging the borrower's checking account on a monthly basis, although a simpler procedure has been recommended for sometime. This procedure has been rewritten to cover all aspects of handling payments charged to customers' accounts and in the interest of economy, we ask that all offices study the following paragraphs carefully and make whatever changes are necessary.

GENERAL

Each Direct loan customer should be sold on having payments charged to his account as they become due. If the customer does not bank with us, this presents a splendid opportunity to get a new account--either Special or Regular checking account. From the customer's standpoint, convenience is the main selling point:

1. He does not have to mail the payment or come into the bank to make the payment.

2. Reduced cost of postage and/or checks.

3. Money will be deducted from his checking account at a time of the month when he has just made a deposit. (No temptation to spend money before he writes up a check or comes in.)

4. Debit ticket in his statement acts as receipt.

5. Date of automatic charge can be changed in the case of vacations, customer to be out of town or emergency. All that is necessary is that he notify us prior to the regular charge date.

PREPARATION OF DISCOUNT SHEET

A space is provided on the Discount Sheet to indicate how the payments are to be charged. Be sure to indicate the exact name in which the checking account is carried. In some cases it may be different from the name in which your loan is set up.

NOTE: When setting the due date on a charge account loan be certain to use the due date closest to a regular deposit date.

CENTRAL BILLING DEPT.

When Central Billing receives a Discount Sheet which indicates that a checking account is to be charged for the payments, they will:

1. Identify the account as a charge account by marking the ledger card "Chg. Reg. (Spec.) Ckg." and the name of the account to be charged if different from that shown on the loan.

REPLACES BULLETIN: "ACCOUNTING - PAYMENTS - CHARGE ACCOUNTS" Dated 9-20-49

2. Further identify the card by slotting the bottom keysort hole on the right side of the ledger card. (This should be verified by each office as a part of the regular routine when ledger cards are returned from Central Billing).

3. Send customer a special coupon book containing only one sample coupon, the customary inserts, and a special insert indicating that the customer's checking account will be charged each month in accordance with his request.

OFFICE HANDLING OF CHARGE ACCOUNTS

1. On the 1st, 8th, 15th, and 22nd remove from the current tray all charge accounts with payments falling due on that day, using the keysort needle. All accounts should be debited and posted on the date due since any delay increases the opportunity for "Insufficient Funds". (In offices that have not been using the keysort system for charge accounts, it is suggested that during the next 30 days all charge accounts be reviewed to be sure that keysort holes are properly slotted. This should be done as each due date is pulled for charging.)

2. Prepare debit tickets in duplicate on each account.

3. Run the original debit ticket through the teller's work in the same manner as a remittance and the duplicate as though it were a coupon. No record need be sent to the customer.

4. In some offices checking account balances are verified either before debit tickets are made or before they are run through the "Block". A simpler and more economic procedure is to run all charges through, on the date due. The number returned as "Insufficient" will be few and they should be given immediate personal handling in the same manner as any "Insufficient" item.

NOTE: Be sure to slot all cards that become charge accounts after the loan is made and to patch all cards on which the charge has been stopped before the loan is paid out.

DOUBLE CHECK WHEN SENDING NOTICES

Cards on which first notices are sent should be carefully checked to avoid sending notices on charge accounts that, through error, were not charged. Such accounts should be charged immediately.

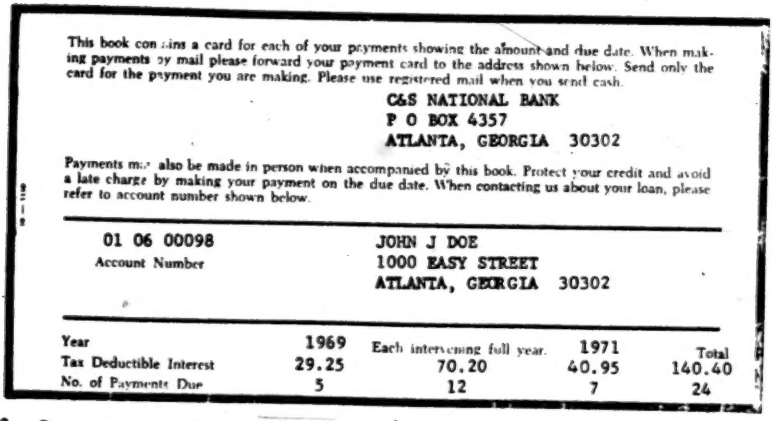
The Installment Loan Payment Card Book is assembled and mailed by our Central Billing Department for each new loan and for existing loans upon request. It serves as advance notice to our customer of each payment due, provides him with a detailed record of the loan, and permits payments to be made conveniently by mail or at any teller's window in any of our banks. Each payment card is the posting medium containing all information needed for accounting purposes. The Payment Card Book contains:

1. Mailing Insert - The mailing insert provides the following information:
   a. Customer Name and Address - The insert, containing the customer's name and address is bound inside the front cover of the book. A window is positioned in the cover and the mailing envelope allows the customer's name and address to show.
   b. Bank Return Address - The bank address to which payments should be mailed (in each city) is shown.
   c. Interest - Tax Information - The amounts of interest which are applicable for each year are shown, with the total number of payments to be made each year. The total number of payments to be made over the life of the loan and the total interest charge are also shown. On the reverse of the mailing insert there is an explanation of the method of computation.



This book contains a card for each of your payments showing the amount and due date. When making payments by mail please forward your payment card to the address shown below. Send only the card for the payment you are making. Please use registered mail when you send cash.

PAYMENT CARD BOOKS RETURNED IN MAIL

Payment Card Books are mailed directly to customers, except for employee loans.

Books returned through the mail are routed to Atlanta-Local Auditing. Books received on loans originating outside of Atlanta are forwarded to the appropriate local auditor for verification.

Local auditors will prepare a notice of returned payment card book, showing full account number and complete address. Then they will send it and the returned mailing envelope to the Installment Loan Department which originated the loan. The auditors retain the book itself. The receiving Installment Loan Department should take action immediately to determine the exact address and prepare a Change Of Address form if necessary. Then return to Local Auditing the mailing envelope, original notice from the local auditors, corrected address, and any appropriate explanation. Speed is essential - the auditors are waiting to receive correct information so they can remail the payment book, and the customer is waiting for the book so he can make his first payment properly.

EMPLOYEE LOANS

Payment Card Books are mailed to the Local Auditing Department which will forward the book to the employee.

PAYMENT CARD BOOKS NOT MAILED

When instructions on the Discount Sheet indicate that the customer has requested that the Payment Book not be mailed to him, the Payment Book is sent directly to the local auditor. A copy of the explanation for the request, as shown on the Discount Sheet, accompanies the Payment Book. The local auditor verifies the loan and makes appropriate disposition of the Payment Book.

PAYMENT CARD BOOK RE-ORDER

Payment Card Books should be re-ordered when:

1. The customer has lost the original book.
2. A name changes through marriage or divorce.
3. A change (other than a normal extension or due date change) is made in the repayment schedule.
4. A customer wishes to make payments on a direct basis after the loan had originally been set up on a monthly debit to the checking account basis. In this case, complete a Payment Schedule Change form and forward to Installment Loan Control, 3 Nelson.

NEW BULLETIN

Customers sometimes send payments without payment cards. Special handling is required to properly process these payments. When a payment is received without an account number or a payment card, Installment Loan Control - Atlanta (or its counterpart in other locations) must look up the account number, prepare a substitute payment card, and send it to be keypunched to be acceptable for computer processing.

To reduce this costly special handling to a minimum, we want to encourage customers to send payment cards with all remittances. Form 19-1047, Customer Request for Installment Loan Payment Card Book, will be prepared and mailed by Installment Loan Control - Atlanta for this purpose - as often as seems practical.

Thank You for your recent installment payment. We notice that a payment card did not accompany it. You can help us post to your account with speed and accuracy by always enclosing a payment card. Each card shows the amount, due date, and your account number.

If you want a payment book, just return this slip in the enclosed envelope. Thanks for your help.

SUBJECT REBATES

TOPIC EXPLANATION

 Date 9-1-67

Replaces Bulletin: "ACCOUNTING - REBATES - EXPLANATION" Dated 8-1-55

All Installment notes and contracts include finance charges for the full term of the account. If accounts are paid in full prior to the date of the final payment, it is our policy to allow a rebate of the full unearned portion of the charge. Because most customers do not understand the principles of installment charges, it is important that everyone having contact with customers be able to explain rebates clearly.

With our policy of rebating the full unearned charges and a clear explanation of the amount being rebated, we have the opportunity to add to our reputation for fair dealing.

PRINCIPLE OF INSTALLMENT EARNINGS

On a single payment loan the borrower has the use of the full amount of the proceeds for the entire term of the loan; hence, if the note is paid in full before normal maturity, the rebate is based entirely on the time element. Consider for example, a $300 loan repayable in one amount after 12 months with a finance charge of $24.00. If the loan is repaid 6 months prior to maturity, which is 50% of the term of 12 months, the pro-rata rebate would be 50% of $24.00, or $12.00. Many customers feel that their rebate on an installment account should be figured this way.

In the case of an installment loan there are two factors to be considered. Since the customer will be making payments each month, the amount of the loan outstanding is constantly decreasing. When such a loan is paid prior to maturity, the rebate is based on the time and the amount of the money used by the customer prior to pay-off date.

EXPLANATION TO CUSTOMER

In most cases, it is sufficient to explain to the customer that our charges are based on the balance outstanding each month and that during the early months of the contract we have more money outstanding and, therefore, the charges are higher. As the balance reduces, a greater proportion of each payment represents principal, and a lesser proportion represents interest.

This can be illustrated by applying the net balance on the account to the rate chart used originally. The amount of charges on the remaining balance for the remaining months will be about the same as the rebate figured on the rebate chart.

Occasionally it may be necessary to illustrate the explanation by using a portion of the example shown under the explanation of the "78ths method."

Replaces Bulletin: "ACCOUNTING - REBATES - EXPLANATION" Dated 8-1-55

78ths METHOD

Rebates on installment loans are computed by the direct ratio method, also known as the sum-of-the-digits method, and more commonly called the 78ths method. In theory, each installment represents one "unit". On a twelve month loan there are 12 units (payments) outstanding the first month, 11 the second month, and so on down to one unit the final month. If the number of units outstanding each month are added, they total 78 (the total will vary with the term; 18 months = 171, 24 months = 300, etc.).

On this twelve months loan, since there is 12 times as much outstanding the first month as there is the final month, it is logical that the bank's earnings should also bear this same relationship. The portion of the total charge taken into earnings each month is a direct ratio of the number of units outstanding that month to the total number of units outstanding over the life of the loan. That is, 12/78ths the first month, 11/78ths the second month, and so on.

The following schedule of a $100 loan for 12 months with interest of $50.00 (5% Add-On) illustrates the application of this theory.

	TOTAL LOAN		INTEREST			PRINCIPAL
	PAYMENT	BALANCE	EARNED UNITS	EARNED AMOUNT	UNEARNED BALANCE	PAYMENT	BALANCE
		$ 1050.00			$ 50.00		$ 1000.00
1	$ 87.50	962.50	12/78	$ 7.69	42.31	$ 79.81	920.19
2	87.50	875.00	11/78	7.05	35.26	80.45	839.74
3	87.50	787.50	10/78	6.41	28.85	81.09	758.65
4	87.50	700.00	9/78	5.77	23.08	81.73	676.92
5	87.50	612.50	8/78	5.13	17.95	82.37	594.55
6	87.50	525.00	7/78	4.49	13.46	83.01	511.54
7	87.50	437.50	6/78	3.85	9.61	83.65	427.89
8	87.50	350.00	5/78	3.21	6.40	84.29	343.60
9	87.50	262.50	4/78	2.56	3.84	84.94	258.66
10	87.50	175.00	3/78	1.92	1.92	85.58	173.08
11	87.50	87.50	2/78	1.28	.64	86.22	86.86
12	87.50	-0-	1/78	.64	-0-	86.86	-0-

If the customer wishes to repay the loan in full after 6 months, he is entitled to a refund of the unearned interest. The unearned interest is merely a direct ratio of the sum of the remaining unpaid units to the original sum of the units. There are still six months remaining, and adding up the units that would have been outstanding in each of those months - 6 plus 5 plus 4, etc. - the sum is 21. Since the original sum was 78, the unearned interest should represent 21/78ths of the original interest. Refering to the illustration, 21/78ths of $50.00 is $13.46 which is the unearned interest balance after the sixth payment. For ease of calculation, rebate charts have been prepared which convert the fractions to decimal equivalents. The decimal equivalent of 21/78 is .269, thus our standard rebate chart shows .269 as the rebate factor for a 12 month loan that has run 6 months.

Replaces Bulletin: "ACCOUNTING - REBATES - EXPLANATION" Dated 8-1-55

The net principal balance on the above loan after six months is $511.54. If the customer wished to borrow this amount for the six months remaining, at the original rate of 5%, the interest would be $12.79, which approximates the rebate of $13.46.

This example illustrates the theory of the method of calculating rebates. In actual practice, however, there are other factors which enter into the calculation of rebates. For the details refer to the bulletin "ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - REBATES, INTEREST & DISCOUNT - PROCEDURES". This same theory is used in calculating rebates of dealer reserve, as explained in the bulletin "ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - REBATES, DEALER RESERVE - PROCEDURES".

OPERATING BULLETIN

SECTION ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS

SUBJECT REBATES - DEALER RESERVE

TOPIC PROCEDURE

 Date 9-1-67

New Subject:

Recent legislation affecting certain types of Sales Finance contracts stipulates that when a contract is paid in full prior to maturity a rebate of the Total Finance Charge (Time Price Differential) must be granted. Therefore, in addition to our regular rebate of Interest or Discount, we must grant a rebate of the Dealer's Loss Reserve (including any reserve which might have been paid to dealer at the time the contract was discounted). This applies only to contracts dated on or after October 1, 1967 - for the types of contracts affected, refer to the bulletin "SALES FINANCE GEORGIA REGULATIONS."

REBATE CALCULATION

Use Dealer Reserve Rebate Debit Ticket, form #19-1085. This new form is very similar to the Interest and Discount Rebate form, providing a work sheet for the computation. The same rebate factor must be used on both tickets.

Line 5 "Total Dealer Participation in Finance Charge" must include any reserve paid with the contract as well as any credited to the dealer's reserve account. These two figures will be shown adjacent to each other on the ledger card, labeled "Dealer Reserve". Any "prepaid" reserve will be shown first, followed by a dash and the amount of reserve held. (For example: 75.00 - 25.00).

REBATES ON IRREGULAR OR SEASONAL LOANS

Procedures for computing rebates on irregular or seasonal loans are discussed in the bulletin "ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - REBATES, INTEREST & DISCOUNT - PROCEDURES." After the Interest and Discount Rebate Ticket has been completed, divide the "Gross Rebate" (line 8) by "Net Charges" (line 6) to determine the ratio or factor. This factor should be used on line 4 of the Dealer Reserve Rebate Ticket, and when applied to the total dealer reserve will result in the amount of the dealer reserve to rebate.

For example:

Interest and Discount Rebate

(4)	Original Interest Charge	$100.00	(8)	Gross Rebate	$17.00
(5)	Acquisition Charge	15.00	(9)	Late Charges	5.00
(6)	Net Charges	85.00	(10)	Net Rebate	12.00

17.00 ÷ 85.00 = .20 (20%)

Dealer Reserve Rebate

(4)	Rebate Factor	$ .20
(5)	Total Dealer Partic.	25.00
(6)	Rebate	5.00

New Subject:

REBATES OF LESS THAN $1.00

The regulations provide that if the rebate of the total finance charge is less than $1.00, no rebate need be granted. However, if the interest rebate and the dealer reserve are each less than $1.00, but total $1.00 or more we must grant the rebate. Procedures for handling these are discussed in the bulletin "ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - REBATES, INTEREST & DISCOUNT - PROCEDURES."

DISPOSITION OF TICKETS

The Dealer Reserve Rebate Debit Ticket should be prepared in duplicate. The original is the General Ledger entry, which along with the Interest & Discount Rebate and the cash or check received, offsets the credit to the loan account. The duplicate should be filed with the other entries affecting the individual dealer's reserve account. The rebates will then be itemized on the Dealer Reserve Statement and the copies mailed with the statement to the dealer.

RECORDING REBATES ON THE LEDGER CARD

Dealer Reserve Rebates should be written in the upper portion of the ledger card to the left of "Rebate" and preceded by "DR". The interest rebate will be written in the space provided.

When an installment account is paid in full prior to the due date of the final payment, it is our policy to allow a rebate of the unearned portion of the finance charge as well as the unearned premium if insured. Formerly we calculated rebates using the number of payments that had matured whether or not they had been paid. When installment loans individual were automated, the rebate formula was based on the number of months elapsed since the date the loan was made. The rebate changes each month with the next anniversary date from the original date of the loan. This procedure should be used in calculating manual rebates including Business and Real Estate.

COMPUTER REBATE DEBIT TICKET

The computer rebate debit ticket (form #19-1240), should be used on all automated ILD-Individual Rebates. The interest and discount rebate is available through audio or video on all regular payment loans. Those offices that do not have access to the computer through audio or video use current status reports for rebates and payoffs. When a rebate is determined by either audio, video, or current status report, only the bank - branch - account number, rebate allowed, date rebated, customer's name, date calculated, calculated by and approved by need be completed on the form.

REBATE DEBIT TICKET FOR INSTALLMENT LOANS NOT YET AUTOMATED

This form provides a worksheet for computing the rebate, outlining the steps to follow in proper sequence; and, when completed in duplicate, provides a General Ledger ticket with a copy for accrual purposes. Form #19-923 Rev. 9-67, is used by those offices whose General Ledger accounting is performed manually. Those offices whose General Ledger is automated use rebate tickets (form #19-925 Rev. 9-67) which are personalized and MICR encoded with separate account numbers for "Business", and "Real Estate."

COMPUTATION OF TIME

Installment loan rebates are normally based on whole months rather than days, and the rebate chart is constructed accordingly. In order to compute "number of months note has run" merely count any fraction of the month from the original date of the loan as a whole month regardless of whether paid or not.

ACQUISITION CHARGE

Regardless of how soon an account may be paid off, we have basic acquisition costs in setting the account up on our books. This appears on the rebate tickets and is deducted from the original interest charge to arrive at the net charges. Use an acquisition charge of $25.00 on all Automobile loans (Over-the-Counter and Sales Finance) and $15.00 on all other classes of loans.

REBATE FACTOR

Use the factor obtained from the Rebate Chart (available from Retail Banking, 9 North Avenue, Atlanta). Merely insert the proper factor, and multiply the Net Charges by this factor to arrive at the Gross Rebate. Refund books which list the amount of rebate for various even dollar amounts are also available from Retail Banking.

ACCUMULATED UNPAID LATE CHARGES

Late charges are assessed because of the expense of personal handling of the account and should be collected. Late charges should be added to the balance of the loan rather than subtracted from the rebate for installment loans on the computer.

REBATES OF LESS THAN $1.00

Because of the cost of handling, rebates of less than $1.00 should not be granted. When dealer reserve rebates are also computed, and the dealer reserve rebate and the interest rebate are each less than $1.00, but total $1.00 or more, it is a legal requirement to grant a rebate to the customer. Dealer Reserve Rebates are also calculated by the sum of the digits as are interest rebates.

SPECIAL REBATE

In rare cases, it may be necessary to allow a special rebate to maintain our relationship with a good customer. Such exceptions should be kept at a minimum and are subject to the approval of the officer-in-charge. Any special rebates should give us a return of at least 8% simple interest on the average cash employed for the time the contract has been on our books.

APPROVAL

All rebates should be dually approved by two parties, each of whom must see the video display, the status report, or the ledger card, or hear the audio response. The two parties should see the remittance and verify that the remittance plus the rebate (plus dealer reserve rebate where applicable) equals the balance on the account.

DISPOSITION OF TICKETS - AUTOMATED SYSTEM

The computer rebate debit, form #19-1240, is a computer entry which represents the difference between the check or cash received and the amount of the payoff ticket. After daily computer posting, the General Ledger entry is prepared in total for all rebates by each city's Installment Loan Control.

Replaces Bulletin: ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - REBATES - INTEREST AND DISCOUNT - Dated 9-1-67

DISPOSITION OF TICKETS - MANUAL SYSTEM

Those installment loans not automated use form 19-923 or 19-925. Use the original as the General Ledger entry and the duplicate should be retained in the Loan Teller's file until forwarded to Installment Loan Control in Atlanta.

The National Bank Offices and those Affiliates on a complete bank accrual basis should send in their rebate copies daily with an adding machine tape attached, the total of which must balance with the tickets and with the total of the debits posted to their General Ledger accounts "Interest and Discount - Installment Loans; Business or Real Estate."

Other banks should retain their rebate copies until the end of the month and send them to Central Billing Department along with their Earnings and Charges reports. The total of the rebates enclosed must agree with the total debits on the reports.

RECORD OF REBATE

On automated loans, the rebate will be posted on the Daily Transactions Journal, recorded on the Accrual and Exceptions Report and will appear on the Closed Loan Card. For those not automated, the rebate should be noted on the ledger card in the space provided in the upper right hand corner.

PAYMENTS PAID IN ADVANCE

There is no practical way for us to allow credit for several payments paid in advance which do not pay the entire balance in full. If such a request is received, it should be explained that if the customer continues to pay ahead, the rebate given at the time the entire account is paid in advance of final maturity will automatically include credit for all prepayment. Automated Loans which are prepaid will print the message "Rebate Available" on the Action Report when the final payment is made.

GROSS BALANCE RECEIVED WITHOUT REQUEST FOR REBATE

We do not wish to retain any unearned charges to which our customers are entitled. Any rebate due the customer (in excess of $1.00) must be refunded to comply with Regulation Z. When the gross balance is received without a request for a rebate, a check for the amount of the rebate due (if more than $1.00) should be mailed to the customer with an appropriate letter.

REBATES ON SEASONAL OR IRREGULAR PAYMENTS

Our standard rebate chart is applicable only to loans having equal monthly payments. Rebates on loans with seasonal or irregular payments must be figured by alternative methods. Since rebates on certain Sales Finance contracts must conform to Georgia regulations, the following methods are recommended.

Replaces Bulletin: ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - REBATES-INTEREST AND DISCOUNT - Dated 9-1-67

Seasonal payment loans should be defined as having payments of the same amount (or only a slight difference in amount) and with the same equal time between payments. If equal, the computer will figure rebates on regular monthly, quarterly, semi-annual, and annual payments. If not equal, the computer will respond "Irregular" indicating that it must be calculated manually. Sales Finance managers were supplied with copies of rebate charts for quarterly, semi-annual, and annual payments and these should be used when payments are irregular. Additional copies of these may be obtained from Retail Banking, 9 North Avenue, Atlanta.

Balloon payment loans are those which have a series of equal monthly payments with a final payment for a considerably larger amount. The rebate should be computed in three steps. (1) Compute the rebate on the amount of interest on the monthly portion in the standard manner, deducting the acquisition charge before applying the usual rebate factor. (2) Compute the rebate on the amount of interest in the balloon payment by the pro-rata method (divide number of months remaining by the number of original months and multiply the result by amount of interest). (3) Prepare the rebate ticket and add the amount of the two rebate calculations to determine the total rebate. The following example illustrates this procedure:

Loan with 11 payments @ 44.44 and 1 @ 590.95. Discount sheet, or original calculations in file, indicates interest on monthly portion of $33.28 and on the balloon payment of $46.51, totaling $79.79. This is a $1,000 advance with life insurance-6% add-on, plus life insurance on the monthly payments and 8% simple, plus life insurance on the balloon payment.

Rebate computed at end of 5 months:

1. Monthly portion (12 months term, run 5 months)

Total Interest	$33.28
Acquisition Charge	15.00
Net Charge	18.28
Rebate Factor	.358
Rebate	6.54

2. Balloon payment (7 months remaining)
   7/12 = .583
   $46.51 x .583 = $27.12 Rebate

3. $6.54 + $27.12 = $33.66 Total Rebate

Calculating the rebate will be much easier if the original calculations made at the time the loan is made are maintained in the file. If they are not, the method outlined for irregular payments should be used.

Irregular payment loans are those with payments of different amounts and/or varying time periods between payments. On automated loans, audio, video and current status information will be "Irregular" indicating the necessity for manual calculation. There are two ways to compute rebates on such loans. The first is to use the same rate chart used at the time of discount and re-compute what the charges would be from the time of rebate to the maturity. If several payments are involved this can be very time consuming, and is made even more difficult if the original calculations are not in the file.

The following method is recommended because it can be applied to any loan, and because it meets the requirements of the Georgia Sales Finance Acts. It requires determining the ratio of the sum of the monthly unmatured balances to the sum of the originally scheduled monthly balances for the full term. (This is the way which the rebate factors are computed for the rebate charts on regularly scheduled loans). The interest (less acquisition charge) is then multiplied by this ratio to determine the rebate. The steps to follow are illustrated below.

Consider a loan made 3-10-71 with Interest and Discount of $73.00 and Dealers' Reserve of $40.00, with a total note of $1200.00. The payment schedule is as follows:

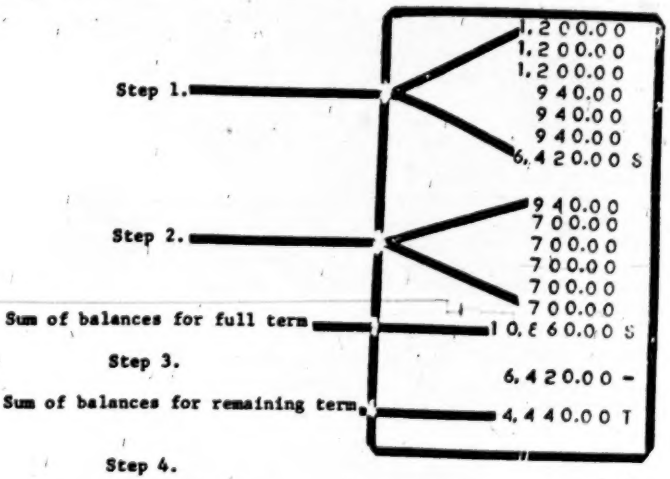
Date Due	Payment	Balance
6-8-71	260.00	1200.00
10-8-71	240.00	940.00
3-8-72	700.00	700.00

A rebate is calculated on 9-1-71. This means that, for rebate purposes, the loan has run 6 months (from 3-10-71).

1. List what the balances were scheduled to be each month during this first six months and sub-total.
2. List what the balances each month would be for the remaining six months, if it were paid as scheduled, and sub-total. This is the sum of the balances for the full term of the loan.
3. Subtract the sub-total in step 1 from the sub-total in step 2 and total. The result is the sum of the balances for the remaining term.
4. Divide the sum for the remaining term by the sum for the full term.
   NOTE - Regardless of the size of the two totals, an accurate ratio will result by rounding off and dividing by only the first 4 digits of the sum for total term. The sum of the remaining term should then be rounded off accordingly.

5. Using the ratio from step 4 as the rebate factor, complete the rebate ticket and calculations in the usual manner.

These procedures are illustrated for our example loan.



Step 4.

$\frac{4,440.00}{10,860.00} = \frac{444}{1086} = .408$ (Rebate Factor)
(Use for Interest Rebate and Dealer's Reserve Rebate)

Step 5.

Complete rebate ticket -

Original Interest	-	73.00	Rebate Factor	.408
Acquisition Charge	-	15.00	Gross Rebate	23.66
Net Charge	-	58.00

MISCELLANEOUS ENTRIES

Miscellaneous charges formerly made to Interest & Discount - Installment Loans covering transfer fees, title and recording fees, etc., should now be charged to Miscellaneous Expense General - Other Income. Such tickets must contain a complete description of the charge and show the proper title of the General Ledger Account.

REPLACES BULLETIN: GENERAL OPERATIONS - RECORD RETENTION, dated 12-8-58

A tremendous number of pieces of paper are necessarily handled each year in the operation of an Installment Loan Department. The manner in which files and records are kept has a direct bearing on the "ease" of doing business as well as on the greater net profit resulting from the time saved in each operation. Material retained longer than the absolute minimum time required, for either operating purposes or by law, is costly not only because of storage requirements, but even more so in the time consumed by unnecessary handling. This bulletin has been written to provide a standardized procedure for record retention. While it does not take into consideration every piece of paper and form used in our installment lending operations, it has been designed to cover those items creating the major portion of this problem. Some variance in filing requirements will be necessary in offices of different sizes, but basically, the procedure will fit all operations.

STATUTORY REGULATIONS There are no federal statutory provisions covering the period of time for retention of records by National Banks, therefore, National Banks are governed in this respect by the existing state law. For this reason, all National and State chartered Banks must comply with the State of Georgia Banks and Trust Companies Regulation #2, adopted April 1, 1953, and amended April 1, 1954, concerning retention of records. This regulation does not specifically consider the retention of installment loan records, but an opinion has been rendered by the Department of Banking of the State of Georgia. It has taken the position that, since Loan and Discount records are governed by this regulation, any installment loan record which can be compared with a similar record from the Loan and Discount Department shall be governed by the same minimum retention requirements. The regulation provides for the legal acceptance of micro-photographed reproductions of the records affected by it. Throughout this bulletin, an asterisk has been used to indicate periods of retention which are governed by statutory regulation.

CREDIT AND COLLECTION FOLDERS Credit and Collection Folders contain the greatest bulk of records and material in any one place in the Installment Loan Department. A systematic program of record retention and destruction within these files will greatly reduce costs. There are three stages in which the program should be carried out with regard to these folders.

DURING THE "PAID-IN-FULL" PROCEDURE
DURING DAILY USE
DURING THE SYSTEMATIC, PERIODIC SCREENING OF FILES

1. The greatest portion of the material in the Credit and Collection Folder can be disposed of during the "paid-in-full" procedure. At this time, the following disposition of material should be made.

   A. Retain in Folder

      Paid-Out Ledger Cards - may be filed in the Credit and Collection Folder as soon as one monthly balancing period has transpired after the date of pay out.

Applications, Credit Bureau Reports and other material needed in the future extension of credit.

B. Return to customer (unless paid by renewal) all evidences of debt on paid-out accounts and related documents.

Evidence of Debt (i.e., Agreements, Notes, Bills of Sale to Secure Debt, Insurance Premium Contracts, Transfers of Equity.)

Supporting Data (i.e., Bills of Sale, Invoices, Insurance policies other than life.)

Collateral (i.e., Life Insurance policies, Savings Passbooks, etc.)

CAUTION - DO NOT RETURN ANY SECURITY INSTRUMENTS OR COLLATERAL THAT MAY BE NEEDED TO SUPPORT ANOTHER LOAN.

C. Return to Insurance Company

Properly executed Release of Life Insurance Policy Assignments.

D. Return to Dealer

Conditional Sales Contracts and related Notes.

E. Return to Signer

Hypothecation Certificates and related collateral.

Letters of Guaranty.

Trusts Receipts.

F. Remove from folders and destroy all material not needed in future dealings. Such as:

Acknowledgment Letter (Insurance Premium Financing)

Adjustor's Copy of Ledger Card

Adjustor's Memoranda

Check Duplicates

Correspondence

Appraisal Sheet (Automobile)

Borrower's Authorization Form

Business Loan Appraisal Memorandum

Loan Appraisal Memorandum

Insurance Questionnaire (Cash Value)

Replaces Bulletin: "GENERAL OPERATIONS - RECORD RETENTION" Dated 12-8-58

Deposit Duplicates	Partial Release of Collateral
Discount Sheet (If it contains no credit information)	Physical Verification Report
Draft (Auto Bank Agent)	Property Improvement Verification
Extension Report (Farm Equipment)	Summary of Account
Insurance Premium Questionnaire	Verification (Audit Mail)

2. During daily use, for credit and collection purposes, any material not necessary for future handling should be removed from the Credit and Collection Folders. The two most frequent periods of handling which lend themselves to this procedure are when folders are out for collection purposes and/or when they are being used for reference by direct lending personnel.

3. At least once a year, credit and collection file drawers should be screened and all folders containing accounts paid out 1 year or more and having no open loans to the customer should be removed. In initiating this procedure, it will be necessary, the first year, to thumb the entire files in order to pull the 1 year and older paid-out account folders. If the following procedure is begun at the same time, it will provide for a much simpler method of removing paid-out folders after the first year's thumbing process.

   During the paid-out procedure, the tab of the Credit and Collection Folder should be stamped with the year in which the paid-out loan occured. The following year, during the periodic screening of files, those folders dated the preceding year can then be pulled without thumbing all of the files.

   During this periodic screening of files, all unfavorable information, (repossessions, unsatisfactory credit or collection information, etc.) should be retained on an indefinite basis. Folders in which no unfavorable information exists, and where the latest loan has been paid out for one year or more, should be disposed of with the exception of the paid-out ledger cards. Such Ledger Cards should be removed and microfilmed. The resulting reproduction should then be sent to Dead Storage for 14 years (total retention time after date of pay-out - 15 years).

OTHER RECORDS Records other than those found in the Credit and Collection Folder have been grouped according to use. The retention periods shown refer to the total retention time required, including storage time in both the Installment Loan Department and in Dead Storage. All offices have access to micro-photographing equipment and, wherever the retention period in Dead Storage exceeds 1 year, records should be microfilmed at the time they are to be sent to Dead Storage and the resulting reproduct[illegible] retained in Dead Storage for the balance of the retention period.

 Date 1-3-62

Replaces Bulletin: "GENERAL OPERATIONS - REPORTS - DEALER CONDITION" Dated 9-15-59

The Dealer Condition Report, comparable to our Debtors List on commercial loans, furnishes us with a monthly breakdown of our dealer portfolio. Current month retail volume figures are not shown on the report because that information is furnished by the IBM Dealer Credit Record.

The Dealer Condition Report should be prepared on the last working day of each month and immediately forwarded to the Central Billing Department in Atlanta. It is typed with a special multilith typewriter ribbon on preprinted multilith mats. Blank copies of the report form are available for use in drafting the report before the mat is typed.

PREPARATION OF REPORT To prepare this report, post the Dealer Purchase Guides first (the Purchase Guides will be complete except for current month volume figures and the number of poor risks purchased). As the Purchase Guides are posted, attach a paper clip to each Purchase Guide that is to be listed on Dealer Condition Report. Then, the report can be prepared using the information on those Purchase Guides with paper clips on them.

List on the report all dealers with retail outstandings over $10,000, all dealers with wholesale activity and/or wholesale outstandings, and all dealers with accounts on the Potential Loss Report. If a dealer is listed, show all of the information that applies to that dealer, regardless of the amount.

WHOLESALE Wholesale information covers both volume (current month purchases) and outstandings. If a dealer has wholesale outstandings on more than one class of business, list the wholesale separately on the same line with the retail outstandings for the class of business involved (see illustration on page 1).

If a dealer has "used" wholesale, it should be identified in the column labeled CODE by the letter "U". Unless so identified, outstandings will be presumed to be new merchandise. To simplify the reporting of this information, separate controls should be carried in your wholesale ledger if you have more than one category of wholesale.

ORDERING THE REPORT Preprinted Dealer Condition Report mats, special multilith typewriter ribbons, and blank copies of the report form may be ordered directly from the Central Billing Department, Atlanta.

The Report of Indirect Collection Accounts was designed to show all of the accounts outstanding that were purchased in bulk under an indirect collection agreement.

PREPARATION AND SUBMISSION The report is prepared as of the last day of each month. It is typed with a special multilith typewriter ribbon on a preprinted multilith mat so that a copy of the report may be included with each set of month-end reports. Blank copies of the report form are available for use in drafting the report before the mat is typed. The report is mailed along with other month-end reports to the Central Billing Department in Atlanta.

The report shown below illustrates typical situations and should be self-explanatory. The settlement sheets used in all cases should have provisions for showing the volume that applies to the portfolio of paper being purchased. If you are participating in a total control on a percentage basis, the seller should furnish the total volume going into that control. Your volume on the Indirect Collection Accounts Report will be the same percentage of the total volume as your outstandings are of the total outstandings in the control.

REPLACES BULLETIN: GENERAL OPERATIONS - REPORTS - POTENTIAL LOSS, dated 8-25-54

The Potential Loss Report is a synopsis of past-due Installment Loan accounts as of the end of each month. It provides management, both local and staff level, with a detailed list of accounts that requires special handling or on which a loss is anticipated. The Officer-in-Charge of each department should use his copy of this report daily to follow the progress being made in the collection of accounts in this category.

PREPARATION AND SUBMISSION This report is prepared on a monthly basis by each office. It is typed with a special multilith typewriter ribbon on preprinted multilith mats and must be mailed to the Central Billing Department in Atlanta on the last day of each month. Blank copies of the report form are available for use in drafting the report before the mats are typed.

ACCOUNTS TO BE LISTED

1. All Sales Finance - Domestic accounts over 90 days past due.
2. All other accounts over 60 days past due.
3. All known repossessions - Bank or Dealer Liability - regardless of length of time past due.
4. All accounts on which a charge-off is expected - regardless of length of time past due.
5. All wholesale repossessions.

ORDER OF LISTING List accounts by classification in the same order that the classifications appear on the Statistical Summary Report. Under each Sales Finance classification, list accounts by dealers.

NAME, DEALER, ENDORSER, COLLATERAL The name of the customer, dealer, or endorser should be indicated for each account listed. All collateraliy secured loans must have the collateral at least partially described.

REMARKS In all cases, the remarks should show the reason for non-payment, when payment is expected, and anything else that has a material bearing on the condition of the collateral or liquidation of the account.

REPOSSESSIONS

Statistics covering Bank Liability Repossessions are accumulated centrally from this report. Be sure that all repossessions are properly described in the remarks space using the term Guaranteed for full recourse, Repurchase if you are operating un-repurchase of merchandise agreement, or Bank Liability if the Bank is to sell the merchandise. Any accounts originally purchased as Guaranteed or Repurchase should be shown as Bank Liability if the dealer is out of business or unable to perform his obligations (including any merchandise in our possession or under our control at a place other than that of the selling dealer).

REPOSSESSIONS SOLD It is not necessary to make a separate report of repossessions sold because you will usually have a loss and a History Sheet (19-905) will be prepared on it. However, if any repossession is sold without a loss, be sure to prepare a History Sheet on it also so that we can clear our repossession log.

TEMPORARY REPOSSESSIONS Occasionally, you will place a car in storage for a customer with the understanding that it is to be released when the account is brought up to date or paid in full. If you have such items in your possession, describe them as "TEMPORARY REPOSSESSION" so that we will not be looking for History Sheets on the accounts. If it develops that a customer cannot retain the car, indicate on subsequent reports that it is a permanent repossession.

WHOLESALE REPOSSESSIONS All repossessed merchandise originally financed on wholesale should be listed at the end of the report. If there are no wholesale repossessions, indicate that fact as follows:

WHOLESALE REPOSSESSIONS

None

NEGATIVE REPORTS If your office has no accounts to be listed on the Potential Loss Report, do not submit a report. In lieu of submitting a report, make the following notation in the upper left-hand corner of the Statistical Summary.

"POTENTIAL LOSS REPORT - NEGATIVE"

ILLUSTRATION OF POTENTIAL LOSS REPORT The report shown on pages 3 and 4 was prepared to illustrate the pattern of listing accounts and to show as many different situations as possible. Each account listed is there for a purpose. Please use the illustrations as a guide in checking your reports and training employees to prepare the report.

ORDERING POTENTIAL LOSS REPORT FORMS Preprinted Potential Loss Report mats, special multilith typewriter ribbon, and blank copies of the report form may be ordered from the Central Billing Department in Atlanta.

Replaces Bulletin: ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - REPORTS - STATISTICAL SUMMARY Dated 1-3-62

The Statistical Summary Report is a summary presentation of volume, outstandings, and past dues, by class of business as of the end of each month. It is compiled on a monthly basis by each office. This bulletin was revised to include minor changes in the procedure for preparing the report.

PREPARATION OF REPORT

The report shown below indicates the spaces that each office is to complete on a blank copy of the report and mail to the Central Billing Department on the last day of the month. The Central Billing Department compiles the reports from the various offices and reproduces the complete summary for distribution.

INFORMATION SUPPLIED BY EACH OFFICE

1. Number and Amount of Retail Outstandings. This is the gross amount, including any participations that might be sold. Figures should be rounded off to the nearest dollar; i.e., omit cents. The figures should be taken from the Retail Control Card as of the last day of the month, except where posting is on a delayed basis and it is not possible to post the last day's work and get the report in the mail on the last day of the month. If it is not possible to post the last day's collections, the control figures for the next to the last day may be used. If this is done, also omit the last day's volume.

2. Past-Due Accounts. Count all past dues in each category.

   15-30 ---------Oldest past-due payment maturing from the 1st through the 15th of the current month.

   30-59 ---------Oldest past-due payment maturing in the previous month.

   60 & Over -----Oldest past-due payment maturing prior to the previous month.

   Each account is counted only once in the proper category, depending on the oldest past-due payment. Any shortages of more than one dollar are included in the count just as though the entire payment were past due. Accounts must be considered past due unless payments have actually gone through the teller's cage and will be posted as of the month being reported.

3. Participation Sold. This is the total amount of all Installment Loan - Individual participations sold. The amount of each participation sold and to whom sold should be shown in the space provided.

4. Net Retail. This figure is completed by deducting the participation sold from the total gross retail.

5. Participations Purchased. This is the total amount of all Installment Loan - Individual participations purchased. The amount of each participation purchased and from whom purchased should be shown in the space provided.

6. Wholesale. Using information on your wholesale control, show the number of notes (not items) and the amount of volume and outstandings.

7. Real Estate. Using information on your retail control, show the number and amount of real estate loans outstanding.

8. Earnings - Participations Purchased. Enter the total interest received during the month for Installment - Individual participations purchased.

9. Dealer Reserve. The total dealer reserve (both loss and contingent) should be entered here.

New Bulletin

The Statement of Wholesale Curtailment, form #19-957, has been redesigned to simplify the billing and follow-up procedures on curtailments. It is a four-part snap-out form and is illustrated below.

PLEASE HANDLE PROMPTLY. RETURN THIS NOTICE WITH YOUR CHECK

BILLING PROCEDURES The billing form is to be prepared 10 days prior to the due date of the note. The four parts of the form are to be used as follows:

1. The original (white) is sent to the dealer as a reminder 10 days before the note is due and the three copies are filed for follow-up in 10 days.

2. If the amount billed is not paid on or before the due date, the yellow copy is given to the person responsible for handling the dealer's business for personal follow-up. The two remaining copies are filed for follow-up 10 days later.

3. If the amount billed is not paid within 10 days after the due date, the pink copy is given to the officer-in-charge for conclusive action.

4. The green copy is retained by the wholesale clerk for use as a posting medium.

Note that the form provides for billing charges and interest in advance. Since we do not bill certain types of dealers for charges in advance, the use of the form varies with the type of dealer. These variations are outlined below:

1. Charges and Interest billed in advance - On dealers where charges and interest are billed in advance, the form should be prepared showing the amount of curtailments due and any charges and interest applicable. This would apply to appliance dealers, piano dealers, etc.

New Bulletin

2. Charges and Interest NOT billed in advance - On dealers where charges and interest are not billed in advance, the form should be prepared showing only the amount of curtailments due. Interest and charges on these dealers are to be billed on form #19-958, "Statement of Interest on Wholesale" and the interest is to be computed on the average daily balance method. See Bulletin: "ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - WHOLESALE - INTEREST BILLING."

A follow-up card should be prepared when the original invoice is floorplanned and should be filed for follow-up 10 days prior to the due date of the note. If the note is renewed, the date on the follow-up card should be changed to a date 10 days prior to the new date of the note.

COMPUTATION OF CURTAILMENTS It is important for the dealer to know the amount of curtailment that will be billed on each individual item floorplanned. However, since our wholesale notes can include more than one item, and since curtailments are billed by note rather than by individual item, the dealer must be furnished with a method of determining the curtailment amount for each item. In order to do this, the curtailment amount for each item is to be computed at the time the Wholesale Ledger Sheet is prepared. The amount is then entered in the shaded block under the "Due Date" heading on the Ledger Sheet. This amount will also appear on the dealer copy of the Ledger Sheet and will give him the exact amount each item is to be curtailed. When it is time to bill the dealer for curtailment, it will be a simple matter to add the curtailment amounts for all items which are unpaid. As individual items are paid off, the curtailment amount shown on the Ledger Sheet for that item should be marked through so that it will not be picked up the next time curtailments are billed.

ORDERING SUPPLIES Your requirements of the Statement of Wholesale Curtailment, form #19-957, may be ordered in the customary manner from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta.

TOPIC INTEREST BILLING

 Date 12-8-58

Replaces Bulletin: "ACCOUNTING - WHOLESALE - INTEREST BILLING" Dated 2-27-56

The Statement of Interest On Wholesale (19-958) has been revised so that it fits properly in our standard small window envelope (9-333). Guide lines have also been provided to facilitate the folding of the Statement, thus assuring proper alignment with the envelope window.

Wholesale interest should be billed through the 25th of each month using the following procedure.

PROCEDURE

Prepare in duplicate the Statement of Interest on Wholesale, form #19-958, revised 8-58.

1. Bring all control posting up to date through the 25 th of the current month.

2. Type the borrower's complete name and address within the four corner window positioning marks.

3. Type the current month and date in the space provided for "date".

4. Place the form in a wide carriage adding mactine and, from the dealer's control sheet, enter the amounts outstanding each day opposite the appropriate date beginning on the left hand side below the name and address of the dealer listing through the 16th of the month. By moving the carriage to the left and rotating the platen in reverse until the space for the 17th is aligned for printing, the form may be completed. (A comparision of the revised form reproduced on the reverse of this bulletin and the old form will indicate that the method of completing each is exactly the same.)

5. Total these outstanding balances on the line opposite "Total Daily Balance".

6. Divide this total by 30 and enter the result opposite "Average Daily Balance". Regardless of the number of days in the month or the number of days the loan was outstanding, always divide by 30.

7. Multiply the Average Daily Balance by the interest factor applicable. The monthly interest factors for our most common wholesale rates are:

4%	-	.00333
5%	-	.00417
6%	-	.00500

For any other rate, multiply the Average Daily Balance by the rate and divide by 12. Enter the result opposite "Interest Due" and show the rate charged in the space provided.

8. Show in the next two blank lines any flat charges or insurance charges for which the dealer has not been billed.

9. Enter the total amount due in the space at the bottom of the Statement.

10. Enter the Total Amount Due and the date of billing on the dealer's control sheet in the column headed "Interest". When the interest is paid, credit "Interest and Discount - Wholesale" and show the date of receipt on the control sheet.

11. Mail the original statement to the dealer using our standard small window envelope (9-333).

12. Hold the duplicate statement in suspense for follow-up until interest is received from each dealer. After interest is paid, file the duplicate until the next Comptroller's Audit.

SUBJECT WHOLESALE

TOPIC NEW LOANS

 Date 8-24-61

Replaces Bulletin: "ACCOUNTING - WHOLESALE - NEW LOANS" Dated 3-11-60

For some time we have shown notations of discrepancies or irregularities on Wholesale Checking Reports on the right hand side of the bank's copy of the Wholesale Ledger Sheet. This has made the posting of curtailments in this area of the form very difficult. The Wholesale Ledger Sheet (19-868) now provides adequate space for wholesale checking notations. The boxes in the upper portion of this form which previously referred to "Follow-up Dates" have been changed to indicate:

1. The "DUE DATE" of the Note.
2. The first "RENEWAL DATE".
3. The remaining seven boxes (for subsequent renewal dates) have been left blank so as not to create the impression with the dealer that we invite prolonged renewals.

The entire right hand column (on the bank's copy only) now provides specific space for wholesale checking comments for each item on the Note. (SEE ILLUSTRATION ON PAGE 2.) This change has reduced the number of spaces provided for the posting of curtailments from 8 to 5. Since it is possible for a dealer to maintain any item on floorplan for a total of ten months, additional space for posting curtailments has been provided on the - Extension Wholesale Ledger Sheet (19-877). Whenever any item must be curtailed for the sixth time, the description of the item should be entered on the Extension Ledger Sheet in the same position as on the original Ledger Sheet. (SEE ILLUSTRATION ON PAGE 4.) The Extension Ledger Sheet should then be stapled to the original Ledger Sheet (holes on left will line up when stapled properly) and the curtailment posted in the same manner as on the original Ledger Sheet.

APPROVALS Space is provided on the reverse of the dealer's individual Wholesale Control Sheet (19-867) for notations of wholesale approvals. Indicate the date of approval, name of distributor, number of items, kind of merchandise (range, refrigerator, TV, etc.) and the dollar amount approved. As the corresponding new Notes are posted to the Control Sheet, a line should be drawn through the appropriate approval notation. A completed illustration of the approval side of the Control Sheet is reproduced on Page 10 of this bulletin.

WHOLESALE DISCOUNTING PROCEDURE After approval, wholesale transactions are generally received in the form of an invoice which is to be paid to the distributor or dealer, or the invoice may be enclosed in a draft. Upon receipt of the invoice, the steps for handling are as follows:

1. Compute on the invoice the cash discount, the down-payment and the amount to finance on each item, and the total flat charges per the dealer's approved plan of operation.

   If there is more than one item on an invoice, run an adding machine tape to prove out the total down-payment and the amount

2. Prepare the snap-out form, combination Ledger Sheet and Note-Security Agreement (19-868). Reproduced on Page 2 is a sample of the completed Ledger Sheet with explanations of the various spaces. Reproduced on Page 6 is a completed sample of the Note - Security Agreement.

3. Execute the papers.

   A. If the bank has power of attorney, sign the Note - Security Agreement. Send the dealer his copy of the Ledger Sheet and request his check for the down-payment and/or the flat charges.

   B. If the bank does not have power of attorney, send the Note - Security Agreement with the copy of the Ledger Sheet to the dealer. Request that he sign the papers immediately and return them to you with his check for the down-payment and/or the flat charges.

NOTE - Whenever possible, arrangements should be made to charge the dealer's checking account for down-payment and flat charges in order to facilitate the handling of floorplan. Copies of the charge tickets should be sent to the dealer.

4. From the invoice, disburse the funds.

   A. By deposit to the account of the dealer or distributor.

   B. By check to the dealer or distributor.

   C. By an interior transfer to pay for the draft.
      (If items are being financed under a Free Floorplan Agreement whereby the distributor pays the charges in advance, the charges should be deducted from the proceeds.)

5. Prepare entries to the General Ledger using the information on the Ledger Sheet.

   A. If papers have been executed through Power of Attorney,
      Debit "Wholesale" for the amount of the Note.
      Debit "Cash Items, Installment Loans" or the dealer's checking account for the down-payment and/or the flat charges.

Debits to "Cash Items" should be prepared in duplicate using a single debit ticket, with a third copy on a single credit ticket. The debit copy may then be used as a posting media. The credit copy may be used as a follow-up and when the dealer's check is received, may be used as an off-setting entry.

6. Post the Wholesale Control Sheet (19-867) from copies of the General Ledger entries and the Ledger Sheet. Reproduced on Page 8 is a completed sample of the Control Sheet. If "Wholesale" was debited for the amount of Note, enter the amount on both the individual dealer's control and the total "Wholesale" control.

A column has been added to the "Debit" section of "Notes Receivable" so that the "NUMBER OF ITEMS" covered by each Note may be posted. Post this information only on the individual dealer controls. This will, in turn, facilitate the posting of wholesale information to the Experience Record of the Dealer Purchase Guide at the end of each month.

Two "date" columns have been provided on the Control Sheet to enable you to bill interest from the date of disbursement, rather than from the date of your General Ledger entry. On the individual control, show the date in both columns, but in the "General Ledger" column only on the total control. Show the amount of flat charges collected and the date on the individual control. If "Cash Items" was debited, post the amount of the Note on the individual dealer's control only and show the date in the "Note" column.

7. After each entry has been posted to the controls, file the Ledger Sheet behind all the others in the dealer's section of your wholesale book. File the Note - Security Agreement and invoice in the Wholesale Note File. If the papers have been sent to the dealer to be signed, file the invoice in the Note File.

— COLLATERAL NOTE — (FLOOR PLAN)

Atlanta, Georgia, August 16, 1960

On Demand, the undersigned promises to pay to the order of

The Citizens and Southern National Bank

(hereafter, together with any holder hereof, called "Holder"), at Atlanta Fulton Ga. or at such other place as the Holder may designate and notify undersigned with interest from date until maturity at 6 per cent per annum, and with interest after maturity until paid at eight per cent. (8%) per annum, together with all costs of collection, including fifteen per cent (15%) of the principal and interest as attorney's fees if collected by law or through an attorney at law.

Eight hundred thirteen & 00/100 - - - - - - - - - - - DOLLARS

The term "Collateral" as used herein, shall mean the property described on the reverse hereof, being goods the purchase price of which was advanced by said Bank and security interest therein taken pursuant to a certain Security Agreement (Floor Plan), together with any other property of every kind or description now or hereafter in the possession or control of the Holder for any reason, including other rights in connection with any property hereinabove referred to. Undersigned hereby warrants that sole and lawful ownership of Collateral is in the undersigned with full power and authority to transfer, convey a free encumbrance.

The undersigned agrees that the Holder shall have a lien upon, security title to and a security interest in the Collateral to secure the payment of this Note and all other indebtedness or liability of the undersigned to Holder, however and whenever the same shall arise or be incurred, whether direct or indirect, absolute or contingent, or due or to become due (hereafter with this note collectively called "Liabilities"). The surrender of this Note upon payment or otherwise shall not affect the right of the Holder to retain the Collateral for any other Liabilities.

If the undersigned should become insolvent (as defined in the Uniform Commercial Code as in effect at that time in Georgia), or a petition in bankruptcy be filed by or against undersigned, or if a receiver be appointed for any part of the property or assets of undersigned, or if any judgment be entered against the undersigned, or if default be made in the payment of any sums payable hereunder when due, or if default be made in the performance or observance of any agreement or covenant of undersigned contained herein or in any other instrument or agreement executed by undersigned in connection herewith, or if any warranty or representation of undersigned herein or in connection herewith shall be false in any material respect, or if undersigned shall fail to pay any taxes, assessments or insurance premiums when due, or if undersigned shall fail to keep the Collateral free from all claims, liens and encumbrances of every kind, nature and description, except the lien of this Note and the security interest granted herein, or if undersigned shall sell, transfer, assign, encumber or dispose of any of the Collateral without the prior written consent of Holder, or if undersigned shall fail to keep the Collateral insured against such risks, in such manner and for such amounts as Holder may require, or if undersigned shall fail to deliver to Holder any insurance policy or certificate thereof required by Holder, or if undersigned shall fail to keep the Collateral free from all taxes, liens, security interests, encumbrances and claims, or if undersigned shall fail to perform any of the Liabilities, or if any of the Collateral shall be lost, stolen, destroyed, damaged or substantially decreased in value, or if Holder shall in good faith deem the prospect of payment of any of the Liabilities impaired, or if any of the Collateral shall be seized or taken by any governmental authority, or if undersigned shall die or cease to do business as a going concern, then, in any such event, all of the Liabilities shall, at the option of the Holder and without demand, notice or advertisement of any kind to undersigned, immediately become due and payable, and undersigned hereby authorizes and empowers Holder to sell, assign and deliver the whole or any part of the Collateral (after demanding performance or otherwise exercising all rights and remedies available to Holder under the Uniform Commercial Code as in effect at that time in Georgia or otherwise available to Holder by law or agreement) at any public or private sale, with or without advertisement, for cash, on credit or for future delivery, at such time or times, at such place or places, and upon such terms as Holder may deem commercially reasonable, irrevocably waives any and all demands whatsoever, and hereby authorizes Holder or anyone acting for it to purchase or become the purchaser at any such sale, free from any right of redemption, which right is hereby expressly waived and released by undersigned, and undersigned hereby further authorizes and empowers Holder to apply the proceeds of any such sale, after deducting all costs and charges, including reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses, incurred by Holder in connection with the sale, collection or other realization upon the Collateral, and all costs and charges incurred by Holder in connection with the protection of the Collateral, to the payment of the Liabilities in such manner and order as Holder may from time to time elect, whether or not all of the Liabilities are then due and payable, and undersigned shall remain liable to Holder for any deficiency remaining unpaid after such application, and undersigned hereby authorizes and empowers Holder to apply any balances, credits, deposits, accounts or moneys of undersigned in the possession of Holder to the payment of the Liabilities, whether or not then due, and undersigned hereby grants to Holder a lien and security interest in all such balances, credits, deposits, accounts and moneys for the purposes aforesaid. Undersigned agrees that Holder may from time to time, without notice to undersigned, extend or renew this Note for a period or periods of time, whether longer or shorter than the original period of this Note, or grant other indulgences to undersigned in respect thereof, or modify or amend the terms of payment or any of the terms and conditions of this Note, or grant releases, compromises or indulgences with respect to any Collateral for the Liabilities to any endorsers, guarantors or sureties, or release any of the Collateral, all without notice to any endorsers, guarantors or sureties and without affecting the liability of undersigned or any endorsers, guarantors or sureties for the Liabilities, except to the extent that the Liabilities may be lessened thereby. Undersigned agrees that Holder may from time to time, without notice to undersigned, apply any payments received by Holder to any of the Liabilities, whether or not then due, in such manner and order as Holder may determine, and undersigned agrees that Holder may, at any time, without notice to undersigned, apply any and all balances, credits, deposits, accounts or moneys of undersigned in the possession of Holder to the payment of the Liabilities, whether or not then due, and undersigned hereby grants to Holder a lien and security interest in all such balances, credits, deposits, accounts and moneys for the purposes aforesaid.

This Note shall be under no duty to exercise any or all of the rights and remedies given by this Note and no party to this Note shall be deemed to be a party to any waiver or undertaking unless the same shall be in writing and signed by the party so waiving or undertaking. No waiver by Holder (a) of any right or remedy on any occasion shall be a bar to the exercise of the same or any other right or remedy on any future occasion, or (b) of any breach shall constitute or be deemed a waiver of any subsequent breach whether of the same or of a different provision of this Note, and no failure to exercise, or delay in exercising, any right or remedy shall operate as a waiver thereof, nor shall any single or partial exercise by the Holder of any right or remedy preclude other or further exercise thereof or the exercise of any other right or remedy.

Undersigned agrees and convenes to the Holder a sufficient amount of homestead and exemption which undersigned or any part of Land is entitled to claim or by virtue of the Constitution or laws of Georgia or any other State of the United States or any part of Land is entitled to claim or by virtue of the Constitution or laws of Georgia or any other State of the United States in case any part of Land shall be levied upon by reason of bankruptcy, undersigned or any other party liable for the Liabilities hereby waives all claim against Holder for damages caused by such levy and all homestead exemptions allowed by law.

Given under the hand and seal of the undersigned.

8. When the check is received from the dealer for the down-payment and/or the flat charges, use the credit to "Cash Items", prepared in step 5, as your off-setting entry.

9. When the signed papers are returned by the dealer with his check, debit "Wholesale" for the amount of the Note. This debit and the check will be off-set by the credit to "Cash Items". At this time, post the amount of the Note to the total control and also show the date in the "General Ledger" column on the individual control. File the Note - Security Agreement with the invoice.

10. Free floorplan Notes are handled in the same basic manner as other wholesale Notes. However, all debits and credits should be marked "Free Floorplan" to facilitate accurate control posting. A separate Control Sheet should be set up for each dealer with free floorplan and all Ledger Sheets should be marked "Free Floorplan" in the upper right hand corner. At the end of the "free" period, these Ledger Sheets should be transferred to the dealer's regular wholesale section. The balance on the transferred Ledger Sheets should be shown as a debit to the dealer's "regular" control, and as a credit to his "free" control. No General Ledger entry will be necessary.

11. If a dealer has "used" wholesale, all such merchandise should be floorplanned on separate Notes and Ledger Sheets from those covering "new" merchandise. Such Notes are handled in the same basic manner as other wholesale Notes, but all debits and credits should be marked "used floorplan" to facilitate accurate control posting. A separate control sheet should be set up for each dealer with "used" floorplan and all Ledger Sheets should be marked "used floorplan" in the upper right hand corner. Wholesale postings to the Experience Record of the Dealer Purchase Guide should be for the total of both "new" and "used" wholesale. However, when completing the monthly Dealer Condition Report, wholesale information on those few dealers having both "new" and "used" wholesale (they will be apparent from the Approved Lines section of the Experience Record side of the Dealer Purchase Guide) should be listed separately as "new" and "used". In such cases, the information should be taken directly from the dealer's Wholesale Control Sheets.

INSTALLMENT LOAN DEPARTMENT
WHOLESALE CONTROL SHEET

Enter the dealer's complete name.

This is your plan of operations as outlined on your approval of Dealer Lines.

This line must be completed without exception. If the dealer provides his own insurance, be sure to insert the expiration date.

By entering the year here, it will not be necessary to show it after each date.

Enter the date that funds were disbursed.

Enter the date that General Ledger entries were made.

Show the number assigned to each new note, for reference.

As soon as you have computed a dealer's monthly interest charge, enter the amount of the charge. When the dealer's check is received, enter the date.

Show the dealer's complete street and town address.

Show the original flat charges and, after preparing the Wholesale Curtailment Sheet for a dealer, show the amount of the renewal charge. When the dealer's check is received, enter the date.

All Wholesale purchases are entered as debits, and all payments on the principal are entered as credits, with the balance brought forward after each day's entries. The balances serve as the basis for computing the dealer's average outstanding each month for interest calculation.

Indicate the number of items covered by each new note. This information is important for two reasons. (1) As a check against the number of retail items purchased to see if we are being offered all of the dealer's retail business and (2) as a means of our assisting the dealer in keeping his inventory within reasonable levels.

(a) On 12-12 funds were disbursed for note #7030 and the papers were sent to the dealer for his signature.
(b) On 12-20 the signed papers were received, with the dealer's check for the flat charges and down-payment, and General Ledger Entries were made.
(c) On 12-15 a "Free" period expired and $1,270.35 was transferred from "Free Floorplan." This amount was shown as a credit on the "Free Floorplan" control. No General Ledger Entry was necessary.
(d) On 12-23 the dealer's check was received as payment for sold merchandise.
(e) On 12-26 the wholesale interest statement was prepared with interest computed for $37.85.
(f) On 1-3-61 the dealer's check in payment of the interest was received.
(g) On 1-3- the dealer's check for $1,140.55 curtailment and $16.72 renewal charges was received.
(h) On 1-4 funds were disbursed for notes #8062 and #8063. The absence of a date on the "Ore. Ind." column indicates that the signed papers have not been received. Likewise, the absence of a "Date Paid" by the flat charges indicates that the dealer's check has not been received.
(i) Interest of $116.48 was computed thru 1-25 and the absence of a "Date Paid" indicates that the dealer's check has not been received. (The sample Wholesale Interest Statement on the bulletin "ACCOUNTING - WHOLESALE - INTEREST BILLING," shows how the $116.48 was computed, using the balances on this Control Sheet.)

The total of the balances on each dealer's Ledger Sheets should agree with the balance on his Control Sheet.

To reconcile the balances on the individual dealer controls with the Total Control, list the balances and debit any notes which are not dated to the "Ore. Ind." column. (See "a" above.)

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - BANKRUPTCY & CHAPTER XIII Dated 2-12-68

The number of personal bankruptcies continues to increase. This increase is caused by deficiency judgments, collection pressure, poor money management, decrease in income, marital difficulty, and poor credit control, due to over-lending and incomplete investigation. Bankruptcies require special handling to be certain that all collection possibilities are considered. This bulletin does not attempt to cover all of the complexities of Bankruptcy law, but is intended to give a basic understanding of procedures that will help in assisting our attorney and in salvaging our loan wherever possible.

DEFINITION

Bankruptcy is a legal proceeding, whereby an insolvent person, partnership, or corporation may file a petition or a petition may be filed by creditors in U. S. Court, asking the Court to take all pledged assets and distribute to secured creditors and distribute the remaining eligible unpledged assets among all creditors and discharge the debtor from his obligations. The debtor is restricted to bankruptcy once every six years. Insolvency in bankruptcy is defined from a balance sheet concept, namely that the debtor's liabilities exceed assets, and not that the bankrupt must be totally without assets.

TYPES OF PETITIONS

I. The voluntary petition is filed by the debtor and includes the following items:

   A. Petition filed with the clerk of the District Court.

   B. A complete schedule of all debts and assets.

   C. Filing of a "Statement of Affairs", which asks a series of questions answered by the bankrupt under oath relative to his past financial operations.

   D. The Court probably will issue an order restraining any further creditors' action against the bankrupt. Whether such an order is issued or not, the debtor's property is subject to control by the Bankruptcy Court, and we will have to deal with the Court or its appointed trustee at the outset. This applies to all creditors.

   E. On filing the petition, the debtor is adjudicated a bankrupt. Adjudicated in this sense is a technical legal term, and does not mean the final determination of the issue since the debtor is not discharged from bankruptcy until a creditor's meeting is held. The matter is then turned over to the referee in bankruptcy, a special officer of the court. This process is almost automatic, since the referee has no discretion to decide whether or not a bankruptcy is necessary, equitable, or the best solution to the debtor's financial difficulties.

II. The other type of bankruptcy petition is the involuntary petition. This petition may be filed by one or more creditors, usually facilitated by some action of the debtor which enables the creditors to file the petition, such as:

A. Concealment of property, for example by a fraudulent transfer to another.

B. Preferring a creditor.

C. Attachment of property by another creditor.

D. General assignment for the benefit of the creditors.

E. Permitting a receiver to be appointed.

F. Admission of inability to pay debts.

NOTIFICATION

We usually learn of a bankruptcy in one of three ways: (1) the customer advises us of his action, (2) through trade reports, or (3) from the Referee in Bankruptcy sending a notice of bankruptcy and first meeting of creditors. ANY FORM OF NOTICE TO THE CREDITOR IS SUFFICIENT LEGAL NOTICE.

CUSTOMER CONTACT

Page 3 shows a copy of the restraining order that accompanies a notice of bankruptcy. Paragraphs 3 and 5 make clear that harassment by telephone violates this order. Our position is that a simple telephone contact, conducted with courtesy, for the sole purpose of asking the customer if he intends to reassume, is not harassment. Under no circumstances are we allowed to try to collect the debt or badger the bankrupt in any way. If the customer has any objection at all, we must terminate the conversation, and make no further direct contacts. If the bankrupt refers us to his attorney, we should contact his attorney and carry on any further conversation prior to the first meeting of creditors with that attorney. Many of our customers actually do reassume their obligations with us, and they don't mind expressing this intention. This is all we need to know to guide our actions. This has been our policy over the years - we do not feel it violates the intent of the law, and we have had no serious problems to arise from such handling.

Contacts with the bankrupt prior to the first meeting of creditors should not be made in writing. Remember that each day's delay lessens the chances that our customer will agree to reassume.

Always indicate in the collection folder the results of contacts with the bankrupt which will assist the Recovery Officer in the event of charge-off.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF GEORGIA
ATLANTA DIVISION

IN THE MATTER OF: THE BANKRUPT, AND THE BANKRUPTCY NAMED IN THE ENCLOSED NOTICE:

It appearing that the above named has been adjudged a bankrupt and that his bankruptcy proceeding is now pending and that it is necessary to preserve the present status of said bankruptcy with respect to all of his creditors and as to the property and other assets of the bankrupt until the first Meeting of Creditors is held, it is accordingly

CONSIDERED AND ORDERED that until further order of this Court all creditors and other parties hereto are temporarily restrained and enjoined from the institution and prosecution of foreclosure actions, suits, seizures and legal actions of any kind against the bankrupt herein, or against any property owned by or in the possession of said bankrupt including the institution and prosecution of garnishment proceedings and the receipt by any creditor of any sums of money impounded or withheld in any garnishment proceeding, except as allowed by an order of this Court.

All creditors and other parties hereto are further restrained from harassing the bankrupt or any member of his family by contacting the bankrupt personally, by telephone or otherwise and from contacting the employer of the bankrupt with respect to any debt owing by the bankrupt to any creditor until the First Meeting of Creditors has been held herein.

FURTHER ORDERED that the bankrupt herein is hereby restrained and enjoined from transferring, secreting or encumbering any of his property or other assets and from reassuming any obligations until the first meeting of creditors in this proceeding has been held and it is

FURTHER ORDERED that the parties restrained hereby show cause before this Court at the time and place of the First Meeting of Creditors herein why a temporary injunction should not issue restraining all creditors and other parties from harassing the bankrupt or any member of his family by telephone, personally or otherwise, and from contacting the employer of the bankrupt with respect to any debt owing by the bankrupt to any creditor during the pendency of this proceeding. It is FURTHER ORDERED that the creditors of the bankrupt show cause before this Court at the time and place of the First Meeting of Creditors why an Order should not be entered staying the institution or prosecution of civil actions of any kind or nature against the bankrupt until such time as a discharge has been granted or denied to the bankrupt.

Dated at Atlanta, Georgia, as of the date of accompanying notice.

REFEREE IN BANKRUPTCY

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - BANKRUPTCY & CHAPTER XIII Dated 2-12-68

CREDITORS' MEETING

After the filing of the bankruptcy petition, a meeting of creditors is held to afford creditors' attorneys an opportunity to question the bankrupt concerning his assets. If this is an asset case, the referee appoints a trustee to dispose of the assets.

As a practical matter, most personal bankruptcies are "no asset" cases. This is because most of the property the bankrupt holds is either pledged under Conditional Sales Contract, or chattel mortgage with the remaining personal property set off as exempt under state law, such as the Georgia Homestead Exemption is to protect a portion of the debtor's personal property from any attachment by creditors. Thus, the debtor is not made a complete pauper.

PROCEDURES

UPON NOTICE OF FILING OF BANKRUPTCY, THE FOLLOWING THREE STEPS SHOULD ALWAYS BE TAKEN: (These three steps are the same for any type of bankruptcy).

I. Verify that the customer is actually bankrupt unless we have received a notice from the court. Verification should be made by contacting the customer's attorney, or phoning the office of the Referee in Bankruptcy.

II. Gather all the documents and memoranda relative to the bankrupt's debt. This includes calling CIF, and all locations necessary to get the complete debt picture.

III. In Atlanta, call the Recovery Officer, unless the notice was sent from Recovery Department. This will be apparent if Central Recovery's stamp appears on the copy of the notice. Outside Atlanta, Call the Senior Consumer Credit Officer in your city.

STRAIGHT BANKRUPTCY

WHERE UNSECURED CREDIT ON A STRAIGHT BANKRUPT IS INVOLVED, THE FOLLOWING ADDITIONAL STEPS SHOULD BE TAKEN:

I. Contact the customer to ask about his intention to reassume. In all unsecured cases, we should ascertain whether the customer intends to reassume our debt.
   A. If he is uncertain about the matter, follow-up may be made at a later time agreed by both parties.
   B. If customer agrees to reassume, secure a signed reassumption note.
   C. If customer does not wish to reassume, (1) contact Recovery Officer to determine value of filing claim, (2) submit for charge-off.

WHERE SECURED CREDIT ON A STRAIGHT BANKRUPT IN INVOLVED, THE FOLLOWING ADDITIONAL STEPS SHOULD BE TAKEN:

I. Call the Recovery Officer.
II. Determine in this conversation whether we want a reassumption or recovery of the collateral.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - BANKRUPTCY & CHAPTER XIII Dated 2-12-68

NOTE: Prior to the first meeting of creditors, the bankrupt may voluntarily release the collateral to us. Remember that we should always obtain a receipt for mortgaged property.

At the first meeting of creditors, the bankrupt has one of two choices concerning collateral. Either the bankrupt may publicly declare that he reassumes his debt, or the creditor is allowed to petition the court for a reclamation and release of the collateral. If the value of the collateral exceeds our debt, the trustee may wish to retain the collateral for sale and liquidate our debt from the sale of the collateral.

III. Arrange for collateral to be recovered or reassumption notes to be signed IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE HEARING AT THE CREDITORS MEETING, if this was predetermined as our desired course of action.

If for any reason the bankrupt refuses to release the collateral, other action is available to us. Discuss this situation with your Recovery Officer.

CHAPTER XIII - "WAGE EARNERS"

Since 1938, a less drastic form of bankruptcy has been available to the financially embarrassed debtor. Chapter XIII, also known as the Wage Earners Plan, may be filed by any person whose principal income is derived from wages or salaries. The purpose of this plan is to effect a compromise reduction in debt and/or extension of time for payment of debts, out of future earnings or wages for a period of thirty-six months. Upon confirmation of the plan by all secured creditors and a majority of unsecured creditors, it becomes binding on all parties.

Upon acceptance of the plan by the requisite number of creditors, the court confirms the plan and appoints a trustee to administer the funds. The trustee actually takes jurisdiction of the debtor's future earnings until he is discharged. If the debtor then pays money to creditors outside of the Wage Earners Plan, the trustee can demand that the money be paid to him for equal distribution to other creditors. If the trustee ceases to remit funds, the status of our loan should be determined by contacting the trustee.

The debtor is ordered not to incur further debt so long as he is in this plan. This should keep the overload from getting even worse.

UNSECURED CREDIT

It is our policy to accept a Wage Earner Plan for all unsecured debt. After taking the three steps common to all bankrupt account procedures outlined on page 4, these steps should be taken on an unsecured Wage Earner Plan:

I. File a written proof of the claim to serve as our acceptance of the plan.
II. Place a copy of the proof of claim in the customer's folder.
III. Submit for charge-off.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - BANKRUPTCY & CHAPTER XIII - Dated 2/12/68

SECURED CREDIT

It is our policy to accept all Wage Earners Plans for secured obligations where the amount of repayment is sufficient to offset depreciation of the collateral. In cases where payments are too small to offset depreciation, confer with the Recovery Officer as to course of action. We will recover the collateral in most of these instances.

There will be some cases, however, where the recovery of collateral (resulting in a deficiency balance)will be secondary to the advisability of going along with the plan to receive the full amount of the debt. If a Chapter XIII is not confirmed, the case generally goes into straight bankruptcy and our position should be judged accordingly. To accept (confirm) the Plan for secured debt, take the three steps common to all bankrupt account procedures outlined on page 4, and:

I. File a written proof of claim to serve as our acceptance of the Plan.
II. Place a copy of the proof of claim in the customer's folder.
III. Free extend so the next payment will be due five months after the date of first meeting of creditors.

DEALER LIABILITY

Certain Sales Finance and CAS accounts are on recourse to dealers. Generally, upon notification of bankruptcy, these accounts should be charged back immediately to the dealer, with the bankruptcy notice accompanying the "charge-back" letter. Because of widely varying dealer agreements and considerations, however, this should not be done automatically, but only after departmental management's review and concurrence.

TRUSTEE'S RIGHTS

The trustee may set aside liens obtained within four months of the petition in bankruptcy, provided that at the time the bankrupt was insolvent. In addition, the trustee has a duty to set aside any security interest which is vulnerable to attack for reasons such as fraud, lack of value, or failure to file. Unless the bank filing policy dictates otherwise, we must always perfect our lien as required by the Uniform Commercial Code. Again, the security taken should be fully and accurately described in the filing statement to avoid all possibility of another lienholder or the trustee taking precedence to the property.

EMPLOYMENT OF ATTORNEY

Bankruptcy is a highly technical legal subject. Despite the fact that an attorney is often needed, many questions occur in bankruptcy proceedings which can be handled by our Recovery Officer, or by the senior consumer loan officer in the area. These men should be consulted first, rather than automatically involving an attorney.

Here are some situations where employment of an attorney is advisable:

A. Only attorneys may question the bankrupt at the first meeting of creditors. Thus, a bank representative attending the first creditors' meeting would get very little information with the exception of learning who is appointed trustee, if one is appointed, and gathering information from listening to other creditors' attorneys examination of the bankrupt. However, if fraud is suspected, an attorney should be used to question the bankrupt at the hearing.

B. An attorney should be employed where there is a trustee's action to set aside a bank claim to its security.

C. An attorney should be employed where the bankrupt attempts to resist our right to reclaim collateral.

It is not suggested that anyone act as his own attorney. After consultation with your Recovery Officer, or senior consumer credit officer, if we determine that it is in the bank's interest to raise an issue about the bankruptcy, then consult an attorney. This is often a matter of judgment, depending on the individual fact situation.

RIGHT OF SET-OFF

Normally, our notes give us a right of set-off of bank accounts, or other property in the hands of the bank, when in existence prior to the date of the petition in bankruptcy. Where that right exists, we may do the following:

A. Set off bank balances on deposits for any portion of the debt which can be set off. This applies to any unsecured debt which we may have.

B. Set off unsecured debt against any secured transactions in which we have collateral in excess of the note amount. For example, suppose a customer bankrupts against a $500 automobile loan secured by an auto worth $750, and has a CAS balance of $300. We should set off the $250 coverage in the value of our collateral against the unsecured CAS line. In any instances where the value of our collateral exceeds the amount of our loan, the trustee in bankruptcy has a right to reclaim the collateral for any of the excess amount.

DEBT COUNSELING SERVICE

Bankruptcies represent a small portion of our collection problems. However, it is necessary to be able to deal with the problem effectively as it occurs. In counseling with a debtor considering this step, we should always recommend a Debt Counseling Service, if available. Otherwise, it would be better from our standpoint if the debtor considers Chapter XIII, rather than straight bankruptcy, since we may be able to recover all or a part of our debt under this method. See LENDING GENERAL-CONSUMER CREDIT COUNSELING SERVICE.

CHARGE-OFFS

Bankrupts and Chapter XIII Wage Earner Plan accounts will be charged off at the earliest practical date after the first meeting of creditors. Bankruptcy claims should be filed prior to charge-off, and a copy of the claim should be placed in the customer's file. There will be some instances in which we will continue carrying an account after bankruptcy has been filed. These will be where we are well secured, and a proper reassumption has been made, and where the proposed payment schedule very nearly approximates the existing terms.

REASSUMPTION

A bankrupt may reassume liability for his debts. Occasionally a customer who is bankrupt against a specific debt feels morally obligated to the bank to repay. After the adjudication date, the debt may be reassumed as shown:

SITUATION	METHOD OF REASSUMPTION
No change in terms or collateral:	Get Reassumption Agreement (19-2010) signed. This allows us to retain our lien priority.
Change in terms or collateral:	Sign a new note. In addition to signing the new note, the borrower should sign the following statement typed on the bank of the new note. "This note reaffirms and reassumes my debt of like amount with the Citizens and Southern National Bank as listed in my bankruptcy petition number _____ dated _____. WITNESS: _____ _____ Signature DATE _____
Charge Account Service:	Either of above methods, although the signing of a note is preferred.

REASSUMPTION AGREEMENT (19-2010)

This agreement can be used for any Retail Banking indebtedness on which reassumption is desired. Complete it in duplicate and give the carbon copy to the customer. Attach the original to the original note. A completed example is shown on page 9.

PROOF OF CLAIM

Creditors may prove their claims of indebtedness by filing a "proof of claim", which lists the basis of the debt, and any security involved. It is not necessary to employ an attorney to complete a proof of claim. The last two pages of this bulletin show completed proof of claim forms that accurately describe the type security interest involved. While we have a legal right to file a written proof of claim within six months after the first meeting of creditors, referees normally expect claims to be filed within two months after the first meeting of creditors. The claim should be filed along with a copy of the note signed by the customer. A copy of this claim should be placed in the customer's file.

REASSUMPTION AGREEMENT

WHEREAS, I, George Beatnot, have filed my petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, Atlanta, Ga. the same being Case No. 23598.

WHEREAS, I listed Citizens and Southern Financial Corp., as a creditor. the evidence of debt being a Cond.Sale Contract executed on February 8, 19 70, and having an outstanding balance thereon of $1440.00.

This note reaffirms and reassumes my debt of like amount with Citizens and Southern Financial Corp. as listed in my bankruptcy petition number 23598 dated July 10, 1970.

NEW BULLETIN

The purpose of this bulletin is to introduce the Collection Summary Sheet as a new collection tool. It will help improve efficiency by providing a more organized and systematic basis for recording the details of personal followup. A copy is shown below.

It should be used in conjunction with the ledger card, or computer collection card when that card is not retained in the credit file. It should also be used to supplement the computer collection card when more space is needed. The form, 19-1450, may be ordered from the Purchasing Department in the usual manner.

The purpose of the Collection Card is to provide an individual summary of each past due loan, to be used in collection follow-up. As past due loans enter the personal follow-up stage, Collection Cards are prepared and forwarded to the branches and sales finance departments. Collection Cards are prepared four times during the month. (Around the 1st and on the 10th, 17th and 24th of the month.) Once a Collection Card has been prepared for a loan, another card will not be prepared until after the loan becomes current, then again past due.

Collection Cards are prepared under the conditions listed below:

1. In most instances the Past Due Notice is prepared on the 10th day of delinquency. If a loan remains past due, the Collection Card is prepared when the loan becomes 17 days past due.

2. A Past Due Notice is not prepared when any of the NOTICE EXCEPTIONS exist. For these loans, the Collection Card is prepared on the 10th day of delinquency. (See COLLECTIONS-NOTICES.)

3. When a loan becomes one day or more past due because of a debit to the balance, a Collection Card is prepared when Collection Cards are next produced.

VERIFICATION OF COLLECTION CARDS

All Collection Cards on loans past due 30 days or more should be checked against the Past Due List monthly to insure that a card exists for these 30-day and over month-end delinquencies.

COLLECTION CARD FILE

Each man handling past-due accounts should have a collection card file with 1-31 day dividers. As followup dates are determined, cards are filed under the date on which the next action is to be taken.

USE OF FOLDERS

To work accounts effectively, the collection man must know the background of each account (original application and investigation)--nature of past collection efforts. Both the collection card and the folder are needed for the desired quality of action. The collection steno should use the incoming new collection cards and the "set-up" collection cards to pull the related folders. Folders and collection cards should be kept in the same order to expedite handling by the collection man. After followup, folders should be refiled promptly.

LOANS REFERRED TO OTHER BANKS

When a loan is referred to an out of town bank for collection assistance, the name of the bank should be entered in the lower right portion of the Collection Card, along with the date. An early follow-up date should be set to insure that we will inform the bank of any payments received on the loan.

REPOSSESSIONS

When collateral is repossessed, it should be so noted on the Collection Card, along with the date. The loan should also be coded "Repossession." This is done on a Master Record Change.

LOANS ASSIGNED TO OUTSIDE ADJUSTERS (SALES FINANCE)

If a copying machine is available, a copy of the Collection Card should be made and given to the adjuster. If this is not possible, prepare copies manually.

UPDATING CARDS

Each day the Collection Cards set for follow-up that day should be checked for change of status before the customers are contacted. Try to avoid updating between 9:00 A.M. and 2:00 P.M., when large numbers of "immediate priority" inquiries are made.

Use the Audio system for updating. Two inquiry codes may be used - 208 and 209. OUTSIDE ATLANTA, UPDATING IS DONE ON VIDEO.
Code 208 is the "Balance - Late Charge" inquiry. The information given, in sequence, is Account Number, Balance, and Late Charge Due.

Code 209 is the "Status" inquiry. The information given, in sequence, is Account Number, Due Date, Payment Amount, Partial Amount Due, and Last Entry Date.

Here is an example of the response to Inquiry Code 208, "Balance-Late Charge". The numbers in parentheses refer to the instructions for updating the Collection Card which follow the example.

INQUIRY CODE 208 RESPONSE

(1)	ACCOUNT NUMBER	01 06 00027
(2)	BALANCE	2 543.20
(3)	LATE CHARGE DUE	3.74

(1) Listen carefully to the account number as it is given to verify that it is identical to the account number on the Collection Card.

(2) As the balance is given, compare it with the balance shown on the Collection Card. If the balance is the same, nothing is written at this point. If different, write in the new figure below the old balance figure. Here is an example of a balance change:

"BALANCE two four six eight dollars four zero cents"

~~2 543 20~~	3 74	3	10-08-70	74 80
2 468 40		4	11-08-70	74 80
		5	12-08-70	74 80

E1114

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - COLLECTION CARDS - Dated 6/15/70

(3) As the late charge is given, compare it with the late charge due shown on the Collection Card. If no change, make no change. If different, write in the new figure below the old figure, as shown:

"LATE CHARGE DUE seven dollars four eight cents"

LOAN BALANCE	LATE CHG. INCLUDED		DATE DUE	SCHEDULED PMT	PARTIAL AMT DUE	DATE PAID
~~2 543 20~~	~~3 74~~	3	10-08-70	74 80
2 468 40	7 48	4	11-08-70	74 80
		5	12-08-70	74 80

If the balance has not changed, and the late charge amount is correct, all remaining information on the Collection Card is still correct and ready for collection followup. It will not be necessary to use another Inquiry Code.

If the balance has changed, you can sometimes determine at a glance whether the change was sufficient to pay up to date, thereby removing it from personal follow-up status. If the change did accomplish this, the Collection Card can be destroyed unless it contains collection followup information that should be filed in the customer's credit folder. EXCEPTION: If another payment will mature in 5 days or less, the account should normally be contacted by letter, acknowledging the payment received and reminding the customer of the payment coming due and any late charges remaining due; then the card may be destroyed.

If the balance has changed, and you need more information, use Inquiry Code 209, Status. The information given, in sequence, is Account Number, Due Date, Payment Amount, Partial Amount Due, and Last Entry Date.

Here is an example of the response to Inquiry Code 209, Status. The numbers in parentheses refer to the instructions for updating the Collection Card which follow the example:

INQUIRY CODE 209 RESPONSE

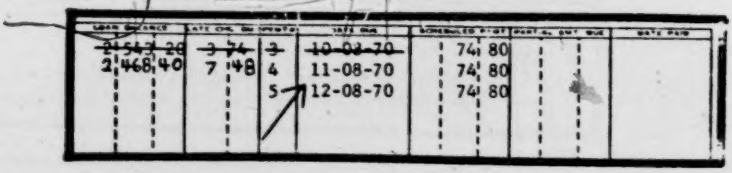
(1)	ACCOUNT NUMBER	01 06 00027
(2)	DUE DATE	11-08-70
(3)	PAYMENT AMOUNT	74.80
(4)	LAST ENTRY DATE	11-05-70

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - COLLECTION CARDS - Dated 6/15/70

(1) Listen carefully to the account number as it is given to verify that it is identical to the account number on the Collection Card.

(2) As the due date is given, compare it with the due date shown on the Collection Card. Change it to the new due date, or if due date hasn't changed, leave it alone. Here is an example:

"DUE DATE one one eight seven zero"



~~2 54 7 20~~	~~3 74~~	~~3~~	~~10-08-70~~	74	80
2 468 40	7 48	4	11-08-70	74	80
		5	12-08-70	74	80

(3) The payment amount should be identical to your Collection Card payment amount.

(4) Record this date in the Date Paid column.

IMPORTANT

IF THE DATE OF THE LAST ENTRY SHOWS THAT ANOTHER PAYMENT CAME DUE BEFORE THE PREVIOUS PAYMENT WAS POSTED, THE LOAN REMAINS PAST DUE. WHEN THIS IS THE CASE, THE COLLECTION CARD MUST BE RETAINED SINCE ANOTHER COLLECTION CARD WILL NOT BE PREPARED FOR THIS LOAN UNTIL IT IS PAID UP TO DATE AND AGAIN BECOMES PAST DUE. REMEMBER, IF A PAYMENT IS POSTED ON THE DUE DATE OR AFTER THE DUE DATE OF A SECOND PAST DUE PAYMENT, THE LOAN IS CONSIDERED STILL PAST DUE.

If necessary at this point, you can refer to the Daily Transactions Journal of the same date as Last Entry Date to get more information.

FOLLOWUP

After all Collection Cards have been checked and updated, they should be separated into two groups:

1. Those which remain past due.
2. Those which are now current.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - COLLECTION CARD - Dated 6/15/70

The Collection Cards which remain past due are the customers to be contacted today. As the customers are contacted, new follow-up dates are assigned and the cards filed by follow-up date.

Those loans which are now current, but have a payment maturing in 5 days or less, should normally be contacted by letter (including standard form letters) acknowledging the payment received and reminding the customer of the payment coming due and any late charge remaining due. After this is done, the Collection Cards representing loans which are now current may be thrown away, unless pertinent information has been recorded on a card. When this is the case, the card may be filed in the customer's credit folder.

After each contact with a customer the follow-up date for the next contact should be entered in pencil in the blank in the upper right corner of the Collection Card, and the card filed by follow-up date. Promises for payment should normally be followed one day after the day that the payment is to reach the bank. If a specific date was not determined (for example, a letter was sent to the customer) no more than 5 to 7 days should elapse before the next contact. In assigning follow-up dates, consideration should be given to the seriousness of the delinquency and the number of loans scheduled to be contacted on that day.

TOPIC NOTIFICATION SERVICE

NEW BULLETIN

Nearly all credit bureaus provide a multi-purpose service to their members - at a nominal cost - that should be exploited fully. The Credit Bureau of Atlanta calls it Notification Service. Other locations may call it Notice of Change, Derogatory Information Service, Locater Service, or some similar name.

The only cost to us is our time spent in filling out the form, unless new address or employment information is secured by the credit bureau. In that case, we are charged the price of a file report. Two advantages stand out clearly:

1. More effective collection results from locating skips will result in fewer skip losses.

2. Money will be collected on some of these several years after charge-off, since many skips "retrace" their steps over a period of time. These notification slips remain in credit bureau files for several years.

After prescribed skip-tracing routines are followed without success, this service should be used. (See COLLECTIONS - SKIPS - LOCATION OF).

The form shown below should be completed in duplicate - the original goes to the credit bureau, and the copy goes in the customer's file.

SUBJECT EMPLOYERS

TOPIC RIGHT TO CONTACT

 Date 12-18-61

Replaces Bulletin: "COLLECTIONS - EMPLOYERS" Dated 6-7-57

In a decision by the State Supreme Court, the right to contact a debtor's employer by a creditor was restored. This was a reversal of a previous decision in the case of Zerbst vs Taber - Reference (Ga. 96 Appeals 48). This ruling gives us a collection tool that can be most effective if properly used.

WHEN TO CONTACT THE EMPLOYER Care and tact must be exercised when it becomes necessary to contact an employer. We do not want to make a nuisance of ourselves, and we must preserve the good will of the employer.

Before contacting an employer, we should be fully aware of the reason for the delinquency for in many instances our customers do have valid reasons for being past due. To contact a debtor's employer without knowing why he is past due could prevent a satisfactory adjustment and possibly create a chronic collection problem.

If the account cannot be adjusted on a direct basis with the customer then his employer should be contacted. When an account falls in the categories listed below it indicates a need for calling the employer:

1. Unable to contact customer.
   a. No response is received to telephone calls.
   b. He fails to answer collection letters.
   c. Notices and letters are returned unclaimed.
   d. He has moved and his new address is unknown.
   e. The Outside Adjustor is unable to locate him.
   (Personnel files possibly contain names of relatives through whom a skip could be traced, see Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - SKIPS - LOCATION OF.)

2. Failure to fulfill promises.
   (Information from employer will help evaluate and appraise statements made by customers.)

3. Indifference - the customer has the means to pay but deliberately refuses to do so.

4. Chronic past dues.

APPROACH TO THE EMPLOYER A brief statement as to the purpose of the contact and the need for the employer's assistance is the best approach. In this statement we should emphasize the bank's desire to help his employee adjust the account on a friendly and practical basis. You should also point out that with his cooperation mutual benefits will be received by all concerned. We solve a collection problem and his employee being free of worry about the account should be able to give better work performance.

Most employers are interested in the welfare of their employees and will cooperate with the bank.

Replaces Bulletin: "COLLECTIONS - EMPLOYERS" Dated 6-7-57

WHOM TO CONTACT Our effectiveness will depend upon our talking or corresponding with the proper parties responsible for personnel. Normally, larger firms and all government agencies will have personnel managers. All contacts should be made with them for best results.

In smaller firms, the manager or owner should be contacted. With military personnel, collection correspondence should be directed to the customer's Commanding Officer. Information on handling military personnel is contained in the Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - MILITARY PERSONNEL - SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CIVIL RELIEF ACT, dated 10-27-61.

FOLLOWUP Once the initial contact with the employer is made, we must continue to keep him informed as to the status of the account. Copies of correspondence, along with any pertinent information developed during the course of handling, should go to him. Our failure to keep the employer informed could lead to an embarrassing situation if it becomes necessary to contact him on future installments that go past due.

SUBJECT EXTENSIONS

TOPIC

 Date 12-27-67

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - EXTENSIONS Dated 5-11-62

For many years we have stressed that the key to successful adjustment of past-due accounts is contingent upon a complete understanding of the delinquent customer's problems and his reasons for being past-due. Frequently a customer is temporarily past-due because of circumstances beyond his control. In such cases, it is our responsibility to analyze completely the customer's problem and be willing to grant an extension of the loan if curcumstances justify such action.

Extensions are not always used in conjunction with a past-due account. Rather, there are any number of occasions when an extension plays a vital part in meeting the full financial needs of the customer. For example, the customer may be current and find that due to unexpected expenses or other financial difficulties he cannot pay his next installment. To grant an extension in such cases not only helps the customer overcome his current financial difficulties, but also solves what could represent a potential collection problem.

At times the extension may be the means for providing the customer with needed funds rather than requiring him to seek an additional loan or rework his present note. While this does not actually entail advancing new money, it does permit the customer use of the normal monthly payment(s). Extensions of this type may be rare; nevertheless, they should be considered in an effort to provide maximum service to the customer.

Our basic policy, therefore, is to make extensions whenever conditions warrant, whether the account is past-due or not. Extensions should never be made for the sole purpose of removing the loan from a past-due category. Extensions must always be made as an attempted solution to a customer's problem.

CREDIT REQUIREMENT

Before an extension can be granted, it must be established by an analysis of the account that the financial difficulties experienced by the customer are of a temporary nature and that time will prove to be the solution to the problem. Some degree of re-investigation may be necessary. The individual making the decision to grant the extension must take into consideration the following factors.

1. Customer's sufficiency of income to meet payments on the new terms.
2. Customer's willingness to pay in accordance with the terms of the proposed extension.
3. On secured transactions - the amount of equity and availability of the collateral.

A request for an extension in the very early stages of a contract is a red flag. In the majority of cases, we expect the customer to have paid enough payments on the account to establish a paying pattern. This serves as a partial basis for our decision to allow the extension.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - EXTENSIONS Dated 5-11-62

CHANGE OF DUE DATE

It is permissible to adjust the due date for the customer's convenience, up to 15 days without charging a fee. This is not an extension. You may find it practical to change a due date several days in conjunction with an extension. The most critical payment after an extension is the first one, so the due date must be closely related to the customer's payday, and followup should be accelerated - the same as if it were the first payment on a loan.

EXTENSION FEES

Original interest charges on installment loans are predicated on a predetermined repayment schedule. Therefore, when granting an extension, the customer receives the benefits of the funds for a longer period of time than that for which he was originally charged. To compensate for the use of these funds during the periods of extension, it is necessary to charge the customer a fee. The normal charge is 1% of the unpaid balance, at the time of the extension, for each 30 days extended - with a minimum charge of $2.00 on loans to individuals.

NO EXTENSION SHOULD BE MADE UNLESS AND UNTIL THE EXTENSION FEE IS COLLECTED. ANY LATE CHARGES DUE SHOULD BE COLLECTED AT THIS TIME ALSO. Payment on the account should be obtained if the extension is for more than one month. One good guideline is, "The more an account is delinquent, the more important it is that some reduction of the balance be made."

On Small Business transactions, the fees are to be computed in the same manner except in those cases where the original charges were based on simple interest factors. On these transactions the charge is determined by applying the original interest factor to the unpaid balance for each 30 days to be extended. On seasonal farm paper, the extension fee should be computed on the appropriate seasonal rate chart. It is also necessary to add to this charge on seasonal farm contracts the cost for additional coverage where needed (See Bulletin: INSURANCE - FARM EQUIPMENT).

CREDITING FEES TO THE GENERAL LEDGER

All extension fees are credited to the General Ledger account Interest and Discount, Installment Loans - Individual or Small Business, as the case may be. The credit ticket shows the customer's name, account number, and the number of months the loan has been extended. A double credit ticket is used, the original copy being run into the block (used by the teller in balancing at the end of the day) and the second copy going to the Central Billing Department for accrual pruposes. (See Bulletin: ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - GENERAL LEDGER ACCOUNT.)

EFFECT ON INSURANCE

An extension has no effect on any credit life, disability, and property (fire and theft) insurance placed on the loan at inception. No additional charge need be collected and no additional accounting is necessary. (Exception - Seasonal farm

Replaces Page 3 of Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - EXTENSIONS Dated 12-27-69

In any transaction in which an insurance policy has been secured and placed in the customer's file, such as on an automobile, an extension may cause the term of the contract to be longer than the term of the insurance. While in most such instances, this could result in our being unprotected for only the final month or two of the contract, the lending officer should be aware that the situation exists. Then, related to the risk factors involved, a decision can be made regarding further followup for insurance coverage.

BALLOON NOTES AND IRREGULAR PAYMENT CONTRACTS

Irregular payment arrangements and balloon notes present special problems. An extension could represent a significant strerching of terms. Instead of our exposure of, say, one or two regular payments of a 36-month contract, a two month extension of a balloon note contract might result in a $1,200 "balloon" that is uninsured for two months if we fail to take steps to remain insured. More than usual care must be taken when considering extensions on "unusual terms" contracts. A rework may well be a better solution than an extension in many of these cases.

INDORSERS AND COMAKERS

Generally, indorsers and comakers should be contacted to discuss the proposed extension and to secure their approval.

RECOURSE

Although our dealer agreements allow us the right to extend and/or revise contract terms without affecting dealer liability, we should advise the dealer of unusually long extensions.

CHANGES ON LEDGER CARD

In order to show that a loan has been extended on the ledger card, the due dates are changed to reflect the additional months the loan is to run. This is done by marking (with ink) through the repayment dates shown on the ledger card and inserting the new dates for payment.

On the reverse side of the ledger card spaces are provided for recording the extension fees, number of additional months the loan will run, and initials of the approving officer. The date the front of the ledger card is changed is to be entered in the "date made" column and the date the extension fee is collected is to be entered in the "date paid" column.

A written memorandum relating the facts concerning the adjustment should be prepared for the customer file. Such information is required in the event further follow-up becomes necessary.

CHANGES IN COUPON BOOK

It is not always possible to make changes in the customer's coupon book to show the extension. However, if the customer does have his coupon book with him at the time the loan is extended, the individual making the extension should coupons to reflect the same dates as shown on the ledger card. If the customer does not have the coupon book with him or if the extension is made by mail, you may advise him to make the necessary changes himself.

NOTICE OF EXTENSION

N E W Federal law (Regulation Z) requires us to give the customer a notice of the extension. Form 19-1400 is to be used for this purpose. The original is for the customer. (A copy of the Notice of Extension need be sent only to a primary customer). The file copy has additional space on it for entry of reason, date made, date paid, and approval initials.. This is to be retained in the customer's file for two years. Sample is shown below.

Collection cases referred to C&S by other banks, under the reciprocal arrangement described in our bulletin - COLLECTIONS-FOREIGN CLAIMS-REFERRAL TO OTHER BANKS - should receive priority in handling. In addition to giving the best possible collection service, other factors are involved in handling "Foreign Claims" (including other C&S offices).

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

All claims should be acknowledged the same day received, telling the originating bank how soon they may expect a report. If the claim can be worked the same day and a report given - so much the better - but do acknowledge promptly.

_____ Customer's Name

Your request for collection assistance on the above named customer's account has been received by this department today. Immediate attention will be given to this request and you will be notified as quickly as possible of any and all progress.

BEFORE ATTEMPTING COLLECTION

1. Check your files for possible experience (in Atlanta, check CIF). Frequently we find information already in file that will be helpful in collecting.
2. Prepare a folder in the same manner as folders are prepared on rejections. After your handling is concluded, file foreign claim folders in your regular files.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS-SKIPS-REFERRED BY OTHER BANKS-Dated 8-29-57

3. Enter on "Foreign Claim Log." As a means of control of service and to know how many claims are handled each month, each office should maintain a log showing, (1) name of debtor, (2) originating bank, (3) date received and (4) date concluded.

REPORT ALL COLLECTION EFFORTS

Report all collection efforts to the originating bank as you go along. In the absence of word from you, the originating bank will assume that you are doing nothing even though you may be doing a good job for them.

If an account has been brought up-to-date or you have taken all possible action, RETURN THE FILE. Let the originating bank know that your file is "closed" and you will be glad to handle again if needed.

CHARGES - EXPENSES

In line with our listing in the Installment Lending Directory, we accept the standard $10 fee for handling foreign claims plus out-of-pocket expenses. If situations develop involving unusual expense, such as paying a large repair bill to get possession of a car, clear with the originating bank first.

HOLD HARMLESS AGREEMENT

Before attempting a repossession, be certain to obtain a "Hold Harmless Agreement" from the bank making the referral to you. A sample of such an agreement is found in the lower left hand corner of our Summary of Account form (19-987). In instances where you receive the referral by phone and immediate repossession is requested, ask the bank to mail you written instructions and a "Hold Harmless Agreement". While there is never any question as to the integrity of the referring bank, legal complications could arise at the point of repossession which could require our having such an agreement for our own protection.

REPOSSESSIONS

If you repossess merchandise under instructions of another bank, report the condition together with bids received (time limit of each bid - if any) and your opinion whether the merchandise can be returned to the other bank economically. Do not dispose of such repossessions except on complete instructions from the bank and be sure that the costs and net balances are understood.

ACCOUNTING

Transmittal fees received should be credited to the General Ledger Account "OTHER INCOME".

N The Installment Credit Committee of the American Bankers Association
N publishes the Installment Lending Directory every two years. C&S orders them centrally and sends them to each office. Participating banks are listed in the directory alphabetically by states and cities. Also shown are codings of the various types of loans handled and the extent of collection facilities available to requesting banks. Before referring claims to banks listed in the Directory, read the preface carefully and select banks whose coded symbols indicate that they have the facilities to help you.

N An important change is that a $10.00 "transmittal fee" must now accompany each account that is referred. Any out-of-pocket expenses should also be charged to the referring bank, as in the past. The fee should help to equalize costs, and should discourage referral of small balance accounts, charge-offs accounts, and "fishing expeditions".

WHEN TO REFER

When the following conditions exist, you should generally refer an account for work:

1. Recent collection notices, letters, and long-distance phone calls have been unsuccessful, and
2. The Installment Lending Directory shows a bank that provides the type collection service you need, and
3. The account balance and likelihood of collection appear to justify the immediate $10 transmittal fee plus possible other out-of-pocket expenses.

Of course, any time an account is in an unusual risk situation that requires immediate personal contact, referral should be made.

CORRESPONDENT BANKS

In using the Installment Lending Directory, our Correspondent Bank relationships should be protected at all times. In referring claims in the southeastern area, the Officer-In-Charge of each Installment Loan Department is responsible for knowing the Correspondent Bank relationship involved before claims are referred. In any town where we have a correspondent bank, claims should be sent to that bank regardless of listing in the Installment Lending Directory.

CAS ACCOUNTS

A credit card item is considered to be an appropriate item to submit for collection under the reciprocal program. Please be certain that the bank you select has a credit card plan.

REFERRALS TO OTHER BANKS

Use the Summary of Account form (19-879) with the following letter:

"Mr. John Doe, who is now living in your community, has with us a delinquent account, details of which are outlined in the enclosed Summary of Account. We would appreciate your handling this account on the basis set out in the American Bankers Association Installment Lending Directory. The prescribed $10 transmittal fee is enclosed."

N

"We feel that our customer will cooperate with you. If you find that collection is impossible without referral to an attorney or collection agency, please write us your recommendation prior to taking such action."

"If at any time in the future you should have a collection problem in our area, we shall be glad to reciprocate."

C&S BANKS

The procedure is EXACTLY the same as in the preceding paragraph "REFERRALS TO OTHER BANKS," EXCEPT, don't pay the $10 fee.

ATLANTA AREA

All accounts in the metropolitan Atlanta area should be directed to:

Central Recovery Department (Telephone: 588-3188)
North Avenue - 9th Floor

OUTSIDE COLLECTION AGENCIES

Occasions may arise where you are unable to get collections handled in a given area. When this occurs, contact your Recovery Officer or Central Recovery Department, Atlanta, for the names of outside collection agencies, collection attorneys, finance adjustors, Automobile Recovery Bureaus, etc.

Generally accounts should be sent to attorneys for collection purposes only where the bank to which you have referred your account is unable to assist you and recommends a particular attorney to handle the collection service.

ACCOUNTING

Transmittal fees paid should be debited to the General Ledger Account "PROFESSIONAL SERVICES-OTHER".

SUBJECT LATE CHARGES

TOPIC

 Date 6/29/70

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - LATE CHARGES - Dated 8-23-67
Also includes : Material from INSTALLMENT LOAN AUTOMATION MANUAL

Legislation covering most Sales Finance transactions limits the maximum late charge we may collect. For uniformity, we have elected to standardize our present late charge schedule on all consumer installment transactions to conform to the maximum permitted by the Sales Finance legislation. This is consistent with the charge now being made by most installment lenders.

Although late charges will not eliminate past-due accounts, effective collection of late charges will reduce the number of those accounts by encouraging prompt payments and will partially offset the additional expenses incurred in collection follow-up.

CUSTOMER EDUCATION AND NOTIFICATION

Customer education regarding prompt payments and the necessity for late charges on late payments is the foundation of a PREVENTIVE program on past-due accounts. This is a continual process extending from the initial interview in which the customer requests a loan until the loan has been completely repaid. The loan interviewer should orient customers to the need for prompt payments and the nature of late charges. All our note and contract forms show the late charge assessment method in bold-face type, as required by Regulation Z. In addition, the customer's payment card book contains a note that states the advance notice nature of the payment cards, the advantages of making payments promptly, and the necessity for late charges.

Customer notification about paying late charges is positive and automatic. The computer automatically assesses late charges at the ten-day delinquency point, when the first notice is sent, showing it on the notice. It should be reflected in any later follow-up activity (mail, telephone, or personal contact) on the account. The amounts of late charge paid and amounts remaining due are accumulated on the record of each loan and can be determined by video or audio inquiry. In addition, these amounts are shown in the Transactions Journal, the Collection Card, the Closed Loan Card and the Past Due List.

LATE CHARGE COMPUTATION - RETAIL LOANS

Late Charge is calculated on the basis of 5% of the past due payment amount (or past due shortage), with a maximum charge of $5.00. For example; the scheduled payment amount is $80.00, but only a portion of this payment, $50.00, remains unpaid. The late charge on the tenth day of delinquency (due date plus 10 days) is $2.50, (5% of $50.00). If the next payment also becomes past due ten days, an additional late charge of $4.00 will be added (5% of $80.00).

LATE CHARGE COMPUTATION - BUSINESS LOANS

Term Credit loans will be assessed according to the example shown on page 2.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - LATE CHARGES - Dated 8-23-67
Also includes : Material from Installment Loan Automation Manual

PAYMENT AMOUNT	LATE CHARGE
Under $100	5%
$100 and over	(1) $5.00, OR, (2) 8% simple interest on the payment amount for each day past due, WHICHEVER IS GREATER Example: Payment of $1000 past due 10 days, 8% = $2.22, so, assess $5.00 minimum late charge. On 23rd day, 8% = $5.11, so that is the amount to charge. Once you have determined the daily interest (22¢ in this case), note it in the credit file, or write it on top of the ledger card (where cards are still used).

OUTSIDE CONTACTS

Past-due accounts that require outside follow-up contacts are very expensive to collect. Therefore, our late charges must be collected without exception. Any out-of-pocket expense incurred should be collected from the customer.

COLLECTION OF LATE CHARGES

It is important that both our customers and our own personnel understand that late charges are as much a part of our rate structure as the original interest. If we FAIL to collect late charges, our customer educational program on prompt payment is weakened; our additional collection expenses are not compensated for; and our practices are not consistent with our rights as specified in our loan agreements.

Obviously, a positive approach is essential to the collection of late charges. The collection of late charges is the responsibility of each person servicing the account to see that the total amount due (past due payment(s) and appropriate late charges) is collected.

All officers in charge of installment lending should vigorously support the collection of late charges. Active operational supervision and employee counseling on late charges will assist in accomplishing the desired results.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - LATE CHARGES - Dated 8-23-67
Also includes : Material from INSTALLMENT LOAN AUTOMATION MANUAL

Determine the effectiveness of the collection activity by reviewing the collection letters and outside adjustor's performance reports; by comparing on a monthly basis late charges collected in your office to those collected in offices of similar size, and by listening to telephone and face-to-face conversations with customers. If these sources of information indicate that the collection of late charges is deficient, corrective action should be taken immediately.

Inside and outside adjustors should not consider past-due payments and late charges as separate sums due on an account. They should solicit the gross amount due from customers. In addition to collecting late charges on the presently past-due payment(s), outside adjustors are expected to collect any and all late charges which have been previously billed and remain unpaid. If an account that has late charges outstanding is to be paid out before the scheduled date, deduct the amount of the unpaid late charges from the rebate due on the old note. If the rebate is not sufficient to cover the accrued late charges and the account is being reworked, add the remainder of the late charges to the principal on the new note or collect them in cash. If an extension is to be made on an account, be sure to collect the accrued late charges, as well as the regular extension fee.

If the late charges outstanding on a paid-in-full account are less than $5.00, return the note to the customer, as usual. If it has been paid in full, except for late charges of $5.00 or more, retain the note in the customer's file until payment has been received for those late charges. Send one letter to the customer informing him that his note will be returned to him upon his payment of the outstanding late charges. The letter may be worded as illustrated below.

> Thank you for your final payment on your account.
> This payment completes your scheduled installments; however, $ _____ has accrued as late charges because of late payments. When this amount is received, we will be happy to return your note marked "Paid".
>
> Your final settlement of this account will be appreciated so that we may close your bank loan satisfactorily.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS FOR TELLERS

All tellers should be familiar with our policy on late charges. They should determine the status of the account from the customer's coupon book.

1. If the payment coupon shows a due date that is current or less than 10 days past due, collect the payment amount.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - LATE CHARGES - Dated 8-25-67
Also includes : Material from INSTALLMENT LOAN AUTOMATION MANUAL

2. If the payment book shows a due date that is over 10 days and less than 25 days past due, collect the payment and the 5% late charge due on that payment. EXCEPTION: If this is the first payment, refer the customer to an installment loan officer.

3. If the payment book shows a due date that is 25 or more days past due, call and find out the exact status of the account. Then, if it does not fall into either (1) or (2), refer the customer to an installment loan officer.

WAIVERS ON LATE CHARGES

Late charges may be waived on a loan if it is in the best interest of the bank. This practice should be held to a minimum. If the late charge is to be waived, a Miscellaneous Change (19-1205) should be prepared to change the amount of the late charge due. In the example shown below, the late charge was $20.00. The new LATE CHARGE DUE amount is being changed to $5.00. (If all of the late charge is being waived, enter "00000.") Miscellaneous Changes are shown on the File Maintenance report.

SUBJECT LOSSES

TOPIC CHARGE-OFF POLICY

 Date 6/22/70

REPLACES BULLETIN: COLLECTIONS-LOSSES-CHARGE-OFF POLICY-Dated 2-1-68

This bulletin describes the categories of accounts that must be charged off, tells when to charge off, and states basic C&S policy on related points. Clear, consistent, and honest statement of good assets demands adherence to a realistic charge-off policy.

Charging off an account does not mean that we diminish our collection efforts, but does mean that we recognize a questionable asset. The transfer to a salvage officer in each city for specialized handling accomplishes collections on these accounts in a more practical, economical, and professional way than is otherwise possible.

REVIEW OF POTENTIAL LOSS REPORTS

Each month, senior management should review the Potential Loss Reports for Installment Loans and CAS to stimulate the collection of these accounts and to be sure that salvage does not remain in current receivables beyond prescribed limits.

WHAT AND WHEN TO CHARGE OFF

It is our policy to charge off as follows:

1. Any installment loan (including CAS accounts that have been put in the liquidating section on installment terms) that is four payments past due will be charged off by the end of the following calendar month.
2. CAS accounts with no payment activity for four past-due billings will be charged off by the end of the following calendar month.

IT IS IMPORTANT TO RECOGNIZE THAT A CAS ACCOUNT IS NOT PAST-DUE UNTIL THE SECOND BILLING WITHOUT PAYMENT, OR, IN THE CASE OF PARTIAL PAYMENTS, WHEN TWO MINIMUM PAYMENT AMOUNTS ARE DUE.

3. CAS accounts that are 6 months past-due on the minimum payment schedule will be charged off by the end of the following calendar month.
4. Any account that represents a known loss will be charged off at the next regular charge-off time.
5. Any account that represents an extended period of salvage will be charged off at the next regular charge-off time, regardless of past due status.

NOTE: Several factors will bear on this decision. Estimated collection cost versus probable results must be weighed. The question of best alternative use of collection time must be answered honestly. Whether the account has been worked in a timely manner and by seasoned people must be considered. Realistic judgment must be given to these questions to be able to make a good decision.

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS-LOSSES-CHARGE-OFF POLICY - Dated 2-1-68

Management has the discretionary authority to depart from any of these policies for good cause, which should be indicated on the Potential Loss Report.

CAS RESCHEDULES

Care must be exercised not to consider a reschedule of credit (where no payment was made) as a payment with respect to compliance with charge-off policy and procedure. All credits (not payments) to accounts will have to be considered individually to determine if they should be treated as payments with respect to charge-off policy compliance.

WHEN TO CHARGE OFF A REPOSSESSION

A repossession will be charged off:

1. After sale, ordinarily.
2. Prior to sale, when the probable amount of sale proceeds will not be a significant amount in relation to the balance.
3. When requested by examining authorities.

WHEN TO CHARGE OFF A BANKRUPT

Bankrupts and Chapter XIII Wage Earner Plan accounts will be charged off at the earliest practical date after the first meeting of creditors. Bankruptcy claims should be filed prior to charge-off, and a copy of the claim should be placed in the customer's file. There will be some instances in which we will continue carrying an account after bankruptcy has been filed. (See: COLLECTIONS - BANKRUPTCY & CHAPTER XIII, Page 3).

WHEN TO CHARGE OFF A DEBT COUNSELING ACCOUNT

An account placed in a debt counseling program is a questionable asset and must be charged off at the next regular charge-off time. While this will increase the dollar amount of losses, recovery is expected to offset this so that net losses will not be affected. Having Recovery Officers coordinate the paperwork on these accounts places this responsibility in more specialized hands and frees the operating locations' collection personnel for more fruitful work.

There will be a rare instance in which it may be permissible to avoid charging off such an account (except CAS locations, who must charge off to keep from billing further service charges). This will occur when we are well secured and the revised payment schedule very nearly approximates the existing terms.

ANALYSIS

The statistics and resume of collection effort on the History Sheet should allow a thorough analysis to be made. Many times a credit or collection mistake can be written up so that, constructively used, it can be an excellent training aid for preventing similar losses in the future.

SUBJECT LOSSES

TOPIC CHARGE-OFFS - PROCEDURE & HISTORY SHEET PREPARATION

 Date 3-27-69

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - LOSSES - CHARGE-OFFS - PROCEDURE & HISTORY SHEET PREPARATION Dated 11-8-63

The Charge-Off History Sheet provides for complete and comprehensive analysis of the factors leading to charge-off. This bulletin explains preparation and routing of the Charge-Off History Sheet and accounting procedures required to charge off a loan.

CHARGE-OFF HISTORY SHEET (19-905 Rev. 11-68)

The History Sheet is designed so that it will serve for the analysis of loans to be charged-off in several areas of the bank: Loan and Discount, Sales Finance, CAS, Installment Loan, and others. It is also designed so that it will reflect multiple indebtedness within these areas, both prior to and at the time of charge-off. While the instructions and illustrations in this bulletin depict use of the History Sheet for installment charge-offs, the same general application should be made for the other departments using the form.

There are any number of factors which may contribute to a given loss. Basically these factors break down into two groups: Those prevalent at the inception of the loan and those subsequently influential during the servicing of the account. The format of the History Sheet is designed to highlight these factors and to provide for their analysis in a brief but clear and concise manner. From a practical standpoint, the History Sheet will not achieve satisfactory results if it is used merely to record the charging-off of an account for statistical purposes. However, on the other hand, if it highlights the factors which led to the loss in a clear and comprehensive manner so that we can learn from the charge-off experience, then it will have achieved its principal purpose. It is obvious, therefore, that to serve in this capacity, it is necessary that it be filled out completely, accurately, and in detail with adequate thought and care given to its completion.

PREPARING THE HISTORY SHEET

In the illustration of a completed History Sheet, appearing on pages 7 and 8, the account information is designed to illustrate a normal installment automobile loan being charged-off. Since each charge-off will have individual characteristics, the History Sheet must be completed in keeping with the loan information itself. Use of the History Sheet by CAS, Small Business or L&D will call for a somewhat different completion. However, the basic example illustrated can be followed in general concept.

All spaces in the upper half of the face side must be completed regardless of the type or source of loan. If a given space does not apply, it should be so indicated.

The lower portion of the face side is to be used for all loans which were extended for business purposes, regardless of which department of the bank originated the loan.

The reverse side is to be used for all personal loans, regardless of origin, and should be completed in detail following the instructions in the illustration on page 8.

Please refer to the illustration in this bulletin when preparing the Charge-Off History Sheets.

The original and all copies of the History Sheet must be initialed by the branch or department manager.

APPROVAL BY BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Accounts to be charged-off must have prior approval of the Board of Directors.

CHARGE-OFF PROCEDURE

ALL OUT-OF-ATLANTA OFFICES

1. Complete an original and four copies of the History Sheet. All copies must be initialed by the branch manager or department manager. One copy should be kept in the originating office installment loan department for balancing and control while Board approval is being obtained.

Procedures for obtaining Board approval vary between different cities and banks. Many executive officers review each account before it is submitted to the Board. The file, ledger card and note in addition to the History Sheet are often required. Follow the procedure as established in your bank or city. Use the original and two copies of the History Sheet to secure local Board approval.

2. When the original history sheet approved by the board is received by the originating office, prepare a debit entry on snap-out form #19-836 - Rev. 4-60 (see illustration on page 3).

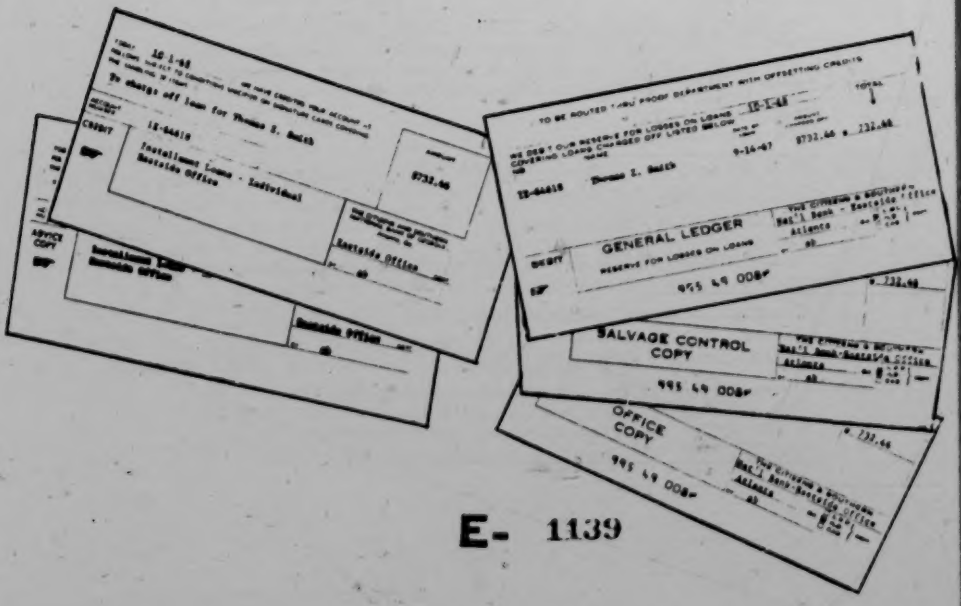
3. Use the original for your General Ledger entry.

4. Prepare a double credit to "Installment Loans - Individual (or Business) and use the original to offset your debit entry (see Illustration on page 3).

5. Use the copy of the credit ticket to post the charge-off from the appropriate installment controls. (DO NOT POST THE LEDGER CARD).

6. After board approval is secured, the original History Sheet should be filed chronologically in the permanent History Sheet file and a copy should be sent to the local salvage and recovery office.

7. Send the first copy of the debit ticket together with the second copy only (which contains board approval) of the History Sheet to System Consumer Credit, Atlanta.



NOTE: The charge-off debit ticket copy must always accompany every History Sheet sent to System Consumer Credit. It is no longer necessary to send the customer folder, but Board approval must be obtained before sending History Sheet to System Consumer Credit.

8. Pull the note (do not mark paid), and mark the wheeldex card "charge-off" or "P&L".

9. Send note, ledger card, folder and salvage control copy of the debit ticket to the Salvage and Recovery Officer for your bank or city.

10. All losses reflecting on the credit of the customer should be reported to local Credit Bureaus and C.I.F.

11. System Consumer Credit will order P&L ledger cards, folders and wheeldex from Central Billing for offices outside the Atlanta area. Central Billing will mail these records directly to the local Officer-in-Charge for proper distribution.

ATLANTA NATIONAL BANK

Variances in CAS and Sales Finance history sheet distribution make it impractical to outline a common routine at this time. This procedure applies to branches, and CAS and Sales Finance will be able to determine their own equivalents needed.

1. Complete an original and 4 copies of the History Sheet. Have all copies initialed by the branch manager.

2. Send the customer file and original and 4 copies of the History Sheet to Branch Supervision.

3. One copy of the History Sheet will be retained in Branch Supervision and one copy sent to System Consumer Credit. A picture of the History Sheet will be sent to the lending officer at his present location within the bank.

4. After review and comments, Branch Supervision will forward the customer file to Central Recovery Department and the original and two copies of the History Sheet to the Board for approval.

5. After Board approval, the original History Sheet will be sent back to the originating office, an approved copy will be sent to the Central Recovery Department, and the third copy will go into the credit file at Main Office Credit Department.

6. When the original History Sheet approved by the Board is received by the originating office, prepare a debit entry on snap-out form #19-836 - Rev. 4-60 (see illustration on page 3).

7. Use the original for your General Ledger entry.

8. Prepare a double credit to "Installment Loans - Individual (or Business)" and use the original to offset your debit entry (see illustration on page 3).

9. Use the copy of the credit ticket to post the charge-off from the appropriate installment controls.

10. Pull the note (do not mark paid), and mark the wheeldex card "charge-off" or "P&L".

11. Send the note, salvage control copy of the debit, and ledger card to the Central Recovery Department.

12. Central Recovery will report all losses reflecting on customer's credit to the local Credit Bureau (even though you may have previously reported it as past-due) and C.I.F. and will order the necessary P&L records for its own use from Central Billing.

ATLANTA AFFILIATE BANKS

1. Complete an original and 4 copies of the History Sheet and secure your own Board approval.

2. Send the Customer file, and original and 4 copies of the History Sheet to Branch Supervision.

3. Branch Supervision will review and comment.

4. Branch Supervision will then forward the customer file and one copy of the history sheet to Central Recovery, forward one copy to System Consumer Credit, forward the original to the originating office, and a copy to the Credit Files at Main Office, and send a picture of the History Sheet to the lending officer.

5. When the original History Sheet approved by the Board is received by the originating office, prepare a debit entry on snap-out form #19-836 - Rev. 4-60 (see illustration on page 3).

6. Use the original for your General Ledger entry.

7. Prepare a double credit to "Installment Loans - Individual (or Business)" and use the original to offset your debit entry (see illustration on page 3).

8. Use the copy of the credit ticket to post the charge-off from the appropriate installment controls.

9. Pull the note (do not mark paid), and mark the wheeldex card "charge-off" or "P&L".

10. Send the note, salvage control copy of the debit and ledger card to the Central Recovery Department.

11. Central Recovery will report all losses reflecting on customer's credit to the local Credit Bureau and C.I.F. and will order the necessary P&L records for its own use from Central Billing.

ORDERING FORMS

Charge-Off History Sheets (19-905) and Debit Tickets (19-836) may be requisitioned from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta, in the normal manner.

Smith became delinquent on the June, 1968 installment which was paid 30 days late. CAS was checked and a delinquent account was discovered there also. In 7/68 an up-to-date report was obtained revealing heavy indebtedness. Our Bill of Sale was sent for recording and personal contact was attempted immediately. We found that Smith had skipped two days before and neighbors and employer did not know his location. Contact was made with a relative shown on the discount sheet who gave his address in Jacksonville, Florida. Third National, on our instructions to collect balance or repossess, picked up the car which Smith had seriously abused. SUBJECT MILITARY PERSONNEL

TOPIC SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CIVIL RELIEF ACT

 Date 3/31/69

Replaces Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - MILITARY PERSONNEL - SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CIVIL RELIEF ACT Dated 10-27-61

A special kind of problem arises when men go into military service. While some problems will be incurred during adjustment period for the man whose salary will be reduced, our past experience shows such cases to be few. Most men are able to continue payments on their obligations with the Bank and do not take advantage of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Act.

We feel that our experience was good because our collection approach was one of understanding and willingness to help the serviceman solve his problem.

GENERAL GUIDE LINES

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act passed during World War II is still in force. A resume of the Act is reproduced on page 8. You will note that the Act does not provide for a general moratorium on debts, but provides for relief where the ability of the debtor to perform his obligations is materially affected by his military service.

The Act applies to obligations incurred prior to receipt of orders to enter service.

The Selective Service Act makes the Civil Relief Act applicable to "all persons in the armed forces of the United States including all persons inducted into the armed forces, the Coast Guard, or the Public Health Service". Because each account will vary in its circumstances, complete facts must be obtained from the man or from a member of his immediate family. A full discussion of the account will generally reveal that payments can be made as agreed, in one way or another. Wherever possible, encourage payment in full.

Personal loans generally will involve smaller balances and smaller monthly payments than other classes of loans. Revision of terms where necessary will aid in working out these accounts.

Endorsed loans should be handled along the same lines as personal loans. Show your willingness to work along with the endorser, but keep in mind that you obtained an endorser because of the credit position of the maker.

(IF an endorser is taken against the possibility of a borrower's entering military service, have the endorser execute a waiver, a copy of which appears on page 2. The endorser's waiver becomes void in the event the endorser is called into active service).

WAIVER OF BENEFITS OF SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CIVIL RELIEF ACT OF 1940, AS AMENDED, BY ACCOMMODATION MAKER, SURETY, ENDORSER, OR GUARANTOR

WHEREAS, the undersigned is an accommodation maker, surety, endorser or guarantor upon a certain debt owing to the C & S National Bank (or dealer, if Sales Finance) which debt is evidenced by the promissory note of Jefferson De Barker (maker) dated August 16, 1965 in the principal amount of $150.00 payable in 12 equal installments of $14.25 each on the 15th day of each month hereafter, together with interest at the highest legal rate after maturity until paid with attorney fees.

The undersigned does hereby waive the benefits afforded to him by subsections (1) and (2) of Section 103 of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended in 1942 (Public Law 732, 77th Congress, Chapter 581 - 2nd Session, approved October 6, 1942) in respect to his liability on said note and debt and does hereby agree that:

1. Whenever, pursuant to any of the provisions of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended, the enforcement of the debt or note above described, the prosecution of any suit or proceeding, the entry or enforcement of any order, writ, judgment or decree, or the performance of any other act in respect to such debt or note or related thereto may be stayed, postponed, or suspended, such stay, postponement or suspension shall not be granted to or for the benefit of the undersigned, and

2. If a judgment or decree upon or in respect to said debt or note is vacated or set aside, in whole or in part, as provided in said Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended, such judgment or decree shall not be set aside or vacated as to the undersigned, and

3. That this waiver is for the benefit of the payee of said note, any subsequent holder thereof, the owner of said debt and any assignee thereof.

Dated at Atlanta Georgia this 20th day of October, 19 65

Charge Account Service accounts will normally require the same type of handling as personal Installment Loans. Although the Act prohibits a creditor from charging a rate of more than 6% add-on indebtedness incurred before the customer entered military service, this restriction is effective only if the serviceman makes a request for relief under the Act and if his entry into the service has adversely affected his ability to pay. Thus, you should continue to charge the regular CAS service charge until such request is made or until it is apparent that the reduction of income requires a modification of the normal terms. If the normal terms are to be modified, execute an installment note using a 6% rate chart.

Automobile loans should be kept on their original payment schedule or liquidated in full. It is to the advantage of the men to dispose of their cars if income is insufficient to keep up the payments, because a car set up on blocks will deteriorate.

Home appliances will continue to be used by the family and regular monthly payments should be maintained. If the home is closed up, the purchaser should be urged to return the appliance to the dealer. The dealer is liable for repurchase of uncollectible accounts under this agreement with us. Before calling on him, however, be sure that the accounts have had thorough handling. Work closely with your dealers on these accounts.

Multiple accounts (CAS, ILD, and L&D) should be considered together as total indebtedness to the bank. If circumstances deem it advisable, these separate accounts should be combined for better servicing, and terms should be adjusted to accomplish the orderly liquidation of the indebtedness.

Repossessions may be made if merchandise is returned voluntarily after the man has entered the service. A RECEIPT FOR MORTGAGED PROPERTY (19-858 Rev. 1-64) SHOULD BE OBTAINED IF AT ALL POSSIBLE. Court decisions have upheld banks and other financial institutions on repossessions, particularly automobiles, since the collateral continues to depreciate in value whether it is used or placed in storage. The courts have held that prompt disposition of collateral (when no repayment is being made) is essential to preserve the equities of all concerned. Remember, in making a repossession on indebtedness created prior to entry into service, the serviceman cannot be held accountable for any deficiency remaining after the application of the proceeds of the sale of collateral to the loan.

Allotments of pay may be made to banks. Such an allotment will keep payments coming in regularly even if the man's pay is held up through transfer of station or other reasons. Several weeks will probably pass before the allotment is processed and payments start. In many cases, an extension will be appropriate.

Service serial numbers should be obtained when possible and used in all correspondence to insure prompt forwarding of mail.

Mark ledger cards of all these accounts with the words "Military Service" as you learn of the makers' entry into military service, so that the accounts will get special handling if they become past due.

Charge-off accounts that reach the normal charge-off period and continue to follow them as salvage items.

Credit life insurance continues in force as long as the accounts are in current receivables and not subject to charge-off under normal charge-off procedure.

WRITING THE CUSTOMER

Our past experience has proven that we have been able to do a good collection job where the borrower has been interviewed prior to his entry into service. Whenever you are aware that a man is about to enter the service, every effort should be made to achieve personal contact with him. This is the ideal time to secure a waiver of rights under the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Act if he is a reservist or an inductee who has received orders to report. (Benefits cannot be waived until the customer has been ordered to active duty). The major difficulty has been experienced where:

1. The man has fallen down on promises after entering the service.
2. The man failed to contact us prior to going in the service.

Assuming that you have exhausted your collection efforts with the wife or other relatives under condition 1 above, a letter should go immediately to the man at his station, reminding him of the promises made and trying to learn the reason for failure to pay as promised. The same procedure should be followed in the case of condition 2 above; however, the approach is different. The sample letter shown on page 5 has proved to be effective. The simple expedient of sending a carbon copy of this letter to the man's Commanding Officer, and so indicating on the letter, can be effective.

Dear Pvt. Bellworth:

We have been informed of your entry (reentry) into the Armed Forces. Accept our best wishes on your new assignment.

Your unsecured loan dated August 10, 1968 for $600.00, repayable in twelve monthly installments of $57.00 is past due since September 15, 1968. We realize that four or five weeks is required for readjustment and to establish an allotment to your wife or family. We want to work with you during this transition period and desire that you write to us if there is any information you require concerning your account with this Bank.

As you probably know, you are entitled to relief under the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Act under certain conditions; however, it is to your advantage to maintain your monthly installments while you are in the service if it is at all possible. Postponement of payments will create a hardship when you return from service. It may be easier for you to establish an allotment payable to The Citizens and Southern National Bank for the amount of your monthly installments. When the first allotment check is received, it will be applied to your account and the loan will be revised to bring it into current status.

Please write us in detail giving your plans for repaying this loan.

Yours truly,

G. C. Hodmith

RE: Indebtedness of Pvt. Joseph C. Bellworth, US 76850729

Dear Sir,

The above named member of your command has an account with us that is delinquent. He has not responded to our latest communication (copy attached).

The loan, unsecured, was made August 10, 1968, for a note total of $684.00 ($600.00 advanced). Purpose was to pay for flying lessons. Terms are 12 at $57.00 each, now past due for the September 10 and October 10 payments.

We realize that the Army cannot act as a collection agency for creditors. However, we also know that each man is expected to pay his just obligations to the best of his ability. We ask your assistance in urging Pvt. Bellworth to get in touch with us to work out a solution to this problem.

Very truly yours,

I. M. Determined

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CIVIL RELIEF ACT

The Selective Service Act of 1948 continues the act in force until repealed or otherwise terminated by Congress. Some of the provisions of the Civil Relief Act are as follows:

Persons entitled to relief are members of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Women's Army Auxiliary Corps and officers of the Public Health Service assigned to duty with the Army or Navy. Benefits are also extended to persons ordered to report for induction and to members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps ordered to report for military service during the period beginning on the date of receipt of the order.

Section 206 provides that interest, which includes "service charges, renewal charges, fees, or any other charges (except bona fide insurance)", shall not exceed six per cent per annum unless a court determines that ability to pay a greater rate is not affected by military service.

Sections 301 and 302 forbid repossession or foreclosure under contracts which originated prior to the debtor's military service, except as provided in Section 107, unless pursuant to an order of court. These sections also provide that a court may stay the proceedings for the period of military service and three months thereafter, if in its opinion the ability of the debtor to perform his obligation is materially affected by his military service. Section 303 provides that the court may appoint appraisers and, based upon their report, order such sum as may be just, if any, paid to the person in military service or his dependents as a condition to foreclosure.

Section 107 permits the voluntary surrender of security or the making of a new contract granting the right of repossession without court action in case of default, pursuant to a written agreement entered into after the debtor's induction or entry into military service.

Whenever a person in service is granted relief from the enforcement of an obligation, Section 103 (1) provides that a court in its discretion may grant the same relief to guarantors, endorsers, accommodation makers and other primarily or secondarily liable. These persons may waive this right if the waiver is contained in a separate written contract. The waiver becomes invalid, however, if the person signing it is later notified of his induction or enters military service.

To obtain acceptable results as economically as possible, the first step in collection procedure is an automatic notice sent out in the early stages of delinquency. This step eliminates costly personal handling of the majority of accounts that require only a reminder that a payment is past due. Accounts requiring special attention (notice exceptions) bypass the notice routine and are processed for immediate personal handling.

The computer begins the collection process by automatically assessing late charges and preparing a notice at the 10 days past-due point. (Ten days past due is the 11th day including the due date. When this day falls on a Saturday or a Sunday, notices will be prepared by Data Processing immediately after the Friday posting.) Since there are four due dates (1st, 8th, 15th, and 22nd), notices are sent out four times a month.

Data Processing prepares and mails notices automatically at that time for the Atlanta area. They also prepare and mail notices in bulk to each city for stuffing and mailing from that point.

NOTICE EXCEPTIONS

Under certain conditions, a Past Due Notice is not the desired type of collection activity. In these cases, a Collection Card will be produced automatically on the tenth day of delinquency instead of the Past Due Notice (See COLLECTIONS - COLLECTION CARD). Here are the situations that automatically create NOTICE EXCEPTIONS:

1. Sales Finance Automobile loans past due for any of the first three payments, and other loans past due for the first payment.
2. The first payment after an extension becomes past due.
3. When payments are due other than monthly.
4. The loan has become past due because of a debit to the balance.
5. The amount past due is more than $150.00.
6. The loan is coded "Repossession."
7. The last payment posted was paid by Disability Insurance.

There are two methods of causing the NOTICE EXCEPTION routine that require manual entries.

1. Entries on the Discount Sheet:
   a. At loan inception, if special handling is needed, enter code (2) in the Special Instructions Code space for "Special Collection Handling."
   b. Reworks for collection purposes should be coded (2) on the discount sheet.

Replaces Bulletins: COLLECTIONS-NOTICES and COLLECTIONS-NOTICES-FIRST PAYMENT

2. Later in the life of a loan, to get it treated as a NOTICE EXCEPTION, fill out a loan Master Record Change.

PAST DUE NOTICE

The Past Due Notice, shown below, shows the bank's return address (in each city) to which payments are to be mailed. A return mail (window type) envelope accompanies the notice. The notice form may be inserted in the window to address the envelope to the bank.

PAST DUE NOTICE

A REMINDER . . . that the payment on your loan has not been received. Unless the total now due has already been mailed, please mail it today. Late payments require special handling and a portion of this expense must be added to your loan. Avoid late charges by making your payments on or before each due date.

Accounts are referred to outside adjustors because it has not been possible to make contact by telephone or because follow-up from the inside has not been effective. It is the outside adjustors responsibility to plan his calls at hours when he will be able to make contact with the past due customer, either at home or at his place of employment.

There are times, however, when it is not possible to make contact and it is not practical to call back the same day. The "Notice - Adjustors Call" (Form 19-855, Rev. 2-69) shown on page 2, is designed to get as much benefit as possible from the attempted contact. It is a one-piece notice-envelope combination. The main objective of this notice is to establish personal contact with the past due customer.

Spaces are provided on the notice form to insert the name of the man handling the account inside the bank and the bank's telephone number. Be sure to seal the envelope, and write the customer's name clearly on the outside. Notices should not be left in the mail box.

Order forms from Purchasing in the usual way. Specify 19-855, Rev. 2-69.

SUBJECT OUTSIDE ADJUSTOR'S DAILY PERFORMANCE REPORTS

TOPIC

 Date 10-30-56

New Bulletin

Accounts assigned to outside adjustors are generally those which the inside adjustor is unable to contact. Quite often the outside adjustor's contact is the last hope in clearing up these accounts. In view of this, the outside adjustor's responsibility is great and consequently, he should exert every effort to establish contact and produce results on every collection call made. The quality of an outside adjustor's performance is gauged not only by the results obtained on each contact made, but also by the degree to which a complete adjustment is made.

Reproduced on the reverse is a new form (#19-875) which has been designed to standardize reports being used by outside adjustors in the various offices to record and measure their performance. The form is designed to cover any type of call or contact that an adjustor will make. It is divided into three groups:

1. Productive Calls
2. Non-Productive Calls
3. Dealer Contacts or Miscellaneous Calls

This form is to be used by all offices which have a full-time outside adjustor. It is available in pads of 100 and your requirements should be ordered from the Purchasing Department in Atlanta in the usual way.

CUSTOMER CONTACTS

Productive Calls

1. Accounts Collected Up to Date from Customer:

   The primary objective of the outside adjustor should be to find out why the account is past due and completely collect it up to date. In addition to collecting up to date, the adjustor should be sure the customer understands when payments are due and the importance of making future payments on time in order to maintain a good credit record.

2. Accounts Completely Adjusted by Partial Collection from Customer and Extension or Extension Only:

   If the account can not be collected completely up to date, the adjustor should collect as much as possible. He should find out the cause for the account being past due and how the customer plans to catch up the payments. If circumstances justify, an extension can be granted. However, the adjustor should assure himself that the customer not only has the income, but more important, a willingness and desire to pay before any extensions are granted. Extensions should be granted freely if justified, but never for the sole purpose of getting an account out of the past due category.

3. Accounts Partially Collected from Customer (Still Past Due):

These are accounts which cannot be collected up to date, and on which an extension is not justified. The adjustor should collect as much as possible. He should also find out the reason for the delinquency, as well as, make definite arrangements for future payments. If this is done, satisfactory future follow-up can be made without the expense of additional outside contact.

4. Late Charges Collected:

Personal contact is expensive. The outside adjustor can defray some of this additional expense by collecting late charges on all past due accounts. He should consistently request and collect late charges. This not only helps defray collection expense, but more important, it encourages a more prompt pay habit. He should collect at least 5% for each dollar past due with a minimum of $1.00 per payment. If, however, unusual expense is incurred in locating the customer and collecting the past due payment, a charge should be made that is in line with the expense involved.

5. Accounts Adjusted by Repossession:

These accounts are those which the adjustor is unable to collect and he determines that further collection effort is useless and hopeless. Show only those accounts, however, on which actual repossession is made. Do not show those on which you are unable to collect and a recommendation is made that repossession be brought about.

6. Total Productive Calls:

These are the total number of accounts on which the adjustor's efforts are effective. The quality of productiveness of the outside adjustor can be gauged by the number of productive calls. The higher percentage of productive calls contacted in relation with the total miles driven, the better the quality of performance.

Non-Productive Calls

1 Accounts on Which Promise Accepted:

These are accounts on which the adjustor is unable to effect any collection whatsoever. He should, however, get all information in regard to the account being past due, as well as, assure himself that the customer will be able to pay in accordance with the promise accepted. It should be remembered that often times the customer will make a promise even though it is absolutely impossible for him to fulfill it. Be sure that income and ability coincide with promise.

New Bulletin

2. Calls Without Obtaining Results:

   The outside adjustor should plan his trip and working hours so as to hold this group of calls to a minimum. Trips should be arranged so that there will be no doubling back and also, calls should be made when the customer is most likely to be at home.

3. Total Non-Productive Calls:

   These are the total calls on which the adjustor does not obtain immediate results. Since the adjustor's primary aim is to collect or adjust on the spot, non-productive calls should be at a minimum.

4. Total Customer Calls:

   These are the total of productive and non-productive calls. The quantity of the outside adjustor's efforts is gauged by "Total Customer Calls" made. The quality, however, is gauged by percentage of "Productive Calls" in relation to "Mileage Driven." Every effort should be made to make as many calls as possible, but the adjustor should never sacrifice quality for quantity.

DEALER CONTACTS

The outside adjustor is also responsible for the checking of dealer floorplanned merchandise. Floorplan financing is hazardous and can result in losses if not properly controlled. Wholesale checking is one of the adjustor's more important duties inasmuch as it is the control that makes it possible to lend money on this basis. He should thoroughly understand and comply with the instructions shown on the wholesale checking report. Refer to "Wholesale" operating bulletins in the "Sales Finance" section of the Operating Guide Bulletin for complete wholesale checking procedure.

The adjustor should plan his work so as to combine wholesale checking with calls on past due customers for the same dealer or in the same general locality. Whenever possible, the adjustor should contact the dealer when in his locality, working his past due accounts even though he does not have a wholesale check to make. This is important, not only to keep the dealer informed of collection effort, but also to obtain his assistance. Remember, quite often, he has a personal knowledge of the customer's present circumstances and can be a great help in locating and adjusting the account.

PHYSICAL VERIFICATIONS

Physical verifications are also a responsibility of the outside adjustor. These verifications are necessary in order to control the hazards connected with the purchasing of dealer originated retail paper. Refer to Operating Guide Bulletin "DEALER CREDIT - VERIFICATION OF #3 PAYMENTS" for a more detailed explanation of the procedure followed in making verifications.

REPLACES BULLETIN: COLLECTIONS - REPORT OF ADJUSTMENT, Dated 3-4-55

For some time, review of collection effort in customer file folders has indicated that complete adjustment of delinquent accounts was not being made at the time of the outside collection contact. For this reason, the REPORT OF ADJUSTMENT (19-862) has recently been revised to include additional information necessary to make a complete collection contact with the customer and to make the form usable in the collection of CAS accounts as well as Installment Loan accounts. In addition, the form has been combined with the PHYSICAL VERIFICATION REPORT (19-864) and space has been provided for detailed information concerning repossessions.

While the revisions are intended to assist in insuring more complete collection adjustment, it must be emphasized that reports will not collect past-due accounts -- only hard work, resourcefulness, and salesmanship will accomplish this. The fact that space for additional information is supplied on the form does not guarantee that the use of the form by an Outside Adjustor will result in a properly completed collection contact. There is no substitute for the use of sound judgment in ascertaining the reasons behind a delinquent account and the steps necessary to best effect collection and place the account on a current basis in the future.

USE OF REPORT This form was designed primarily to be used as a report by Outside Adjustors. However, the form may be used whenever a file memorandum is needed covering the adjustment of a past-due account. In all cases where a physical verification or repossession is involved, use should be made of the appropriate sections of this form. Using the report form has a number of advantages:

1. It helps to organize the interview with the past-due customer to make certain that all essential information is obtained and complete adjustment is made.

2. It eliminates nonessential information from reports.

3. It provides a file report on which future collection may be based, if necessary, and which will permit faster review of the collection file.

4. It serves as a training tool to familiarize collection men with information which is essential and vital in the collection and adjustment of consumer loans.

COMPLETION OF THE REPORT The illustration of the face of the report (page 2) contains complete explanations for the use of spaces which have not been revised or added to the old form. If the report is to be effective, all remarks should be concise and to the point in order to avoid unnecessary writing and reading. The following paragraphs contain explanations for the use of revised sections of the form.

REPLACES BULLETIN: COLLECTIONS - REPORT OF ADJUSTMENT, Dated 3-4-55

ADJUSTMENT Whether we like to admit it or not, there are times when a delinquent customer is not able to bring his account up-to-date. Any such circumstances must be clearly brought to the attention of collection personnel so that decisions regarding repossession, dealer repurchase, or charge-off may be made. This space should be completed in all cases if the Adjustor is unable to either --

1. Effect the collection of the account to an up-to-date status, or

2. Arrange for a specific adjustment schedule which will bring the account up-to-date within a reasonable length of time.

Occasionally, the reason for delinquency will be something as simple as an improperly scheduled due date. Where this is the case, the Adjustor should recommend the changing of a customer's due date by indicating the proper date on the report. A due date change decision can only be made by the Outside Adjustor after having ascertained that this is actually the cause of the delinquency and that the customer's income is received at a date quite different from that scheduled for repayment of our loan. Care should be exercised in changing due dates on delinquent accounts. If an improperly scheduled due date is not the real reason for the delinquency, such a change will only serve to postpone whatever collection effort should have been made.

ADJUSTMENT SCHEDULE The Adjustment Schedule has been revised to provide specific space for the Original Due Date and the Payment Amount. These two items of information should be the same as shown on the Adjustor's copy of the ledger card. The Amount To Be Paid, Late Charges, and Date Will Pay should reflect the adjustment agreed upon by the customer and the Adjustor. The completed schedule must show a satisfactory and realistic means by which the account will be brought up-to-date, provided the customer fulfills his promises of payment. The itemized Adjustment Schedule should be used when the Adjustor and customer agree that the customer is able to "catch up" the delinquent installment(s) over a reasonable length of time, thereby bringing the account to a current condition as originally scheduled.

Specific space is now provided for extensions. Here again, the Adjustor must weigh all of the facts before reaching a decision; that is, the reason why the account is past due and the customer's ability to keep the account current if it is extended. Poor judgment in the use of extensions merely puts off the satisfactory adjustment of a delinquent account and usually places the Bank in a more difficult position when it becomes necessary to repossess, consummate dealer repurchase, or charge-off the account at a later date. An unjustified extension does not constitute a satisfactory adjustment since the account will merely become delinquent again as soon as the extended period of time is over. In the meantime, the outstanding indebtedness has not been reduced and the customer has obtained a grace period in which to further depreciate the collateral. Whenever an extension is in order and justified, concise and clear reasons should be shown and the extension information itemized in the three spaces provided. Extensions should not be granted without the collection of the appropriate extension fee - 1% of the unpaid balance.

REPLACES BULLETIN: COLLECTIONS - REPORT OF ADJUSTMENT, Dated 3-4-55

Where additional space is required for Adjustment Schedule comments, the Adjustor may continue his remarks in the section titled "Comments" at the bottom of the page.

FUNDS COLLECTED Since the primary purpose of any personal collection contact with the customer is to effect collection and bring the account up-to-date, as well as to adjust it, space is provided for the amount of money collected by the Adjustor. Space is also provided to indicate the amount of late charges collected. While the Bank is entitled to late charges whenever an account becomes delinquent, it is particularly important that late charges be collected whenever it is necessary that an outside adjustment contact be made so that the additional expense of collection so incurred will be at least partially offset. Under normal circumstances, no outside collection contact or adjustment is complete without collecting or making arrangements to collect late charges from the customer. (See Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - LATE CHARGES.)

REVERSE SIDE OF REPORT OF ADJUSTMENT Space is now provided on the reverse of the report to cover three major types of specialized information. The illustration (on the opposite page) of this side of the form indicates the more self-explanatory spaces. Detailed explanations are covered in the following paragraphs.

REPOSSESSION INFORMATION This section must be completed whenever merchandise is repossessed. Most of the information in this section is self-explanatory. Whenever a dealer contract is involved, the first three questions should be answered. In all repossessions, the balance of the form should be answered. This section is intended to serve as a check-off list to be sure that the Outside Adjustor takes the necessary steps in effecting repossession. It is important inasmuch as repossession constitutes a final and irrevocable act between the Bank and the customer. From this point on, either the dealer will be asked to pay off the contract or the customer will have to pay off the Bank in full to regain possession of the merchandise involved. It is, therefore, essential that complete information concerning the repossession be obtained.

PHYSICAL VERIFICATION In the past, the Physical Verification Report (19-864) has been a separate form. Since verification is often necessary in the adjustment of delinquent accounts, the Physical Verification Report has been made a part of the Report of Adjustment. Physical verification is generally performed in two instances:

1. Delinquent account adjustment. In this case, the Adjustor will complete the Report of Adjustment and the Physical Verification Section himself.

2. Verification of #3 dealer payment. When used for this purpose, customer identification information and the kind of merchandise will be filled in before the report is given to the Adjustor. (See Bulletin: SALES FINANCE - DEALER CREDIT - VERIFICATION OF #3 PAYMENTS.)

IMPORTANT - Make a Physical Verification whenever

All information is essential and must be completed whenever a physical verification is made.

E- 1165

Replaces Bulletin: "COLLECTIONS - REPORT OF ADJUSTMENT" Dated 3-4-55

Physical verification is the act of inspecting the collateral of a loan as to its identity (serial number, make, etc.), location, and condition, and of obtaining purchase and payment information from the customer's records. A delinquent account may indicate that the customer does not have possession of the collateral; if this is the case, we no longer have collateral benefits to rely on.

The possibility of fraud also exists in that the customer may have disposed of the collateral and not paid off his account or, in the case of dealer paper, the Bank may have purchased a fraudulent contract (no sale ever consummated or different merchandise financed). Collateral may have been returned to, or repossessed by, the dealer without his repurchase of the contract.

When the customer's records do not agree with the Bank's, the Bank may have made an error in posting, the payment may have been lost in the mail, or the customer may have made payments to the dealer who did not forward them to the Bank. WHENEVER THE POSSIBILITY OF FRAUD EXISTS AND THE DEALER MAY BE INVOLVED, THE ADJUSTOR SHOULD NOT CONTACT THE DEALER WITHOUT FIRST CONTACTING THE BANK. In all cases of verification, the report should be completed in full. IN ALL CASES WHERE THE PHYSICAL VERIFICATION PORTION OF THIS REPORT IS USED, IT MUST BE COMPLETED IN ITS ENTIRETY.

ABILITY TO PAY In many cases, the reason for delinquency is the result of over extension by the customer. In all such cases, no adjustment can satisfactorily be effected without knowing both the income of the customer and his indebtedness. Whenever over-extension is the reason for the customer's delinquency, his income, all indebtedness, and his required repayment schedule should be listed in this space. This information can be used to determine whether the customer can bring his account up-to-date and, if so, in what manner.

SUPPLY OF REPORT The Report of Adjustment is available in pads of 100 and may be requisitioned, by form number, from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta

SUBJECT PAST DUE LIST

TOPIC

 Date 7/9/70

NEW BULLETIN

Data Processing prepares the INSTALLMENT LOAN PAST DUE LIST on the 1st working day and on the 17th of each month to provide each branch and sales finance department with a complete listing of loans in collection follow-up. When there is a holiday, the past due list will be prepared prior to the holiday. AN ILLUSTRATION IS SHOWN ON PAGE 2.

The main purposes of the list are:

1. To provide Branch or Bank management with a listing of past due loans. Managers should use it to check on overall progress every few days, as well as to keep informed on specific amounts.
2. To provide a listing of each sales finance dealer's past due accounts. A carbon copy of the list is included which may be sent to dealers on a selective basis.
3. To provide a check list to be compared with the Collection Card file to insure that a Collection Card is retained for each loan in collection follow-up. Under our old ledger card system, we could thumb through the ledger cards and check for "sleepers." Under the new system, the only way we can check for sleepers is to check collection cards against the past due list. This must be done at least once a month.

BRANCHES

A separate list is produced for each branch, affiliate, or correspondent associate that is on the computer system. Loans are grouped by Loan Class, and are in alphabetical order by customer name within each loan class grouping.

SALES FINANCE

The Past Due List is produced for each Sales Finance Department (and for branches with Sales Finance loans). Loans are grouped by Loan Class and within each class, by Dealer. Within each dealer grouping, loans are in alphabetical order. For large sales finance departments, loans are grouped first by Unit, in addition to the groupings described above to provide each unit with a listing of its own past dues. Totals are provided for each unit, dealer and for total Sales Finance.

SPECIAL NOTES

1. If the TOTAL amount past due is less than $5.00, the loan will not be listed.
2. If the total amount past due is a full payment in one column, and less than $5.00 in the next column, the under $5.00 amount will not be aged delinquent.

RETENTION

Past Due Lists should be retained for one month and then destroyed.

SUBJECT REPOSSESSIONS

TOPIC INSURING OF

 Date 9-8-64

New Bulletin

Recently, there has been some confusion as to the insuring of repossessions. In the past, certain protection has been available to us under our wholesale automobile policy. A complete review of our exposure with regard to repossessions has just been made, and it has been concluded that the risk does not justify either the additional premium or the time and effort required to specifically insure repossessions. The procedures to be followed are:

IF CUSTOMER'S INSURANCE IS IN EXISTENCE AT THE TIME OF REPOSSESSION Coverage on the vehicle should be continued until the repossessed unit is disposed of. The insurance carrier must be notified by letter of the change of ownership and of our interest in the coverage being continued until disposition is made of the collateral. The policy should be surrendered for cancellation and return of unearned premium at the time of final disposition of the collateral. If liability insurance is in force (and was financed), it should be cancelled at the time of repossession.

IF THERE IS NO INSURANCE AT THE TIME OF REPOSSESSION We will self-insure against fire, theft and collision losses as well as property damage liability. It is not necessary to purchase outside single interest insurance to protect against these hazards. It should be understood that the term "self-insure" means that we take the risk without any insurance protection.

LIABILITY AND BODILY INJURY We are protected automatically against the exposure under the Bank's Automobile Liability Policy through Liberty Mutual. This is outlined in the article dated May 11,1962, in the Comptroller's Manual - Section: INSURANCE, Topic: AUTOMOBILE LIABILITY POLICY.

SUBJECT REPOSSESSIONS

TOPIC RECEIPT FOR MORTGAGED PROPERTY

 Date 9-6-57

Replaces Bulletin: "REPOSSESSIONS - RECEIPT (19-858)" Dated 9-20-54

Acting on a suggestion received from the local attorneys of one of our offices, we have revised our Receipt for Mortgaged Property (19-858) to clarify that the act of voluntary repossession does not rescind the original contract.

In almost all instances involving repossession, the customer will voluntarily give up the merchandise if properly approached, and repossession can be made without foreclosure proceedings. However, in these voluntary repossessions there are three risks which the bank faces:

1. The customer could later claim that the bank's representatives used force and/or intimidation in obtaining possession of the equipment.

2. The customer could later claim that the bank's repossession of the equipment constituted a full settlement of his debt and thus terminate his contract. This would prevent our obtaining any deficiency judgment after the sale of the equipment.

3. The customer could later state that he was not given an opportunity to remove his personal property from a repossessed automobile. He could then make a counter claim that such property be restored by the bank.

To eliminate these risks and subsequent counter claims, the Receipt for Mortgaged Property should be used whenever automobiles or other merchandise is repossessed or stored. This applies to all repossessions, bank or dealer liability, including repossessions made on "Foreign Claims".

In addition to the protection afforded the bank, this Receipt is a tool which will give the bank representative a more graceful and positive approach in connection with the actual repossession since it is called a "Receipt" and requires the signature of the bank's representative also.

The form should be completed in duplicate -- the original given to the customer and the duplicate filed in the customer's folder.

Because of the additional legal advantages, the revised form should be put into use immediately. Please order your requirements from the Purchasing Department in Atlanta.

SUBJECT REPOSSESSIONS
TOPIC SALE OF

 Date 7-15-64

New Bulletin

The Uniform Commercial Code makes it necessary that changes be made in our present procedures for disposing of repossessed goods and the purpose of this bulletin is to outline the procedures to be followed.

DISPOSITION OF REPOSSESSED GOODS Repossessed goods (including automobiles) must be disposed of in all cases. If the goods are "consumer goods" and the customer has paid 60% of the cash price in the case of a purchase money security interest or 60% of the amount of loan in other security interests, the disposition of the goods must be completed within 90 days unless this right has been waived by the customer after default. (The RECEIPT FOR MORTGAGED PROPERTY contains such a waiver; however, if a receipt was not obtained or if this waiver was deleted, we must be positive that this condition is met since the penalty for failure to do so is rather severe).

The Uniform Commercial Code permits a secured party to follow specific procedures in proposing to retain the collateral for their own use and thereby cancel the debtor's obligation. We will not use this and it is mentioned here only for general knowledge and conversation with dealers in the event that dealers ask about it (see bulletin on Uniform Commercial Code - General). For our purposes, all repossessions must be disposed of by (1) release to the customer, (2) sale, or (3) delivery to a dealer. "Bank Liability Repossessions" will be sold and "Dealer Liability Repossessions" returned to the dealer.

BANK LIABILITY REPOSSESSIONS All repossessions disposed of by the bank by sale or release to the customer are Bank Liability Repossessions. This will include all repossessions made by the Bank EXCEPT those returned to a dealer or guarantor under a full or limited liability repurchase agreement, recourse agreement or guarantee. A repossession under a recourse or repurchase agreement limited to a specified reserve may or may not be a Bank Liability Repossession. If the goods are returned to a dealer and the contract reassigned to the dealer, it is a Dealer Liability Repossession; but if the Bank sells the goods to someone other than the dealer, it is a Bank Liability Repossession even though the deficiency is charged to the reserve.

All Bank Liability Repossessions should be disposed of in accordance with the following procedures:

Release to the Customer - Once a repossession is made it is seldom advisable to release the goods to the customer except upon payment in full of our debt. When done, all circumstances must be carefully considered; particularly, (1) change in customer's circumstances, (2) substantial strengthening of the contract by an endorser or additional bank held collateral, and (3) substantial reduction with assurance of future availability of the collateral and satisfaction that collateral will not be unduly abused.

REVISION OF PAGE 2 Dated 7-15-64

Sale of Repossessed Goods - Repossessed goods may be sold at public or private sale; however, in the consumer division private sale will continue to be the standard method of disposing of these. The following procedures must be followed in a private sale: (See REPOSSESSIONS - SALES FINANCE - DEFICIENCY CLAIMS).

A. Consumer Goods:

(a) Give written notice to the customer of our intent to sell at least five days before the sale is made. The letter does not have to specify the date of the sale, but only our intent to sell after some specified date. The letter should describe the goods.

R (b) Obtain at least (3) competitive bids, in writing if possible, to establish reasonable value and in order to obtain the best price possible.

(c) Furnish buyer with a BILL OF SALE IN FORECLOSURE - 19-841, Rev. 1-64. This revised form should be used in all cases and it should be noted that we sell "AS IS" in all cases and make R no warranties other than warranting good title. (If selling to a retail buyer, it is best to inform the buyer of the possibility of unpaid ad valorem taxes on a vehicle. This will almost always be the case if the vehicle bears the previous year's license plate).

(d) If the repossession is a titled vehicle, follow the steps in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) above and:

1. Complete a T-16 form, AFFIDAVIT FOR REPOSSESSED MOTOR VEHICLE (if sale is to a dealer complete assignment portion on bottom).
2. Complete a T-4 form, SECURITY INTEREST CANCELLATION.
3. If original Title Certificate is not held by bank (loans prior to 3-13-64) attempt to obtain from customer with or without his signature on reverse.
4. Give buyer:
   aa. The T-16
   bb. The T-4
   cc. The title (whenever obtainable on loans prior to 3-11-64 and on all loans made after 3-11-64, customer does not have to sign title).

(e) If the repossession is a non-titled vehicle on which a T-3 has been filed, it must be released (complete portion held by bank and send to Title Dept.) within 5 days of sale of repossession.

B. Property other than Consumer Goods:

(a) Check the appropriate filing records to determine if there are other creditors of record claiming an interest in the property.

(b) Give at least 5 days written notice to the customer and to any other creditor of record, or known to us, claiming an interest.

(c) Obtain at least (3) competitive bids.

(d) Furnish buyer with BILL OF SALE IN FORECLOSURE - 19-841, Rev. 1-64. This revised form should be used in all cases and it should be noted that we sell "AS IS" in all cases and made no warranties other than warranting good title.
(e) If repossession is a vehicle follow steps in (d) or (e) under CONSUMER GOODS above.

REPORTING BANK LIABILITY REPOSSESSIONS AND SALES TAX

System Consumer Credit maintains a log of all Bank Liability Repossessions. The repossession itself is picked up from Potential Loss Reports and Charge-Off History Sheets. The sale is picked up from Charge-Off History Sheets, therefore, history sheets must be prepared on ALL Bank Liability Repossessions whether or not there is any bank loss. In each case, the following must be shown:

1. Name and address of buyer.
2. Date of sale.
3. Amount of sale.
4. Amount of sales tax collected, or sales tax exemption number.

If no bank loss exists, only the original of the history sheet need be sent to System Consumer Division.

DEALER LIABILITY REPOSSESSIONS

Dealer Liability Repossessions are repossessions wherein the repossessed goods are repurchased by the dealer. This may be by payment of the entire unpaid balance or by partial payment with the remainder charged to the dealer's reserve. In each case, not only is the interest in the goods themselves transferred to the dealer, but also the security agreement is reassigned to the dealer. The dealer is at that time subrogated to our rights and to all of the responsbilities of a secured party in disposing of repossessions. The dealer must take the necessary steps to permit him to retain the goods for his own use and cancel the customer's obligation, or dispose of the merchandise after giving notice "all in a commercially reasonable manner." Once we deliver the merchandise to the dealer under such arrangements, it becomes his responsibility to comply with the provisions of the Code.

We are interested in helping our dealers wherever possible and are willing to discuss with them our method of handling disposition of repossessed goods; however, we cannot give them legal advice as to their requirements. On such questions they should be referred to their local counsel. In an effort to familiarize our dealers with the requirements we have printed a temporary supply of U.C.C. Article 9 - 504, 505, 506, and 507 dealing with disposition of collateral (reproduced on page 5). A supply is being sent to each Sales Finance Office together with a suggested cover letter. Cover letters should be individually typed on your bank stationery to all dealers and sent together with a copy of the code sections. A copy should also be given to all new dealers during the next 3-6 months at the time of acquisition.

If the repossession is a vehicle follow the same steps in (d) or (e) under the preceding paragraph "CONSUMER GOODS."

NOTE: Repossessions returned to a dealer's floor become part of his inventory. If we floorplan for the dealer and have a Financing Statement on record, our interest in the returned goods continues perfected. If we do not have a Financing Statement covering inventory on record, our interest in the returned goods becomes unperfected, however, we would still take priority over another secured party claiming inventory because of their floorplanning for the dealer. Our exposure would only be to creditors other than the floorplan lender, line creditors (including a trustee in bankruptcy) and certain tax liens placed on the execution docket. This risk is minimal because of our follow-up on our dealers and knowledge of their financial condition and we can continue handling as in the past. However, it is important to understand the above provisions and in the event we leave repossessed goods on the floor of a financially weak dealer without being promptly paid, we should obtain and file a Financing Statement covering the specific goods as part of his inventory (if we have not already filed on inventory).

109A-9--504. SECURED PARTY'S RIGHT TO DISPOSE OF COLLATERAL AFTER DEFAULT; EFFECT OF DISPOSITION.--(1) A secured party after default may sell, lease or otherwise dispose of any or all of the collateral in its then condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing. Any sale of goods is subject to the Article on Sales (Article 2). The proceeds of disposition shall be applied in the order following to

(a) the reasonable expenses of retaking, holding, preparing for sale, selling and the like and, to the extent provided for in the agreement and not prohibited by law, the reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses incurred by the secured party;

(b) the satisfaction of indebtedness secured by the security interest under which the disposition is made;

(c) the satisfaction of indebtedness secured by any subordinate security interest in the collateral if written notification of demand therefor is received before distribution of the proceeds is completed. If requested by the secured party, the holder of a subordinate security interest must seasonably furnish reasonable proof of his interest, and unless he does so, the secured party need not comply with his demand.

(2) If the security interest secures an indebtedness, the secured party must account to the debtor for any surplus, and, unless otherwise agreed, the debtor is liable for any deficiency. But if the underlying transaction was a sale of accounts, contract rights, or chattel paper, the debtor is entitled to any surplus or is liable for any deficiency only if the security agreement so provides.

(3) Disposition of the collateral may be by public or private proceedings and may be made by way of one or more contracts. Sale or other disposition may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the disposition including the method, manner, time, place and terms must be commercially reasonable. Unless collateral is perishable or threatens to decline speedily in value or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market, reasonable notification of the time and place of any public sale or reasonable notification of the time after which any private sale or other intended disposition is to be made shall be sent by the secured party to the debtor, and except in the case of consumer goods to any other person who has a security interest in the collateral and who has duly filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in this State or who is known by the secured party to have a security interest in the collateral. The secured party may buy at any public sale and if the collateral is of a type customarily sold in a recognized market or is of a type which is the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations he may buy at private sale.

(4) When collateral is disposed of by a secured party after default, the disposition transfers to a purchaser for value all of the debtor's rights therein, discharges the security interest under which it is made and any security interest or lien subordinate thereto. The purchaser takes free of all such rights and interests even though the secured party fails to comply with the requirements of this Part or of any judicial proceedings

(a) in the case of a public sale, if the purchaser has no knowledge of any defects in the sale and if he does not buy in collusion with the secured party, other bidders or the person conducting the sale; or

(b) in any other case, if the purchaser acts in good faith.

(5) A person who is liable to a secured party under a guaranty, indorsement, repurchase agreement or the like and who receives a transfer of collateral from the secured party or is subrogated to his rights has thereafter the rights and duties of the secured party. Such a transfer of collateral is not a sale or disposition of the collateral under this Article. (Acts 1962, pp. 156, 422.)

109A-9--505. COMPULSORY DISPOSITION OF COLLATERAL; ACCEPTANCE OF THE COLLATERAL AS DISCHARGE OF OBLIGATION.--(1) If the debtor has paid 60 per cent of the cash price in the case of a purchase money security interest in consumer goods or 60 per cent of the loan in the case of another security interest in consumer goods, and has not signed after default a statement renouncing or modifying his rights under this Part a secured party who has taken possession of collateral must dispose of it under 109A-9--504 and if he fails to do so within 90 days after he takes possession the debtor at his option may recover in conversion or under 109A-9--507(1) on secured party's liability.

(2) In any other case involving consumer goods or any other collateral a secured party in possession may, after default, propose to retain the collateral in satisfaction of the obligation. Written notice of such proposal shall be sent to the debtor and except in the case of consumer goods to any other secured party who has a security interest in the collateral and who has duly filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in this State or is known by the secured party in possession to have a security interest in it. If the debtor or other person entitled to receive notification objects in writing within 30 days from the receipt of the notification or if any other secured party objects in writing within 30 days after the secured party obtains possession the secured party must dispose of the collateral under 109A-9--504. In the absence of such written objection the secured party may retain the collateral in satisfaction of the debtor's obligation. (Acts 1962, pp. 156, 424.)

109A-9--506. DEBTOR'S RIGHT TO REDEEM COLLATERAL.--At any time before the secured party has disposed of collateral or entered into a contract for its disposition under 109A-9--504 or before the obligation has been discharged under 109A-9--505(2) the debtor or any other secured party may unless otherwise agreed in writing after default redeem the collateral by tendering fulfillment of all obligations secured by the collateral as well as the expenses reasonably incurred by the secured party in retaking, holding and preparing collateral for disposition, in arranging for the sale, and to the extent provided in the agreement and not prohibited by law, his reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses. (Acts 1962, pp. 156, 425.)

109A-9--507. SECURED PARTY'S LIABILITY FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH THIS PART.--(1) If it is established that the secured party is not proceeding in accordance with the provisions of this Part disposition may be ordered or restrained on appropriate terms and conditions. If the disposition has occurred the debtor or any person entitled to notification or whose security interest has been made known to the secured party prior to the disposition has a right to recover from the secured party any loss caused by a failure to comply with the provisions of this Part. If the collateral is consumer goods, the debtor has a right to recover in any event an amount not less than the credit service charge plus 10 per cent of the principal amount of the debt or the time price differential plus 10 per cent of the cash price.

(2) The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the secured party is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the secured party either sells the collateral in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with reasonable commercial practices among dealers in the type of property sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. The principles stated in the two preceding sentences with respect to sales also apply as may be appropriate to other types of disposition. A disposition which has been approved in any judicial proceeding or by any bona fide creditors' committee or representative of creditors shall conclusively be deemed to be commercially reasonable, but this sentence does not indicate that any such approval must be obtained in any case nor does it indicate that any disposition not so approved is not commercially reasonable. (Acts 1962, pp. 156, 425.)

NEW BULLETIN

In addition to requirements under the Uniform Commercial Code, the Retail Installment and Home Solicitation Sales Act and the Motor Vehicle Sales Finance Act sets forth procedures that must be followed before the holder of a defaulted sales contract is entitled to collect a deficiency.

At the time of repossession of a vehicle or goods subject to these Acts, the bank (on non-recourse paper) or the dealer (on repurchase or recourse paper) must decide whether to be satisfied with the anticipated proceeds from the sale of the collateral or whether to delay the sale and comply with the provisions of these Acts. Consideration should be given to:

1. The amount of the probable deficiency.
2. The possibility of a lower resale price by virtue of a delayed sale.
3. The probability and cost of collecting the deficiency if it is established in conformity with these Acts.

If following for a deficiency is not considered to be worthwhile, proceed with the sale as outlined in our bulletin - "COLLECTIONS - REPOSSESSIONS - SALE OF" dated 7-15-64.

If a deficiency balance is to be pursued, either by the bank or the dealer:

1. Within 10 days of the date of repossession the buyer must be notified by registered or certified mail of the holder's intent to pursue the deficiency.
2. This notice must also advise the buyer that the collateral may be redeemed upon payment of the debt and advise the buyer of his right of public sale.

Illustrated on the reverse side of this bulletin is a sample letter to be used when applicable. Dealers should be advised to consult with their attorneys to draft their own letters.

In the event there is no response from the buyer within 10 days, the collateral may be sold and a deficiency established by following the procedures in our 7-15-64 bulletin.

In the event the buyer replies within 10 days requesting a public sale, the sale may be held in any of the following places, at the option of the holder:

1. The county where the original sale took place.
2. The county of the buyer's residence.
3. The county where the collateral was repossessed.

Advertisement of the intended sale must be placed in the paper where the sheriff advertises his sales in that area at least once each week for two weeks preceding the sale. The advertisement must specify the time, date, and place and describe the property to be sold. In addition to this advertisement, a reasonable notice must be given to the debtor and if the property is anything other than consumer goods, to any other person having a security interest in the collateral who has filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in this state, or who is known to have a security interest in the collateral. At such a sale, we may bid and buy.

This is in addition to the procedures outlined in our 7-15-64 bulletin.

Where repossessions are made outside of Georgia and the sale is to take place outside of Georgia, Georgia law still applies.

Dear Customer:

Recently, under the provisions of a conditional sales contract we hold, it was necessary to reclaim possession of _____ from you.
(collateral description)

This is our notice to you, that on or after _____ (time) _____ (date) we intend to dispose of this collateral. In the event the proceeds from the sale of this collateral does not satisy your indebtedness to us you will be liable for any remaining balance.

Until the above time and date you may redeem this collateral by paying your indebtedness in full. By law, you are entitled to a public sale of this collateral, provided we are notified that you desire this sale by registered or certified mail within 10 days of the date of this letter.

In the event you wish a public sale, the cost of advertising for two weeks in the local newspaper, a description of the collateral and your name as registered owner, along with all other costs incurred with this sale will necessarily have to be charged to your account.

Revised Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - REVISION AGREEMENT - Dated 2-24-67

The Revision Agreement (form 19-988) illustrated on the back of this page is a combination Note and Security Agreement that has been developed for the purpose of reworking unsecured indebtedness for collection purposes. The form is in three parts to conform to Regulation Z. Retain the original copy for our note file. Second copy in the customer's credit file and the third copy should be given to the customer at the time he signs the agreement.

The use of this simplified form is intended to reduce customer resistance to pledging collateral or furnishing an endorser as an inducement for us to revise the original terms of repayment rather than take action to collect the entire defaulted balance.

The Revision Agreement should be used without exception when:

1. Unsecured Installment or L&D loans are reworked for collection purposes.

2. CAS accounts are reworked and transferred to the Liquidating Accounts cycle.

Space is provided on the form for listing all outstanding bank debt since all such debt should be consolidated into one note any time an account is reworked for collection purposes.

A description of the collateral being taken as security on the note, together with the name(s) of any lien holders, should be shown in the space provided. Remember to take whatever steps are necessary to perfect your interest in the security.

Space is provided at the bottom of the form for the signature(s) of any indorser(s) on the note.

ORDERING SUPPLIES

Your requirements of the Revision Agreement, form (19-988, rev.7-69) may be ordered in the usual manner from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta.

SUBJECT REWORKING FOR COLLECTION PURPOSES

TOPIC

 Date 2-24-67

New Bulletin

Aside from weaknesses in the original extension of unsecured credit (CAS - L&D - ILD), a high percentage of our losses take place because of failure to take positive action soon enough when an original weakness is recognized or changes take place in the credit worthiness of our customer. Generally the deterioration of an individual credit risk is gradual and the alert credit and collection man can take steps to avert or minimize a potential loss. By properly reworking loans for collection, problem accounts and losses can be minimized.

DANGER SIGNALS In most cases, action will be indicated because of apparent changes in the credit-worthiness of the customer evidenced by one or more of the following danger signals:

1. Past-due condition and requests for delays in payments.

2. Increased debt indicated by numerous credit inquiries, particularly from high-rate loan companies.

3. Repeated renewals of L&D notes without apparent means of repayment.

4. Derogatory information received from other departments of the bank, such as, a checking account closed for insufficient checks or borrowing frequently and over the established limit in CAS.

5. Marked changes in personal circumstances, such as, repeated job changes, marital difficulty, change of address to unfavorable location, and adverse notices from credit-reporting agencies.

INTERVIEW To aid in analyzing the customer's financial condition, several steps may need to be taken. Where the interviewer does not have all the facts before him to make a sound credit decision, use of the interview and subsequent investigation is necessary.

Interviewing potential rework loan customers requires a thorough approach. In this connection, the interviewer will find the Family Budget Consolidation Worksheet a helpful tool and should use this form without exception when renewing a loan for collection purposes. The completed worksheet will furnish the interviewer with a list of all of the customer's debts, including the amount of his payments, as well as his net income. In addition, the interviewer should obtain a complete list of the customer's assets since this may reveal collateral which is available to secure our loan. Particular care should be taken to be certain that all other debt of the customer to the bank is included since all such debt should be combined into one note when a loan is reworked for collection purposes.

INVESTIGATION A thorough investigation following the steps outlined in the Bulletin "LENDING GENERAL - CREDIT INVESTIGATION" is necessary to verify the information developed during the interview. Investigation will enable the interviewer to determine the underlying reason for the rework and also the seriousness of the collection problem involved. It is of particular importance that the following steps be taken:

New Bulletin

1. Verify the stability of employment and net income.
2. Recheck of all inquiry calls by creditors to the bank and to the Credit Bureau.
3. Verify all of the customer's debt and the amount of monthly payments.
4. Determine the nature of collateral securing other creditor's debt.

COURSES OF ACTION After all facts have been developed, consider:

1. If our customer no longer meets our normal credit standards and judgment indicates that chances of improvement are questionable -- encourage refinancing our balance elsewhere.
2. If total debt can be fully secured or guaranteed by a qualified indorser, rework even if ability to repay is questionable.
3. Where weakness is temporary or a reasonable ability to pay on revised terms exists - rework and strengthen as much as possible.
4. If account cannot be strengthened and collection is doubtful, recognize the fact, charge off and handle as salvage.

OTHER BANK DEBT In reworking an account for collection purposes, always consider total bank debt, consolidate where possible and whatever action is taken - a file memorandum should be sent to the affected departments or branches.

COLLATERAL Collateral must always be requested when we rework a loan for collection purposes. In addition, where we are reworking CAS balances, we obtain the advantage of a written acknowledgement of the CAS obligation, which had heretofore been an open account. The customer should be impressed with the fact that we are doing him a favor by reworking his loan. We should not be reluctant to request collateral, since we have a right to expect to be placed in a more secured position. Keep in mind that the interviewer's major objective is to improve the bank's position.

Often, we are able to reduce our loss exposure by taking second mortgages on property, liens on household goods, or any other item of security representing value to the customer. Even if the collateral has slight actual value, its worth to the customer may act as a lever to obtain payment. The necessary steps to perfect our lien on the collateral should always be taken.

New Bulletin

Where we are unable to obtain collateral, the customer should be requested to supply us with a satisfactory indorser. If he is able to do so, we should investigate the indorser's credit to determine if he adds any strength to the note before accepting the indorsement. Be very certain that the indorser understands the purpose for the loan, and that he is aware of his obligation, in the event a collection problem arises.

TERMS The interview with the customer establishes the amount of payment he is able to meet. Maturities should be restricted as much as possible, since our object is to collect the balance as rapidly as possible. However, be realistic in setting up terms, otherwise, our overall purpose of working out the customer's debt is defeated.

COLLECTIONS Loans reworked for collection purposes must receive special handling when past due. Routine notices and form letters are not to be used. Notice clerks should be informed that all loans coded as reworks for collection purposes of installment loans, loans and discounts, and CAS, do not receive notices, but should be given to collection personnel for personal handling. In the event of involved collection problems, experienced collection personnel, such as the Recovery Department should be consulted.

REVISION AGREEMENT The Revision Agreement (form #19-988) should be used without exception:

1. Where unsecured loans (L&D and ILD) are reworked for collection purposes.
2. Where CAS accounts are reworked and placed in the Liquidating Accounts cycle.

Replaces Bulletin: "COLLECTIONS - RIGHT OF SET-OFF" Dated 2-28-62

In both Installment Lending and Charge Account Service, we are frequently confronted with questions as to our right to collect past-due obligations by the use of set-off against deposit balances. While the majority of our notes and evidences of debt include an express right of set-off which serves to avoid litigation on this point, our original CAS customer agreements do not expressly recite our right of set-off. In the absence of such wording, our attorneys advise that, based on precedent, a bank has the right to set-off against the amount of a deposit belonging to a customer any matured indebtedness due by that customer to the bank. There is no problem when the account is in the name of the debtor only, but questions arise when the account is a joint one. Our attorney has advised:

> "The right of set-off should not be exercised against an account standing in the name of the debtor and another. This is because, under Georgia law, it is always a question of fact as to who has title to the monies in such an account. Should it be contended by the depositor other than the debtor that the money belonged to him or her and that subsequent to set-off we had wrongfully dishonored checks drawn on the account, the bank would certainly run the risk of incurring liability to a calculated degree.
> The only time it would be judicious to effect such a set-off would be where you have satisfied yourself fully as a matter of fact that the entire monies in the account belong to the debtor. In my opinion the only entirely satisfactory method of proving this would be to have the admission of the co-depositor of that fact".

Prudent use of the right of set-off will avert losses, so we must at all times be alert to exercise the right of set-off against deposit balances on any account if we are in a potential loss situation or if the collection effort exerted would justify or warrant this protection of the bank's interests. Since indiscriminate use of such action could undermine public and customer relations, the approval of the Department Manager is required to initiate it. Should it be known, or the customer's file reveal, that a personal relationship exists between the customer and someone in another area of the bank, it is advisable to consult that person (Officer-of-Account) before exercising the right of set-off.

MATURED INDEBTEDNESS

Any installment or amount past due can automatically be considered as having "matured". In addition, all of our installment instruments contain a provision that failure to pay any installment as agreed will cause the entire balance to be due and payable. On CAS accounts, the balance is due within 30 days unless the customer elects to pay the minimum payment. Therefore, any account that is past due can be considered as having "matured" for the entire balance.

Replaces Bulletin: "COLLECTIONS - RIGHT OF SET-OFF" Dated 11-28-62

CHECKING ACCOUNTS

The right of set-off applies to all demand deposits - both regular and special checking account. No difficulty is encountered in the case of accounts in the name of the debtor only, but where the account is a joint one, before exercising the right of set-off, it is necessary that we determine who has title to the monies in the account. As soon as set-off is contemplated, the Bookkeeping Department should be notified to flag the account.

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

The same care required with regard to the right of set-off of checking accounts must be exercised when savings accounts are to be attached (joint accounts). The right of set-off does apply to both savings accounts and savings certificates; however, the exercise of our rights may present a problem in that the possibility exists that the savings accounts or certificate may have been pledged as security for indebtedness owed to someone other than the bank. We may or may not have been so notified.

The Savings Department should be notified to flag the account for the amount of the anticipated set-off as soon as is contemplated. In such cases it is not necessary to obtain the passbook before set-off is exercised. If litigation should be brought by the depositor or an interested third party, the most that could happen is that we would be required to return the money to the account. No punitive damages could be obtained; thus, we would be in no worse a position than we were to begin with.

In the case of savings certificates, it will be necessary to obtain the certificates from the holder before set-off can be accomplished. By having the Savings Department flag their records of the certificate, we will be given an opportunity to talk with the holder before the certificate is cashed should it be presented for payment.

No pass-book savings accounts may be regarded in the same manner as demand deposit accounts with respect to our right of set-off.

Replaces Bulletin: "COLLECTIONS - RIGHT OF SET-OFF" Dated 11-28-62

NOTIFICATION

The customer should always be notified that the right of set-off is to be, or has been, exercised against his deposit account. He should also be informed as to the status of his installment loan or CAS account as a result of the set-off. Department Managers should exercise judgment as to whether the customer is notified before or at the time set-off action is taken. (To prevent funds from being withdrawn before set-off is exercised, see remarks concerning flagging of accounts in paragraphs CHECKING ACCOUNTS and SAVINGS ACCOUNTS on page 2).

CAS ACCOUNTS

Upon revision, the Customer Agreement form will include a clause regarding the right of set-off. However, we still will not have signed agreements bearing this clause from customers who have already signed the old agreement. Also, it will not be feasible to obtain signed agreements from many of our future customers, particularly on merchant conversion accounts.

It is our attorney's opinion that we have and may exercise the right of set-off even when:

1. We have no signed CAS agreement or note.

2. We have an old style CAS agreement signed which does not state the right of set-off or contain a lien clause.

NATIONAL VS. AFFILIATE BANKS

The right of set-off applies only when both the indebtedness and the deposit account(s) are in the same bank. This means that a deposit account maintained in an affiliate bank cannot be used to set-off an indebtedness held by the national bank. CAS indebtedness will be limited to set-off privileges against national bank deposit balances except in the case of Albany which is limited to set-off privileges within itself.

While legally the instrument of indebtedness could be sold to the bank having the deposit balance, it is our feeling that the adverse public relations resulting from such a sale would outweigh the indebtedness recovery, and our counsel predicts that such action would probably result in litigation. While the selling bank would probably not be criticized, the bank purchasing the right of set-off would be in a definitely critical position. Where the balance of indebtedness is sufficiently large to warrant consideration of such action, the approval of the Central Installment Department will be required.

Replaces Bulletin: "COLLECTIONS - RIGHT OF SET-OFF" Dated 2-28-62

MILITARY ACCOUNTS

Strictly speaking, we should not exercise our right to set off savings and/or checking deposits against indebtedness of military personnel without securing a court order. This also applies to endorsers of loans on which the principal borrower is in the service. We feel that good, clear, reasonable communications between ourselves and the customer/endorser will satisfactorily resolve nearly all of these situations, so that we do not have to use our setoff rights (or request a court order for same). Extensive usage of court orders in such cases would result in more delays in collection, more charge-offs, more legal expense, and less goodwill. We must use this only after all else has failed.

Replaces Bulletin: "COLLECTIONS - SKIPS - LIST OF MOTOR VEHICLE REGISTRATION OFFICES" Dated 4-4-62

There are times when the only means of locating an automobile in which we have an interest is to check with the motor vehicle registration division of the state where it is likely that the "skip" may have located. This is an up-to-date list of registration agency information for your use.

USE OF LIST The various states have different designations for the bureau that handles this information. Attached is an alphabetical list of the proper titles for the various motor vehicle departments and their addresses.

A letter similar to the one reproduced below sent to the motor vehicle department requesting information in regard to your "skip" should always show the motor and/or the serial number of the automobile as well as the name of the registrant. The majority of the states maintain their files according to motor and serial number. In those states where other means of identification is used, such is noted on the listing which follows.

> Please advise us whether or not you show registration for a 1961 Used Pontiac Catalina, Motor No. P27-567243, or any car registered under the name of John D. Doe.
> We are enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope for your use in replying, also our check in payment of your fee for making this search of your files.

FEES INVOLVED Many of the states do not require fees for the information they render. However, a current check with the Georgia Motor Vehicle Registration Office shows fees as indicated on the attached list. Should there be a difference in the fee charged from that shown, the state will usually bill you for making a search of their files for registration information.

State agencies are not only willing to answer your letters but usually proffer whatever information they have on file as to the name and address of the registrant, make, model, and serial number of vehicles, tag numbers, and the date of purchase of the tag. In many cases the name of any lien holder on record is voluntarily given. When you suspect that a car will be registered in a particular state in the future, you may request that the state office note their records of your lien and notify you when the automobile is registered.

ATLANTA AREA PROCEDURE In Atlanta, you may check by telephone with the Motor Vehicle License Unit, Department of Revenue. Files are maintained by motor number (ID), name, and license number, and information pertaining to them may be obtained by calling 577-3560 (8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.). The tag and motor files are set up numerically on a statewide basis, but the name file is set up by counties. When checking the name file, you must specify the county or counties you wish checked. For information relating to a transfer of license, call 577-3560.

SUBJECT SKIPS
TOPIC LOCATION OF

 Date 11/18/69

Revision of Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - SKIPS - LOCATION OF - Dated 8-8-61

Skips are a normal part of consumer credit and collection activity, varying in seriousness from customers who merely fail to give the Bank a forwarding address to those who deliberately keep under cover to avoid payments. Regardless of reason or seriousness, however, the fact that a customer is no longer at the same address is a danger signal calling for prompt and intelligent handling until he is located and collection is achieved.

It is almost impossible for anyone to disappear without leaving behind some traces. The successful location of skips depends on the adjustor's ability to recognize and develop these traces into leads and to work each one to a definite conclusion. As with other phases of collection activity, the ability to locate skips under all circumstances comes with experience and requires common sense, ingenuity, and a planned approach to fit each individual case. The refinements of locating skips are many and varied; consequently, this bulletin is intended to cover only the fundamental approaches that have proved to be successful in the majority of cases.

N The Skip Locater (19-5380) described in this bulletin should be used as soon as there are any of the "Indications of A Skip" shown below.

INDICATIONS OF A SKIP

1. Returned Mail
   The first indication of a skip is usually returned mail; therefore, it is necessary that returned mail be processed immediately. Pull the customer's file folder and ledger card (if available) to see if the address on the returned mail is correct. If correction of an error is the only thing necessary, make sure all bank records are changed. If no error was made, immediately begin personal handling in the form of preliminary checks (see subsequent paragraph).

2. Disconnected Telephone
   Any report of disconnected telephone service should be checked out for a change in telephone number.

3. Customer Moved From Residence
   A potential skip may be indicated when an outside adjustor finds that the customer has moved. If the new residents or neighbors cannot provide the outside adjustor with a forwarding address, he should call the Bank for further instructions before he leaves the neighborhood if he is making an "in town" personal contact.

Revision of Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - SKIPS - LOCATION OF - Dated 8-8-61

If he is "out of town", he should check the customer's employer and follow-up all local leads developed from neighbors, employer, etc., before leaving town. If a sales finance account is involved, the adjustor should contact the dealer for assistance in locating the customer.

TIME VS. FOLLOWUP

Time is the critical factor in the location of skips. The longer it takes to find the skip, the more difficult he is to locate. Leads grow cold, informants forgetful, and the deliberate skip is able to cover his trail more effectively. For these reasons, it is essential that the question posed by a potential skip be resolved at once: "Has the customer merely moved without notifying the Bank or is he a deliberate skip?" Consequently, all leads should be explored, one after the other, until the customer is located. These leads should be checked as soon as possible.

N

USE OF SKIP LOCATER FORM (19-5380)

E
W

This skip tracing form, shown on pages 3 and 4, provides an organized approach to locating skips. In most cases, just going straight down the list on the first page will result in a located customer.

The following comments will be repetitive to some degree, but will probably help shed more light on the process:

1. Review the Ledger Card, Credit and Collection Folder
   Check the ledger card for notations, and the discount sheet, application, correspondence, and collection memorandums for any information that may be useful. Check the note or contract for a different address or telephone number.

   Locations on computer should make certain that computer records reflect correct city and state address.

2. Telephone the Customer's Home
   The customer's telephone number may have been changed due to a local move, or it may have been disconnected or assigned to another party. Follow-up any leads to obtain his current address or any other information that may be useful.

3. Telephone His Employer
   If the employer is local, telephone and find out if the customer still works there; if so, talk to him or make arrangements to do so.

If he does not, talk with his supervisor, personnel office, or co-workers. If the employer is located out of town, write him for this information.

4. Check for Other Accounts with the Bank
A change of address may have been received by another department. If not, alert them to the possibility of a skip and ask them to notify you of any change in the status of his account, as well as any information they may receive about the customer.

5. Telephone His Creditors
Telephone the creditors listed on the discount sheet, application, and previous Credit Bureau report. Notify them of the possibility of a skip and obtain any information they may have. If appropriate, arrange to exchange information as it is developed. The more people who look for him, the more information is developed and the greater the possibility for locating him.

6. Check with the Credit Bureau
Check to see if the bureau has a later report or current address in its file than that in the customer's folder. If not, obtain any later calls or inquiries. Put the Bureau on notice about the potential skip. Ask them to have subsequent inquirers call you.

7. Telephone the Customer's Neighbors
Use a street address telephone directory and contact neighbors. Find out if he has actually moved, and then obtain as much information as possible on the skip and his family.

8. Contact Close Relatives
Use those relatives shown on the discount sheet or application and any others developed during other preliminary checks. Contact them by telephone if they are local, or write them if they live out of town.

Once all obvious leads are worked at the time the skip is first discovered, it becomes necessary to develop new leads and follow each one to a conclusion. When all leads are exhausted, the adjustor must begin again and rework each lead. New developments may have taken place since the lead was last worked, or it is possible that a lead may have been overlooked.

Revision of Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - SKIPS - LOCATION OF - Dated 8-8-61

DEVELOPMENT OF ADDITIONAL LEADS

The successful adjustor will be the one who, through experience, ingenuity, and imagination, is able to develop additional leads. The greater the number of leads, the better the opportunity for locating the skip. All leads must be worked to a conclusion. Some will produce a "dead end"; others will produce more new leads. It is this evolution of leads that allows the adjustor to collect enough information to lead him to the skip. Here are some of the many possibilities:

1. Any reference listed on the application that is not provided for on the Skip Locater form.
2. Union officials.
N 3. Department stores. Sometimes a department store is not a credit bureau member, and it is possible that a "hunch" call to Sears, for instance, might get you the needed information.
4. Police department.
5. Social Welfare agencies.
6. County or city tax office.
7. Credit Union. There is also a possibility here of getting names of persons who were "co-makers" on loans with the customer.
8. If military, see COLLECTIONS - MILITARY PERSONNEL - SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CIVIL RELIEF ACT.

FOLLOW-UP METHODS

1. Long Distance Telephone Calls
A person-to-person long distance call may be placed COLLECT to the skip at a relative's residence or any other likely location. The telephone company operators will often assist in obtaining leads when the skip has "moved on". They will also help to locate telephone numbers and addresses of leads in distant cities; for example, his probable new employer when the name and city are known, but no address or telephone number. When making long distance calls to promising leads (not the skip), do not place them collect.

N 2. Post Office Assistance
If known to them, the Post Office will provide forwarding addresses of persons who have moved. Senders should address a letter to the last known address and write "Address Correction Requested" below his return address. If the Post Office can deliver the letter it will notify the sender of the new address and charge a fee of 10¢.

A note of caution: Sender should include his name in the return address so no difficulty will be encountered in getting this information back to the sender himself.

Applies to: OTC, SF, CAS

Replaces pages 7 and 8 only of: COLLECTIONS - SKIPS - LOCATION OF Dated 11/18/69

These two follow-up methods are useful in the tracing of most skips; however, there are many other methods, and their use depends on the circumstances of the particular skip and the plan of approach being used. Here again, imagination, ingenuity, and good judgment are the deciding factors in determining what methods to apply and which are most likely to produce results.

USE OF THE OUTSIDE ADJUSTOR

Some leads require follow-up by an outside personal contact. When this is necessary, be certain that the outside adjustor is given complete information and that he is thoroughly briefed on what is expected of him. Follow-up of leads by personal contact is both time consuming and expensive. Therefore, whenever possible, leads should be followed by mail and telephone. Outside calls should be kept to a minimum, but when they are needed, they should be thorough and effective.

REFERRAL OF SKIP CASES

Other banks will assist you in locating the skip or in working a promising lead. However, this does not mean that other banks will perform the adjustor's job for him. Only leads of real promise should be referred, and referrals should be made in accordance with the instructions in Operating Guide Bulletin: FOREIGN CLAIMS - REFERRALS TO OTHER BANKS, AGENCIES. R R

TIPS ON SKIP TRACING

As in all collection work, each skip is an individual case and must be handled as such. The plan of approach, the development of leads, and the methods of follow-up must be tailored to each situation. The following "tips" are factors which apply in the tracing of all skips. They should be reviewed and kept in mind whenever a skip is worked and will help to keep the adjustor from "spinning his wheels".

1. Time is of the utmost importance in locating the skip; it may be the difference between finding him and failure.
2. Assume the attitude that every source of information you contact knows more about the skip than you do.
3. Each skip is different and requires individual attention and follow-up tailored to its peculiarities.
4. Follow-up a number of leads at one time. Don't work one "hot" lead to the exclusion of other leads; it may lead to a dead end.

Applies To: OTC, SF, CAS

Replaces pages 7 and 8 only of: COLLECTIONS - SKIPS - LOCATION OF Dated 11-18-69.

5. Work every lead that is obtained. Don't discard one until you know that is is of no value.
6. Contact your sources of information again; they may have heard from the skip since the last contact.
7. Think of the skip and his wife as a team; get all the information you can on both of them.

D

8. Use your imagination and play your hunches. The more experienced you become, the more your efforts will become "instinctive".
9. Seek help. Others have been "over the road" before. Sometimes a new eye can spot a lead or clue that you have missed.
10. When you find him and do not conclude the account by collection in full or repossession, SECURE A COMPLETE NEW CREDIT APPLICATION.

SECURING FORMS

ELIGIBILITY

This program is available to C&S National Bank, its affiliates, and wholly owned subsidiaries.

An Automobile Physical Damage Insurance Program is now available through the C&S Agency. Although it is primarily a Sales Finance program, it is also available to our Over-The-Counter lenders. Rates are not competitive enough, however, for this program to be attractive to our top-echelon branch customer.

The C&S Agency receives income on this program through a retrospective commission arrangement. Briefly, this means the Agency receives credit for the premiums and pays all losses. The amount remaining, after deducting the insurance company fee, is the commission. Where practical, profits or losses are pro-rated to individual branches based on their own insurance experience.

The standard rated policies are written through American Security Insurance Company. Non-standard rated policies are written through Standard Guaranty Insurance Company, a subsidiary of American Security Insurance Company.

Copies of forms and letters are included at the end of this bulletin. PLEASE USE NO FORM LETTERS OTHER THAN SHOWN IN THIS BULLETIN.

PROCEDURE

Following is the sequence of steps necessary to place Physical Damage Insurance through the C&S Agency. Illustrations and sample forms are shown on the last pages of this bulletin. It is written for a Sales Finance location. Branches in Atlanta should call the C&S Agency for help in each case. Branches outside Atlanta should call their local Sales Finance Department.

Dealer: Completes Rating Statement (page 6) and rates policy, using manual supplied by C&S Agency. Phones in to Sales Finance unit.

Lender: Takes loan application. Completes Rating Statement based on information secured from dealer, and attaches it to discount sheet. Verifies rates using manual supplied by C&S Agency. Makes credit decision, based on overall transaction, including insurance premium and term.

Discount Clerk: When contract is discounted, discount clerk draws check payable to C&S Agency, Inc. Orders Retail Credit Automobile Inquiry, mailing out in pre-addressed envelopes. See sample on page 12 of this bulletin for instructions for completion and distribution of copies. Computes the dealer compensation, makes necessary entries on the discount sheet, and prepares General Ledger entries. (See following paragraphs entitled Sales Finance Dealer Compensation.)

NEW BULLETIN

C&S Agency: Immediately issues policy based on information furnished by the branch.

NOTE: If the premium has been incorrectly computed and an additional amount of more than $2.00 is needed, the policy will not be issued. C&S Agency will prepare and send a PREMIUM NOTICE for the amount needed, allowing 15 days to send this in. If not received by C&S Agency within the time limit, a Policy Cancellation Notice will be sent to the customer and the return premium sent to the branch.

If more than $2.00 excess premium has been collected, the policy will be issued for the correct amount and a check for the difference will be forwarded to the branch.

Lender: Places original policy in customer's file. Sends copy to customer along with Customer Policy Transmittal Letter.

C&S Agency: Upon receipt (normally 30-60 days) of the completed Retail Credit Automobile Inquiry, re-evaluates the risk. If further action is necessary, the agency will send out an Action Notice to the branch, which will contain full information as to the action needed.

SALES FINANCE DEALER COMPENSATION

The dealer will be compensated for placing insurance at the rate of 10% on all policies issued in American Security (standard rated policies) and 5% on all policies issued in Standard Guaranty (non-standard rated policies). No compensation will be made to dealers on renewal policies, bank placements, or single interest coverage. The dealer will be compensated only for the insurance premiums he adds to a note at the point of sale. No amount will be paid on additional premiums which may be collected as a result of a dealer mis-rating a policy or as a result of underwriting factors.

There will be no charge back to the Dealer's Contingent Reserve account for cancellations unless the policy is cancelled within the first sixty days because of underwriting factors. In these cases, the entire amount credited to the dealer should be recovered. It is recommended that the dealer be paid monthly, however, the decision as to when and how often the contingent reserve will be paid will be left to the discretion of each office.

CREDIT PROCEDURE

1. Discount clerk calculates amount due (either 5% or 10%) and enters it on the discount sheet in the space for Dealer Contingent Reserve. (See point "A" on sample discount sheet on page 11.

NEW BULLETIN

2. Make offsetting entry by completing a General Ledger debit ticket charging Miscellaneous Expense - General - Auto Insurance Participation basic account #97810-000.
3. Enter the amount on the discount sheet in the space for "Cash Funds Received". (See point "B" on sample discount sheet.)

CHARGE-BACK PROCEDURE

When a policy is cancelled within the first sixty days because of underwriting factors, the C&S Agency will notify the branch so that the proper entries can be made. See sample Policy Cancellation Notice on page 8.

1. Debit the Dealer Contingent Reserve Account, (Those offices on the computer must show the customer's account number in order for the printout to show the customer's name) using form #19-1250, transaction code 92D.
2. Complete a General Ledger ticket crediting Miscellaneous Expense - General - Auto Insurance Participation account, basic account #97810-000.

TERMS

It is recommended that, wherever possible, insurance be written for the full term of the loan. However, we are accepting short-term policies, with a minimum acceptable length of one year. Policies issued for less than term of loan will automatically be renewed by C&S Agency for the then-remaining term of the loan. After a loan is paid out, we cannot issue renewal coverage, however, when a loan pays in full before the expiration date of an existing insurance policy, that policy continues in force.

BANK PLACEMENT

There will be instances where our customers fail to secure insurance as they agreed to do, or where their insurance has been cancelled for non-payment of premium or underwriting reasons. This insurance is available in these instances. The procedure here is to contact the customer and secure the information required by the Rating Statement, and then to follow the procedure previously outlined in this bulletin. The policy must be written for the remaining term of the loan, adjusted to the nearest quarterly increment, with a minimum period of 12 months.

Example: Remaining term 9 months.
Policy to be written for 12 months.

Example: Remaining term 16 months.
Policy to be written for 15 months.

No dealer reserve or commission is paid on bank placements. If necessary to [illegible] Single Interest coverage, other criteria apply. See bulletin: INSURANCE-AUTOMOBILE PHYSICAL DAMAGE-SINGLE INTEREST COVERAGE.

NEW BULLETIN

CLAIMS

C&S Agency's Claim Department supervises and pays all the claims. The services of independent adjusting firms are used in most instances. The local Sales Finance offices have the necessary forms, and have a person designated to secure basic claim data and complete the Notice of Loss forms. All claims should be handled through these designated persons. (In Atlanta, refer claims to C&S Agency).

RENEWALS

The C&S Agency will start renewal followup 45 days prior to expiration date. In all cases where it is felt that the renewal will be accepted by the customer, the policy will be issued for the remaining term of the loan. A statement for the premium due will be sent to the branch along with the original and one copy of the policy. As soon as this is received, the branch will send a Renewal Transmittal Letter (page 7) to the customer, along with the customer's copy of the policy. The letter sets forth payment options and requires a response at least ten days prior to expiration date if the customer (a) does not want coverage through C&S Agency, or (b) does not want it added to his loan. If no reply is received, add the premium (plus finance charge) to his loan, following procedures in the bulletin INSURANCE - PAYMENT SCHEDULE - CHANGES. The original policy should be filed in the customer's file and the copy sent to the customer.

The full amount of the premium must be received by the C&S Agency prior to the renewal date. If it is not received, the C&S Agency will cancel the policy and will send a Policy Cancellation Notice to the customer, and a copy to the branch.

Occasionally, there will be a question as to whether a premium will be accepted by the customer. In these cases, a policy will not be issued. Instead, C&S Agency will send a Notice to Branch of Non-Renewal. If the branch contacts the customer and determines renewal is desired, the customer can usually be offered three options for payment:

1. Direct payment by cash or check.
2. CAS Instant Money.
3. Rework the account.

MAKE CERTAIN THE PREMIUM REACHES THE AGENCY PRIOR TO THE EXPIRATION DATE.

CANCELLATIONS

A. Customer Request:

Each Sales Finance Office will compute the return premium by using the Ronoco Calculator (Wheel). Complete a "Return Premium Advice" Ticket in triplicate. (In Atlanta, branches should phone the C&S Agency, who will handle the previously described two steps. Branches outside Atlanta should contact the local Sales Finance Office.) Attach the original and one copy to the original policy and forward to the C&S

Agency in Atlanta. The Agency will issue a check for the return premium and forward it to the branch by return mail. The third copy of the "Advice" should be used by the branch for followup. In these cases, it is the responsibility of each branch to make certain that the customer is aware that the insurance is being cancelled. The C&S Agency will confirm directly to the customer that the policy has been cancelled, using Cancellation Confirmation letter (page 9). A copy of the letter will be sent to the local office. The Return Premium Check will be payable to the local office. Careful consideration should be given to the use of these funds. They may be used to purchase other insurance, or they may be credited to the loan balance.

There may be isolated cases where the branch may return the funds directly to the customer. This should never be done without first carefully considering all factors including equity and payment record.

Followup routines for renewals and cancellations are found in the bulletins: SALES FINANCE - AUTOMOBILE LOANS - INSURANCE FOLLOWUP and OVER THE COUNTER - AUTOMOBILE LOANS - INSURANCE FOLLOWUP.

Single Interest Premiums (Fire, Theft & Collision)
$10.00 Minimum Earned Premium

Premiums for less than 12 months compute by pro-rating 12 month premium to nearest month.

RULES APPLYING TO SINGLE INTEREST COVERAGE

1. Single Interest coverage must be written for the term of the contract.
2. Premiums are based upon the unpaid balance due at the time coverage attaches.
3. Premiums apply only where the contract or loan agreement calls for equal monthly or quarterly installments. Single payment contracts - double the premium indicated above. All other - refer to Agency.
4. Rates and premiums apply only to private passenger automobiles, light commercial and trucks under 1-½ ton capacity. Taxi-cabs, jitneys, any public or livery conveyance, ambulances and emergency equipment, long haul commercial, heavy equipment and truck-trailer are not eligible.

OPERATING BULLETIN

SECTION	INSURANCE
SUBJECT	AUTOMOBILE PHYSICAL DAMAGE
TOPIC	SINGLE INTEREST COVERAGE
Page	1 of 5 Date 12-1-70

NEW BULLETIN

THIS COVERAGE SHOULD BE USED ONLY IN THOSE CASES WHERE WE ARE FACING A REPOSSESSION BECAUSE THE CUSTOMER FAILED TO FURNISH US WITH EVIDENCE OF ADEQUATE INSURANCE COVERAGE. Single Interest Coverage Insurance is physical damage insurance available to a creditor only. It provides protection only for us, and not for the customer. It should be used only in those cases when:

1. Dual interest coverage is cancelled after a loan is acquired, and/or,
2. Customer is unable to secure dual interest coverage, and/or,
3. Premium for dual interest coverage is so high that the customer is unable to make the payments.

NOTE: THIS COVERAGE SHOULD NEVER BE USED AT INCEPTION OF LOAN. This coverage provides protection for the creditor only, and applies only after repossession, when damage exists.

ELIGIBILITY

Presently eligible are C&S National Banks, its affiliate banks, and wholly owned subsidiaries.

PROCEDURE

Please use no form letters other than shown or mentioned in this bulletin. Here is the procedure:

1. Complete and mail to C&S Agency the APPLICATION FOR SINGLE INTEREST INSURANCE (see page 4). To determine amount of premium due, use the Single Interest Rate Schedule. Single Interest Rate Schedule is not shown in this bulletin. Obtain from C&S Agency, Atlanta.
2. Charge the customer's account with the premium and finance charge using the procedure described in the bulletin: INSURANCE-PAYMENT SCHEDULE-CHANGES.
3. C&S Agency will issue an Insurance Certificate to the branch. The customer DOES NOT get a copy.
4. No followup is needed.

NOTIFICATION OF PARTIES

It is our duty to notify endorsers and dealers (recourse) of any material change in the amount that affects their liability. It is vital that we give immediate notification to all parties involved of this type of insurance placement. Prepare and send the "Single Interest Letter" (page 5) to:

1. The customer. Send by certified mail.
2. The recourse dealer (if applicable).
3. The endorser (if applicable).
4. The adjuster for information only at this point.
5. Customer file. Attach copy of certified mail Certificate of Mailing.

NEW BULLETIN

The dealer's (or endorser's) liability has increased now, and we should make it clear to him by typing, rubberstamping, or attaching the following message to the Single Interest Letter:

> "The premium and applicable finance charges have been added to this account. This premium becomes fully earned upon payment of any claim under this policy."

CANCELLATIONS

These can occur because of a payoff of the account, or because the customer belatedly took steps to get dual interest coverage, and we were given notice of this after we had already written single interest coverage. When either occurs, you should immediately figure the rebate and take steps to cancel the coverage, and reschedule the account.

Single Interest Coverage cancellations are always computed on the 78ths method. Use Standard Installment Loan Rebate Chart. Indicate clearly on the Single Interest Certificate the date of cancellation and amount of return premium. Send it to the C&S Agency, who will forward the return premium check to the branch.

Note 1. Minimum earned premium is $10.00.
2. There is no rebate on policies on which a claim has been paid.

CLAIMS PROCEDURE

When the insured automobile has been permanently repossessed after it has been severely damaged(or destroyed) by fire, theft, or collision. notify the person in your area assigned to handle insurance losses. This person will assign the loss to a qualified insurance adjuster who will establish the amount of loss by applying the 4-way formula shown below.

1. Value of the car before the loss $_____
   Less net salvage value _____
   Insurance Company pays _____
2. Cost of repairs _____
   Insurance Company pays _____
3. Unpaid balance _____
   Less net salvage value _____
   Insurance Company pays _____
4. Unpaid balance _____
   Plus cost of repairs _____
   Less agreed value of car after repairs _____
   Insurance Company pays _____

The insurance company's liability will be the lowest total.

NEW BULLETIN

The unpaid balance will include payments NOT MORE than sixty (60) days past due. The unpaid balance is the gross balance, less the rebate of unearned finance charges.

The value of the car before the loss will never be considered to exceed the wholesale value as shown in current used-car guide books, such as NADA or Red Book.

The cost of repairs will include damage incurred in the collision, fire, etc., but will NOT include an accumulation of minor damage, motor re-conditioning, etc.

SINGLE INTEREST LETTER

When you purchased your automobile, you agreed to secure comprehensive and collision insurance, and to furnish us with evidence of this coverage. Since you have not done so, we have secured insurance coverage to protect our interest in the vehicle.

The premium for this "single-interest" insurance, along with finance charges, has been added to your loan. This amount and the amount of your new monthly payment are shown below. A new payment book will be sent to you in the next few days.

Premium and Finance Charge For Remaining Term	New Monthly Payment	Beginning Month

SECTION INSURANCE

SUBJECT BOATS & MOTORS

TOPIC

 Date 1-1-64

Replaces Bulletin: "INSURANCE - BOATS AND MOTORS", Dated 1-31-62

Effective January 1, 1964, our present Boat and Motor Insurance policy is being cancelled and reissued. The new policy (number MAR-6651) will be issued by the same carrier, American Southern Insurance Company; however, the general agent (The Farm Agency) is being eliminated. In general, procedures for issuing certificates and handling losses are unchanged, except that all contact will now be made directly with the American Southern Insurance Company instead of The Farm Agency.

Certificate copies, premium remittance and loss reporting should be made to:

American Southern Insurance Company
56 Tenth Street, N. E.
Atlanta 9, Georgia

Telephone number (873-2251)

A change in procedure has also been made with regard to extensions. Please review the paragraph covering these procedures on page 7.

We will continue to work with The Farm Agency using the existing procedures and forms until 1-1-64. This bulletin becomes effective on that date and the procedure contained herein must then be followed. Prior to 1-1-64, a representative of the American Southern Insurance Company will call on all ILD managers of offices where Boat and Motor insurance is written. New procedures will be reviewed, questions answered and new supplies delivered. Those managers involved should review this bulletin immediately so that all questions may be resolved during this visit.

All boat and motor dealers must be notified of these changes and be instructed in the new procedure for reporting losses.

DEALER "PACKAGE" Our "all risk" (exclusive of "liability" coverage) group insurance policy covering outboard boats and motors, inboards, sailboats, trailers, and accessories enables us to offer a complete financing "package" to boat dealers. This "complete" plan stands on a competitive basis with plans offered by other major purchasers of boat dealer paper. (See Operating Guide Bulletin: SALES FINANCE - BOAT AND MOTOR FINANCING). In addition, our "package" offers dealers a number of distinct advantages because of the inclusion of insurance coverage:

1. The dealer can complete the closing of his sale. It is not necessary for him to quote a boat price and then obtain an insurance quote from an outside source.

2. The dealer is able to place immediate coverage upon delivery and is provided with protection in the event of a rejection.

3. The dealer is able to offer "all risk" (less liability) insurance to his customer at the lowest possible rate.

Replaces Bulletin: "INSURANCE - BOATS AND MOTORS", Dated 1-31-62

4. The dealer is able to provide "one stop" sales service for his customers.

5. The dealer is assured of additional business in repairs and replacement sales and thus is better able to retain his customer.

From the bank's standpoint, the existence of this policy eliminates the need for insurance follow-up or Coverage Failure Insurance and also provides us with a dealer "selling tool" in the form of a complete "financing package".

We should continue to make every effort to sell all boat dealers on utilizing this insurance coverage. In a few cases, the boat dealer will also be an insurance agent or have a retrospective association with an insurance company. In these instances, insistence on the use of our plan may be unwise and there is no objection to working with the dealer under such an arrangement. However, in the majority of cases, in the acquisition of new dealers, our complete "package" inclusive of an "all risk" low rate insurance policy will be both attractive and advantageous to the dealer, the customer and the bank.

INSURANCE CARRIER Coverage is provided by individual certificates issued under a master policy, MAR-6651, written by American Southern Insurance Company. The master policy is on file in the Central Installment Department, Atlanta. The individual certificate constitutes a copy of the master policy (see page 2).

ASSUREDS This is a multi-interest policy protecting the purchaser, dealer and the Bank as their interest may appear on an "all risk" (less liability coverage) basis consistent with the provisions of the policy. (See subsequent paragraph - "PERILS COVERED").

MERCHANDISE ELIGIBLE FOR COVERAGE Any outboard boat and/or motor, inboard boat or sailboat together with any equipment (including trailers) listed on our Conditional Sales Contract may be covered under the policy. This policy makes no distinction between marine equipment to be used in fresh or salt water. Prospective purchasers of inboard cabin cruisers and large sailboats will probably desire more protection than afforded under this policy. In such cases, the customer and/or dealer may provide insurance from an outside source as long as the coverage afforded is inclusive of the perils covered under our policy. (Important - See subsequent paragraph "COVERAGE FROM OTHER SOURCES").

PERILS COVERED Any loss or damage to the merchandise insured, consistent with the conditions, exclusions and provisions of the policy, is covered. Review of these exclusions and conditions should be made from the illustration on the Certificate of Insurance on page 2.

EFFECTIVE DATE Coverage is effective as of the date funds are disbursed on a direct loan or on the date of delivery in the case of dealer paper.

Replaces Bulletin: "INSURANCE - BOATS AND MOTORS", Dated 1-31-62

DEALER PROTECTION FOR DELIVERED REJECTIONS In the few cases where the dealer makes delivery prior to approval by the Bank (Saturday afternoon, etc.) and where he has sold coverage under our policy, this policy will provide the dealer with protection for a 5 day period beginning with the date the dealer is notified of the rejection. When the contract is rejected, the dealer should be notified by telephone and a letter of confirmation mailed to him the same day. A copy of this letter is to be sent to the American Southern Insurance Company. The expiration time of this "binder coverage" will be 12:01 A. M. on the sixth day (including date dealer is notified). This protection for the dealer is provided so that he may have time to contact the customer and either discount the contract elsewhere or repossess the merchandise. No certificate need be issued to initiate this "binder coverage".

SAMPLE DEALER REJECTION LETTER

Dear (Mr. Dealer):

This will confirm our telephone conversation earlier today. For reasons already discussed, we are unable to purchase your contract on (customer's name) which is enclosed.

Since the merchandise involved has been both delivered and covered under our insurance plan, protection will extend to you until 12:01 A. M. (date). At that time, all coverages under the policy will become cancelled.

Sincerely,

Should a claim arise during this binder period, the selling dealer should contact the American Southern Insurance Company and the details of handling will be worked out on an individual basis. Rejections where delivery has not yet been made or where our insurance coverage is not involved should be handled in the normal manner.

LIMITS OF LIABILITY As in most casualty insurance policies, the rate of premium is dependent on our loss experience. In order to eliminate the many inconsequential losses that will occur, all claims are subject to a $25 deductible provision. Total losses are limited to the actual cash value of the merchandise at the time of loss (less salvage). Partial losses are limited to the cost of repairs or replacement.

SINGLE INTEREST PROTECTION FOR THE BANK In the event of a single interest settlement to the Bank, the policy will pay the cost of repairs, or in the case of a "total loss", either the Bank's net unpaid balance or the actual cash value of the merchandise at the time of loss (less salvage), whichever is less.

Because certificates are written with an expiration date matching the due date of the final installment, additional automatic protection for the Bank during the handling of past due final installments has been written into the policy. This affords us with single interest coverage for 60 days after individual certificates expire.

Coverage Failure Insurance should not be placed on any transaction covered under this policy because of the single interest protection afforded the Bank.

TERMINATION OF COVERAGE Coverage under this policy terminates on the expiry date shown on each individual certificate or upon cancellation by the assureds (customer or bank) or by the insurance company. (See subsequent paragraph - "CANCELLATION").

COST OF COVERAGE The premium rate is $4 per hundred per year of the TOTAL CASH SELLING PRICE excluding sales tax for outboard boats, motors, trailers and accessories. The rate of inboard boats, sailboats, trailers and accessories is $5 per hundred per year of the TOTAL CASH SELLING PRICE, excluding sales tax.

ISSUING CERTIFICATES AND PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS As loans are made and contracts are received that are to covered by insurance:

1. Compute the cost of insurance at the appropriate rate per year on the TOTAL CASH PRICE. Show the cost of insurance on the Discount Sheet as a credit to the American Southern Insurance Company.

2. Complete the insurance certificate by filling in the spaces provided which are self-explanatory (see previous illustration). Be sure the name of your bank is shown in the space provided in the center of the certificate.

3. Mail the original to the purchaser in a window envelope (9-311).

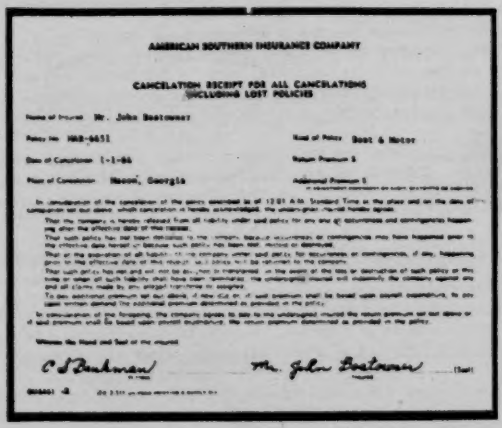
4. Fill in the amount of premium in the space provided on "Lienholder's Copy" and the "Company Copy". The "Company Copy" should be sent to the American Southern Insurance Company on a daily basis, with a check (payable to American Southern) to cover the total premium on all certificates issued that day.

5. The "Lienholder's Copy" should be retained in file as evidence of coverage.

CANCELLATION When an account is paid before final maturity, insurance does not have to be cancelled, but may be left in force until the certificate expires. If a customer specifically requests the cancellation of his coverage when paying off in advance, he should be directed to send the original certificate to the American Southern Insurance Company for cancellation. The insurance company will then compute the return premium and remit a draft (payable to the customer and the Bank) to the Bank. Verification that the account has been paid out should be made before endorsing the draft and forwarding it to the customer.

If the customer cannot produce the original certificate, he should be given a Lost Policy Release to complete.

REPLACES BULLETIN: INSURANCE - BOATS AND MOTORS, Dated 1-31-62



AMERICAN SOUTHERN INSURANCE COMPANY

CANCELATION RECEIPT FOR ALL CANCELATIONS
INCLUDING LOST POLICIES

Name of Insured Mr. John Boatowner

Policy No. HAB-6451 Kind of Policy Boat & Motor

Date of Cancelation 1-1-64 Return Premium $

Place of Cancelation Macon, Georgia Additional Premium $

In consideration of the cancelation of the policy described as of 12:01 A.M. Standard Time at the place and on the date of cancelation set out above, which cancelation is hereby acknowledged, the undersigned hereby requests

That the company, its agents, officers from all liability under said policy for any loss or occurrences and contingencies happening after the effective date of this receipt.

That such policy has not been terminated by the company because of occurrences or contingencies may have happened prior to the effective date hereof or because such policy has been lost, mislaid or destroyed.

That at the expiration of all liability of the company under said policy for occurrences or contingencies, if any, happening prior to the effective date of this receipt, all notices will be returned to the company.

That such policy has not and will not be sold, loaned or transferred, or the event of the loss or destruction of such policy or the loss or theft of such liability shall have been terminated, the undersigned insured will indemnify the company against any and all claims made by any person or persons in connection.

To pay additional premium for any change in the risk or if said premium shall be based upon payroll expenditure, to pay upon written demand the additional premium determined as provided in the policy.

In consideration of the foregoing, the company agrees to pay to the undersigned insured the return premium set out above or if said premium shall be based upon payroll expenditure, the return premium determined as provided in the policy.

Witness the hand and seal of the insured.

C S Bankman

Mr. John Boatowner (Seal)

Where the bank requests cancellation due to repossession, all that is needed is a letter to that effect sent to the insurance company. The return premium will be sent directly to the bank and should be applied to the customer's account. The letter requesting cancellation must give a specific date for cancellation. This date should be the date the merchandise was sold by the Bank on the date the contract was repurchased by the dealer.

EXTENSIONS When accounts are extended past their original final maturity, insurance must likewise be extended. The procedure will be the same as in the past except that the extended coverage will be placed under the new policy. Do not extend coverage using a Farm Agency certificate. The cost of insurance in such cases will be computed on the ORIGINAL CASH SELLING PRICE at the original premium rate per year. The annual premium thus obtained should then be divided by 12 and multiplied by the number of months which the account is to be extended. A new AMERICAN SOUTHERN CERTIFICATE should be issued showing the previous expiry date in the space "From (Date of Contract)" and the new extended expiry date in the space "Date of Final Payment". In addition, the word "EXTENSION" should be typed on the certificate above the "(Date of Contract)". With the above modifications, the handling of the extension certificate will be the same as the handling of the certificate on new contracts.

RATE CHART INSERT For the benefit of dealers and their salesmen, a new rate chart insert has been prepared describing this coverage. This insert should be included in all rate chart books supplied to dealers using this insurance plan.

OVER-THE-COUNTER LOANS Over-The-Counter transactions may be insured following the general procedures outlined for dealer-originated contracts.

BANKS OTHER THAN CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN The coverages under this policy are available to any correspondent bank on the same basis as C&S Banks. Any correspondent bank desiring this coverage should be referred to the System Consumer Credit Department, Atlanta.

COVERAGE FROM OTHER SOURCES Whenever our policy is not used and the dealer is not on a retrospective plan with American Southern Insurance Company, (see subsequent paragraph on "RETROSPECTIVE PLAN AVAILABLE"), equivalent coverage must be provided by the customer. In such cases, the bank should be named "Loss Payee". All such loans or contracts should be covered with Coverage Failure Insurance, (if eligible - $5,000 or less being financed). If Coverage Failure Insurance is requisitioned, a Statement of Insurance must be obtained signed by the customer and the dealer.

REPORTING LOSSES

American Southern Insurance Company, working with the selling dealer, will adjust all losses. This arrangement is advantageous for the customer, the dealer, and the Bank.

For the customer, it means faster adjustment service, since in most cases an estimate of repairs or replacement, supplied by the selling dealer, will be all that will be necessary and the merchandise can then be repaired locally with less delay.

For the dealer, it helps to assure that the selling dealer will get the repair or replacement business and thus not lose his customer to another dealer.

For the Bank, such an arrangement takes us completely out of the adjustment picture and, more important, helps us to sell the advantages of our "package plan" because of the insurance company working closely with the selling dealer.

All claims should be reported directly to the American Southern Insurance Company, 56 Tenth Street, N. E., Atlanta, Georgia 30309, (873-2251) by the purchaser, the dealer, or the Bank.

IMPORTANT

1. Do not assign the loss to a commercial insurance adjustor.
2. No repairs should be made before the loss is reported to the insurance company. An estimate of repairs should be submitted, by the selling dealer, to American Southern to assist in their adjustment of the loss.

Drafts in payment of partial losses will be made payable to the customer and the repairing dealer and remitted directly to the customer. Drafts in payment of total losses will be made payable to the customer and the Bank and sent to the Bank. Single interest settlements will be payable to the Bank.

RETROSPECTIVE INSURANCE PLAN AVAILABLE The American Southern Insurance Company, is prepared to set-up any of our volume boat dealers as insurance agents under a retrospective plan. (Such a plan is feasible only with volume dealers.) This kind of an arrangement is satisfactory to us. In such instances the insurance provided will be equivalent to our group policy from a coverage standpoint, but will not be issued under our policy. The selling dealer will issue his own certificate and a copy of the certificate must accompany each contract submitted to us. Where the cost of the premium is financed in our contract, it should be remitted to the dealer along with the proceeds of the contract.

If the bank should need to request cancellation due to repossession, a letter to that effect should be sent to the dealer who issued the policy. The return premium will be sent to the bank and should be applied to the customer's account.

In a retrospective plan, the dealer becomes a licensed insurance agent and, as such, should deal directly with the American Southern Insurance Company. We do not want to become involved any more than we would with any insurance agent. Should a dealer (or a prospective boat dealer) indicate interest in this retrospective plan, the American Southern Insurance Company should be notified and they will handle directly with dealer from that point forward.

Under this type of plan, the insurance company has agreed to furnish the bank with single interest coverage in the event that cancellation becomes necessary by them or the dealer (agent). For this reason, and because the certificate is obtained with the contract, it is not necessary to provide Coverage Failure Insurance for transactions originating from dealers who are retrospective agents under American Southern.

ORDERING FORMS Requirements of Certificates and Lost Policy Releases should be ordered from the American Southern Insurance Company.

NEW BULLETIN

The Citizens and Southern Agency, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of the C&S Holding Company, has been formed to handle insurance coverage that is directly related to customer loans with eligible banks. The Agency is presently developing various insurance programs. Bulletins describing each program will be issued as soon as each becomes available.

ELIGIBILITY

Presently eligible are C&S National Banks, affiliate banks, and wholly owned subsidiaries.

SPECIAL EXCLUSIONS

The C&S Agency does not handle:

1. Such property insurance, workmen's compensation, blanket bonds, and general liability bonds as required to cover bank property, employees, or liability. These coverages remain the responsibility of the Comptroller's Department.

2. Insurance not directly related to a loan.

3. Coverages that are Employee Benefits. These continue to be the responsibility of the Personnel Department.

INCOME AND LOSS ALLOCATION

Where practical, profits will be pro-rated to individual branches based on their own insurance experience and/or premium volume.

REPORTS AND ORDERING FORMS

C&S Agency will automatically furnish each branch with statistical information as needed. Information on ordering forms will be given in each individual bulletin.

SUBJECT COVERAGE FAILURE

TOPIC

 Date 12-4-67

NEW BULLETIN: File in front of bulletin dated 4-18-62

For many years we have had worthwhile savings in clerical expense by using Coverage Failure Insurance in lieu of following for evidence of insurance on automobiles that we finance. Starting in 1966, however, the loss ratio under this blanket insurance policy has progressively increased to the point that our insurance premium would need to be increased substantially to continue the coverage. In addition, all indications point to progressively higher premiums as time goes on.

After a careful review of the cost factors involved, we have concluded that the best course of action is to discontinue Coverage Failure Insurance and return to a strict followup for individual policies protecting our interest as well as the customer's equity.

American Southern Insurance Company will continue to insure loans made up to 1-1-68, however, followup for outside insurance should start immedately upon receipt of this bulletin.

EXISTING INSURED LOANS

Loans on which a Coverage Failure Insurance premium has been paid will still be covered; however, it is extremely doubtful if the unearned premium held by the insurance company will be sufficient to cover future losses unless we take additional steps to prevent claims. We have agreed to try to minimize losses by taking these steps:

1. Whenever any indication of lapse of insurance or possible lapse of insurance is received (i.e. premium notice, cancellation notice, checks covering losses, etc.), immediately verify the existence of insurance coverage and maintain a followup until you have a policy meeting our requirements.

2. As file folders on automobile loans are pulled for collection or any other purposes, check to be sure that you have insurance for the life of your loan. If you do not have a policy - take action to get one and maintain a followup. If you have a policy which expires prior to the end of your loan (other than automatic renewable policies, i.e., State Farm and Allstate) - prepare a followup card to come up 30 days in advance of the expiry date.

3. If any sales finance dealers are aware that you have had Coverage Failure Insurance, be sure that they are told that our Coverage Failure Insurance is cancelled. Dealers should not know that you are covered on unavoidable losses.

If these precautions are followed religiously, it should not become necessary to take the further step of verifying coverage on all outstanding auto loans.

NEW BULLETIN: File in front of bulletin dated 4-18-62

CLAIMS ON EXISTING INSURED LOANS

After exhausting all possible collection efforts short of legal action, claims will still be handled as outlined in our bulletin of 4-11-62.

INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS - AUTO LOANS

It is an accepted fact that automobiles that are pledged as collateral must be adequately insured against loss or damage. This is sound business practice for the borrower as well as the lender. In connection with C & S automobile loans:

1. Comprehensive and at least $100 deductible collision insurance is mandatory.

2. We require a copy of the insurance policy with our interest named in the policy.

3. Liability insurance is not a loan requirement, but our customers should be encouraged to have this coverage for their own protection.

4. The customer should be encouraged to include insurance for the full term of the loan.

It is important that we point out the customer advantage of full term insurance -- no annual or semi-annual premium coming due at a time that may not be convenient -- financing the total amount provides insurance protection without lapse for the period of the loan. The insurance premium can be financed as part of the automobile loan on a monthly basis. The total payment can be paid direct or deducted from a checking account. Additionally, the customer has the advantage of not being subject to any increase in rate during the policy period.

From our own standpoint, insurance for the term of the loan decreases cost of handling and increases our profit by virtue of the additional amount financed.

FOLLOWUP PROCEDURES

1. As part of completing an auto loan, be sure the "Statement of Insurance" on the reverse of the Automobile Note - Security Agreement is fully completed and signed.

2. Wherever practical, talk to the insurance agent, verify coverage and give him the exact name and location of your bank (or branch). The exact address is particularly important in the Atlanta area and other multiple office cities to avoid delay in handling and followup.

NEW BULLETIN: File in front of bulletin dated 4-18-62

3. Prepare a Collateral Followup Card (19-984) and:

   a. Follow by phone or letter 30 days from date of loan and every 10 days thereafter until a policy in proper form is received.

   b. If a policy is not received by the 60th day, consider the credit of your customer very carefully and whether the automobile should be stored under our control until properly insured.

RECEIPT OF POLICIES

1. Immediately upon receipt of an outside policy verify the name of the insured, correct description of the vehicle, satisfactory physical damage coverage, Bank named as loss payee and expiry date.

   a. Maintain followup for correction endorsement if needed.

   b. If policy expires before the date of final payment, reset followup for 30 days prior to the expiry date.

2. If policy does not cover one of your loans, determine proper destination through CIF or otherwise and send the policy to that point promptly.

3. In the Atlanta area, the central mail room will send unidentified policies directly to CIF for distribution.

BANK PLACEMENT OF INSURANCE

We are currently working with American Bankers Insurance Company of Miami on a program that will enable us to place insurance on behalf of our customer in event that he fails to provide us with evidence of coverage within a reasonable time or if he requests that we do so. Under this program we will also have loss protection in those cases where an uninsured loss might take place despite our followup procedures. We expect to be able to have this program completed shortly after the first of next year.

SUBJECT COVERAGE FAILURE

TOPIC

 Date 4-18-62

Replaces Bulletin: GENERAL OPERATIONS - INSURANCE - COVERAGE FAILURE, Dated 11-29-56

For the past several years we have been placing Coverage Failure Insurance on those eligible secured loans where insurance on the collateral is required. Our original purpose in acquiring this policy was to eliminate, to a great extent, the clerical handling that is necessary to verify that collateral taken as security is adequately covered by outside insurance and that the bank's interest is properly indicated in the policy.

Subsequent experience has proved the cost of this coverage to be substantially less than that of the clerical help required to maintain complete insurance followup. Use of the policy has also given us the added benefit of protection from the possibility of accidental error during insurance followup. Further savings have been realized inasmuch as the use of this coverage has greatly reduced the amount of time our auditors must spend in checking insurance coverage.

Since the inception of this policy, we have found opportunities to both broaden the policy coverages and to streamline the procedures involved in its use. This bulletin sets forth these changes and attempts to clarify those areas of the policy's coverage which have appeared to be somewhat troublesome in the past.

POLICY INTENT This policy is designed to provide the bank with single interest protection on those eligible secured loans on which casualty insurance for the collateral is required. It protects us against any direct loss we may sustain as a result of being prevented from obtaining the benefits of insurance coverage, previously agreed upon between the bank and the customer, by reason of:

(1) Failure of any customer to place, have placed, and/or maintain insurance agreed upon.
(2) Failure of any insurance company to pay claims within the limits of the insurance agreed upon because of violation of policy conditions by the customer.
(3) Failure of any insurance company or its agent to pay an unearned premium to the bank if the bank has originally advanced the premium.

INSURANCE CARRIER AND AGENCY Insurance coverage is provided by the American Southern Insurance Company under policy no. IM-428, through Marsh and McLennan, agents.

EFFECTIVE DATE Insurance coverage is effective as of the date funds are disbursed on a direct loan, or on the date of approval and delivery in the case of dealer paper.

ELIGIBLE LOANS Any loan except real estate, regardless of classification, on which outside insurance is normally required, may be insured under our Coverage Failure policy provided it does not exceed 36 months, except mobile home transactions which may be insured for 60 months. In addition, the limit of liability under this policy is $5,000 to any one customer on ordinary transactions and $7,500 on mobile homes (based on the amount financed - not the total note amount). As a matter of policy, we do not wish to insure transactions above the limit of liability; however, in rare cases where customers warrant, insuring transactions that do not exceed the limit of liability by more than 10% is in order. This can be a matter of judgment on the part of the lending officer.

LIMITS OF LIABILITY This is a single interest policy protecting the bank only. Total losses are limited to the net unpaid balance less the salvage value of the collateral. If, for any valid reason, the bank is unable to obtain the proceeds of the value of the salvage, the policy will pay the full net unpaid balance. Partial losses are limited to the cost of repairs.

Losses under Coverage Failure (partial or total) are not affected in any way by the deductible feature of collision coverage in the customer's outside insurance policy.

TERMINATION OF COVERAGE Coverage under this policy expires when the loan is paid in full. Coverage Failure Insurance continues in effect after a repossession until such time as the collateral is disposed of.

POLICY EXCLUSIONS This policy does not insure against:

(a) any loss where the bank does not have a State of Insurance, properly signed by the customer
(b) any loss resulting directly or indirectly from any dishonest or criminal act of any officer, agent or employee of the bank
(c) any loss resulting from forgery
(d) any loss sustained by reason of insolvency of any insurance company
(e) that portion of a loss which exceeds $5,000 to any one customer.

STATEMENT OF INSURANCE A Statement of Insurance is required on each transaction that is to carry Coverage Failure Insurance. Dealers, borrowers, and/or purchasers should be instructed to furnish insurance with the bank named as loss payee. However, instead of following for a copy of the policy, we rely on the "Statement of Insurance" which is obtained from the purchaser or borrower at the time the loan is executed. Be sure that the Statement of Insurance is signed in good faith and that there is no reason to doubt the customer's intention to place the required insurance.

Ruling 2002 of the Insurance Commissioner provides in part (1) original policies may be given to the insured only and (2) unearned premium must be paid to the insured and loss payee jointly. The Insurance Commissioner has later ruled that the insured may waive these requirements in writing and the Statement of Insurance provides for this among other things.

The Statement of Insurance now appears on the reverse side of both the Automobile Note - Bill of Sale to Secure Debt (19-906, Rev. 11-61) and the new Vehicle-Farm-Equipment Conditional Sales Contract (19-986, Rev. 4-61). Wording has been incorporated in the face of both instruments so that when the customer signs the instrument he automatically signs the Statement of Insurance which is used if needed.

REPLACES BULLETIN: GENERAL OPERATIONS - INSURANCE - COVERAGE FAILURE, Dated 11-29-56

The Statement of Insurance form (19-843) illustrated below is to be used in all cases where the statement does not appear on the reverse side of the instrument of indebtedness. This form must be signed by the customer.

STATEMENT OF INSURANCE

TO Wheel & Deal Automobile Agency
(Name or Bank)

In consideration of a loan or time sale this day made to me, evidenced by a Bill of Sale to Secure Debt or Conditional Sales Contract or other security instrument (a copy of which is attached hereto and made a part hereof) covering property securing the loan or being purchased on time, I agree that I will insure the property so covered against the following hazards:

REPLACES BULLETIN: GENERAL OPERATIONS - INSURANCE - COVERAGE FAILURE, Dated 11-29-56

Repair Plan Contracts. No new Statement of Insurance is necessary when the insured collateral is currently securing an open account for which a signed Statement of Insurance is in the customer's file.

Renewals. No new Statement of Insurance is necessary unless additional money is advanced (see subsequent paragraph - COST OF COVERAGE) if original loan carried Coverage Failure Insurance and a signed Statement of Insurance is in the customer's file.

Transfers of Equity. If the loan carries Coverage Failure, a new Statement of Insurance should be executed by the transferee who is responsible for adequate outside insurance for the balance of the term of the loan.

REQUISITIONING INSURANCE COVERAGE Coverage may be requisitioned by checking the appropriate insurance space on the Discount Sheet. In the case of renewals, no additional premium is required as long as no new money is advanced. Under such circumstances, do not requisition Coverage Failure on the new Discount Sheet or obtain a new Statement of Insurance (see preceding paragraph - STATEMENT OF INSURANCE).

COST OF COVERAGE The Central Billing Department will charge you monthly at the rate of 50¢ for each new transaction covered. This is a retrospective policy and dividends will be prorated to each office.

EFFECT ON BANK-AGENT PLAN - Since this policy makes no change in our insurance requirements, the operation of our reciprocal arrangements with insurance agents will not change. On agent originated transactions, the agent will furnish a Statement of Insurance which he also signs in the space provided. (If using revised instruments which incorporate the Statement of Insurance, the agent must still sign the Statement in the space provided.) Agents should be instructed to furnish a copy of the policy but we will not make a followup.

DEALER ORIGINATED TRANSACTIONS In all cases where outside insurance is required on dealer-originated paper, our dealer is either an insurance agent or has a source for placing insurance. Normally when we finance the cost of insurance, a copy of the insurance policy or a binder will accompany the contract. In such cases it will not be necessary to place Coverage Failure Insurance on that paper, even though a Statement of Insurance does accompany all contracts.

Under our arrangement with American Southern Insurance Company agents, where we are protected by a single interest insurance policy (See Bulletin: INSURANCE - ERRORS & OMISSIONS COVERAGE - AUTOMOBILE DEALERS), Coverage Failure Insurance is definitely not required. On other dealer-originated paper, it will be a matter of judgment in determining whether we are sufficiently protected at the outset that Coverage Failure may be waived. Coverage Failure should be placed when the borrower is to furnish his own insurance.

DISPOSITION OF POLICIES, RENEWAL NOTICES AND CANCELLATION NOTICES As policies and renewal notices are received, they may be sent directly to file. Checking for expiry date, extent of coverage, etc., is not necessary.

Cancellation notices are generally sent out only where insurance companies consider the insured to be a poor risk (poor insurance risk and poor credit risk frequently go together). All Notices of Cancellation must be followed with the customer until we obtain evidence of new coverage in compliance with the Statement of Insurance as signed at the time the loan was made.

AUTOMOBILE LOANS INVOLVING MINORS When making an automobile loan to a minor (with parental endorsement), there always exists the distinct possibility that the obtaining of insurance may be a problem. Many agents are required to submit such deals to their home office for approval and it often takes two or three weeks to find out that the agent's company will not insure. In such cases, if the insurance can be obtained at all, it will be through a "high rate pool" and the customer may not be able to pay for such coverage "out of his pocket."

Whenever possible, we want to finance the cost of automobile insurance coverage and in making automobile loans to minors it should be standard practice to follow for the original issuing of an insurance policy, even if the loan is covered with Coverage Failure Insurance.

TIME LOANS The coverages under this policy are also available, under the same conditions, for time loans made through the Loan and Discount Department. The first of each month the following report form will be sent to the Installment Loan Officer-in-Charge of each office. He is responsible for seeing that the Loan and Discount Department reports to the Central Installment Department, Atlanta, no later than the 10th of the month, all loans covered with Coverage Failure Insurance during the preceding month.

E-1237

POLICY IS CONFIDENTIAL Borrowers, purchasers, dealers, and insurance agents should not be told of the existence of this coverage. Insofar as they are concerned, the Statement of Insurance is required because of Ruling 2002 of the Insurance Commissioner and to clarify the exact coverage on each transaction.

COPIES OF THE POLICY The original signed insurance policy is on file in the Central Installment Department, Atlanta.

REPORTING LOSSES

Requirements Before Reporting Losses. A loss does not occur under this policy until all collection action short of suit has been taken against the maker of the note. Because the policy requires that we use "due diligence" (doing all things reasonable and practicable to avoid or diminish any loss arising under the policy) and because both the premium rate and any dividends returned are predicated upon our loss experience, all potential losses must be handled as zealously as though the insurance did not exist. If it is necessary to accelerate our instrument and we can collect the entire balance from the customer, we should do so without filing a claim. If the balance due at the time we discover a potential Coverage Failure claim is small enough so that we would extend a like amount of credit to the customer on an unsecured basis, then arrangements should be made to collect the balance on a monthly basis without making claim against this policy. Provided credit factors warrant and additional new collateral can be obtained a "Rework" note may be executed (without releasing the original instruments) in attempting collection action before filing claim.

SALVAGE With respect to total losses, the policy will pay the net balance less salvage as long as we are able to acquire the salvage value of the collateral. Salvage bids (3) should be obtained in writing and the amounts included in the first notification which you give to Central Installment. When collection arrangements are anticipated that will postpone the claim, particulars concerning the condition of the salvage, where stored and your recommendations as to disposal should accompany your memorandum of notification. In such instances the salvage will usually be sold and the proceeds applied to the reduction of the customer's indebtedness at the time we enter into the collection arrangements with him.

NOTICE OF LOSS The policy requires that we give notice of a potential loss as soon as possible. We want to notify the insurance company of any collection arrangements which we may make with the customer that will postpone the filing of the claim. When a potential loss situation developes and all collection effort has not been completed (or whenever collection arrangements are made) notify the Central Installment Department, Atlanta, by memorandum giving all pertinent particulars.

When all collection effort, short of litigation, has been made and it is felt that a claim exists, the "Coverage Failure Questionnaire", illustrated on page 7, should be completed in duplicate and both copies forwarded to the Central Installment Department together with the entire customer file on the account.

d. Why is bank unable to repossess and sell salvage? Bank has repossessed and can sell Give any other details which may not be covered above, and which would help to present the entire picture of what happened. Customer agreed to place insurance with Acme Insurance Agency (see Discount Sheet - we did not finance cost of insurance). Did not do so.

REPLACES BULLETIN: GENERAL OPERATIONS - INSURANCE - COVERAGE FAILURE, Dated 11-29-56

All questions are self-explanatory and every applicable question should be answered so that the entire history of the account is clearly apparent. Care and thought should be exercised in the preparation of the questionnaire. Your customer file should be completed and in good order. All collection memoranda should be in chronological sequence and legibly written. All salvage bids should be included in the file.

When the insurance company issues a draft in payment of the claim, the Central Installment Department will request your instruments of indebtedness. All Notes, Bills of Sale, Recording Slips, Conditional Sales Contracts, etc., must be assigned "without recourse" to the American Southern Insurance Company.

ORDERING FORMS The Coverage Failure Questionnaire may be ordered by memorandum from the Central Installment Department, Atlanta. The Statement of Insurance (19-843) may be requisitioned in the normal manner from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta.

SECTION INSURANCE

SUBJECT CREDIT LIFE

TOPIC

 Date 4-15-71

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - CREDIT LIFE - Dated 7-8-69

Increased credit life insurance coverage of amounts to be financed and terms are now available to our borrowing customers. The new rate charts include separate insurance premiums for the optional selection of credit life (under Regulation Z provisions) for installment notes, conditional sales contracts and time notes. The new rate charts are effective May 1, 1971 and include the extended coverages of maximum amounts to be financed of $15,000 and terms of ten years. Insurance premiums are not a part of the finance charge and annual percentage rate. Customers are charged the actual premium rate paid by the bank which remains below the cost of term insurance and below that of many other Credit Life policies. Therefore, our "financing package" is attractive both to borrowers and to purchasers through dealers.

INSURANCE CARRIER

ALL installment loans of The Citizens and Southern National Bank Offices and The Citizens and Southern Financial Corporation are insured through The Citizens and Southern Life Insurance Company (formerly American Southern Life Insurance Company) under group policy number GL-3. All other participants are insured under Prudential Insurance Company of America, group policy GL-281.

ELIGIBLE BORROWERS AND PURCHASERS

Any borrower or installment purchaser is eligible for Credit Life Insurance if:

1. He is 61 years of age or less;
2. His contract or note is repayable in periodic installments over a period of ten years or less; and,
3. The balance to be financed is $15,000 or less.

EFFECTIVE DATE

Insurance coverage is effective as of the date funds are disbursed on a direct loan or on the date of approval and delivery in the case of dealer paper. This protects the dealer for the period between his delivery of the merchandise and the disbursement of funds by the bank.

EXTENT OF COVERAGE

Upon receipt of the necessary claim forms, the insurance company will pay the gross balance due on the customer's note, with a maximum of $15,000 including previously paid disability benefits. The $15,000 maximum applies to the total indebtedness of the borrower whether it is one transaction or multiple transactions or whether the multiple transactions are with the same bank or in different banks insured under this policy. The policy also contains a suicide clause which applies to all notes

N insured after May 1, 1971. The clause states that a note must be continuously insured under the policy for two years before a death claim by suicide can be paid.

R Transactions involving a principal balance in excess of $15,000 are not eligible for coverage in any part.

TERMINATION OF INSURANCE

The insurance automatically terminates at the time the indebtedness is paid in full, at the time of repossession (by Bank or dealer), if judgment is entered in any court, or when the loan is charged off (past due loans not charged off may be carried up to a maximum of six months).

In considering loans in default, reworking for collection purposes, etc., it should be kept in mind that it is not the purpose of this policy to substitute a possible insurance loss for a probable credit loss. The insurance policy is intended to protect the borrower and the bank on normal transactions from their inception.

The Georgia Insurance Code requires that a refund of the unearned insurance premium be made if a customer pays out his note in advance. It also requires that the refund be computed by the "78ths" method. However, it states that a refund need not be given if it amounts to less than $1. We comply with the Code on refunds in our rebate procedures. Those banks on the manual installment loan system should use the Rebate Debit Ticket, #19-923, if their general ledger is also on a manual system. The Rebate Debit Ticket #19-925 should be used if the installment loans are on a manual system and their general ledger is automated. Banks with installment loans on the automated system use computer Rebate Debit Ticket #19-1240.

RATE TO CUSTOMER

R The charge to the customer is 92¢ per thousand per month based on the reducing unpaid balance on insured loans (actual permiums paid by the bank). The symbol "C" on the monthly rate charts identifies the insurance premiums separately.

INSURANCE ELECTION STATEMENT

All installment notes and contracts are printed with the insurance election statement. This provides for acceptance, refusal, date of birth and signature of the borrower. Only signer or co-signer of the note may be insured and only the person to be insured must sign the insurance election statement. Where the R customer is ineligible for insurance (age, health, amount or terms) the election statement need not be signed. In any event, the person being insured must always sign the contract or note and the Insurance Election Statement.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - CREDIT LIFE - Dated 7/8/69

REQUISITIONING INSURANCE COVERAGE

Credit Life coverage may be requisitioned by checking the appropriate insurance space on the Discount Sheet (computer form #19-1295 - manual form #19-898). Coverage will automatically be placed in the name of the person shown at the top of the Discount Sheet. Only one signer may be insured.

In husband and wife transactions, the husband should be insured whenever he is eligible even though he may be acting as endorser for his wife. If the note is in the name of a business or trade style, the life of an individual in the business may be insured by designating this on the Discount Sheet and having the person to be insured sign the Insurance Election Statement on the note or contract.

If coverage is to be placed on someone other than the person shown at the top of the Discount Sheet, or if the note is in the name of a business, the person to be insured must be designated in the space provided at the lower left of the Discount Sheet. The person to be insured must sign the contract or note and the Insurance Election Statement and indicate the date of birth.

When Credit Life Insurance is ordered, a Credit Life Certificate will be enclosed with the payment card book.

INELIGIBLE TRANSACTIONS - SALES FINANCE

To provide dealers with enough rate charts to take care of the few ineligible insurance transactions would be burdensome and confusing. Dealers should be provided with CJ charts (life and disability) in all cases; when transactions are received that are not eligible by virtue of policy limitations, an adjustment must be made for the amount of the premium. Both the amount of the premium and the financing charges thereon must be reversed. The amount of the insurance premium should be applied to the appropriate flat rate chart (without insurance included) and the "Total Note Amount" therefore will be the amount which should be deducted from the last payment, interest and discount and the total note amount of the ineligible transaction. DO NOT ALTER THE CONDITIONAL SALES CONTRACT.

Since it is possible that the dealer failed to tell the customer of his ineligibility, the letter shown below should be sent to the customer when an adjustment is allowed.

Dear Mr. Customer:

We have purchased a Conditional Sales Contract from _____ (Dealer) _____ covering your recent purchase of _____ (Merchandise) _____ and you will soon receive a coupon book showing the amount and due date of your monthly payments.

The charge made for handling this transaction includes (Credit Life Insurance), (Disability Insurance), (Credit Life and Disability Insurance); however, we find that you are not eligible for this coverage under the provisions of the insurance policy because (age, etc.).

Therefore, the final payment in your coupon book has been reduced by $_____, representing a refund of the insurance premium.

We are glad to handle this transaction for you and welcome the opportunity to become "your" bank.

Sincerely,

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS

The premium rate, paid by the bank, is 92¢ per thousand dollars per month based on the reducing unpaid balances of insured loans. The Monthly Insurance Report (19-921) of insurance premiums should be prepared on Business and Real Estate Loans only for those banks on the Automated System. Other banks should prepare the Report for Individual, Business and Real Estate. All reports should be sent to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta, by the 10th of each month. Complete instructions for computing and reporting these premiums are outlined in the bulletin: INSURANCE - REPORTING AND PREMIUM PAYMENT.

CORRESPONDENT BANKS

This coverage is available to our correspondent banks on the same basis that it is to C&S Banks except for claims procedure. New participants may be brought under this policy by signing three copies of the Application to Participate, which may be obtained from Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

PAYMENT OF CREDIT LIFE INSURANCE CLAIMS

Since the life insurance company will pay the gross amount outstanding on the note, we need to refund the unearned charges to the estate of the deceased along with the delivery of the paid-in-full papers. The life insurance premium becomes fully earned upon payment of a death claim. Therefore, use the method outlined below in place of the former rebate procedure.

REBATES

The unearned disability or retail fire and theft premium (if included)on the loan should be rebated as well as all unearned finance charges.

This is an example of a Sales Finance loan. (Over-the-Counter procedures are the same except for the dealer reserve entries).

DOCUMENTATION OF CLAIMS

R Four documents are required to support the claim for payment of Credit Life Insurance: Proof-of-Death, a Creditor Beneficiary Statement, copy of the note, and copy of the Discount Sheet.

PROOF OF DEATH

Obtain a Certificate of Death, a Coroner's Statement, or the sworn statement of the physician attending at the time of death to be used as Proof-of-Death. Insurance laws make all other types of documents unacceptable as Proof-of-Death. Photostatic, Verifax, Xerox, or 3M Copier copies may be used in lieu of the original document; however, Thermo-Fax copies cannot be used because they are not permanent when exposed to heat or sunlight.

CREDITOR BENEFICIARY STATEMENT

Complete all applicable spaces on the Creditor Beneficiary Statement as shown below. If the name of the insured on this statement is not exactly the same as that shown on the Proof-of-Death, complete the statement of identity on the Creditor Beneficiary Statement.

The insurance policy specifically limits payment to the amount actually outstanding on the date of the customer's death. If a customer elects to prepay a portion of his installments and then dies, the policy will pay only that amount outstanding at his death -- NOT the amount that was originally scheduled to be outstanding.

If payments have been made on a loan after the insured's death, these payments should be refunded to the person who made them. The Total Amount Prepaid and the Balance of Note on Date of Death should then be adjusted so that the amount claimed is the actual gross balance at the time of death.

CORRESPONDENT BANK DIVISION

Because of the difficulties in audit control, the insurance company has ruled that the decentralization of claims procedure cannot be extended to our Correspondent Banks participating under this policy. Consequently, Correspondent Bank claims will continue to be paid through Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta, with Drafts on the Prudential Insurance Company of America.

Upon receiving notice of death of an insured customer, a properly completed Creditor Beneficiary Statement (see paragraph DOCUMENTATION OF CLAIMS on page 8), a Proof-of-Death, a copy of the note and a copy of the Discount Sheet should be sent to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

C&S BANK PROCEDURE

C&S offices will continue to pay their own claims on a direct basis. The procedure for processing these claims is as follows:

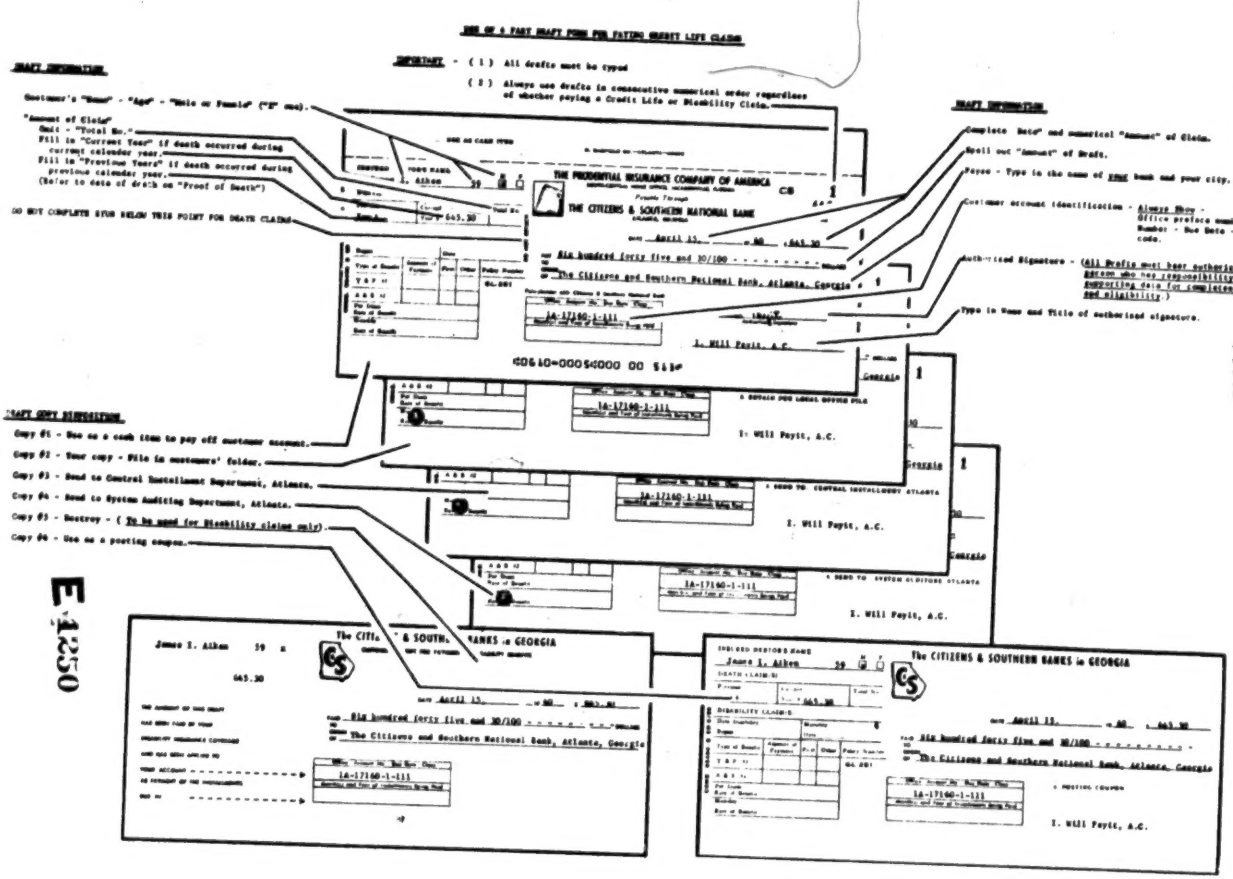
1. Obtain Proof-of-Death and complete a Creditor Beneficiary Statement (see paragraph DOCUMENTATION OF CLAIMS on page 8).
2. All national bank offices should use the American Southern Life 6-part snap-out Draft form to pay the claim. All other participants should use the Prudential 6-part snap-out form. Each applicable space must be completed; Drafts will not be honored if they are incomplete. A completed illustration with explanation is shown on page 10. Although the Prudential draft is illustrated, the instructions also apply to the American Southern draft. Use one draft for each account that is being paid off. If you are paying off more than one account for the same customer, use a separate draft for each account.

   IF AN ERROR IS MADE ON THE FACE OF THE DRAFT, IT WILL BE NECESSARY TO VOID IT; A DRAFT WITH ERASURES OR ERRORS IS NOT ACCEPTABLE. THEREFORE, EXTREME CARE SHOULD BE USED IN PREPARING DRAFTS.

   Drafts are assigned to each office by number, and each of these drafts must be accounted for. To comply with this requirement when you void a draft --

   a. Write with a RED pencil the word VOID across the face of copies 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the Draft.
   b. Tear off and discard the signature space on copy 1.
   c. Send all six copies of the Draft to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

AFTER THE DRAFT HAS BEEN COMPLETED, TYPE IN THE DRAFT NUMBER AND THE DATE AND AMOUNT OF THE DRAFT IN THE SPACE PROVIDED ON THE CREDITOR BENEFICIARY STATEMENT AS INDICATED IN THE ILLUSTRATION (see page 8).



USE OF 4 PART DRAFT FORM FOR FILING CREDIT LIFE CLAIMS

3. Make disposition of the copies of the Draft as follows:

   a. Use copy #1 as a cash item to pay off the customer's account.
   b. File copy #2 in the customer's file folder.
   c. Send copy #3 to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta on the same day the Draft is drawn.
   d. Send copy #4 to System Audit Department, Atlanta, on the same day the Draft is drawn.
   e. Destroy copy #5. It is used only for disability claims.
   f. Use copy #6 as a posting coupon if on the manual system. If on the automated system, destroy copy #6 and prepare computer payoff form #19-1225, code 57 Paid by Life Insurance

4. All participating banks should batch mail Proof-of-Death documents, Creditor Beneficiary Statements and copies of the note and the Discount Sheet to Consumer Insurance Services - North Avenue - Atlanta with copy #3, on a daily basis. Forward the documents on all claims paid that day. Be sure to attach each Proof-of-Death document with the corresponding Creditor Beneficiary Statement, note and discount sheet before they are mailed.

5. Delivery of paid-in-full papers to the beneficiary should be accomplished by a representative of the Bank. If this is not practicable, a letter should be sent, preferably signed by someone in the bank who is known to the family. A suggested letter is shown on page 12; however, it should be modified to fit individual circumstances.

ORDERING FORMS

OPERATING BULLETIN

SECTION INSURANCE

SUBJECT CREDIT LIFE - L & D LOANS

TOPIC CHANGE IN INSUROR

 Date 1-23-69

NEW BULLETIN

Effective 2-1-69, all L&D Loans of Correspondents and Associate Correspondents will be insured through Prudential Insurance Company of America under policy number GLV-281. All other participants will continue to be insured by American Southern Life Insurance Company.

CLAIMS

Any claim originating on or after 2-1-69 is to be paid under the Prudential policy. The date of death determines whether the claim should be filed through American Southern (1-31-69 and prior) or Prudential (2-1-69 and later).

PREMIUMS

Premium reporting continues unchanged.

BULLETIN CHANGES

INSURANCE - CREDIT LIFE - L&D LOANS is the only bulletin affected by this change. The name "Prudential Insurance Company of America" should be substituted for "American Southern Life Insurance Company". Policy number GLV-281 replaces 1150. No other changes are needed, so this bulletin will not be reissued at this time.

OTHER CHANGES

Some correspondent banks participating under this policy use a maturity tickler which has an American Southern Certificate printed on the back of the Customer's Notice copy. These banks will be furnished with a "VOID" rubber stamp which should be used on the back of the customer's copy before mailing. (When the Maturity Tickler is reprinted, the Certificate of Insurance will be omitted entirely).

A hand-out certificate for the Prudential policy will be furnished to all correspondents and should be given to the customer being insured at the time the loan is made.

ORDERING FORMS

An initial supply of all necessary Prudential forms has been sent to each bank affected. Forms should be requisitioned in the usual manner.

SUBJECT CREDIT LIFE

TOPIC L&D TIME LOANS

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - CREDIT LIFE - L&D TIME LOANS - Dated 7/8/69

R Our Credit Life Insurance Program covering L&D Loans is now being administered by Insurance Services. Effective July 1, 1972, the premium rate on newly-insured loans is being changed to $.92 per $1,000 per month, which is equivalent to a 1.104% per annum rate. Customers will now be eligible provided they have not reached their sixty-sixth birthday on the date the loan is made. Other provisions of the program remain unchanged. The Automated Commercial Loan System has caused some change in procedure for banks that use it.

R In order to enjoy favorable claims experience, Insurance should be placed on a large percentage of the eligible notes. All lending officers should be completely familiar with the entire program, so they can explain its advantages to their customers. However, under no circumstances may our Credit Life Insurance coverage be made a condition of granting a loan. Under the provisions of Regulation Z, we have elected to make Credit Life Insurance an optional selection on our consumer time loans. In this way, the Insurance Premium will not become a part of the Finance Charge and Annual Percentage Rate.

CARRIER

R All C&S National Banks and Affiliates are covered under Citizens and Southern Life Insurance Company's Group Creditors Life policy #TL-1 on loans made after 7/1/72 and on policy #1150 on loans made prior to 7/1/72. All correspondent associates and correspondent banks are covered by The Prudential Insurance Company of America's group Master Policy GLV-281.

COPIES OF THE POLICY

Policies under both carriers are identical as to rate, provisions, and conditions. Each Master Policy is on file in Insurance Services. Correspondent banks have a signed copy of the accepted Prudential application in their possession.

ELIGIBLE NOTES

Any note provided:

R 1. The borrower has not reached his 66th birthday at the time the loan is made.

2. The total principal amount is not more than $5,000, and the customer's TOTAL INSURED INDEBTEDNESS, including the new note, does not exceed $5,000.

3. The note has a maturity date not exceeding one year. DEMAND LOANS ARE NOT ELIGIBLE FOR COVERAGE.

R 4. The indebtedness is to an individual or to a closely held corporation. Loans to proprietorships may be covered. Loans to small individually owned corporations may be insured so long as the person to be insured personally guarantees the loan. Loans to partnerships, associations, or other types of corporations may not be insured.

Notes do not have to be of single payment maturity, however, the final maturity date may not exceed ONE YEAR.

Notes with a principal balance in excess of $5,000 are not eligible for coverage. NOTES CANNOT BE COVERED IN PART. NO NOTE (EVEN THOUGH IT IS LESS THAN $5,000) CAN BE INSURED WHERE ITS AMOUNT ADDED TO THE AMOUNT ALREADY INSURED UNDER ANOTHER NOTE(S) WILL EXCEED $5,000.

If a note for less than $5,000 is insured and a later note is made which cannot be insured because of the amount already covered, the first note may be insured again, at the time of renewal, if the amount being renewed and the amount of any other insured notes does not exceed $5,000.

COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS

Transactions that are essentially commercial (see LENDING GENERAL - REGULATION Z - SUMMARY FOR TYPES OF LOANS COVERED) are not covered by Regulation Z, but some will be eligible for insurance. Where insurance is desired on such eligible transactions, use the Consumer Note (form #15-1100, Unsecured, or #15-1105, Secured). This will allow us to have one consistent method of acquiring and reporting insured L&D time loans.

INSURABILITY

In addition to the age limit, we do not wish to insure any borrower known to have any illness, disease or pre-existing condition which should make him uninsurable for any other type of life insurance coverage. While we are not expected to go into detail as to our customer's insurability, frequently the lending officer will know his customer well enough to be aware of a heart condition or other such health problem which makes the customer ineligible. In such cases, the loan should not be insured.

R If the customer specifically asks for credit life insurance, particularly after having a series of uninsured loans, then most certainly questions should be asked concerning health. Inquiry should be made by the lending officer as to whether the borrower could pass a physical examination for the purpose of life insurance. If the answer is negative, then the borrower is uninsurable under this policy. We do not wish to insure any borrower who could not obtain a standard life insurance policy elsewhere.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - CREDIT LIFE - L&D TIME LOANS - Dated 7/8/69

TERMINATION OF INSURANCE

Insurance automatically terminates when:

1. The indebtedness is discharged.
2. The indebtedness is transferred to another borrower.
3. The group policy terminates.

N 4. Past due more than six months beyond original maturity date.

N 5. Collateral repossessed or judgment entered in court.

REBATE ON PRE-PAID NOTES

R The Georgia Insurance Code requires that a rebate of unearned insurance premiums be given if a note is paid in advance. Premium rebates should be calculated on the Daily Pro-Rata Basis. The Automated Commercial Loan System calculates this in figuring the balance due each day.

COVERAGE ON PAST DUE NOTES

R While the insurance does not terminate for six months after maturity (as shown above), coverage should not be maintained on a pastdue note for more than 30 days unless, in the opinion of the lending officer, special circumstances warrant. (In the event of a claim on a delinquent note, explanation must be given as to such circumstances. See section - FILING CLAIMS).

Since premiums are paid on outstanding balances, those pastdue notes insured will automatically be included. Lending officers and L&D personnel, however,

R must collect the pastdue premium along with the pastdue interest. The interest figures provided by the Commercial Loan System include additional premium on pastdue loans.

RATE TO THE BORROWER

The premium charge to the borrower is $.92 per $1,000 per month, corresponding to a 1.104% per annum rate.

PREMIUM ACCOUNTING AND REPORTING

R ALL BANKS PARTICIPATING UNDER THIS POLICY WILL PAY PREMIUMS MONTHLY ON THE NET OUTSTANDINGS INSURED. Premiums will be paid on the net balance (principal, premium, base charge, and accrued interest) for each note insured at the rate of $.92 per thousand dollars on loans made on or after July 1, 1972. Premiums on loans made prior to July 1, 1972 will be paid at $1.00 per $1,000.

C&S BANKS AND AFFILIATES

C&S Banks and affiliates are on the Automated Commercial Loan System. The R premium for newly-insured notes (at 1.104% per annum) is credited to Interest and Discount-Time Loans at the time the loan is made. When the Commercial Loan Discount Sheet (form #15-3000 Rev.6/70) is prepared, list the insurance premium in the appropriate block, and include in the Total Loan Amount. Circle the appropriate code:

1. Credit Life
2. Ineligible
3. Refused

R The Commercial Loan System furnishes Insurance Services with an Insured Loan Report for each office or bank. This report provides figures for premium payment. Insurance Services will debit banks other than Atlanta National. When the debit advice is received, credit C&S National Bank - Atlanta and debit your "Interest and Discount - Time Loans" general ledger account. Insurance Services will debit the "Interest and Discount-Time Loans" general ledger account of the Atlanta National Bank.

No Monthly Insurance Report will be necessary from C&S National Banks and affiliates.

CORRESPONDENT BANKS

R Correspondent Associate Banks using the Automated Commercial Loan System will follow the procedure for National Bank offices and Affiliates. Other banks should use the following procedure:

R The total premium on insured notes (at 1.104% per annum) should be credited daily to the appropriate general ledger account, i.e., "Interest and Discount - Time Loans".

Pay premiums on the original gross note (principal plus insurance premium, base charge, and total interest for the term of the note) at $.92 per N $1,000 for loans made on or after July 1, 1972. On loans made prior to July 1, 1972, pay at $1.00 per $1,000.

As of the 20th of each month the Credit Life Insurance - Time Loans - Monthly Premium Report should be prepared and sent to:

The C&S National Bank
Insurance Services
R 99 Annex
Atlanta, Georgia 30399

It is essential that this report be mailed so that it reaches us as soon after the 20th each month as possible.

The report illustrated on page 6 is self-explanatory and only a minimum amount of information is required; however, the report must always be completed in its entirety.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - CREDIT LIFE - L&D TIME LOANS - Dated 7/8/69

RENEWALS

Renewals should be treated as new notes and all criteria as to eligibility and insurability should be applied accordingly. The mere fact that the note was insured prior to renewal or that the customer might not have specifically been told of his ineligibility is not sufficient reason to insure an otherwise ineligible note.

INSURANCE STATEMENT

All consumer time loan notes (Consumer Note #15-1100, Unsecured, and #15-1105, Secured) are printed with an Insurance Statement. This provides for acceptance, refusal, date of birth and signature of the borrower. Only a signer or co-signer of the note may be insured and the person to be insured must sign the Insurance Statement. Where the customer is ineligible for insurance (age, indebtedness in excess of $5,000 or health) space is provided on the note for indicating that the customer is ineligible for insurance. In such cases the customer does not have to sign the Insurance Statement. In all other cases the customer must sign the Insurance Statement indicating either acceptance or refusal.

DISCOUNTED NOTES OR TRADE ACCEPTANCES

Discounted notes or trade acceptances should not be insured unless signed in the bank. If the maker of such notes is not our customer and not known to be insurable, we do not want to take the risk of covering him with life insurance. Where there is a Sales Finance installment loan relationship involved in Discounted Notes, such notes can be serviced as installment accounts and covered under our installment loan credit life policies.

EFFECTIVE DATE

Coverage is effective with the date of the note.

EXTENT OF COVERAGE

R Upon receipt of the necessary claims forms, the appropriate insurance company will pay the net balance due as of the date of death (principal, premium, base charge and interest to date) on the customer's note with a maximum of $5,000. THE $5,000 MAXIMUM APPLIES TO THE TOTAL INDEBTEDNESS OF THE BORROWER whether it is one note or multiple notes so insured or whether the several notes are with the same office or bank or different banks insured under this same policy. Multiple note claims will be paid on a FIFO (first in first out) basis with respect to date of note. Each note will be paid for its net balance at date of death until the $5,000 limit is used.

R This policy contains a suicide clause which provides that a note must be continuously insured under this policy for two years before a suicide death claim can be paid. In the event of suicide, the insurance premium must be returned to the customer's estate.

Draw a check against the appropriate general ledger account (i.e., "Interest and Discount - Time Loans" etc.) for the amount of the monthly premium($1.00 per $1,000 for loans made prior to July 1, 1972; $.92 per $1,000 for loans made on or after July 1, 1972.) The check must accompany the Monthly Premium Report.

Accounting procedures will vary in correspondent banks. Each correspondent participant under this policy will have to determine the most efficient method for tabulating notes insured and computing monthly outstandings. In all cases, individual notes should be marked to indicate the existence of insurance coverage and the age of the borrower.

Monthly, notes may be thumbed to tabulate the number and dollar amount of outstandings to be insured or if ledgers are marked to indicate which loans are insured the tabulation may be done from them. Whether using notes or ledgers list those loans in the minority; i.e., if the majority of loans are covered with insurance, list those not insured and subtract from the total control to obtain the insured outstandings.

CERTIFICATE OF INSURANCE

A Certificate of Insurance must be issued for each insured note at the time it is made or renewed. The certificate should list the insured person's name. In addition, the bank-branch code, gross loan amount, and loan date should be noted in the upper left corner of the certificate. Blank copies of the certificate should be under control of the L&D Teller. The C&S Life Insurance

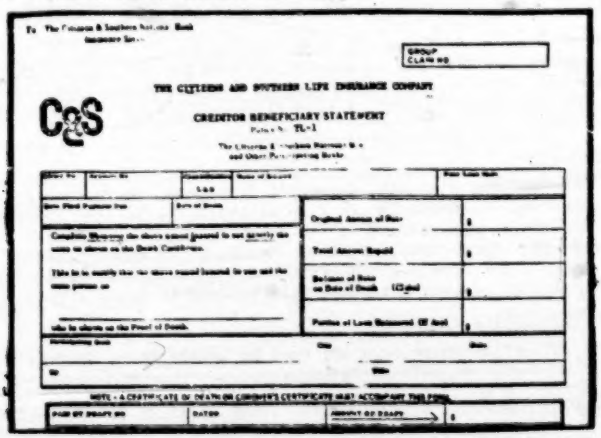
Copy 4 - retain as an office file copy.



THE CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

CREDITOR BENEFICIARY STATEMENT

PROCEDURE

R When completing the Creditor Beneficiary Statement, use your bank/branch number. The "original amount of note" is the principal, base charge, and accrued interest and insurance premium to date of death. Claims must be calculated as of date of death, even if the bank doesn't learn of the death until a later date. In this event, recalculate the net charges, including insurance premiums, as if it were a new loan having a term equal to the period from the loan date to the date of death. Interest and charges accrued after date of death in excess of $10.00 must be charged to "Other Losses and Recoveries". The "balance of note on date of death" is the "original amount of note" less the actual amount paid. Send the original and one copy of the Creditor Beneficiary Statement and the Death Certificate to Insurance Services, Atlanta. A draft will be returned to you by Citizens and Southern Life.

NOTE: If the date of death shown on the Death Certificate is more than 30 days after the maturity date of the note, an explanation as to why the pastdue note was insured must appear on the reverse of the original of the Creditor Beneficiary Statement (see preceding paragraph - COVERAGE ON PAST DUE NOTES.)

After payment, the note marked "paid" should be given to a lending officer (the one who made the loan, if possible) so that proper delivery to the estate or survivor can be made. Delivery should be made in person; however, if this is not practical, then an appropriate cover letter should be written.

Copy 4 - retain as an office file copy.

PROCEDURE

When completing the Creditor Beneficiary Statement form use the office code number which has been assigned to your office or bank for this purpose. For banks on the Automated Commercial Loan System, the "original amount of note" is the principal, base charge, and accrued insurance premium and interest to date of death. Other banks should use the total note amount. However, the unearned portion of the interest charge must be refunded to the borrower's estate. Send the original and one copy of the Creditor Beneficiary Statement, along with the Death Certificate and a copy of the note and discount sheet to Insurance Services, Atlanta. A draft will be returned to you.

Replaces Bulletin: "GENERAL OPERATIONS - INSURANCE, CREDIT LIFE - REAL ESTATE LOANS Dated 12-8-59

Since June 15, 1959, we have made available Credit Life Insurance for first mortgage real estate loans. This bulletin has been revised to update and clarify procedures.

Continued emphasis should be given to placing this coverage on all eligible new loans so as to build up our insured outstandings. The protection provided should be thoroughly explained to each customer and he should be urged to take advantage of the opportunity of obtaining this insurance at a cost below that of ordinary mortgage term insurance. Only in this manner can we obtain a high percentage of participation and diversification of risks.

Each real estate lending officer in each bank should keep available for distribution to all prospective mortgagors a supply of the leaflet which explains the benefits of the policy. This may be obtained from System Consumer Credit, Atlanta.

INSURANCE CARRIER Coverage is provided through METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY - Creditors Group Policy Number 18886-G.

ELIGIBLE LOANS This insurance is available to customers with first mortgage loans on dwellings they own and occupy or intend to occupy provided:

A. Mortgage is repayable in monthly or quarterly installments over a period in excess of five years but not more than twenty-five years and is scheduled to mature before mortgagor attains age seventy or,

B. If the mortgage is scheduled for repayment over a period of five years or less, the mortgagor may be insured even though the mortgage is scheduled to mature on or after age seventy.

C. Mortgages with balloon payments may be insured provided the original monthly payments will have fully amortized the mortgage in twenty-five years (300 months) or before the mortgagor will have attained age seventy. No adjustment of the premium is necessary on balloon payments.

D. Mortgages on multiple dwellings, with a limit of four family dwelling units, may be insured provided the owner occupies one of the apartments. Mortgages on buildings, part of which is a store or office and the remaining portion apartments - one being occupied by the mortgagor - may be included provided there are no more than four units in the building.

Many of our real estate loans will thus be eligible for coverage under our regular Credit Life policy with PRUDENTIAL and also under this policy. To avoid conflict, any "baby real estate loan" with interest computed on an add-on rate should be insured with PRUDENTIAL. Those amortized at a simple interest rate should be insured with METROPOLITAN.

Replaces Bulletin: "GENERAL OPERATIONS - INSURANCE, CREDIT LIFE - REAL ESTATE LOANS" Dated 12-8-59

PERSON TO BE INSURED The purpose of this insurance is to insure the person responsible for the monthly payments, so in the event of his death, the remaining balance of the mortgage may be reduced or discharged entirely. Therefore, on all loans made jointly to man and wife or to the wife only and endorsed by the husband, the husband will be insured in all cases.

If, on the other hand, more than one person, not husband and wife, but for example two sisters, signed the mortgage and both wish to be insured, satisfactory evidence of insurability will be required of each person. In such cases, each person should complete the APPLICATION - STATEMENT OF HEALTH, number G859-CR-MTG (illustrated on page 2). This form, along with Part 3 of the ENROLLMENT - STATEMENT OF INSURANCE form, number G730-C-MTG-18886G (see page 4), should be forwarded to System Consumer Credit and you will be notified whether the application has been approved or disapproved by METROPOLITAN, and whether a medical examination will be necessary.

In those cases where more than one person is to be insured, the persons being insured will share equally in the total amount of insurance that would have been available if only one had been insured. For example, if two persons are insured, each would be insured for 50% of the total amount of insurance applicable to that mortgage. In no event shall the total amount of the insurance exceed the total amount of the mortgage.

EXTENT OF COVERAGE For mortgages with principal balances through $20,000, the outstanding principal balance will be insured. For mortgages with principal balances over $20,000, $20,000 of the insurance is provided initially and thereafter the insurance is a fixed percentage of the amount of the mortgage balance outstanding. For example, a loan of $25,000 will initially be insured for $20,000 which is 80% of the total, and thenceforth 80% of the principal balance will continue to be insured.

An individual may be insured only for the exact principal amount of his mortgage. He may not select a higher or lower amount.

TERMINATION OF INSURANCE The insurance automatically terminates at the time the indebtedness is paid in full, when it has been decided to foreclose, or when the loan is charged-off (past due loans not charged-off may be carried up to a maximum of six months but not beyond the original maturity date). The insurance also terminates upon the request of the mortgagor or upon transfer, assignment, or sale of the mortgage.

In the event of the death of a customer whose payments are past due for more than sixty days, the insurance settlement may be limited to the amount which would have been payable had the monthly installments been paid on schedule. On loans past due for less than sixty days, the insurance company shall pay the total principal balance due on the date of death.

COST TO THE CUSTOMER The age and amount of insurance when the mortgagor first becomes insured determine the amount he pays each month for insurance coverage. Simply multiply the original principal balance by the appropriate cost per $1,000 to determine the amount to be included in the monthly payment. To determine the customer's insurance age, add six months to the effective date of his insurance; if his next birthday falls within that period, then the age of his next birthday will be used. Otherwise, his present age applies.

ENROLLMENT - STATEMENT OF INSURANCE FORM On each customer insured under this policy, it will be necessary to prepare the three-part snap-out ENROLLMENT - STATEMENT OF INSURANCE Form, number G730-C-MTG (reproduced on page 4). This form should be typed when the note and other necessary documents are being prepared. Part 3 of this form should be signed by the customer in the place indicated, as evidence that he desires this coverage. All of the spaces on this form must be completed before the insurance can become effective. When completing this form, be certain to type in the full name of your bank below, and to the right of the form number on Part 1.

Part 1 of this form should be directed to the Installment Loan Department for accounting purposes and for preparation of the monthly premium statement.
Part 2 is a Statement of Insurance which should be "snapped-out" and given to the customer along with any other mortgage papers which he might receive.
Part 3 should be retained in the mortgage folder as evidence that the customer requested and received insurance coverage.

NOTES, SECURITY DEEDS AND OTHER PAPERS When preparing the note and any other documents which include the amount of payment and note amount, show only the amount being amortized. Do not include the insurance premium. When ordering amortization schedules, be sure to enter on the post card requisition form the amount of payment without the monthly insurance premium. This should be explained to your customer so that he understands that the amount of insurance premium in no way affects the normal amortization of the loan.

Inasmuch as in most of our offices the real estate loans originate with a commercial officer and are then forwarded to the Installment Loan Department for accounting billing, it should be the responsibility of the commercial officer to designate which loans are eligible and ineligible, etc. To facilitate this, rubber stamps have been made available for all who need them. The person originating the transaction should imprint this on a piece of plain paper and circle the appropriate number before forwarding it along with the real estate papers to the Installment Loan Department. Only in this way can we be sure that the information we report to the insurance company is entirely correct.

DISCOUNTING PROCEDURES The Installment Loan discount clerk, upon receipt of new real estate loans, will follow the normal discounting procedure, and in addition will credit the total insurance premium due over the life of the loan to the General Ledger account "Unearned Insurance Premium on Installment Real Estate Loans - Metropolitan Life Insurance Company." (This account is included under "Other Liabilities" on the Bank's Statement of Condition.)

In addition, the Installment Loan discount clerk will use the rubber stamp mentioned above to imprint in the collateral section on the discount sheet, and circle the appropriate number. On insured loans, enter the original amount of insurance. This information should appear on all real estate loans, whether we charge a real estate simple interest rate or an installment loan add-on rate, and whether it be a first mortgage or second mortgage. Those computed at an add-on rate with PRUDENTIAL coverage should be classified "ineligible" for METROPOLITAN. The Central Billing Department will then show the appropriate information on all records, for example, "MET 1-10,000," etc. This information will be shown immediately preceding a description of the collateral.

After entering the account number on the ENROLLMENT - STATEMENT OF INSURANCE form, it should then be forwarded to the person in the Installment Loan Department responsible for maintaining the control sheet on insured loans.

ACCOUNTING FOR INSURED LOANS To simplify our reporting procedures, it will be necessary to maintain a Control Sheet on loans insured under this policy, with a separate Control Sheet for each age group. This Control Sheet should be posted daily upon receipt of Part 1 of the ENROLLMENT - STATEMENT OF INSURANCE form. Be sure to post in the amount column only the amount of insurance applicable to each loan. In most cases, that will be the principal balance, but on loans over $20,000, post only $20,000. As ledger cards are returned by the Central Billing Department, they should be checked to be sure the eligibility code has been typed thereon. Part 1 of the enrollment form may then be discarded.

As insured loans are paid out, it will be necessary to deduct them from the proper Control Sheet, being sure to deduct the same amount which was originally added as a new loan. The balances on these Control Sheets should be verified every six months by pulling out all insured ledger cards and listing the original amount of insurance.

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS As of the end of each month, we must report to METROPOLITAN on the "GROUP INSURANCE PREMIUM STATEMENT". The information under "Determination of Current Premium Due" can be obtained simply by picking up the balances from each age group Control Sheet. The information under "New Loans Since Last Report" can be obtained from the copy of the IBM Credit Record prepared each month by the Central Billing Department (a sample is reproduced on page 8). The number eligible for insurance will be the total number of loans coded "MET 1" and "MET 2". The number insured for the month (MET 1) should agree with the total number of new loans added to your Control Sheets for the month. After all the appropriate spaces have been filled in, debit the General Ledger account "Unearned Insurance Premium on Installment Real Estate Loans - Metropolitan Insurance Company" for the total premium due and use this to purchase a check payable to The Citizens and Southern National Bank. Mail your report, along with the check, to System Consumer Credit, Atlanta, no later than the 10th of each month. A completed sample of this report is illustrated on page 10.

REWRITTEN AND REFINANCED LOANS Any change in the mortgage agreement which lengthens the term of the mortgage, or reduces or increases the monthly payments, will for the purposes of insurance, place the loan in the category of a new loan. Therefore, the loan will be handled as a new mortgage and the insurance will be based on the new amount of the mortgage and the newly attained age of the mortgagor as of the effective date of the new mortgage.

CLAIM PROCEDURE In the event of the death of an insured mortgagor, for any reason, send to System Consumer Credit, Atlanta: (1) A completed "REPORT OF MORTGAGOR'S DEATH" (form number 934-C-MTG - reproduced on page 11), (2) a copy of the certified death certificate, (3) the deceased mortgagor's Enrollment forms: "ENROLLMENT - STATEMENT OF INSURANCE" form, number G-730-C-MTG-18886-G - Part 3, and the "APPLICATION - STATEMENT OF HEALTH" form, number G859-CR-MTG (if one was obtained).

DELIVERY OF PAID-IN-FULL PAPERS The paid-in-full papers on accounts paid by this insurance should not be handled in the regular paid-in-full routine. Where practicable, personal delivery by a representative of the bank is desirable. Where this is not practicable, a personally typed letter should be sent, preferably signed by someone who is known to the family.

REBATES ON PREPAID ACCOUNTS Remember, on accounts which are prepaid in full, it will be necessary to debit the unearned insurance premium account for the total unremitted premium on that particular loan. This can be arrived at simply by multiplying the number of unmatured payments by the amount of premium being paid each month.

SUBJECT DISABILITY

TOPIC

 Date 4/15/71

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - Dated 7-10-69

Since Disability Insurance is an optional selection (under the provisions of Regulation Z) on our installment notes and conditional sales contracts, the R insurance premium is not a part of the finance charge and annual percentage rate. Monthly rate charts provide for separate disability insurance premiums.

The coverage has been increased to a maximum monthly benefit of $300 and maximum total benefits paid to $15,000 effective May 1, 1971

POLICY INTENT

The intent of this policy is to protect the customer in true emergency situations where an extended illness may occur with the resulting loss of income causing serious delinquency for which no adjustment can be made. (Under normal circumstances it is possible to make delinquency adjustments in the case of minor illness where the loss of income is for a short duration only).

Disability Insurance thus removes one of the uncertainties in committing an obligation to be paid out of future income. In cases of extended illness, payments on installment obligations are automatically taken care of, leaving other funds and income available for extra expenses which generally accompany such illnesses.

For these reasons Disability Insurance has become an integral part of installment financing and by its widespread acceptance has proved its value and worth to both customer and dealer. For the dealer Disability Insurance means:

1. Protection against repossession or repurchase in the event his customer suffers an extended illness.
2. Protection of the "good will" of his customer as well as the customer's payment record so that future repeat sales may be made.
3. Reduction of his collection effort and expense during a customer's period of extended illness.
4. An aid in selling the over-all financing charges. The cost of Disability Insurance is still less than that of other companies for comparable coverage.

Dealers must understand that while the customer has the choice of insurance coverage we really expect very little drop in the penetration. They must therefore present it in a positive manner and where necessary strongly emphasize the benefits to the customer. Selections available: (1) life and disability insurance (2) life insurance alone, (3) no insurance. NOT available: Disability insurance alone.

INSURANCE CARRIER

All installment loans of The Citizens and Southern National Bank offices and the Citizens and Southern Financial Corporation are insured through The Citizens and Southern Life Insurance Company (Formerly American Southern Life Insurance Company) under group policy number GL-3. All other participants are insured under Prudential Insurance Company of America, group policy GL-281.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - Dated 7-10-69

WHAT CONSTITUTES DISABILITY

The definition of disability is "being prevented from performing any and every duty pertaining to the occupation of the insured". However, if the insured performs any work or engages in any business or other occupation for remuneration or profit, he shall not be deemed disabled under the policy. For example: A dentist loses a hand. He cannot practice dentistry so he is disabled as long as he does no other work. However, if he begins selling dental equipment, he then is no longer disabled even though he still cannot practice dentistry.

ELIGIBLE BORROWERS AND PURCHASERS

To be eligible for coverage:

1. The customer must be insured under the Credit Life portion of the policy.
2. The note must be repayable in equal monthly installments over a period not exceeding seven years. (Notes with balloon payments are not eligible). As the single exception, freezer food plan paper with unequal beginning monthly installments is eligible. Seasonal payments on farm equipment and other classes of business are not eligible.
3. The debtor must be 61 years of age or less.
4. The debtor must be gainfully employed during normal workweeks of at least thirty hours (either for others or for self) at the time the loan is made. DEBTORS WHOSE ENTIRE INCOME IS FROM INVESTMENTS, RENTALS, PENSIONS, ETC., ARE NOT ELIGIBLE.

EXCLUSIONS

Benefits under this policy are not payable if the disability of the debtor:

1. Was in existence at the time the loan was made or if disability from the same cause existed during the six months immediately preceding the date of the loan. (The customer is still eligible for benefits when disabled from any other cause than that creating the disability on date of loan or preceding six months).

   If such disability or history is known to exist at the time of the loan, Disability Insurance should not be placed.
2. Was the result of pregnancy, childbirth, abortion, or miscarriage.
3. Was the result of an act of war.
4. Was contracted outside of the continental limits of the Unites States, Hawaii or Canada.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - Dated 7-10-69

EFFECTIVE DATE

Insurance coverage is effective as of the date funds are disbursed on a direct loan or on the date of approval and delivery in the case of dealer paper. This protects the dealer for the period between his delivery of the merchandise and the disbursement of funds by the Bank.

EXTENT OF COVERAGE

After 30 days of continuous disability (beginning the count on the day disability first occurs), this insurance will pay each monthly payment which matures during the interval before the insured returns to work. Where the 31st day of disability and the due date of an installment coincide, this payment will be covered by Disability Insurance.

As long as he is then continuously disabled, the insurance will pay each subsequent payment concurrently with due dates. To receive benefits your debtor must be disabled on the due date. It is possible for one customer to be disabled for 59 days and receive no benefits while another disabled for the same length of time would have a payment paid - depending upon the relationship between the date the disability started and the due date of his payments.

In those cases where disability occurs beginning in the month of February and the customer is still disabled in March, we will pay the second installment coming due after the beginning date of disability as long as a whole calendar month has elapsed, even though it may be only 28-29 days since the onset of the disability.

This rule applies only to disabilities originating during the month of February. The standard 30 day rule of eligibility will apply at all other times.

MAXIMUM COVERAGE

R The total amount paid to any one debtor shall not exceed $15,000, including death benefits and previously paid disability benefits. (This applies in the case of multiple offices having loans to the same individual as well as multiple loans within a single office). The total monthly benefits under this policy shall not exceed $300, whether on one loan or on more than one for the same customer.

OTHER BENEFITS

The insured has 90 days after the end of the first month of disability in which to file claim. Delinquencies at the scheduled maturity date are paid up to 6 months. (See: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - CLAIMS PROCEDURE).

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - Dated 7-10-69

RATE TO THE CUSTOMER

R The Citizens and Southern monthly rate charts with the symbol "CD" indicate separately the premium for Disability Insurance. The charge to the customer per annum of the note amount for disability is calculated at:

.65% for terms to 60 months
.61% for terms of 61 - 72 months
.58% for terms of 73 - 84 months

This is the equivalent of premiums paid by the bank.

INSURANCE ELECTION STATEMENT

All installment notes and contracts are printed with the insurance election statement. This provides for acceptance, refusal, date of birth and signature
R of the borrower. Only one signer or one co-signer of the note may be insured and only the person to be insured must sign the insurance election statement. Where the customer is ineligible for insurance (age, health, amount, terms or gainful employment) the election statement need not be signed. In all other cases the customer must sign the insurance statement indicating either acceptance or refusal.

REQUISITIONING DISABILITY COVERAGE

Disability coverage is requisitioned by checking the appropriate insurance space on the Discount Sheet. Where Disability Insurance is in force, Installment Loan Control will attach both the Credit Life and Disability Certificates to the Payment Card Book. (Disability can be placed only in conjunction with Credit Life)

INELIGIBLE TRANSACTIONS - SALES FINANCE

When transactions are received that are not eligible by virtue of policy limitations, an adjustment must be made for the amount of the premium. Both the amount of the premium and the financing charges thereon must be reversed. The amount of the insurance premium should be applied to the appropriate flat rate chart (without disability OR disability and life insurance included) and the "total note amount" therefore will be the amount which should be deducted from the last payment, interest and discount and the total note amount of the ineligible transaction. DO NOT ALTER THE CONDITIONAL SALES CONTRACT.

Since it is possible that the dealer failed to tell the customer of his ineligibility, the letter shown on page 5 should be sent to the customer when an adjustment is allowed.

Dear Mr. Customer:

We have purchased a Conditional Sales Contract from _____ (Dealer) _____ covering your recent purchase of _____ (Merchandise) _____ and you will soon receive a coupon book showing the amount and due date of your monthly payments.

The charge made for handling this transaction includes (Credit Life Insurance), (Disability Insurance), (Credit Life and Disability Insurance); however, we find that you are not eligible for this coverage under the provisions of the insurance policy because (age, etc.).

Therefore, the final payment in your coupon book has been reduced by $_____, representing a refund of the insurance premium.

We are glad to handle this transaction for you and welcome the opportunity to become "your" bank.

Sincerely,

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS

R The premium rate, paid by the bank, is calculated at 1.08 per $1,000 of insured balances.

R The Monthly Insurance Report, #19-921 on insured premiums should include only Business and Real Estate Insured Loans for those banks on the Automated System. All other banks should prepare the Report for Individuals, Business and Real Estate computing and reporting premiums as outlined in the bulletin: INSURANCE - REPORTING AND PREMIUM PAYMENT. The report should be prepared and sent to Consumer Insurance Services, 9 North Avenue, Atlanta by the 10th of each month.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - Dated 7-10-69

TERMINATION OF INSURANCE

The insurance terminates automatically at the time the indebtedness is paid in full, at the time of repossession (by Bank or dealer), if judgment is entered in any court, or when the loan is charged-off (past-due loans not charged-off may be carried up to a maximum of six months).

The Georgia Insurance Code requires that a refund of the unearned insurance premium be made if a customer pays out his note in advance. It also requires that the refund be computed by the "78ths" method. However, it states that a refund need not be given if it amounts to less than $1. We are already complying with the Code on refunds; consequently, no change is needed in our procedures.

CORRESPONDENT BANKS

This policy is available to our Correspondent Banks who participate in our Credit Life Insurance Policy, on the same basis that it is to C&S Banks except for claims procedure. New participants may be brought under this policy by signing three copies of the Application to Participate, which may be obtained from Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

R Correspondent Banks using the billing service are eligible to participate and will have the coupon size certificate inserted in their payment books as part of their billing procedure.

C&S National Bank offices participating under the American Southern Life Insurance Company policy GL-2 will use that company's claims forms and drafts (identical to those of Prudential) for all claims originating 10-1-68 and later. Claims originating prior to 10-1-68 should be paid under the Prudential policy and the appropriate claims forms and drafts used. THE DATE THAT THE CUSTOMER BECAME DISABLED GOVERNS WHICH POLICY APPLIES (not the date eligible for his first payment). If disability occurred on or after 10-1-68 use American Southern - prior to 10-1-68 use Prudential.

CLAIMS PROCEDURE

Disability claims procedure is outlined below. Subsequent paragraphs of this bulletin and illustrations shown throughout contain detailed explanations of each step followed in completing the forms.

1. Notice of possible claim.
   A. Determine that a legitimate claim exists.
2. Obtain properly completed supporting report forms.
   A. Determine if customer and/or physician's statement is needed.
   B. Verify disability when required.
3. Complete 6-part draft form.
   (The same draft form that is used for Credit Life is used to pay Disability claims).
4. Check report forms, draft form and previous Disability claim forms for eligibility and correctness. Sign draft.
5. Distribute draft copies.
6. File claim papers.

NOTICE OF POSSIBLE CLAIMS (Step #1)

It is the responsibility of the customer to advise the bank of the possibility of a claim under this policy. The insured has 90 days after the end of the first month of disability in which to file claim (previously 60 days). Conversation with the customer, an inspection of the ledger card, and a review of the customer's file are of assistance in determining the probability of the existence of a claim. Before permitting a customer to inconvenience himself by filling out a claim form and securing the necessary doctor's statement, we should determine that a legitimate claim does exist.

1. Is the customer eligible for Disability coverage? Was he or she younger than 62 years of age at the time the loan was made? Was he or she gainfully employed (either by others or for self) at the time the loan was made?

2. Is the installment loan repayable in equal monthly installments over a period not exceeding seven years?

3. Was this particular disability in existence at the time the loan was made or for six months preceding the date of the loan?

4. Has the disability been, or will it have been, in existence for 30 days prior to the date of the payment for which claim is being made?

5. Is the disability due to an excluded cause, i.e., pregnancy, act of war, etc.?

QUESTIONABLE CLAIMS Whenever you have a questionable claim, submit it to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta, before paying, so that it may be discussed with the insurance company. Be sure the customer understands that no commitment has been made and that the insurance company must review the claim before payment can be made.

SUPPORTING REPORT FORMS (Step #2) Use the FIRST REPORT form (see illustration which follows) for all claims in which the 30 day waiting period is involved. All such claims must be supported by a First Report form, completed by both the customer (or his closest relative) and the physician.

Use the CONTINUANCE REPORT form (subsequently illustrated) for all continuing claims after the First Report form has been complied with. Continuance claims are of two major types - those where the physician is uncertain of the length of disability and those where the physician feels the customer to be totally and permanently disabled, either for a specified length of time, for a period which runs beyond the due date of the final installment of the customer's account, or for the remainder of the customer's life.

In cases of uncertain length of disability, a Continuance Report will need to be completed by the customer (or his closest relative) and the physician each time a claim is made. In cases where the disability is known to continue for a long period of time or for the length of the loan, it will not be necessary to obtain a Continuance Report signed by the customer and physician for each payment claimed. In such cases, each month as the payment becomes due, the hospital or other institution, the physician, or the employer should be called to verify that the customer is still disabled (unable to work). A Continuance Report should be filled out as shown in the following illustration, indicating the verification as shown.

FIRST REPORT FORM

COMPLETION OF DRAFT FORM (Step #3) Use the six part snap-out draft form (illustration follows), completing it with care so as to avoid errors. No erasures on the face of the draft are permitted. If errors occur, it will be necessary to void the draft. (Refer to the paragraph "VOIDING DRAFTS" for procedure to follow when drafts must be voided.)

Use a separate draft form for each account on which claim is being paid. (See subsequent paragraph "MULTIPLE ACCOUNTS"). More than one installment on the same account may be paid by the same draft.

In the event insurance has been placed on a co-maker (both life and disability), be sure that the insured's name is typed in the upper left hand corner of the draft. To assist in account identification show the name of the maker (name loan is in) on the face of the draft near the account number.

AFTER COMPLETING THE DRAFT, TYPE IN THE DRAFT INFORMATION ON THE FIRST CONTINUANCE REPORT FORM (DRAFT NUMBER, AMOUNT, AND DATE OF DRAFT).

CHECK REPORT AND DRAFT FORMS FOR ELIGIBILITY AND CORRECTNESS (Step #4)

Before signing the draft, the supporting report form and the draft should be checked for eligibility, completeness and correctness. Use the following procedure.

A. First Report Claims

1. Check the five points of eligibility listed under "Notice of Possible Claims" (Step 1).

2. Use the customer's statement to determine previous disability (on the date of the loan or during the preceding six months).

3. Use physician's statement for dates of disability, both beginning and ending. (At times there will be a discrepancy between the beginning date of disability. Ordinarily we will use the physician's date, so long as it does not affect eligibility. Sometimes a customer may become disabled prior to the date he sees his physician. Should there be no more than seven day's variation, we will accept the date supplied by the customer, after verifying with the employer the date last worked.)

4. Check the date the customer indicates that he returned to work. (Customer must have been disabled on the date of installment being claimed.)

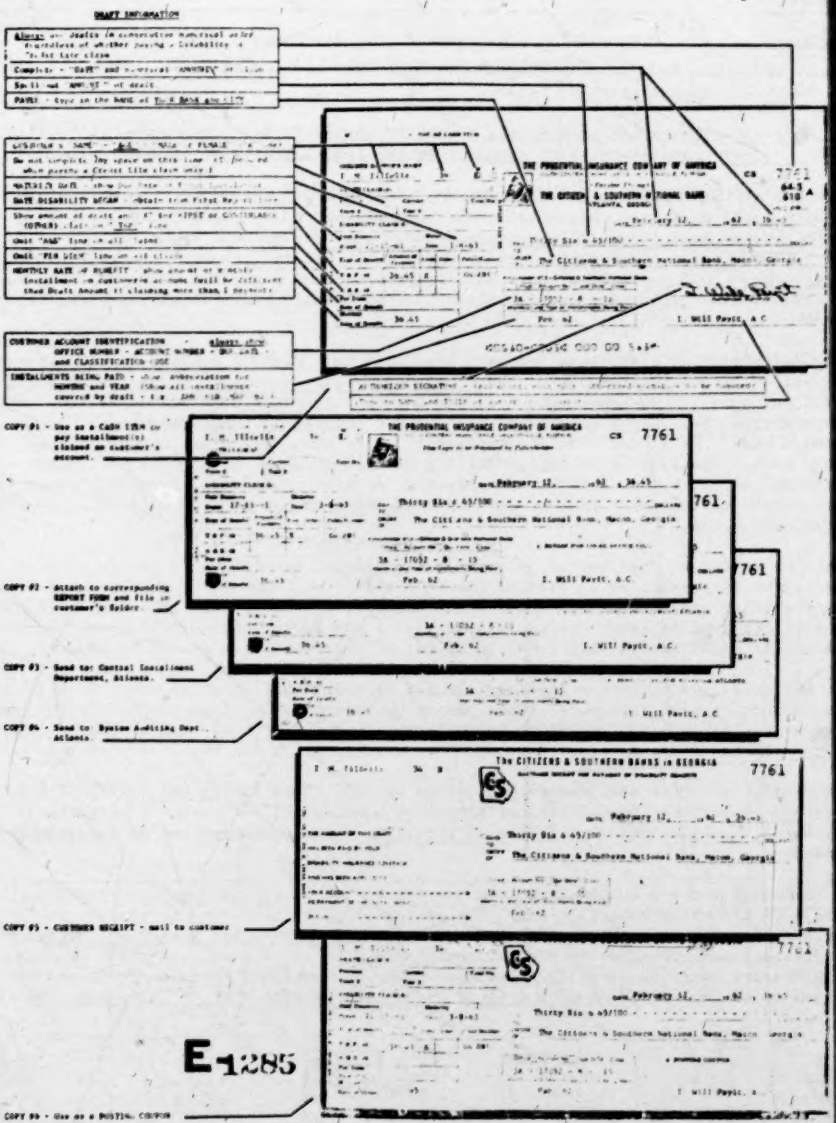
TOPIC CLAIMS PROCEDURE

Date 12-1



B. Continuance Report Claims

1. Check the Continuance Report to determine that disability has been continuous since the date of the last installment claimed.

Occasionally you will have a claim where the customer indicates that he has returned to work (with or without his physician's consent) for a few days, but has had a relapse and has been disabled for the balance of the time between installments. Honor all such claims as long as the customer did not return to work for a period in excess of five days. If the time at work is in excess of five days, the 30 day waiting period is automatically reinvoked and the claim must be treated as if it were a First Report claim.

*The definition of disability has been broadened to: "Being prevented from performing any and every duty pertaining to the occupation of the insured". However, if the insured performs any work or engages in any business or other occupation for renumeration or profit he shall not be deemed disabled under the policy. For example: A dentist loses a hand. He cannot practice dentistry, so he is disabled as long as he does no other work. However, if he begins selling dental equipment he then is not longer disabled even though he still cannot practice dentistry and even though his physician states that he is unable to perform this occupation he was engaged in at the time the disability began.

*In some instances the insured is permitted to return to work for a couple of hours per day by his physician as part of his rehabilitation. Where this is the case and the physician states that the insured is unable to work more than this length of time, we will continue to honor claims as long as all the above factors hold true. If the insured is permitted to work ½ day (4 hours) or more the claim cannot be honored.

You may occasionally have a customer who may be originally disabled from one cause and, before returning to work, subsequently becomes disabled from another cause. As long as the disability (inability to work) has been continuous, such claims are to be treated as if the customer had had the same disability for the entire period.

Frequently customers will change physicians several times during the course of a disability. This in no way affects eligibility; however, in such cases a physician's statement should be obtained from each physician covering the period of time of his statement.

It is possible for a customer to lose his job during or even before his disability. This does not cause ineligibility. The policy requires that the customer be gainfully employed (workweek of not less than 30 hours) at the time the loan is made. If the customer subsequently becomes unemployed (for any reason), he still remains eligible for benefits under this policy. However, since the customer obviously has no job to return to, the ending date of disability will be that date shown by the physician as the date his patient was first able to return to work. In claims of this sort, a customer's and physician's statement must be obtained each month.

Remember to check the present Continuance Report form against that of the preceding month (First or Continuance). Be certain that there is proper continuity between the report forms. Check the ledger card to be certain that the proper installment is being claimed. The due dates of installments being claimed (as shown on the various draft copies used to pay a continuing claim) must be in proper consecutive order.

Sign the draft.

DISTRIBUTE DRAFT COPIES (Step #5)

Copy #1 - Use as a cash item to pay the installment(s) being claimed on the customer's account.

CONTINUANCE REPORT FORM

To be used on all claims under the same continuing disability after the first report has been used on the initial claim.

IMPORTANT

IF YOU ARE STILL DISABLED ON THE DATE YOUR NEXT PAYMENT ON THIS ACCOUNT BECOMES DUE. THE ENCLOSED CONTINUANCE REPORT SHOULD BE COMPLETED BY BOTH YOU AND YOUR PHYSICIAN. YOUR DISABILITY MUST CONTINUE UNINTERRUPTED IF YOUR DISABILITY INSURANCE IS TO PAY YOUR NEXT INSTALLMENT. IN MAKING APPLICATION FOR DISABILITY BENEFITS, PLEASE SEE THAT THE BANK HAS THE COMPLETED REPORT NO LATER THAN 5 DAYS AFTER THE DUE DATE OF YOUR PAYMENT.

Cases in which no Continuance Report should be mailed:

(a) Paid out claims has paid final installment.
(b) Customer has returned to work.
(c) Physician's statement on current claim indicates total permanent disability for a prolonged period of time or for balance of the life of the loan.

Copy #6 - Use as a posting coupon, marking the ledger card "PD" in the payment coding space to indicate that payment was made by a Disability claim.

VOIDING DRAFTS Drafts must be prepared carefully so that they are correct and do not contain any erasures, strike-overs, etc. If, however, such an error is made, it will be necessary to void the draft. Since drafts are issued to each office in numerical sequence and each number must be accounted for, the following procedure must be used whenever a draft is voided.

1. Using a red pencil, write the word "VOID" on the face of copies 1, 2 and 3.

2. Tear off the signature space on copy #1 and destroy.

3. Be sure that the office designation is shown on the draft in the appropriate space so that the auditors may identify the office issuing the voided draft.

4. Send all six copies to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

FILING OF CLAIMS PAPERS (Step #6) The report forms should be filed in the customer's folder. Legal retention time for supporting report forms is five years from the ending claim date. When a claim is closed, all folders are being stripped and the file destroyed. Disability report forms should be filed alphabetically in a permenent file. The permanent file should be reviewed annually and report forms covering claims five years old should be destroyed.

NOTICE PROCEDURES When past-due notices are sent, the notice clerk should be on the look-out for all accounts where the last payment was coded "PD". These accounts should be immediately referred to the Collection Department to determine if the delinquency has developed because of failure to file a Disability claim.

PAST DUE ACCOUNTS

Effective 12-1-66 the policy benefits have been broadened so as to pay certain delinquent payments after the originally scheduled maturity date for up to 6 months provided the customer remains continuously disabled. If the account is past due at the time disability begins, these payments may now be claimed during the six months period following the date of final maturity. This will not cover any installment falling due during the 30 day waiting period.

Replaces Bulletin: "INSURANCE - DISABILITY CLAIMS PROCEDURE" - dated 2-14-62

However, if the customer does not remain disabled for the entire term of the loan and long enough afterwards to file monthly for those payments past due, collection of past due payments may be difficult at such a later date. At the initial contact with the customer, the length of disability should be considered. If it is obviously to be a short one or to cease before the final maturity date, arrangements must be made to take care of any unpaid installments not then eligible for Disability payment. In any case, the customer should be advised that if his disability ceases before final maturity date, the delinquent payments will not be covered by Disability.

In cases of unusual hardship and where credit factors warrant, an extension of past-due payments may be in order. However, in making such extensions, remember that you are shortening the six months period after the date of the originally scheduled final maturity.

*PREPAID ACCOUNT If disability occurs on a prepaid account, claims will be handled as if the account were not prepaid. The borrower is entitled to one payment each month (after the waiting period) whether the account is prepaid or past-due. The insurance company has ruled that, if a disability continues through the final installment, we must pay any pre-paid payments that would have been eligible for payment during the period of disability had the account not been pre-paid. However, these should not be paid until the final installment is claimed. At that time, make for all the pre-paid installments that the customer was entitled to as well as the final payment.

In preparing the draft form use in the space for "Month(s) and Year of Installment Being Paid", the date that would exist if the account were neither prepaid not past-due. This means that this date may not necessarily coincide with the next open due date on the ledger card. When making claim for prepaid installments, show all months being claimed in this space (actual date of pre-paid installments as they were originally scheduled to the ledger card.)

MULTIPLE ACCOUNTS When making a claim, be sure to check the customer's wheeldex card, ledger card and folder to be certain that claim is made for all eligible payments on all of the customer's accounts covered by Disability Insurance. When making claim for payments on more than one account for the same customer, only one First Report or Continuance Report is necessary; however, a separate Draft form (Snap-out) is required for each account. Remember that a total of $250 per month is the maximum amount payable under Disability Insurance.

ORDERING FORMS First and Continuance Report forms, and Drafts may be ordered from Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta. The Important Notice (19-E-) may be requisitioned from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta. Please keep only a minimum supply of all necessary forms in your office.

Disability insurance, in addition to being a real protection for your customers, is a good-will builder. As such, it has become an important part of any retail installment financing package. A complete understanding of the provisions of the policy covering Disability insurance, as well as the procedures necessary for the handling of claims is absolutely essential to insure your customers the full benefits of this coverage. This bulletin will assist you in filing claims for your customers under the Disability insurance policy.

Claims are paid through Consumer Insurance Services, Citizens and Southern National Bank, P. O. Box #4899, Atlanta, Georgia 30302. Each legitimate claim should be paid as soon as possible. To avoid carrying claims in suspense over a prolonged disability, each installment is treated as a separate claim as it becomes eligible for insurance payment. You should give careful attention to completing the necessary forms in submitting your claims.

CLAIMS PROCEDURE The procedure for filing disability claims is outlined below. The illustrations shown throughout subsequent paragraphs of this bulletin contain detailed explanations of each step to be taken in completing the forms.

1. Notice of possible claim.
   A. Determine that a legitimate claim does exist.

2. Obtain properly completed supporting report forms.
   A. Determine if the customer's and/or physician's statement is needed.
   B. Verify disability when required.

3. Complete "Claim for Disability Benefits" (snap-out forms).

4. Check report forms, snap-out "Claim for Disability Benefits" forms, and previous disability claim form for eligibility and correctness.

5. Send report form and the snap-out "Claim for Disability Benefits" form to Consumer Insurance Services, Citizens and Southern National Bank, P. O. Box #4899, Atlanta, Georgia 30302.

6. When the draft and copy, customer's Receipt and Posting Coupon are returned, use the draft to pay the installment claimed. Using the Posting Coupon, post the ledger card, send customer his receipt, and file the draft copy in the customer's folder to use in filing subsequent claims.

QUESTIONABLE CLAIMS Whenever you have a questionable claim, submit it to Consumer Insurance Services, P. O. Box 4899, Atlanta, Georgia 30302 so that it may be discussed with the insurance company. Be sure the customer understands that no commitment has been made and that the insurance company must review the claim before payment can be made.

SUPPORTING REPORT FORMS (STEP 2) Use the FIRST REPORT form (see illustration which follows) for all claims in which the 30 day waiting period is involved. All such claims must be supported by a First Report form completed by both the customer (or his closest relative) and the physician.

Use the CONTINUANCE REPORT form (subsequently illustrated) for all continuing claims after the First Report form has been complied with. Continuance claims are of two major types - those where the physician is uncertain of the length of disability and those where the physician feels the customer to be totally and permanently disabled, either for a specified length of time, for a period which runs beyond the due date of the final installment of the customer's account, or for the remainder of the customer's life.

FIRST REPORT FORM

Must always be completed on first installment(s) being claimed at the beginning of each disability. (Use whenever 30 day waiting period is required.)

REPLACES BULLETIN: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - CLAIMS PROCEDURE
CORRESPONDENT BANKS - Dated 3-9-62

In cases of uncertain length of disability, a Continuance Report will need to be completed by the customer (or his closest relative) and the physician each time a claim is made. In cases where the disability is known to continue for a long period of time or for the length of the loan, it will not be necessary to obtain a Continuance Report signed by the customer and physician for each payment claimed. In such cases, each month as the payment becomes due, the hospital or other institution, the physician or the employer should be called to verify that the customer is still disabled (unable to work). A Continuance Report should be filled out as shown on the preceding illustration, indicating the verification as shown.

COMPLETION OF "CLAIMS FOR DISABILITY BENEFITS" SNAP-OUT FORM (STEP 3)

This three part snap-out form was designed to expedite payments of claims with a minimum of clerical effort. This form is used in filing all claims - First and subsequent Continuance claims. All applicable spaces must be completed as shown in the illustration which follows.

Send all tickets with the completed First Report, or Continuance Report to Consumer Insurance Services, P. O. Box #4899 Atlanta, Georgia, 30302. Tickets #2 (Customer's Receipt) and #6 (Posting Coupon) will be returned with a Draft and draft copy to the bank making the claim.

Ticket number 2 is the customer's receipt and instructs him what to do if he is still disabled when his next payment becomes due. This should be mailed each time an installment is paid by Disability insurance. The man handling the claim must decide whether or not a Continuance Report will have to be completed by the customer and physician for the next month's claim.

Cases in which no Continuance Report should be mailed:

(a) Current claim has paid final installment

(b) Customer has returned to work

(c) Physician's statement on current claim indicates total permanent disability for a prolonged period of time or for balance of life of loan.

Ticket number 6 is the posting coupon and should be used in the regular manner. As the payment is posted, mark the ledger card "PD" in the space for payment coding to indicate that payment was made by a disability claim.

CHECK REPORT FORM AND SNAP-OUT TICKET FOR ELIGIBILITY AND CORRECTNESS (STEP 4)

After the snap-out ticket has been typed, but before it is signed, the supporting report forms and the snap-out ticket should be checked for eligibility, completeness, and correctness. The following procedure should be used:

CLAIM FOR BENEFITS - SNAP-OUT FORM

(1) Date - Day and year upon which the snap-out ticket is completed.

(2) Amount of Payment - Amount of monthly installment.

(3) Date Disability Began - Obtain from First Report form.

(4) Date Periods Which Benefits Previously Paid - When filing a First Report claim indicate "none". When filing a Continued Report claim show the "month, day and year" of the last installment previously claimed on the same account.

(5) Total Amount Previously Paid - First Report claims show "none". Continued Report claims show total amount of all installments previously paid under the same disability and on the same account.

(6) Due Date(s) of Installment(s) Claimed - Show month, due date and year and amount of each installment being claimed (three installments per claim maximum). Do not claim on the same Snap-out ticket, any date claimed on other Snap-out ticket(s) already issued for the total of the installments being claimed.

(7) Paid by Draft Number - Date of Draft - These spaces to be completed by the Central Installment Department.

(8) Signature and Title - Each snap-out ticket must be signed by the Installment Loan Officer-in-Charge or Manager.

(1) Ticket Number 1. - Becomes a part of the permanent claim papers together with the First or Continued Report form.

(2) Ticket Number 2. - Customer Receipt - Will be returned to the originating bank with draft paying claim.

(3) Ticket Number 3. - Posting Coupon - Will be returned to the originating bank with draft paying claim.

SEND ALL 3 TICKETS TO CENTRAL INSTALLMENT, ATLANTA, TOGETHER WITH THE CORRESPONDENT FIRST OR CONTINUED REPORT FORM.

REPLACES BULLETIN: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - CLAIMS PROCEDURE - CORRESPONDENT BANKS - Dated 3-9-62

A. First Report Claims

1. Check the five points of eligibility listed under "Notice of Possible Claims" (Step 1).

2. Use the customer's statement to determine previous disability (on the date of the loan or during the preceding six months).

3. Use physician's statement for dates of disability, both beginning and ending. (At times there will be a discrepancy between the beginning date of disability. Ordinarily we will use the physician's date so long as it does not affect eligibility. Sometimes a customer may become disabled prior to the date he sees his physician. Should there be no more than seven days' variation, we will accept the date supplied by the customer, after verifying with the employer the date last worked.)

4. Check the date the customer indicates that he returned to work. (Customer must have been disabled on the date of installment being claimed.)

B. Continuance Report Claims

1. Check the Continuance Report to determine that disability has been continuous since the date of the last installment claimed.

Occasionally you will have a claim where the customer indicates that he has returned to work (with or without his physician's consent) for a few days, but has had a relapse and has been disabled for the balance of the time between installments. Honor all such claims as long as the customer did not return to work for a period in excess of five days. If the time at work is in excess of five days, the 30 day waiting period is automatically reinvoked and the claim must be treated as if it were a First Report claim.

*The definition of disability has been broadened to: "Being prevented from performing any and every duty pertaining to the occupation of the insured". However, if the insured performs any work or engages in any business or other occupation for renumeration or profit, he shall not be deemed disabled under the policy. For example: A dentist loses a hand. He cannot practice dentistry so he is disabled as long as he does no other work. However, if he begins selling dental equipment, he then is no longer disabled even though he still cannot practice dentistry and even though his physician states that he is unable to perform this occupation he was engaged in at the time the disability began.

REPLACES BULLETIN: INSURANCE - DISABILITY - CLAIMS PROCEDURE - CORRESPONDENT BANKS - Dated 3-9-62

*In some instances, the insured is permitted to return to work for a couple of hours per day by his physician as part of his rehabilitation. Where this is the case and the physician states that the insured is unable to work more than this length of time, we will continue to honor claims as long as all the above factors hold true. If the insured is permitted to work ½ day (4 hours) or more, the claim cannot be honored.

You may occasionally have a customer who may be originally disabled from one cause and, before returning to work, subsequently becomes disabled from another cause. As long as the disability (inability to work) has been continuous, such claims are to be treated as if the customer had had the same disability for the entire period.

Frequently customers will change physicians several times during the course of a disability. This in no way effects eligibility; however, in such cases a physician's statement should be obtained from each physician covering the period of time of his statement.

It is possible for a customer to lose his job during or even before his disability. This does not cause ineligibility. The policy requires that the customer be gainfully employed (workweek of not less than 30 hours) at the time the loan is made. If the customer subsequently becomes unemployed (for any reason), he still remains eligible for benefits under this policy. However, since the customer obviously has no job to return to, the ending date of disability will be that date shown by the physician as the date his patient was first able to return to work. In claims of this sort, a customer's and physician's statement must be obtained each month.

Remember to check the present Continuance Report form against that of the preceding month (First or Continuance). Be certain that there is proper continuity between the report forms. Check the ledger card to be certain that the proper installment is being claimed. The due dates of installments being claimed must be in proper consecutive order. Be sure to check the "Date Disability Began" on continuing claims to be sure the correct date is used, also the "Date Through Which Benefits Previously Paid".

SEND REPORT FORM AND CLAIM FOR DISABILITY BENEFITS FORM (SNAP-OUT TICKET) TO CONSUMER INSURANCE SERVICES, ATLANTA (STEP 5)

PAYING THE CLAIM (STEP 6) All claims will be paid through Consumer Insurance Services, Citizens and Southern National Bank, P. O. Box 4899, Atlanta, Georgia, 30302. A draft and draft copy will be returned to the bank originating the claim together with copies 2 and 6 of the snap-out tickets.

NOTICE PROCEDURES When past-due notices are sent, the notice clerk should be on the look-out for all accounts where the last payment was coded "FD". These accounts should be immediately referred to the Collection Department to determine if the delinquency has developed because of failure to file a Disability claim.

FAST DUE ACCOUNTS Effective 12-1-66 the policy benefits have been broadened so as to pay certain delinquent payments after the originally scheduled maturity date for up to 6 months provided the customer remains continuously disabled.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE-DISABILITY-CLAIMS PROCEDURE-CORRESPONDENT BANKS
Dated 12-1-66

If the account is past due at the time disability begins, these payments may now be claimed during the six months period following the date of final maturity. This will not cover any installment falling due during the 30 day waiting period.

However, if the customer does not remain disabled for the entire term of the loan and long enough afterwards to file monthly for those payments past due, collection of past due payments may be difficult at such a later date. At the initial contact with the customer the length of disability should be considered. If it is obviously to be a short one or to cease before the final maturity date, arrangements must be made to take care of any unpaid installments not then eligible for Disability payment. In any case, the customer should be advised that if his disability ceases before final maturity date, the delinquent payments will not be covered by Disability.

In case of unusual hardship and where credit factors warrant, an extension of past-due payments may be in order. However, in making such extensions, remember that you are shortening the six months period after the date of the originally scheduled final maturity.

PREPAID ACCOUNT If disability occurs on a prepaid account, claims will be handled as if the account were not prepaid. The borrower is entitled to one payment each month (after the waiting period) whether the account is prepaid or past-due. The insurance company has ruled that, if a disability continues through the final installment, we must pay any pre-paid payments that would have been eligible for payment during the period of disability had the account not been prepaid. However, these should not be paid until the final installment is claimed. At that time, make for all the prepaid installments that the customer was entitled to as well as the final payment.

The "Due Date of the Installment Claimed" on the snap-out ticket should be the date that would exist if the account were neither past due or prepaid. In the case of past due or prepaid accounts, this date will not necessarily coincide with the next open due date on the ledger card. When making claim for prepaid installments, show all months being claimed in this space (actual dates of pre-paid installments as they were originally scheduled to the ledger card.

MULTIPLE ACCOUNTS When making a claim, be sure to check the customer's wheeldex card, ledger card and folder to be certain that claim is made for all eligible payments on all of the customer's accounts covered by Disability insurance. When making claim for payments on more than one account for the same customer, only one First Report or Continuance Report is necessary; however, a separate claim for Benefits (snap-out) form is required for each account. Remember that a total of $250 per month is the maximum amount payable under Disability insurance.

ORDERING FORMS All forms required for processing claims can be obtained from the Consumer Insurance Services, Citizens and Southern National Bank, Atlanta. Please order your requirements by memo, keeping only a minimum supply in your office.

ELIGIBILITY

This program is available to C&S National Bank, its affiliates and wholly owned subsidiaries.

INSURANCE CARRIER

Coverage is provided by individual certificates issued under a master policy, number M3960370, written by Great American Insurance Company, through C&S Agency, Inc. The master policy is on file with Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta. Individual certificates are issued and provide evidence of insurance and contain the major provisions of the master policy.

ASSUREDS

This is a multi-interest policy protecting the purchaser, dealer, and the bank as their interest may appear on an all-risk basis consistent with the provisions of the policy.

MERCHANDISE ELIGIBILITY

Agricultural, construction, road building, logging (except chainsaws) and similar equipment are eligible. Automobiles, trucks, motorcycles, water craft, aircraft are not eligible.

RATES

Rates and deductible amounts vary with usage and type of equipment. They are shown in the table below. The annual rate is based on each $100 of Insurance. The amount of insurance should be the actual value of the equipment.

EQUIPMENT COVERED	DEDUCTIBLE	ANNUAL RATE PER $100 OF INS.
1. Farm or agricultural equipment (except combines)	$50	.80
2. Combines	$50	1.60
3. Roadbuilding, contractors, and similar	$100.00 or 1% of amount of loss whichever is greater	1.00
4. Logging or forestry equipment (except chainsaws which are not eligible)	same as #2	3.50

RATES APPLY TO INSURED AMOUNTS UNDER $50,000. IF OVER $50,000, CALL C&S AGENCY.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - FARM EQUIPMENT - Dated 7-25-68

TERM

All policies must be written for the term of the loan.

PERILS COVERED

The policy insures against all risks of direct physical loss of or damage to the property covered except losses that are:

a. Caused by leakage, breakage, marring or scratching, wet or dampness, or by being rusted or frosted unless caused by fire, lightning, windstorm, cyclone, tornado, collision, derailment, or overturning of transporting conveyances;
b. Caused by delay, poor packing or rough handling;
c. Due to short-circuiting, blowout or other electrical disturbance within the insured article exclusive of lightning; unless fire ensues and then for loss or damage by such ensuing fire only;
d. Caused by weight of load exceeding registered lifting capacity of any machine;
e. Loss by wrongful conversion or secretion by the purchaser or lessee in possession;
f. Caused by perils as specified in War Risk Exclusion clause contained in the policy;
g. Caused by perils as specified in the applicable Nuclear Exclusion contained in the policy;
h. Caused by wear, tear, gradual deterioration, latent defect, mechanical breakdown or extremes of temperature.
i. To tires or tubes unless the loss or damage is caused by fire, windstorm or theft or is coincident with other loss or damage insured by this certificate.

PLACING COVERAGE

All certificates are issued by the C&S Agency. Example A shown on page 3 shows a sample application form. Complete and forward the application and the check for the premium to the agency. Coverage will be effective on the date the note is signed. Upon receipt of application the agency will issue a certificate and forwar with a copy to the branch. The original should be placed in the customer's file ar the copy mailed to customer with letter. A suggested latter is shown below.

CERTIFICATE TRANSMITTAL LETTER

Here is the Certificate of Insurance on your equipment which you requested from the C&S Agency when you financed your vehicle. The premium is included in your monthly payment.

CANCELLATION

When an account is paid before final maturity, insurance does not have to be cancelled, but may be left in force until the certificate expires. If a customer specifically requests the cancellation of his coverage when paying off in advance, send the original certificate and the customer's copy to C&S Agency for cancellation. The Agency will then compute the return premium and remit a draft (payable to the customer and the Bank) to the Bank. Verification that the account has been paid out should be made before endorsing the draft and forwarding it to the customer.

If customer cannot produce his copy of the certificate, xerox Bank certificate and type on face "cancel effective (date)" and have customer sign.

Where the bank requests cancellation due to repossession, all that is needed is a letter to that effect sent to the insurance company. The return premium will be sent directly to the bank and should be applied to the customer's account. The letter requesting cancellation must give a specific date for cancellation. This date should be the date the merchandise was sold by the Bank or the date the contract was repurchased by the dealer.

EXPIRATION, FOLLOWUP, EXTENSIONS

The C&S Agency will notify the branch 60 days prior to the expiration date of each certificate. If the loan has been extended, and if the loan balance is such that the branch needs insurance coverage, it will be necessary to submit another application to cover the extended period. Use the procedures, rates, and minimum premium previously outlined. The amount of insurance should be the actual value of the equipment at the time of the new application.

LOSSES

Report all losses to the C&S Agency, giving full details.

SUBJECT ERRORS & OMISSIONS COVERAGE

TOPIC AUTOMOBILE DEALERS

 Date 12/22/69

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - ERRORS & OMISSIONS COVERAGE - AUTOMOBILE DEALERS - Dated 8-1-64

All of the Citizens and Southern National Banks and affiliates buying paper from automobile dealers who sell their own insurance and who represent the Dependable Insurance Company are protected from errors and omissions and subsequent loss on our part where mistakes in writing the policy are made by the agent. Our blanket coverage is by Dependable Insurance Company policy, 78411. (Policy is on file in Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.)

POLICY INTENT

The purpose of this policy is to provide coverage where agents of Dependable Insurance Company have been ordered to write insurance for the life of the contract, the premium has been paid by us, and the company has failed to write the insurance ordered.

In addition, the policy provides us with the same single interest protection we would have if a Long Form Loss Payable Clause were a part of each customer's policy (protection for acts of neglect, policy violations, etc., by the customer).

WHEN APPLICABLE

This coverage is applicable only in cases where (1) we finance an automobile and (2) the insurance has been sold to the borrower by the automobile dealer, and (3) the dealer is an agent of Dependable. The policy protects us on a single interest basis to the extent of the net amount owed on the loan.

EXCESS COVERAGE

This insurance applies to automobiles in which the Bank has a loss payable interest only if the Bank is not covered by some other specific insurance. In cases where there is other specific insurance, claim should be filed against that insurance coverage.

If necessary please refer the details of any loss to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta, for further handling.

Replaces Page ~~1 Only~~ of Bulletin: INSURANCE - FLOORPLAN-AUTOMOBILE
Dated 2/12/71

A recent agency change has called for a change in carriers under this policy. The updating of this information and clarification of other points follows.

R INSURANCE CARRIER AND AGENCY

Effective February 1, 1971, coverage is with the Great American Insurance Company under policy #3928947, and the C&S Agency, Inc. is the agent. The policy is on file with Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

ASSUREDS

This is a dual interest policy protecting the bank and the dealer, as the interests of each may appear.

R MERCHANDISE ELIGIBLE FOR COVERAGE

Automobiles, trucks, trailers, semi-trailers, (Mobile homes and campers are not eligible).

DURATION OF COVERAGE

The policy becomes effective as soon as either the dealer or the bank acquires an interest in the vehicle. Where we are clearing units at the factory, the insurance becomes effective for the bank when the factory drafts on us. The coverage terminates when the bank's interest is terminated, or when the merchandise is sold, delivered, or otherwise disposed of by the dealer, whichever occurs first.

PERILS COVERED

This is a stated perils policy insuring against loss and/or damage caused by -

(A) Fire - Direct and accidental loss of or damage to the vehicle caused by fire or lightning, by smoke smudge due to a sudden, unusual and faulty operation of any fixed heating equipment serving the premises in which the automobile is located, by the stranding, sinking, burning, collision or derailment of any conveyance in or upon which the automobile is being transported. (Except while being conveyed in or upon any motor vehicle or trailer or semi-trailer.)

(B) Theft - Direct and accidental loss of or damage to the vehicle caused by theft, larceny, robbery or pilferage. (Except where due N to acts on the part of the dealer or his employee.) A $25.00 deductible for each automobile applies to all losses including theft of auto parts and accessories.

(C) Combined Additonal Coverage - Direct and accidental loss of or damage to the vehicle, caused by windstorm, hail, earthquake, explosion, riot or civil commotion, or the forced landing or falling of any aircraft or its parts or equipment, flood or rising waters, malicious mischief or vandalism, external discharge or leakage of water except loss resulting from rain, snow or sleet whether or not wind-driven; provided, with respect to each vehicle, $25.00 shall be deducted from each loss caused by malicious mischief or vandalism.

COLLISION, DEMONSTRATORS, and DRIVE-AWAYS

Through an endorsement to this policy, we offer dual-interest collision insurance on demonstrators and drive-Aways to those dealers insuring their floorplan
R under this policy. This coverage is not automatically included, and must be specifically requested by the dealer. Upon request, the insuring company will establish a premium charge based on exposure to loss. In each case, contact Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta, for further information.

AMOUNT AND EXTENT OF COVERAGE

The limits of the insurance company's liability for loss shall not exceed the R actual cash value of the vehicle. The limits of liability for any one disaster or any one location shall not exceed $1,250,000.

EXCESS COVERAGE

The policy states that "this insurance shall be considered as excess insurance where other insurance exists in the name of or for the benefits of the Named Insured or Dealer, and shall not apply until all other insurance shall have been exhausted."

COST TO DEALER

The cost of insurance is included in our standard flat charges of which are computed on the invoice price of each car floorplanned and open on wholesale during the month, even though it may be paid off during the month. This flat charge is added to your "Statement of Interest on Wholesale" as it goes out each month.

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS

R Premiums are paid by the reporting Bank at the rate of 33¢ per $1000 per month using the Monthly Insurance Report (19-921) as follows:

(A) The total value (dealer cost plus transportation) of vehicles on hand at the end of the preceding month. Premiums are paid only on those cars on hand at the end of the month regardless of what the dealer's turnover may have been during the month.

(B) On the reverse of the form, list all dealers covered under the policy and, show the amount of inventory and location.

Replaces Bulletins: INSURANCE FLOORPLAN - AUTOMOBILE - DATED 3/23/65 and INSURANCE FLOORPLAN - AUTOMOBILE - COLLISION, DEMO, & DRIVEAWAYS - Dated 1/21/70

TOPIC

 Date 1-25-65

REPLACES BULLETIN: INSURANCE, FLOORPLAN - EQUIPMENT, Dated 3-2-62

This bulletin is being rewritten to incorporate changes necessitated by the change in the insurance carrier. The new Floorplan Floater policy provides the same casualty protection for the dealer and the bank on merchandise and equipment that we had under the old policy. The major changes are in the rate (now $1.30 per $1,000) and in the limits of liability (now $50,000 at one location). It is important that all personnel handling dealer paper review the policy provisions and familiarize themselves with the procedures involved so that our dealers will always receive the maximum benefits from the policy.

INSURANCE CARRIER AND AGENCY Effective January 1, 1965, coverage is with American Southern Insurance Company under their policy #IM-527.

ASSUREDS This is a dual interest policy, protecting the dealer and the bank as their interests may appear.

MERCHANDISE ELIGIBLE FOR COVERAGE "Equipment, appliance and durable articles ... specifically identifiable as encumbered to the lending institution ..." This includes anything which we normally finance on Wholesale Floorplan (including boats and motors) except automobiles, trucks, motor scooters, motorcycles, and similar vehicles. It does cover merchandise which is on demonstration as well as that on the dealer's floor or in his warehouse.

WHERE COVERED Within territorial limits of Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama and Florida.

EFFECTIVE DATE Coverage is effective as of the date the Bank approves the purchase and the dealer takes delivery. Coverage is provided while the merchandise is in transit if approval has been given and the dealer has taken possession anywhere other than his place of business.

PERILS COVERED This is an all-risk or damage policy with the following exclusions:

(a) Loss or damage caused directly or indirectly by hostile or warlike action in time of peace or war, any weapon of war employing atomic fission or radioactive force, invasion, insurrection, rebellion, civil war, usurped power, legal seizure, legal destruction, legal confiscation, or risks of contraband or illegal transportation or trade.

(b) Loss or damage to electrical appliances arising from electrical injury or disturbances from artificial causes, unless fire ensues and then only for direct loss or damage caused by such ensuing fire.

(c) Loss or damage caused by mechanical breakdown, inherent vice or defect, wear and tear or gradual deterioration.

REPLACES BULLETIN: INSURANCE, FLOORPLAN - EQUIPMENT, Dated 3-2-62

(d) Loss or damage resulting from delay, loss of market, bankruptcy, foreclosure or similar proceedings.

(e) Loss or damage due to conversion or any dishonest act on the part of the dealer or his employees.

(f) Breakage of fragile articles unless caused by fire, lightning, explosion, cyclone, tornado, thieves, or overturning, derailment or collision of the conveyance on which the merchandise is being transported.

(g) Loss or damage caused by the elements while the merchandise is in the open, except while in transit.

(h) Loss or damage caused by flood and rising waters, except while in transit.

EXTENT OF COVERAGE Merchandise is covered as long as it is:

(a) Unsold by dealer - his cost plus transportation charges.

(b) Sold but not delivered - the net selling price after allowances and discounts.

LIMITS OF LIABILITY

(a)	While in transit ...	$ 25,000
(b)	At any one location ...	$ 50,000
(c)	In any one disaster ...	$150,000

TERMINATION OF COVERAGE Liability continues from the time the merchandise becomes at risk for the insured (see previous paragraph EFFECTIVE DATE) to the termination of the Bank's interest or when the merchandise is sold, delivered, or otherwise disposed of by the dealer, whichever occurs first.

COST OF COVERAGE TO DEALER The cost of this insurance is included in our standard 1% flat charge for ninety days and ½% renewal charge for each thirty days thereafter.

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS Premiums are paid by the reporting bank at the rate of $1.30 per $1,000 per month using the Monthly Insurance Report (19-921) as follows.

(a) The total value (dealer cost plus transportation) of merchandise on hand at the end of the preceding month. Premiums are paid only on merchandise on hand at the end of the month, regardless of dealer's turnover during the month.

REPLACES BULLETIN: INSURANCE, FLOORPLAN - EQUIPMENT, Dated 3-2-62

(b) On the reverse of the form, list any dealers with more than $5,000 at one location, showing the amount at each location. If there are no such dealers, indicate that fact on the report by writing "NONE."

The Insurance Report should be prepared and sent to System Consumer Credit in Atlanta by the 10th of each month (see page 5 of Bulletin: INSURANCE - REPORTING & PREMIUM PAYMENT).

CANCELLATION This insurance may be cancelled with any particular dealer when it is deemed that the insured does not exercise due caution in regard to the protection of merchandise. Cancellation requires a written notice fifteen (15) days prior to cancellation date.

COPIES OF POLICY The policy is on file in the System Consumer Credit Department, Atlanta.

REPORTING LOSSES

Prepare a "Notice of Loss", sending original and two copies to the System Consumer Credit Department, Atlanta, together with copies of the dealer invoices covering each damaged unit. Be sure to indicate the name and location of your bank as well as the name of the individual handling the dealer account on the Notice of Loss. (See illustration on page 4.)

IMPORTANT

1. Do not assign the loss to a commercial insurance adjustor.
2. On partial losses no repairs should be made before the loss is reported. An estimate of repairs should be submitted by the dealer to assist in the adjustment of the loss.

BANKS OTHER THAN CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN The coverages under this policy are available to any correspondent bank on the same basis as C & S Banks. Any correspondent bank desiring this coverage should be referred to the System Consumer Credit Department, Atlanta.

ORDERING FORMS Notice of Loss forms may be ordered from the System Consumer Credit Department, Atlanta.

NEW BULLETIN

There are four situations involving insurance debits or credits to a loan which require rescheduling of payments:

1. BANK PLACEMENT - the debit of an insurance premium to the loan because the bank placed the insurance when the customer failed to do so.
2. RENEWAL - when insurance through C&S Agency is written for less than the full term of the loan and later requires renewal through charging the premium to the loan balance.
3. CANCELLATION AND REFUND OF PREMIUM - the credit of an insurance premium refund to the loan because of cancellation. (Relatively small amounts may be refunded, directly to the customer, to avoid rescheduling expense.)
4. LOSS CLAIM PROCEEDS APPLIED TO ACCOUNT - in lieu of paying for repairs to the vehicle, loss claim proceeds are applied to the loan balance under certain unusual circumstances.

Each has its own special handling, and varying credit considerations. REGULATION Z IS NOT APPLICABLE TO "SUBSEQUENT TRANSACTIONS" SUCH AS THIS.

There are some other reasons unrelated to insurance, for changing the payment schedule of a loan. These are covered in the bulletin: ACCOUNTING AND GENERAL OPERATIONS - PAYMENT SCHEDULE - CHANGES. This bulletin makes it clear that personal, continuing follow-up is necessary to get the correct terms started. If this cannot be done, insurance cancellation and repossession become the next steps.

CREDIT APPRAISAL

Any of the insurance changes mentioned above can be and frequently is, a red flag which should trigger a fresh look at the overall credit picture. Only then can we make a realistic decision on insurance handling.

BANK PLACEMENT AND RENEWAL

After the adjuster's discussion and understanding with the customer, the adjuster should have the full particulars of why the customer does not yet have insurance. Then, assuming that we wish to bank-place the insurance, here is the procedure.

1. Check the computer to get balance and status of the loan. A delinquent condition, or a next payment due very soon, must be given careful consideration. The loan must be CURRENT before we can reschedule the remaining balance. Anything to the contrary will be considered an audit exception.
2. Figure the premium amount and the term it is to cover, using rate books and forms furnished by C&S Agency.

Multiply Premium Amount Financed by Factor to Determine Amount to be added to existing loan balance.

3. Use the 6% add-on rate factor chart on page 2. (The example shown is based on an account that has a balance of $1800.00, with 18 months remaining. Insurance premium is $178.00. The loan includes life and disability coverage.) Use the factor in the column that includes the same life and disability insurance coverage that the loan presently carries - the 6LD column in this case. Factor is 1.11274, multiplied by $178.00 = 198.07.

   The designation means:

   6NI = 6% Add-on rate, no insurance.
   6L = 6% Add-on rate, life insurance included.
   6LD = 6% Add-on rate, life and disability insurance included.

4. Add the amount obtained in step (3) to the loan balance amount. (1800.00 + 198.07). Figure the new payment schedule by dividing the new loan balance by the number of months (18) remaining. (NEVER lengthen the terms in lieu of increasing the payment amount.) We want all remaining payments to be equal, so it will usually be necessary to add or drop a few pennies to do this. In this example, the final payment would be $.07 more than the rest, so we will subtract $.07 from the interest amount before making our entries. So, instead of $198.07, we will add only $198.00 to the loan balance. The interest portion will be $20.00, instead of $20.07.
5. Debit Loan Balance (Misc) Code 32D, for total amount in insurance premium plus interest. (178.00 + 20.00.) See example below.

CANCELLATION AND REFUND OF PREMIUM

If we have financed the insurance, and there is a cancellation, the return premium (refund) will be sent to us. If the adjuster decides to credit the return premium plus applicable finance charges to the account, thereby reducing the balance and amount of remaining payments, he should use the following procedure:

1. Check the computer to get balance and status of the loan.
2. Use the 6% add-on rate factor chart on page 2. (Example shown on page 7 is based on an account that has a balance of $1640.00 with 15 months remaining. Loan includes life and disability coverage. Insurance return premium is $136.00). Use the factor in the column that includes the same life and disability insurance coverage that the loan presently carries - the 6LD column in this case. The factor is 1.09337, multiplied by $136.00 = $148.70.

3. Subtract the amount obtained in step (2) from the existing loan balance to determine the new balance. (1640.00 - 148.70 = 1491.30)
4. Figure the new payment schedule by dividing the new loan balance by the number of months remaining. ($1491.30 ÷ 16 = 15 @ 93.20 and 1 @ 93.30). We want all payments to be equal, so it will usually be necessary to add or drop a few pennies to do this. In this example, the final payment would be $.10 more than the rest, so we will subtract $.10 from the interest amount before making our entries. So, instead of $148.70, we will subtract only $148.60 from the loan balance. The interest portion will be $12.60, instead of $12.70.
5. Credit Loan Balance (Misc) Code 32, for total amount of insurance premium plus interest. (136.00 + 12.60 = 148.60)

LOSS CLAIM PROCEEDS APPLIED TO ACCOUNT

Ordinarily, we expect loss claim payments to be used to pay for repairs to the vehicle. Some unusual situations will arise, however, in which we will accept and apply loss claim proceeds to reduce the balance of the account. Under no circumstances will money be applied to reduce the payments, or to repay the loan. Here is the recommended procedure:

NEW BULLETIN

1. Check the computer to get balance and status of the loan.
2. Credit Loan Balance (Misc) Code 32, for amount of loss claim check.

3. From the balance obtained in (1) on page 6, subtract amount of loss claim to get new balance.
4. Divide the new balance by the present payment amount to determine the new schedule. In the case of Ima Nofix, assume a balance of $1620, 18 payments remaining of $90.00 each, next due 12-15-70. Balance $1620.00 less $960.00 by the present $90.00 payment amount. Result is new terms: 7 at $90.00 and 1 at $30.00.
5. Prepare, in duplicate, a 19-1215 Payment Schedule Change. Send one copy to Installment Loan Control. Hold the other copy for two days. Then check the computer to see that the account has been rescheduled properly. Then file the second copy in the customer's credit file, along with a copy of the 19-1230 Installment Loan Credit ticket. EXAMPLE of 19-1215 is shown on page 11.
6. IT IS NOT NECESSARY TO ORDER ANOTHER PAYMENT BOOK.
7. Notify the customer by letter of his account status. Be certain to point out that there is no break in the continuity of payments.

SECTION INSURANCE

SUBJECT RETAIL FIRE AND THEFT

TOPIC

 Date 12-15-71

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - PROPERTY - FIRE & THEFT - DATED 7-9-69

Our Retail Fire and Theft Policy has been revised adding a $50 deductible clause on all Lightning and Windstorm losses and a clause excluding certain
R types of equipment (see Exclusions f). The rate has been changed to $1.20 per month, per $1,000 on outstanding balances which is the actual premium charged the customer.

Under the provisions of Regulation Z, Property Insurance is an optional selection on our installment notes and conditional sales contracts. Therefore, the insurance premium is not a part of the finance charge and annual percentage rate. Rate charts provide for separate insurance premiums on installment loans.

The administration of this policy is handled on a centralized basis with R each participating office or bank reporting losses to the Consumer Insurance Services Department, Atlanta. Loss adjustments exceeding $100 should be assigned to the commercial adjustor serving your area.

INSURANCE CARRIER

Coverage is with the American Southern Insurance Company, 56 Tenth Street, N. E., Atlanta, Georgia 30309 (phone 892-3031), under (revised) policy
R #IM553 for all loans made after June 30, 1971 and under policy #IM4301 for all loans made prior to July 1, 1971.

EFFECTIVE DATE

Insurance coverage is effective as of the date funds are disbursed on a direct loan or on the date of approval and delivery in the case of dealer paper. This protects the dealer for the period between his delivery of the merchandise and the disbursement of funds by the bank.

MERCHANDISE ELIGIBLE FOR COVERAGE

The policy is designed to cover such items as furniture, appliances, fixtures and similar equipment. The policy specifically excludes coverage on automobiles: Exclusion f - "Loss or damage to automobiles and accessories including but not limited to radios, stereo tape players and tapes; motorcycles; aircraft; jewelry; furs; chain saws and other equipment used for logging or forestry purposes."

PERILS COVERED

This policy insures against loss and/or damage caused directly by:

(a) FIRE
R (b) LIGHTNING (excluding the first $50 of loss or damage)
(c) EXPLOSION, whether or not fire ensues

(d) COLLISION, i.e., accidental collision of the vehicle on which the property is carried, with any other vehicle or object including the overturning of the vehicle and/or collapse of bridges

R (e) TORNADO, CYCLONE, OR WINDSTORM (excluding the first $50 of loss or damaged)

(f) FLOOD, meaning thereby rising of rivers and streams, and oceans

(g) COLLAPSE of bridges

(h) STRANDING, SINKING, FIRE OR COLLISION, including General Average or Salvage Charges, while on Ferries and/or in railroad cars and motor trucks on transfers or lighters

(i) THEFT (but not conversions or other acts of dishonest character)

(j) EARTHQUAKE

(k) FALLING METEORS

(l) FALL OF BUILDING

(m) FALLING AIRCRAFT

EXCLUSIONS

This policy does not cover:

(a) Loss or damage caused by neglect of the Assured or Purchaser to use all reasonable means to save and preserve the property at and after any disaster insured against.

(b) Loss or damage due to inherent vice.

(c) Loss or damage caused by strikes, locked out workmen or persons taking part in labor disturbances, or arising from riot, civil commotion, capture, seizure, or detention, or from any attempt thereat, or the consequences thereof, or the direct or remote consequences of any hostilities, or arising from the acts of any government, people, or persons whatsoever (ordinary piracy excepted), whether on account of any illicit or prohibited trade, or any trade in articles contraband of war, on the violation of any port regulation, or otherwise. Also free from loss or damage resulting from measures or operations incident to war, whether before or after the declaration thereof.

(d) Loss or damage to property while located in premises owned, rented, leased or used for storage or exhibition purposes by the seller, or in any location where the assured has specific insurance at the time of loss.

(e) Loss or damage to goods and/or articles on which any payment is overdue for more than one hundred and twenty (120) days.

N (f) Loss or damage to automobiles and accessories including but not limited to radios, stereo tape players and tapes; motorcycles; aircraft; jewelry; furs; chain saws and other equipment used for logging or forestry purposes.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - PROPERTY - FIRE & THEFT - DATED 7-9-69

LIMITS

(a) $3,000 on any one article
(b) $10,000 in any one dwelling or place
(c) $100,000 in any one casualty

EXTENT OF COVERAGE

This is a dual interest policy protecting the bank, the dealer, and the purchaser, and insures the value of the merchandise at the time of loss. In this respect, the policy is superior to the single interest (unpaid balances only) coverage offered by many banks and finance companies.

INSURANCE STATEMENT

All consumer installment notes and contracts are printed with an insurance statement. This provides for acceptance, refusal, date of birth and signature of the borrower. Where the loan is ineligible for insurance, the statement need not be signed. In all other cases the customer must sign the insurance statement indicating either acceptance or refusal.

RATE TO CUSTOMER

R C&S monthly rate charts including the symbol "E" indicate separately the premium for property insurance (at $1.20 per month, per $1,000 on the reducing unpaid balances).

REQUISITIONING INSURANCE COVERAGE

Coverage may be requisitioned by checking the appropriate insurance space on the Discount Sheet. When Property Insurance is requisitioned, Installment Loan Control will include a certificate with the customer's payment card book.

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS

Premiums are paid by the bank at the rate of 80¢ per $1,000 per month based on the reducing unpaid balances of all loans and contracts covering insured merchandise made prior to July 1, 1971.

R The rate is $1.20 per month, per $1,000 on the reducing unpaid balances for all loans and contracts made after June 30, 1971. Premium calculations will be made automatically by the computer for those insured loans which have been automated.

The Monthly Insurance Report, form #19-921 Rev. 7-71, on insurance premiums for insured loans not on the computer, should be prepared and sent to Consumer Insurance Services in Atlanta by the 10th of each month. Complete instructions for computing and reporting these premiums are outlined in the Operating Guide Bulletin: INSURANCE - REPORTING AND PREMIUM PAYMENT.

Replaces Bulletin: INSURANCE - PROPERTY - FIRE & THEFT - DATED 7-9-69

POLICY

The original signed insurance policy is in Consumer Insurance Services Department files in Atlanta.

CORRESPONDENT BANKS

The coverages under this policy are available to any Correspondent Bank on the same basis as Citizens and Southern Banks. New participants may be brought under this policy by notifying Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

Correspondent Banks using the billing service will have a coupon size certificate inserted in their coupon books as part of their billing procedure.

REPORTING LOSSES

All losses should be reported immediately to Consumer Insurance Services Department in Atlanta on Notice of Loss form #19-2020-0 (see page 6 for properly completed form) using the procedure outlined below. The final decision on the settlement of all losses will be made by the Consumer Insurance Services Department in Atlanta. It is the responsibility of the person receiving the loss to obtain as much information as possible and to relay this to Atlanta. No commitment as to the amount that will be paid should be made.

When a customer indicates a loss:

1. Pull his file and verify that coverage was placed at the time the loan was made and is still in force.
2. If there is no coverage, inform the customer and immediately refer the account to the officer of account.
3. If there is coverage, determine the amount of loss. If the customer is not reasonably sure that the appropriate cost of repairs will exceed $100, request that he secure an estimate, preferably from the selling dealer.
4. If the claim is $100 or more:
   a. Complete the Notice of Loss (19-2020-0) in quadruplicate.
   b. Telephone the adjuster serving your area and report the loss.
   c. Send a copy of the Notice of Loss to the adjuster.
   d. Forward the original and one copy of the Notice of Loss, a copy of the discount sheet, and a copy of the note/contract to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.
   e. Retain and file copy of the Notice of Loss in the Pending Loss Folder alphabetically.
5. If the claim is under $100:
   a. Complete the Notice of Loss (19-2020-0) in triplicate.
   b. Obtain the best price for repair/replacement, and authorize.

c. Send supporting documents on price along with the original and a copy of the Notice of Loss, a copy of the discount sheet, and a copy of the note/contract to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.
d. Retain and file a copy of the Notice of Loss in the Pending Loss Folder alphabetically.

FOLLOW-UP

Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta will keep offices advised on progress of all loss adjustments. A "Pending Loss" folder should be maintained in each office and a copy of the Notice of Loss filed alphabetically by purchaser's name therein. As claims are paid, the Notice of Loss should be removed from the "Pending Loss" folder and filed in the customer's file. Once or twice each month, the "Pending Loss" folder should be thumbed. Notify Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta of any losses (on which you have not received notification of delay or settlement) that remain unpaid more than 15 days since reporting.

PAYMENT OF CLAIM

Consumer Insurance Service will review all documents and adjustors reports on each claim and issue a draft in settlement. The claim draft will be payable to the bank and the customer and forwarded to the office handling the loan. The officer of account should either apply the draft to the account, endorse and forward to the repairman, or endorse and forward to the customer. The customer should always be informed of the final disposition of the claim.

ORDERING FORMS

Notice of Loss form (19-2020-0) may be requisitioned from the Purchasing Department of Atlanta in the normal manner.

SECTION INSURANCE

SUBJECT REPORTING & PREMIUM PAYMENT

TOPIC

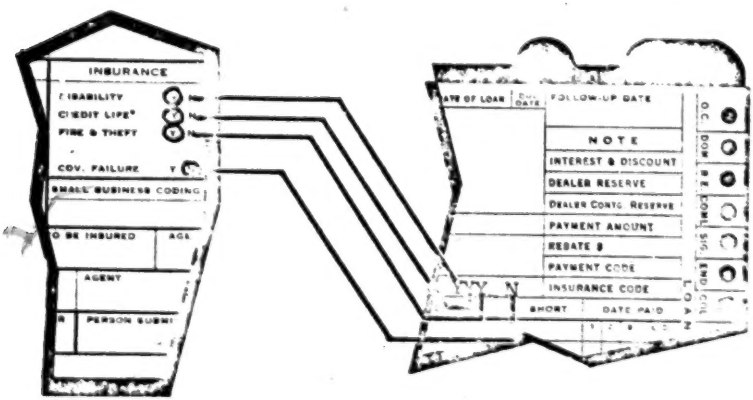
 Date 12-1-66

Replaces Bulletin: "INSURANCE - REPORTING & PREMIUM PAYMENT" - Dated 2-7-62

This bulletin is being re-issued to cover changes in premium payment for Credit Life and Disability Insurance. Individuals submitting the monthly insurance report should give it their careful attention and thought so as to eliminate avoidable errors in addition, multiplication, etc. While the procedures are essentially routine, it is important that all personnel concerned with preparation of the report be thoroughly familiar with the correct procedures involved in order that the report be complete and accurate. Those paragraphs of the bulletin which have been changed will be indicated by an asterisk (*).

A monthly Insurance Report and Premium Remittance for applicable installment loan blanket policies (on which premiums are paid based on the monthly reducing unpaid balances of insured outstandings) is to be submitted by each office.

CODING LEDGER CARDS During the billing of new loans the Central Billing Department will code the ledger card for the following insurance coverages: Disability, Credit Life, Property - Fire & Theft, and Coverage Failure. Insurance coverages, as requisitioned on the Discount Sheet will be indicated in the lower right hand corner of the Heading Space on the ledger card by a series of "Y"s and "N"s representing YES and NO as to whether a particular coverage applies to the loan. Reading from left to right, coverages will be indicated in the same order as they appear on the Discount Sheet Insurance Requistion space, i.e.

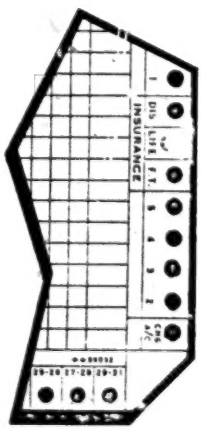


DISCOUNT SHEET LEDGER CARD

Replaces Bulletin: "INSURANCE - REPORTING & PREMIUM PAYMENT" - Dated 2-7-62

While there are other applicable coverages that might be indicated on the Ledger Card, only five symbol spaces are available for this purpose. Consequently, we have chosen to show the most commonly used coverage applying to the greatest number of loans.

In order to facilitate the monthly procedure of determining insured outstandings for premium calculation, ledger cards are also notched, on the lower right hand side to indicate insurance coverage. Counting from the bottom of the card, holes 6, 7, and 8 are used as illustrated.



Notched holes indicate the coverage which applies to the loan. This illustration depicts a loan with Credit Life Insurance but without Disability or Property Insurance Coverage.

Replaces Bulletin: "INSURANCE - REPORTING & PREMIUM PAYMENT" - Dated 2-7-62

Because premiums for Coverage Failure Insurance is not computed on a basis of the reducing monthly outstandings balances of insured loans, it is necessary to notch the ledger card for this coverage.

CHECKING LEDGER CARDS As New Loans are returned from the Central Billing Depart[illegible] the notching should be compared with the alphabetical code, in the upper right hand corner, and any errors made by Central Billing should be corrected. At least twice a year the insurance notches should be checked on all card[illegible] to be sure that no errors have slipped by or that the notches have not become torn through monthly needling.

DETERMINING RETAIL INSURED OUTSTANDINGS Around the end of each month, it will be necessary to determine the insured outstandings under each type of coverage for reporting to the insurance companies. Some offices have found that the most convenient time is when all of the ledger cards are together for balancing. Others prefer to handle the insurance report as a separate operation. This is a matter of individual convenience but it should be done about the same date each month so that the figures will consistently cover a full month's activity.

The following basic procedure is the simplest method of determining the total insured outstandings each month. This basic procedure may be modified to work equally well for the smaller office using the Total Control as well as the larger office using the Individual Classification Control. Separate totals should be pulled for the insured outstandings in Individual, Business and Real Estate.

Credit Life — Run the keysort needle through hole #7 and sort. The uninsured cards will remain on the needle. If the uninsured cards are in the minority, list the balances and subtract from the control balance. The remaining figure will be the total of the balances with Credit Life Insurance. If the insured cards are in the minority, list the balances to arrive at the total insured outstandings.

Using the same procedure, determine the total number of insured loans.

Disability — Picking up only those cards with Credit Life, use the keysort needle to sort on hole #8. If the uninsured cards are in the minority, list the balances and subtract from the Credit Life total. The resulting balance is the total insured outstandings with Disability. If the insured cards are in the minority, list the balances to arrive at the total insured outstandings.

Use the same procedure to determine the total number of insured loans.

Fire & Theft — Using only those classifications which are eligible for this insurance, follow the same basic procedure as for Credit Life, sorting on hole #6.

Replaces Bulletin: "INSURANCE - REPORTING & PREMIUM PAYMENT" - Dated 2-7-62

CREDIT LIFE PREMIUM COMPUTATIONS Effective 12-1-66 the premium rate paid by the bank will be .92 cents per month per thousand dollars of insured outstandings on all new loans, reworks and renewals made on or after that date. This means that a double procedure would have to be undertaken each month to determine the outstandings insured at the old rate of .75 cents per thousand and those outstandings insured at .92 cents. To eliminate the dual effort as well as all of the ensuing problems this would involve, a special procedure has been devised for the next 36 months so that only one procedure need be followed.

Beginning with the month of December, 1966 (Insurance Report due by January 10, 1967) compute the premium for Credit Life Insurance at the rate of .80 cents per thousand dollars of insured outstandings. Continue computing at this rate each month through November, 1967 (Insurance Report due in December, 1967).

Beginning with the month of December, 1967 (Insurance Report due by January 10, 1968) compute the premium for Credit Life Insurance at the rate of .87 cents per thousand dollars of insured outstandings. Continue computing at this rate each month through November, 1968 (Insurance Report due in December, 1968).

Beginning with the month of December, 1968 (Insurance Report due by January 10, 1969) compute the premium for Credit Life Insurance at the rate of .92 cents per thousand dollars of insured outstandings. Continue computing at this full rate each month from then on.

By using these adjusted rates during the next 36 months we will be compensating for the loans open during that time that are insured under the old rate without having to make a separate monthly report for them.

DISABILITY INSURANCE PREMIUM COMPUTATIONS Effective 12-1-66 the premium rate paid by the bank will be $1.08 cents per month per thousand dollars of insured outstandings on all new loans, reworks and renewals made on or after that date. Here again a double procedure would have to be undertaken each month to determine the outstandings insured at the old rate of .75 cents per thousand and those outstandings insured at $1.08 cents. A procedure similar to that used for Credit Life should be followed.

Beginning with the month of December, 1966 (Insurance Report due by January 10, 1967) compute the premium for Disability Insurance at the rate of .85 cents per thousand dollars of insured outstandings. Continue computing at this rate each month through November, 1967 (Insurance Report due in December, 1967).

Beginning with the month of December, 1967 (Insurance Report due by January 10, 1968) compute the premium for Disability Insurance at the rate of .99 cents per thousand dollars of insured outstandings. Continue computing at this rate each month through November, 1968 (Insurance Report due in December, 1968).

Beginning with the month of December, 1968 (Insurance Report due by January 10, 1969) compute the premium for Disability Insurance at the rate of $1.08 cents per thousand dollars of insured outstandings. Continue computing at this full rate each month from then on.

DETERMINING WHOLESALE INSURED OUTSTANDINGS Inasmuch as our wholesale policies provide protection for the total cost of the merchandise, rather than for the outstanding balances, our premium should be paid accordingly. To arrive at the total amount insured, it will be necessary to list the amounts under "Dealer Cost" on the WHOLESALE LEDGER SHEET for all items that are unpaid as of the end of the month.

MONTHLY INSURANCE REPORT The front of the report is used to make premium calculations. As the insured outstandings are determined, the separate totals of Individual, Business, and Real Estate should be entered on a work copy of the MONTHLY INSURANCE REPORT, 19-921. When all outstandings have been entered, they should be added to arrive at the Total Outstandings for each policy.

When the Total insured outstandings have been entered on the report, multiply by the appropriate premium rate to determine the premium due under each policy for each class and in Total. The premium and the insured outstandings should be compared with the previous month's report to be sure that any change is consistent with the change in your overall outstandings. Any abnormal fluctuations should be checked very carefully and any error corrected. If the report is correct, prepare a copy for Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

DEMONSTRATOR AND DRIVE-AWAYS Automobiles being used as demonstrators are so marked on the WHOLESALE LEDGER SHEET, with a notation of the monthly premium. Information on Drive-Aways is accumulated on a page directly behind the dealer's control sheet. Enter the Total Premium for all Demonstrators and Drive-Aways (listed on the reverse side of the Report) in the space provided.

After the Total Premium has been entered for each policy (and Demonstrators and Drive-Aways), add all such policy totals and enter this amount in the "Total Premiums Due" space at the bottom of the report.

The reverse of the report is used to list:

1. All Equipment Dealers with more than $5,000 insured.
   a. Show name, location where merchandise is stored and amount insured for each dealer.

b. If dealer has more than one location show how much is insured at each location. There is a $50,000 maximum at any one location and when outstandings insured is reported as one location with a large dealer it appears that part of his outstandings are not eligible to be insured.

2. All Automobile Dealers with more than $50,000 insured.
   a. Show name, location where merchandise is stored and amount insured for each dealer.
3. Each Demonstrator or Drive-Away vehicle for all dealers so insuring.
   a. All spaces on this part of the report must be completed (be sure to show the manual rate on each). Enter the total of all premiums in the space provided on the front of the report.

After the report has been checked for accuracy and completeness, prepare a typed copy for Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta.

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS Using the report as a work sheet, prepare the necessary debit tickets in duplicate:

1. Debit "Interest & Discount - Installment Loan - (Individual, Business or Real Estate)" for the total of the premiums due on insured outstandings in each classification.

2. Debit "Interest & Discount - Wholesale" for the total premiums due on Wholesale Equipment, Wholesale Automobile, Drive-Aways and Demonstrators.

3. The total of all debits should balance to the "Total Premium Due" on the bottom of the report.

4. Using the original of the debit tickets, purchase a check payable to The Citizens & Southern National Bank, Atlanta, for the "Total Premium Due". To eliminate extra ticket preparation and follow-up, all offices should use a check rather than having Atlanta charge your account.

5. Send copies of the debit tickets to the Central Billing Department along with copies of your regular rebate tickets.

Send the check with your MONTHLY INSURANCE REPORT to Consumer Insurance Services, Atlanta, no later than the 10th of each month.

ORDERING FORMS The MONTHLY INSURANCE REPORT may be requisitioned, by form number, from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta.

SECTION LENDING GENERAL

SUBJECT AUTOMATION SYSTEM

TOPIC SUMMARY

 Date 12-23-70

NEW BULLETIN

The C&S Automated Installment Loan System is our method of providing fast and accurate accounting information, credit information, and management reports on our installment loan portfolio statewide. The information is provided in three ways:

1. Various printed reports.
2. Direct access through touch-tone telephones (audio).
3. Direct access through CRT unit (video).

Procedures also exist for getting information when the computer is temporarily out of order. This bulletin is a quick, overall glance at the system. Other bulletins cover specific reports, procedures, etc.

ACCOUNTING

NEW LOANS

New loan information is put on the computer record from the Discount Sheet-Application. Totals are provided by the computer to enable Installment Loan Control - Atlanta to balance to the new loan entries made by each branch.

PAYMENTS

Payments are posted daily by Data Processing. Totals are provided for posting and balancing to General Ledger.

DEALER RESERVE

All transactions involving dealer reserve are shown on a monthly Dealer Reserve Statement.

REPORTS

Daily

1. The Daily Transactions Journal - our permanent accounting record - lists all payments and entries to Installment Loans. It also provides totals from which Installment Loan Control will balance and make final General Ledger entries resulting from payments, rebates, late charges, reserves and miscellaneous entries.
2. The Action Report lists transactions to loans that are (a) rejected, or (b) posted, but create a condition that requires immediate attention.
3. The File Maintenance List reports all new loans and all changes processed that day. It includes:
   a. Errors in new loans which caused them to be rejected.
   b. Errors in new loans which were accepted, but still require correction.
   c. All other changes to existing loans (other than transactions).
   d. Other information, including totals necessary for balancing.

NEW BULLETIN

Monthly

The New Loan Report is a listing, by loan class (and for Sales Finance, by dealer), of all new loans made during the month. Customer name, terms, collateral, add-on rate, and simple interest yield are shown along with other information.

2. The Statistical Summary Report is prepared for each branch, bank, area, and system. It shows volume, outstandings, past dues, earnings and yield by loan class and total, and percentage comparisons with previous periods along with other pertinent information.
3. The Error Conditions Report is a summary of several critical types of error conditions shown earlier in the month on the Action Reports and File Maintenance Lists. It is NOT a summary of all open items shown on these reports.
4. The Dealer Retail Report shows each dealer's volume, outstandings, past dues, losses, repurchases, earnings and yield, and percentage comparisons with previous periods.
5. The Accrual and Exceptions Report shows each loan on which there is an adjustment in the accrual of $1.00 or more affecting the earnings forecast for the next month. It also gives totals for the accrual calculation for all loans by branch and by bank. This report is used mainly by the Accrual Department in handling installment earnings.
6. The Past-Due List is prepared twice monthly - for each branch - on the seventeenth and on the last day of the month-end.

The reports mentioned in this bulletin are the ones most important to branches. These and others will be covered in various other bulletins.

CREDIT INFORMATION

In Atlanta, video screens are used for answering both internal and outside credit inquiries on a centralized basis. An alphabetical listing of customer names and account numbers (open loans) is provided monthly for each bank. Current balances, net payoff amounts, and other data can be secured through the video screens. Closed Loan Cards are prepared four times a month. The branch receives a copy, and Installment Loan Credit Inquiry Section receives a copy.

COLLECTIONS

Past Due Notices are prepared by Data Processing on the tenth day of delinquency. On the 17th day of delinquency, a Collection Card is automatically prepared for personal collection followup. A method exists to accelerate personal handling by waiving the notice and getting a collection card earlier than usual.

NEW BULLETIN

CHANGES

There are four specific methods of making changes:

1. Memorandum to Installment Loan Control when new branches are opened or when dealer records are to be added or changed.
2. Installment Loan Name and Address Change form, (19-1210).
3. Installment Loan Payment Schedule Change/Payment Book Reorder (19-1215).
4. Installment Loan Miscellaneous Change form (19-1205).

They are simple to use, and in general, are processed the same day received by Installment Loan Control.

SUBJECT AUTOMOBILE FINANCING

TOPIC EQUITY AND TERMS

 Date 6-1-69

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - AUTOMOBILE FINANCING - EQUITIES AND TERMS Dated 6-1-67

Much has been said and written regarding equity, down payment, mark up, dealer cost, and over-advance. In the past we have used various types of relatively expensive reporting services, such as the Automobile Invoice Service Company and the Black Book to obtain the exact dealer cost figure on new cars.

The value of the car being financed is certainly an important factor in considering automobile transactions, however, knowing the exact cost of a new car is not necessary. The decision making factors in considering an automobile transaction in order of importance are:

1. Credit worthiness of the purchaser or borrower
2. Down payment as an incentive to pay (equity)
3. Collateral value of the automobile (dealer cost)

The major manufacturers of automobiles have pretty well standardized the discount from list price or mark up from dealer cost, therefore, we feel it much simpler and more economical to use a percentage discount from sticker or list price than to try to compute dealer cost from the various publications. The basic percentages used as a discount from sticker price, and their reciprocals (which equal the maximum advance) are as follows:

Type Vehicle	Discount (Gross Markup)	Maximum Advance
Compact	18%	82%
Trucks	20%	80%
Medium priced cars	22%	78%
Luxury cars	24%	76%

By using these maximum advance percentages displayed in chart number for use in your large rate book, a certain amount of computation time will be saved, in addition to eliminating the need for the expensive periodical.

Used car values are more readily obtainable and are much less complicated to determine. We will begin using the NADA Used Car Guide effective June 1, 1969 to determine these values. Our advance will be based on wholesale value in the NADA Used Car Guide and not the loan value.

Equity is still as important as always incentive for the borrower to repay the loan. Down payment percentages based on sticker price are very misleading, as there is usually an inflated trade-in on a cash discount allowed, therefore, the actual equity should be computed and the advance adjusted as follows:

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - AUTOMOBILE FINANCING - EQUITIES AND TERMS Dated 6-1-67

List Price as Shown by Invoice:

Cash Selling Price	$2,800
*Down-Payment	900	(33%)
Requested to Finance	$1,900

*This figure will be placed in the "down-payment" space provided on the discount sheet.

As Recomputed:

NADA "Clean Sales Price" of Trade-in	$ 300
Cash	100
Total Down-Payment	$ 400
Requested to Finance	1,900
Adjusted Selling Price	$2,300

Actual equity based on true values is only 17% and additional down-payment may be needed, depending on the credit factors involved.

For the sake of consistency, our guidelines, for the maximum amount that should normally be advanced, are based on dealer cost of a new car or the NADA Used Car Guide loan value of a used car.

ADVANCE AND TERMS

New Cars:

*Advance - Dealer Cost
Terms - 36 months

Used Cars:

*Advance - NADA Loan Value
Terms:
1 Year Old Models - 30 Months
2, 3, & 4 Year Old Models - 24 Months
5 Years Old and Older - 12 to 18 Months

*This amount will be placed in "NADA/Dlr.Cost/Value" space provided on the discount sheet.

OVER-THE-COUNTER LENDING

The above standards are intended to serve as a guide when average credits are involved and collateral is needed to support the amount of credit being extended. Exceptions should be considered when income, security of employment, and paying record are above average.

SALES FINANCE

The above guidelines are also applicable to Sales Finance, additionally taking into consideration the financial backing behind a dealer's repurchase agreement, repossession experience, extent of reconditioning of used cars, and the general quality of the purchaser credits in the portfolio.

TOPIC

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - BORROWER'S AUTHORIZATION - Dated 2/12/47

When a security instrument and note are assigned to the bank, we must make payment to the assignor, either by check or by crediting his account.

When the security instrument runs directly to the bank (as opposed to being made between customer and an individual, later to be discounted with the bank), we must make payment to the maker.

Without written authorization, our check may be made out to the maker of the note and whomever he may designate. An example would be when the loan is to pay off another loan - the check may be made out to John Doe and Friendly Finance, Inc..

With the borrower's written authorization, we can disburse proceeds as directed. For simplicity and consistency, we recommend that written authorizations be made using 19-889, Borrower's Authorization Form. See sample below. Any written authorization should be retained as a permanent part of the customer's credit file.

Our Central Information File (CIF) maintains a record of all present and previous dealings with our customers in the Metropolitan Atlanta area. These records are of great value to consumer credit men since they contain a reference to rejections, charge-offs, and "foreign claims", both in the Consumer Loan Department and the Commercial Department.

Even though CIF has been in operation for a number of years, a review of loan losses still indicates that CIF is not called on every loan application. As a matter of policy, every loan must be checked against CIF files. By doing this, needless losses can be avoided.

For everyone to derive the full benefit of CIF, information must be funneled to them quickly and accurately. Use CIF New Account Memorandum (15-571) to report all rejections. The Recovery Department reports all charge-offs and "foreign claims" to CIF. Central Information Files is the most valuable source of credit information in the bank. Gaining the full benefit of CIF requires the cooperation of all.

SUBJECT CLASSIFICATION OF LOANS

TOPIC

 Date 9-2-70

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - CLASSIFICATION OF LOANS - Dated 12-1-55

Installment Loans are carried on our general ledger in two broad classifications:

INSTALLMENT LOANS - BUSINESS

This classification includes all Over-The-Counter and Sales Finance transactions where the maker or purchaser is a business or government agency. In addition all contracts purchased in bulk from a dealer or other source, where the customer is not notified of the purchase, (Indirect Collection Accounts) are included in this classification.

INSTALLMENT LOANS - INDIVIDUAL

This classification includes all Over-The-Counter and Sales Finance transactions where the maker or purchaser is an individual.

The remainder of this bulletin treats only Installment Loans - Individual and their various classification codes that appear on the discount sheet.

TYPE CODES

This is a one digit code that indicates one of the following general classifications of consumer loans.

Type Code 1. OVER THE COUNTER

These are loans originating from a direct application to the bank by the maker of the note. This type code includes all those loans made in which there is usually a direct contact between the borrower and the bank.

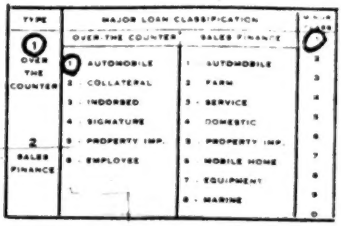
Type Code 2. SALES FINANCE

Sales Finance loans are transactions originating from dealers and on which there is usually no direct contact between the maker of the note and the bank, prior to making the first payment. This classification of loans is generally known as "Dealer Paper."

LOAN CLASSIFICATIONS

The Loan Classification is a two digit code. The first digit indicates the Major Class (Automobile, Property Improvement, etc.). The second digit is the Minor Class, which is a breakdown of each Major Class. The Type Code, Major Class, and Minor Class are entered on the discount sheet by circling the appropriate numbers as shown on page 2.

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL CLASSIFICATION OF LOANS - Dated 12-15-55



OVER-THE-COUNTER MAJOR LOAN CLASSIFICATIONS

CODE

1 AUTOMOBILE

All Over-The-Counter loans to individuals secured primarily by automobiles, trucks, motorcycles, motor scooters, etc., and/or their towed accessories.

2 COLLATERAL

All Over-The-Counter loans to individuals secured by collateral other than those already classified. These are loans made primarily on the strength of the collateral pledged by the borrower---such as stocks, bonds, savings accounts, equipment, etc. Included in this category also are all loans to farmers, secured by farm equipment, livestock or other farm related items; also, all loans secured by an acknowledged assignment of unearned insurance premium.

3 INDORSED

All Over-The-Counter loans to individuals which are indorsed or co-signed by second parties. These are the loans made to individuals whose own credit ratings are not sufficient to warrant an extension of credit in the amount requested and which consequently require another signature to make the loans sound.

4 SIGNATURE LOANS

All Over-The-Counter loans to individuals made on the strength of one signature alone.

5 PROPERTY IMPROVEMENT LOANS

All Over-The-Counter loans made under the bank's plan, comparable to FHA Title I plan but without FHA Insurance.

6 EMPLOYEE

All loans made to officers' spouses, officers, employees' spouses, or employees of C&S National Banks, Affiliate Banks, Correspondent Associate Banks, or any other bank. (GOG 9.22 expands on this.)

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL CLASSIFICATION OF LOANS - Dated 12-15-55

SALES FINANCE MAJOR LOAN CLASSIFICATIONS

CODE

1 AUTOMOBILE

All loans originating from dealers and secured primarily by automobiles, trucks, motorcycles, motor scooters, etc., and/or their towed accessories, whether payable monthly or on a seasonal basis.

2 FARM

All loans originating from dealers and secured primarily by farm equipment.

3 SERVICE

All non-collateral loans originating from dealers.

All non-collateral loans such as GHEAC, USAF, Dental Payment Plan, etc. that come under special guaranty programs.

4 DOMESTIC

All loans originating from dealers under various agreements and secured by types of collateral other than those already classified - where the collateral is of a type designed for individual use, i.e., refrigerators, washing machines, etc.

5 PROPERTY IMPROVEMENT

All loans originating from dealers under the bank's plan, comparable to F.H.A. Title I but without FHA Insurance.

6 MOBILE HOME

All loans originating from dealers that are secured by mobile homes.

7 EQUIPMENT

All loans originating from dealers that are secured by equipment.

8 MARINE

All loans originating from dealers that are secured by boats, motors, and other marine gear and equipment.

PLEASE NOTE THAT A CODE FOR SALES FINANCE EMPLOYEE TRANSACTIONS DOES NOT EXIST. ALL EMPLOYEE AND OFFICER TRANSACTIONS MUST BE KEPT ON AN OVER-THE-COUNTER BASIS.

The Minor Loan Classification codes do not require a detailed explanation. Their names and code numbers are shown on the Classification Code Sheet at the end of this bulletin. Additional copies of the Classification Code Sheet are available through Retail Banking, on request.

NEW BULLETIN

Closed Loan Cards are prepared four times a month, in duplicate. An example is shown on page 2.

1. The original is sent to the Installment Loan Credit Inquiry section. It will be alphabetically to supply the pertinent information for credit and interest inquiries.
2. The duplicate is sent to the branch to:
   a. Serve as a notification that the loan has been paid in full so that loan papers may be released.
   b. Be retained in the credit file as a permanent record of the loan.

The computer will continue to carry the loan information for at least 15 days after the final transaction.

MESSAGES

Some loans will indicate messages in the "MESSAGE" blank that require special handling. When the transaction code shown in the table below is used, it causes the message as shown. A later transaction, typically a rebate, will cause the last transaction code to change, but the MESSAGE remains.

Trans Code	MESSAGE	EXPLANATION
52	No Message	Payoff-By customer
53	DLR REPRCH	Payoff-Repurchased by dealer
54	RENEWAL	Payoff-Refinanced by C&S
55	OTHER LNDR	Payoff-Paid by another lender
57	LIFE INS	Payoff-Paid by life insurance
59	CHARGE OFF	Charged to loss reserve

PAID-IN-FULL PROCEDURE

Procedure is outlined in the bulletin ACCOUNTING & GENERAL OPERATIONS - PAID-IN-FULL PROCEDURE. The Uniform Commercial Code and the Title Act require that certain acts to release security interests and to forward titles to customers be performed within 10 days after final payment. The final payment date and transaction code are shown on the center of the card under "LAST TRANSACTION". The date loan papers are mailed and the person receiving should be entered in the space provided on the Closed Loan Card.

SUBJECT CONSUMER CREDIT COUNSELING SERVICE

TOPIC

 Date 8/7/70

NEW BULLETIN

Consumer Credit Counseling Service exists in many cities across the nation. It is a national movement, however, each one is a completely independent, community-sponsored, non-profit organization. The purpose is to serve both individuals and business firms by giving financial counseling to those debtors who need it. The counseling is expected to achieve two main objectives:

1. To arrange for an orderly liquidation of existing debts.
2. To rehabilitate the debtor.

A debtor who has gone through the financial and emotional disciplines required to complete a CCCS program is likely to be a good credit customer in the future. The tendency to repeat bad practices does not exist nearly to the degree it exists with bankrupts and Chapter XIII Wage Earner accounts. Among the creditors' benefits are a lessening rate of personal bankruptcy, where national figures are rising, and a good rate of recovery for creditors on such receivables. Chief among the customer's benefits are (1) his self-respect is much more intact than if he were to have to go through bankruptcy proceedings, and (2) he gets extensions of time and reductions of payments that are approximately equivalent to those allowed by a Chapter XIII Wage Earner Plan, without the resulting attorney fees, courtroom proceedings, and attendant stigma of bankruptcy.

Atlanta's CCCS was founded in 1964; there is now a CCCS in Savannah. Since the beginning, C&S has been one of its strongest supporters. In Atlanta, C&S furnishes some employees and officers to CCCS to serve as counselors during evening hours, consequently, C&S is virtually committed to acceptance of their proposals. Any rejections of CCCS proposals should be made only by senior lending personnel.

OUR OBLIGATION TO CCCS

In essence, our agreement with CCCS is:

1. We will not assess any more interest or late charges on the account.
2. We will cease collection activity on the account while it is in the CCCS program. All necessary contacts will be with CCCS - not the customer - as long as he is in the program.
3. CCCS receives 10% of any funds collected from customers to help defray operating costs.

NEW BULLETIN

CCCS OBLIGATION TO US

1. Recover any CAS cards in the customer's possession.
2. Send CUT CAS cards, if any, to C&S.
3. Make monthly payments to us, if received from customers.
4. Bill us monthly for 10% of collections.
5. "Dry up" all of customer's credit sources and put him on a cash budget.
6. Notify us promptly of customer default, as well as any known material change in ability to pay.

CHARGE-OFF POLICY

An account placed in the CCCS program is a questionable asset and must be charged off at the next regular charge-off time. While this will increase the dollar amount of losses before recovery, recovery is expected to offset this so that net losses will not be affected. Having Recovery Officers coordinate the paperwork on these accounts places this responsibility in more specialized hands and frees the operating locations' collection personnel for more productive work. There will be some instances in which it may be permissible to avoid charging off a CCCS account. This will occur when we are well secured and the proposed payment schedule very nearly approximates the existing terms.

Here are the main reasons that motivated this policy:

The deterioration of the quality of credit makes the account a questionable asset.

It assures clearer measurement of all CCCS accounts, where presently we only concern ourselves with those on which we sustain losses.

While losses will increase, recovery will also increase, so that the net loss picture will not be adversely affected. In fact, because of specialized handling by Recovery Officers, the net loss picture could show a slight improvement.

The centralizing of these accounts will allow us to take advantage of the experience and personal relationships of our recovery officers in their negotiations with trustees, referees, and CCCS personnel.

The possibility of an unqualified satisfactory credit rating being given a reworked CCCS account will be eliminated.

NEW BULLETIN

Any extensions or reworks should be on a no-charge basis. The extension of time, the usual reduction of payments, the waiving of all extension fees and late charges, all combine to make these loans losing propositions. We pay 10% of all monies collected for services of CCCS. These are real expenses to the serving locations that should more properly rest with Recovery sections.

The computer will continue to assess late charges if payments are not received within 10 days of due date. This isn't compatible with our basic obligation to CCCS not to place any more charges on an account.

REFERRALS

Four occasions arise when CCCS seems to be the only alternative we can recommend:

1. A loan applicant's debt status shows that he is badly overloaded, and it is doubtful that another lender would make a loan to him;
2. A present customer applies for a loan, and up-to-date credit report shows a badly overloaded condition;
3. We have rechecked credit for CAS re-evaluation purposes, or, in other banking areas, to determine our exposure, and we find a bad overloaded situation; and,
4. Normal collection contact reveals a case that should be referred to CCCS.

If you recommend CCCS as a possible solution, you will need to describe the program briefly to your customer, and how he can possibly benefit. If the individual has an emergency situation, an immediate appointment can be arranged. Otherwise, there is frequently a 2 to 3 week waiting period.

EXCEPTIONS

1. Charge Account Service RECOURSE accounts should be charged back to the merchant. Normally, his best alternative is to go along with the CCCS plan.
2. Real Estate notes, automobiles, mobile homes, and property improvement notes ordinarily will not be handled by CCCS due to the nature of these types of loans.
3. Sales Finance RECOURSE accounts should be handled on an individual basis. Our dealers do not have to go along with the CCCS - they may elect to repurchase the account, and repossess or even sue. If they - and we - agree to the plan, we should explain to the dealer that we will continue carrying the account on condition we get a full regular payment each month.
   We can do this by charging to his reserve each month the difference between the CCCS remittance and the regular payment.
4. Endorsers should be asked to pay off.

SUBJECT CORPORATE RESOLUTION

TOPIC

 Date 11-29-47

NEW SUBJECT

There has been some question as to whether or not it would be necessary to have a Corporate Resolution in file where our only dealing with a corporation was in the purchase of contracts or notes on a non-recourse basis.

Since these notes were assigned to us without recourse and after pre-investigation of the buyer of material or services, we were only looking to the corporation for the usual non-recourse warranties. It was understood that we would accept only the signature of an officer of the corporation.

Our attorneys are of the opinion that we should have a Corporate Resolution in all cases and only accept the signature of properly authorized individuals.

At this time, it would be well for each of you to examine your procedure with respect to dealings with corporations. The bank auditors check this point closely and will criticize any installment office that does not have Corporate Resolutions in file to properly authorize the signatures of individuals signing on behalf of a corporation.

2. Exact location address OR departmental identification.
3. City, State, and Zip Code.

For consistency and thoroughness, we are asking each lending location to secure one or more rubberstamps, as needed, showing the above three items. There are some instances in which you will also want to show your name and phone number.

Following are some examples of how items should be identified:

SUBJECT CREDIT INQUIRIES

TOPIC

 Date 5-7-70

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - CREDIT INQUIRIES - Dated 11-22-68

Prompt and accurate exchange of credit information is essential to a healthy and growing consumer credit industry. All C&S Banks, as recognized leaders of the industry, have an obligation to give superior service to all credit grantors that request credit information on our customers. To expect good service from other credit grantors, we must perform likewise. In addition, we have an obligation to our customer who has given our name as a credit reference.

Normally, we are not expected to give outside credit grantors any information beyond the routine spelled out in this bulletin - open or paid in full. To avoid duplicate investigation, in the exchange of information between C&S banks and departments, all pertinent data in the credit folder should be made available to the inquirer.

MAIL AND CREDIT BUREAU INQUIRIES SHOULD BE ANSWERED ON THE SAME DAY AS THEY ARE RECEIVED.

TELEPHONE INQUIRIES SHOULD BE ANSWERED WHILE THE INQUIRER IS ON THE LINE AND TRANSFER OF CALLS BE AVOIDED WHEREVER POSSIBLE.

CONFIDENTIALITY

Although we will continue our practice of exchanging basic credit information with reputable firms, we must reasonably satisfy ourselves that the calling party represents a reputable firm in the credit-granting business.

If a customer calls you for information, and you do not recognize his voice, get his phone number, confirm it, get the information, and return the call.

ABUSE OF CREDIT EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES

The code of ethics surrounding the exchange of credit information forbids the use of a credit inquiry to solicit the loan being investigated. We will not violate the code. If we find cases where our inquiries are not properly handled, we should refuse to give information to the offending credit grantor (after discussion with them at management level).

We do have the privilege of soliciting our customer where only the payoff balance is being requested by a dealer taking our collateral in trade. Such accounts should be referred to the appropriate credit officer for new business solicitation and should be kept in suspense until final disposition is made.

LOCATIONS ON COMPUTER

BRANCH RESPONSIBILITIES

Branches and Sales Finance locations continue to have the responsibility of giving credit information on certain types of accounts. The Credit Inquiry unit will refer all calls to the lending location on these special cases:

SPECIAL CASES	VIDEO SHOWS
1. Repossessions	REPOSS
2. Accounts paid by endorser	PD IND
3. Skips (if caller says so)
4. PATL payoffs (where collateral is Pledged Against Total Liabilities)	PATL
5. Unusual information or requests

EXAMPLES

a. A merchant mentions that he has recently had NSF checks on the account.
b. Law enforcement officials call to say they are attempting to locate customer.

You should refer inquiries on the following to their respective departments:

1. Charge Account Service
2. Real Estate Loans
3. Term Loans
4. Time & Demand Loans

All Atlanta National Banks and Atlanta area affiliates were on the computer by September 30, 1969. Information on accounts that paid out after computer conversion date is available from the Credit Inquiry unit. The branch still has the responsibility for giving credit information on accounts that paid out prior to the branch's conversion date.

Branches, then, should determine what type of inquiry they are getting before they transfer the call. DON'T BE TOO QUICK ON THE TRANSFER! REMEMBER TCP.

PROCEDURE

A. Within bank -

1. Phone Credit Inquiry and identify yourself by name and location.

2. Give customer's name and address (and what bank he carries account with, if known) and request information.
3. Write down all information given, which will be in the following order:
    a. Type of loan and collateral
    b. Date opened
    c. Original amount (High)
    d. Number and amount of scheduled payments
    e. Present balance
    f. Paying record

B. When other firms call, be sure of their identity. Then ask whether active or paid out.

1. When you have determined that it is an active consumer installment loan, transfer the caller to Credit Inquiry, giving the telephone number specified for other credit granters.

2. Look up and give information on paidouts. Then explain that if, in the future, the caller knows that the account paid out after _____(date)_____(your branch's conversion date), they can call Credit Inquiry and get faster and more complete information.

CREDIT INQUIRY FORM

The Credit Inquiry Unit fills out one of these forms on each call.

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - CREDIT INQUIRIES - Dated 11-28-68

In all cases cited on page 2 of this bulletin as "SPECIAL CASES", the Credit Inquiry unit should note details in the REMARKS portion of the Credit Inquiry Form.

These are sent to the location carrying the account. The receiving location should file these in the customer's credit folder, after taking whatever action seems necessary from the REMARKS noted. Obviously, a quick three or four inquiries in a folder is reason to refer the file to the lending officer.

If it appears to Credit Inquiry that an address change is possibly needed, "Address Change" will be written in the REMARKS section. The receiving branch should immediately contact the inquirer to verify, and then file a Change of Address if needed.

LOCATIONS NOT ON COMPUTER

Procedures will vary somewhat by size of bank and physical layout, however, the following steps have been proven effective under most conditions for handling phone inquiries.

1. Have a designated phone(s) for answering inquiries.
   a. Physically located with best possible access to ledger cards, wheeldex and credit folders.
   b. Alternate personnel with ability to handle inquiries if the person primarily responsible is busy or not available.

2. Ask whether the account is open or closed - This information if available to the inquirer will speed up checking your records.

3. If only the customer's name is available, and on closed accounts, check records in this sequence.
   a. Credit file - This will supply directional information on open accounts. Many of our inquiries are on closed accounts and on those, no further record search is necessary.
   b. If a credit folder is not in file, check the wheeldex on the possibility that you have an open account where the credit file is in use.

4. From the most recent ledger card, give the following information in the order listed:
   a. Type of loan and collateral if requested
   b. Date of note
   c. Original amount of note
   d. Number and amount of scheduled payments
   e. Present gross balance
   f. Precise paying record

SUBJECT CREDIT INVESTIGATION

TOPIC

 Date 8-10-62

Replaces Bulletin: "LENDING GENERAL - CREDIT INVESTIGATION" Dated 6-29-62

Today's credit economy has been built upon the basic honesty and sincerity of the borrowing public. Consequently, applications for credit which we receive usually represent a sincere need or desire on the borrower's part. We must, therefore, always bear in mind that our primary responsibility to the borrowing public is to grant requests whenever possible. Investigation is the tool by which we determine if and how the request can be handled so as to best serve the borrower's needs or desires.

Most people realize the necessity of limiting their borrowing so as to prevent repayment difficulties. There are, however, some people who honestly fail to understand the extent of their ability to repay according to a prearranged schedule. These people are entitled to credit within their own limits but must be guided by the creditor if they are to meet obligations in accordance with the terms of their loan. Also, there will always be some individuals who borrow or assume obligations when they are fully aware that they cannot or do not intend to repay them. Credit investigation enables us to recognize these situations and helps in determining how we can best extend credit that is both sound for the customer and safe for the bank.

FACTORS TO CONSIDER IN APPRAISING A REQUEST FOR CREDIT The purpose of investigation is to provide sufficient information so that the credit appraiser may reach a decision. The amount of investigation required depends on factors which vary with each individual request. One application will call for a complete and thorough investigation while another will require only the verification of employment and a check of the customer's previous experience with us.

Credit investigation is one of the largest single costs in the acquisition of new loans. Also, time is often "of the essence" where investigation is involved, since either the customer or a dealer is waiting for our decision. For these reasons it is essential that an adequate investigation be made but to no greater degree than is required to reach the credit decision.

To determine the amount of investigation necessary, the five basic factors discussed below must be understood by both the credit appraiser and the investigator.

1. Ability to Repay - An affirmative answer to each of the following questions gives a good insight to the applicant's ability to repay.

   (a) Is his income sufficient to cover the usual necessities, his present monthly obligations, and the roposed additional indebtedness without undue hardship?
   (b) Will his income remain constant or increase during the terms of the loan? Take into consideration his type of employment, specialization, experience, length of service, his background and education.
   (c) Is the customer dependent on other income which is subject to fluctuation or termination?

These factors generally determine a person's ability to meet installment obligations; however, the ownership of liquid assets is also evidence of ability to repay. Such assets can, if necessary, be converted to cash to subsidize income should temporary difficulties arise.

2. Stability - Evidences of stability are length of time on present or previous job, length of time at present or previous residence and whether renting or buying. Other factors to be considered here are age, marital status, and ability to assume responsibility. Instability may cause a person to move frequently and could bring about periods of unemployment, resulting in financial difficulties.

3. Character - Honesty, truthfulness, type of employment, domestic relations, personal reference, associates and type of neighborhood in which he resides all serve to indicate the character of a person.

4. Performance - A review of the customer's past repayment history will be helpful in arriving at your decision.

5. Collateral - Loans should never be made on the assumption that collateral will be used to pay the indebtedness. However, the securing of collateral does at times become a factor in the granting of loans. It is usually required when the proceeds of the loan are used to purchase the collateral or it may be used to strengthen the loan, thereby making it possible to grant the customer's request.

THE INVESTIGATOR The key to good credit investigation lies in the investigator herself. The well-qualified investigator is both observant and alert, and should possess the following attributes:

1. Has the ability to pick out facts and leads indicating the credit-worthiness of an individual.

2. Has the interest and inquisitiveness to follow through on such leads.

3. Realize the necessity of making sufficient investigation to arrive at a decision concerning the granting of the loan.

4. Has a pleasant telephone personality through which she develops a skill in obtaining additional information not ordinarily reflected in routine calls.

Her primary job is to:

1. Verify information given on the application.

2. Develop additional information when the application does not contain sufficient detail.

3. Uncover any unfavorable information when such exists.

4. Discontinue investigation once adequate information has been obtained.

SOURCES OF INFORMATION Oftentimes our credit investigators will be able to develop within the local office the information needed to reach a decision. When this is possible, it not only saves time but also money for the bank. Here are the various sources which should be used in processing an application.

1. Local Installment Loan Department - Check your own files. If the applicant has had a recent loan, the file may contain sufficient information for a decision. A review of the file may reflect recent inquiries from other credit extendors which, when checked, may reveal outstanding indebtedness of which the applicant failed to advise us because of an oversight, an unsatisfactory payment record, or excessive indebtedness.

2. Other Departments Within The Bank Or Other Offices In Same Area - In Atlanta, Central Information Files maintain a complete listing of all C&S customers and of all services being used by each individual customer. Other cities having multiple C&S offices have similar arrangements. These services must be checked to prevent overlapping in borrowing between different offices or among departments.

   When such additional borrowings are found, they should be checked to determine the customer's total outstandings to the bank. This will eliminate duplicate or unnecessary investigation and will provide the benefit of current experience with the applicant. Particular attention should be given to any special consideration on which credit was advanced, such as the request of an employer, on the basis of an endorser, etc.

3. Reporting Agencies - There are credit bureaus in each C&S city. In determining the use to be made of such reporting agencies, we must consider: (1) the speed with which the report can be obtained; (2) the percentage of applicants on which the agency will have reports; (3) how current the agency's files are; (4) the cost of this service.

   We usually accept the report "in file", making our own further investigation as necessary. In analyzing this report, consider:

   (a) Date of report. This indicates the period covered in the bureau file.
   (b) Date of "detail" (personal information) and if verified. If verified within the past six months, the information should be compared with that on the current application. If discrepancies exist, they should be clarified by direct calls.

(c) Date of trade and trade clearance. This gives an insight to the customer's indebtedness and the manner in which he handles his obligations.

(d) Discrepancies between amounts outstanding on the bureau report and those shown on the customer's application. The investigator must remember that such discrepancies may be due to the difference in the date of the report and that of the application. (The customer will have been making monthly payments during the interim.)

(e) Calls from creditors to the agency for its report. These may represent a loan made to the customer, shopping by the customer, a rejection of a request for a loan, submission of an application by a dealer, or the fact that the customer is serving as a co-maker or accomodation endorser. A direct call should be made to any creditor not listed on the application to determine the customer's total indebtedness. This will also assist in determining the trustworthiness of the customer in completing his application.

4. Direct Calls To Other Creditors - From such calls the investigator will learn of other creditors' experience with the applicant, the date of the sale or note, amount of monthly payments, present balance, collateral securing the indebtedness, and the repayment record. Special attention should be given to indications of borrowings from small loan companies. In those cities where loan companies do not belong to the Credit Bureau, it will be necessary to make direct calls to determine the extent of the applicant's indebtedness.

Inquiry calls made to us by other creditors are good sources of information. As inquiries are answered the name of the creditor and the date are recorded. Direct calls should be made to these sources as deemed necessary when making a subsequent investigation of our customer.

5. Employer - A direct call should be made to the customer's employer whenever employment has not been verified through our own files or the agency report. When contacting an employer, be sure that the individual with whom you are talking is authorized to give you factual information. State the purpose of your call and ask that they furnish you with the following information: length of employment, position held, salary, permanency of position, and any other general information they feel will be helpful. In marginal cases you may want to talk to the owner or immediate superior.

If the customer has been on his present job less than one year or if there are any other indications of job instability, the investigator should verify his previous employment. Determine the length of his service there and his reason for leaving.

Replaces Bulletin: "LENDING GENERAL - CREDIT INVESTIGATION" Dated 6-29-62

RECORDING RESULTS OF INVESTIGATION Results are recorded directly on the discount sheet using red pencil to underline those facts verified and to write in additional information developed. (See bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - DISCOUNT SHEET.)

EXTENT OF INVESTIGATION Basically the same factors are considered in appraising requests for all types of individual consumer credit, whether it be over-the-counter, sales finance, or CAS. In direct lending where a personal interview is possible, the application will give detailed information and investigation will be primarily verification and the development of unfavorable and derogatory information not divulged on the application. Indirect lending does not provide us with the opportunity for customer interview. Consequently, such applications are frequently less complete, both from the standpoint of "detail" information as well as total indebtedness, thereby requiring a greater development of information during the investigation.

Many applications can be adequately appraised and further investigation eliminated after a check of our own department files and a check with CIF or similar service where available. If all of the following statements are true, no further investigation is usually necessary.

(a) The credit request does not exceed an amount handled satisfactorily in the past two years and collateral and terms are in line with previous loans.
(b) The customer is a home-owner or has a minimum of three years at the present address which is in a medium-to-better residential area.
(c) The customer's employment has remained unchanged for the past two years.
(d) The files have been brought current by outside investigation in the past 24 months.
(e) There is no evidence of new or increased outside obligations since the last investigation.

When any of the above factors are not true or do not apply, as in the case of new customers, a more complete investigation must be made. The extent of investigation is a matter of judgment and will vary with the request. However, the following will usually be necessary:

(a) Through the course of investigation determine that your customer is the person he professes to be (no mistaken identity) and also that the information you have obtained relates to your customer rather than some other individual with a similar name.
(b) Obtain an agency report. Further followup from this should be made in accordance with that section of this bulletin relating to Reporting Agencies on Page 3.
(c) Verify employment. See Employer on Page 4 of 6.

Replaces Bulletin: "LENDING GENERAL - CREDIT INVESTIGATION" Dated 8-29-62

At this point the investigator must analyze the information obtained to determine what additional investigation is needed in the form of direct calls to outside creditors.

No set rules can be established which will serve to govern the amount of investigation necessary on all loans; however, specific guides as to the extent of investigation will be given in future bulletins pertaining to the different types of loans.

SPECIFIC EXCEPTIONS One of the major difficulties encountered in investigation is the relating of pieces of information developed to both information already known and to other information obtained. Quite frequently investigation takes the form of puzzle solving with one piece of information starting a "chain" of action requiring a step-by-step uncovering of facts. It is essential that the investigator be alert in following up both information which appears to be exceptional to the normal rule, as well as any "lead" which will clarify a questionable situation. Regardless of the type loan or security offered, the following exceptions should always be cleared:

(a) Apparent intentional omissions by the applicant.
(b) Discrepancies in information furnished by customer and that developed in investigation.
(c) Evidence of pyramiding of debts or borrowing from one creditor to pay another.
(d) Evidence of excessive indebtedness indicated by relating total income to normal basic requirements.
(e) Evidence of applicant living beyond visible income.
(f) Slowness in repayment of obligations.

In the final analysis, each transaction must be considered individually, and each investigator must develop her own ingenuity and judgment if maximum efficiency is to be obtained. The investigator must remember that her job is to develop enough information so that the credit appraiser may make a decision. The extent of her investigation will depend on the type of customer request involved, the kind of information which she develops during her investigation, and any limitations which the interviewer indicates when he requests the investigation.

SUBJECT DISCOUNT SHEET

TOPIC

 Date 11-11-70

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - DISCOUNT SHEET - Dated 8/12/58

The Discount Sheet (19-1295) serves the purpose of:

1. Application.
2. Investigation.
3. New Loan Accounting.
4. Source document to place new loans on the computer record.

Application is covered in the bulletin: OVER THE COUNTER - APPLICATION AND INTERVIEW; Investigation is covered in the bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - CREDIT INVESTIGATION. This bulletin covers points 3 and 4 - new loan accounting and necessary source document information.

At the end of this section are samples of completed Discount Sheets. The shaded areas of the Discount Sheet contain the information which will be recorded on the computer record. Therefore, care must be taken to insure that all information in these sections is (1) correct, (2) completed as applicable, and (3) legibly printed. Errors appear on that day's File Maintenance Report and must be corrected on a daily basis.

NAME AND MAILING ADDRESS

Four lines are provided for the customer's name and mailing address. The first line should be used to record the customer's name and the address can normally be placed in the next two lines. The ZIP code should always be included. When a loan is in the name of two persons, a name should be placed on each of the first two lines.

ACCOUNT NUMBER

This section contains the account number which includes the bank code, the branch code and the five-digit loan number assigned by the branch. Example of complete account number: 01 01 12342

01 --- Bank Code - Atlanta
01 --- Branch Code - Marietta Street
12342 --- Loan Number Assigned by the branch

DATE OF LOAN

The date of loan is the date the loan is put on our books.

NUMBER OF MONTHS (Term of the loan, expressed in months)

This is the number of months the loan is to run or the number of months to elapse from the date of the loan to the date the final payment is due. (This is not necessarily the number of payments). It is most important that the number of months is stated correctly, since it is the basis for the calculation of rebates and accrual. If the term entered is incorrect by more than one month, the loan will be rejected by the computer. It will appear on that day's File Maintenance Report, and Installment Loan Control-Atlanta must correct and re-enter it the following day.

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - DISCOUNT SHEET - Dated 8/12/58

PAYMENT SCHEDULE

Space is provided on the Loan Master Record for up to four payment series (four changes in the payment amount or interval between due dates). The total amount of all payments scheduled must equal the Note Amount (Total of Payments). If not, Installment Loan Control - Atlanta must correct and re-enter it the following day.

The following Schedule Codes are entered in the Payment Schedule Section of the Discount Sheet to indicate the type of payment schedule (interval between payments).

1	Monthly
3	Quarterly
6	Semi-Annually
A	Annually
N	Single Maturity
B	Balloon Payment
R	Reschedule involved (see page 4).

EXAMPLES

If the payment amounts and due dates are to remain constant for the entire loan, the schedule would be entered on the Discount Sheet as shown below and on the following page in examples 1 and 2; using only one payment series. The first example is a regular monthly payment loan, having 36 equal payments of $91.90, beginning on November 8, 1970.

EXAMPLE 1

Monthly Payment Loan (all payments equal and due the same day each month).

NO. OF PAYM'TS	SCHED. CODE	AMOUNT OF PAYMENTS	DATE TO BEGIN
36	1	@ 91.90	11/8/70

NO. OF MOS.	DATE OF LOAN
36	10/1/70

EXAMPLE 2

Quarterly Payment Loan (all payments equal and due on the same day of the month each quarter).

12	3	@ 410.80	12/8/70

NO. OF MOS.	DATE OF LOAN
36	9/4/70

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - DISCOUNT SHEET - Dated 11/11/70

If there are two or more payments of a different amount or interval between due dates, two or more payment series must be used as shown in examples 3 and 4.

EXAMPLE 3

Monthly Payment Loan (the final payment is a different amount).

NO. OF PAYM'TS	SCHED. CODE	AMOUNT OF PAYMENTS	DATE TO BEGIN
23	1	$ 84.20	11/8/70
1	1	$ 38.80	10/8/72

NO. OF MOS.	DATE OF LOAN
24	10/4/70

EXAMPLE 4

Sales Finance Farm contract Semi-Annual Payment (the amount and time interval of the first payment is different from the remaining payments).

NO. OF PAYM'TS	SCHED. CODE	AMOUNT OF PAYMENTS	DATE TO BEGIN
1	6	$ 750.00	10/1/70
5	6	$ 500.00	10/1/71

NO. OF MOS.	DATE OF LOAN
42	4/1/70

Infrequently, a loan will be made with a highly irregular payment schedule, which cannot be recorded in the four payment series. Exceptions of this type are usually Sales Finance Farm Equipment contracts. When this occurs, the entire schedule should be shown in the payment schedule section, regardless of the number of changes.

EXAMPLE 5

NO. OF MOS.	DATE OF LOAN
31	12/3/70

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - DISCOUNT SHEET - Dated 11/11/70

The payment schedule shown in Example 5 cannot be entered as it is since this loan requires five payment series to be scheduled and space for only four series is provided in the computer record. The loan can be placed on the computer, by entering the first three series, then entering the total of the remaining payments as one payment in the fourth series, with an "R" schedule code. This means that the payment recorded as the fourth series will eventually have to be rescheduled when the first three series of payments have been paid. Example 6 shows how this loan will be recorded on the Loan Master Record.

EXAMPLE 6

Number of Payments	Schedule Code	Amount of Payments	Beginning Date
2	6	825.00	1-1-71
1	6	600.00	1-1-72
1	6	800.00	7-1-72
1	R	1,265.00	1-1-73

The correct term (number of months) will be shown even though the entire schedule of installments cannot be recorded on the Loan Master Record at this time. (When the schedule code in the last series is "R" the loan will be accepted by the computer, even though the term does not agree with the last payment due date.) The customer's Payment Card Book will include payment cards for all payments. When the first three series have been paid by the customer, the Action Report will inform the branch of the necessity to reschedule the remaining payments.

DUE DATES

Payments must be scheduled to become due on the 1st, 8th, 15th, or 22nd of the month.

TOTAL ADVANCED

This is the total amount of all disbursements made on the loan. The total advanced does not include Interest and Discount, Dealer Contingent Reserve, or Dealer Loss Reserve. It does include Prepaid Dealer Reserve when the dealer is paid a portion of the finance charge with each contract purchased.

AMOUNT FINANCED (applicable to Sales Finance loans only)

On a Sales Finance loan, this is the amount applied to the rate chart (Unpaid Balance of Cash Price + Physical Damage Insurance, + Official Fees, + "Other" specific charges).

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - DISCOUNT SHEET - Dated 11/11/70

DEALER CONTINGENT RESERVE (Applicable to Sales Finance loans only)

The portion of the AMOUNT FINANCED which is withheld from the dealer and will be credited to the DEALER CONTINGENT RESERVE account.

DEALER LOSS RESERVE (Applicable to Sales Finance only)

The portion of the GROSS CHARGE which will be credited to the DEALER LOSS RESERVE account.

PREPAID DEALER RESERVE (Applicable to Sales Finance loans only)

The portion of the Gross Charge which is paid to the dealer at the time a contract is purchased by the bank.

GROSS CHARGE (Applicable to Sales Finance loans only)

The total finance charge to the customer plus any group insurance coverage premiums. (The difference between the Note Amount and the Amount Financed).

INTEREST AND DISCOUNT

This figure includes Interest, all Life, Disability, and Retail Insurance premiums. For Over-The-Counter loans this is the total charge to the customer, except for documentary fees or property improvement loan verification charges. For Sales Finance loans, this is the bank's portion of the Gross Charge.

COLLATERAL DESCRIPTION

Space is provided for recording automobiles and other collateral of this nature. Each part of the description must be abbreviated to provide as complete a description possible.

When a loan is secured by several pieces of merchandise, or by other collateral, such as savings accounts, stocks, etc., this collateral should be briefly described in the next shaded area as in the example below. This space may also be used for an indorser's name.

INDORSER OR BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF MISC. COLLATERAL	INDORSER'S ADDRESS	PHONE
C+S SAV.-ACCT #12 3456789

The person completing the Discount Sheet is best qualified to determine how the collateral description or indorser's name should appear on the Discount Sheet. The first fifteen characters appearing in the first shaded collateral area, or if the first area is blank, the first 15 characters shown in the second shaded area will be recorded on the computer record. General abbreviations, as shown on page 7, should be used so that the 15 characters available will adequately describe the collateral.

PERCENT DOWN AND OVER-ADVANCE

The percent down is the percent that the total down payment (cash down payment plus net trade-in value) is of the cash price. The over-advance is the amount by which the principal amount of the loan exceeds the loan value of the collateral, expressed in dollars. Insurance premiums advanced as a part of the loan should not be considered in the calculation of the over-advance.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS CODES

One of these codes must be used, and only one can be in effect at a given time.

CODE NO

1 This is the "Debit Checking Account For Payments" code. (Not applicable to Financial Corporation). It is a customer option. If selected, circle "1" in the Special Instructions Code section, and enter the checking account number and title of account. On each due date the customer's checking account will be debited and the payment automatically credited by Data Processing.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS CODE	TITLE OF ACCOUNT TO BE DEBITED FOR PAYMENTS	MR. OR MRS. JOHN A. SMITH
0 - NONE (1) DEBIT CHECKING ACCT. FOR PAYMENTS 8 - SPECIAL COLLECTION HANDLING	CHECKING ACCOUNT NUMBER	891 42 381

If the loan and the checking account are in different C&S banks, and the checking account is processed in Atlanta, (a) asterisk the checking account number to be charged, (b) draw a line from the asterisk to an open place on the discount sheet, and write in the name of the bank that has the checking account. See example below.

	*EMORY CHECKING ACCOUNT
SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS CODE 0 - NONE (1) DEBIT CHECKING ACCT FOR PAYMENTS 8 - SPECIAL COLLECTION HANDLING	TITLE OF ACCOUNT TO BE DEBITED FOR PAYMENTS: MR. OR MRS. JAMES O. WALTON CHECKING ACCOUNT NUMBER: *439 22 856

The customer will be advised in one of two ways:

(1) In the Atlanta area, the customer's checking account statement will identify the debit by the symbol "LP" - loan payment. He will not receive the debit advice.

(2) Outside Atlanta, until your city is programmed for your bank's checking account statements to show "LP", a debit advice will be included in the customer's statement. This check-size piece of paper will serve about the same purpose as a cancelled check.

WHICHEVER METHOD IS USED, BE SURE TO EXPLAIN IT TO THE CUSTOMER.

CODE NO.

2 This is the "Special Collection Handling" Code. This code will prevent Past Due Notices from being sent to a customer for the life of the loan. (Unless the code is later removed by an Installment Loan Miscellaneous Change form (19-1205). This will accelerate our collection follow-up by seven days since the Collection Card will be prepared instead of a Past Due Notice when the loan becomes ten days past due. This code should be used only when we anticipate difficulty with a loan (for example, a rework for collection purposes) and early collection follow-up is necessary. If Special Collection handling is necessary, circle code "2".

3 Write in "3" if it is a Sales Finance add-on that should have an add-on insert placed in the payment book.

0 If no special instructions apply, circle "0" for "None".

TYPE CODE

The type code is a one digit code which indicates one of the following general classifications of consumer loans.

Code	Type
1	Over-The-Counter
2	Sales Finance

LOAN CLASSIFICATIONS

The Loan Classification is a two digit code. The first digit indicates the Major Class (Automobile, Property Improvement, etc.). The second digit is the Minor Class, which is a breakdown of each Major Class. Type Code, Major Class, and the Minor Class are entered on the Discount Sheet by circling appropriate code numbers:

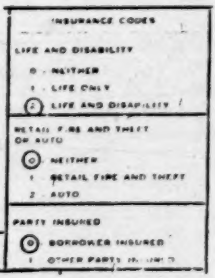
INSURANCE CODES

Circle the codes for the coverages desired under the group policies. Be certain that the rate used includes the proper premiums for Life, Disability or Retail Fire and Theft. For loans covered with Credit Life and Disability Insurance, if anyone other than the maker is to be insured, or if two or more persons are to sign the note, the name and age of the person to be insured must appear in the blank provided at the bottom of the Discount Sheet. The Party Insured Code must also always be completed by circling the appropriate number.



IF OTHER THAN SINGLE NAME (INDIVIDUAL) SHOW NAME OF PERSON INSURED	AGE

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER

This number will ultimately be used as a "customer "number to consolidate a person's relationship with the bank. While this cannot be accomplished through an automated CIF at this time, we should start recording the social security number on all loans in preparation for an automated CIF.

MANUFACTURER CODE (Leave blank until further notice.)

INSURANCE EXPIRATION DATE (Leave blank.)

CREDIT PROFILE (Leave blank until further notice.)

APPROVAL

The initials of the person approving the loan should be written and legibly printed in the spaces provided.

CHECKING THE DISCOUNT SHEET

The most important single action is that of an experienced person who checks the completion and discounting. That person's initials should appear as shown here.

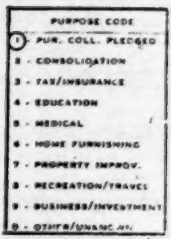
PURPOSE CODE

The Purpose Code (Applicable only to Over-The-Counter loans) indicates the reason or purpose of the loan. The applicable Purpose Code number should be circled for all the over-the-counter loans as shown:



DEALER NUMBER

The Dealer Number is a three digit code assigned to all Sales Finance Dealers to provide controls for the business purchased from each dealer. If an unassigned or incorrect Dealer Number is entered, the new loan will be rejected by the computer, and must be corrected and re-entered the following day.

SOURCE CODE This code applies to all over-the-counter and sales finance loans.

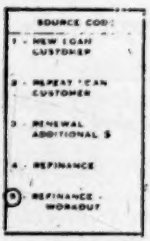
4 "Refinance". Circle when one or more loans are reworked to reduce payments or change the schedule.

5 "Refinance - workout". Normally, this will be circled when we have had a collection problem. Special Instructions Code 2 should also be circled to place the account in the Special Collection Handling category. See Bulletin: COLLECTIONS - NOTICES.



OTHER BANK SERVICES

This section of the Discount Sheet serves as a reminder to solicit additional business during the interview. In addition, reports produced from these codes will indicate the potential new business available through installment borrowers, the present penetration, and the number of other services sold during the interview.

OPERATING BULLETIN

SECTION LENDING GENERAL

SUBJECT DUE DATES

TOPIC

 Date 3-28-68

Replaces Bulletin: "LENDING GENERAL - SETTING DUE DATES" Dated 1-5-56

In setting due dates on monthly payment notes, there have been two general considerations: (1) to make the due date coincide with the maker's pay day or income period and (2) to arrange due dates in such a way that the flow of payments being paid would result in a more even accounting work load throughout the month. Often the two objectives have been in conflict. Certainly, point (1) is of primary importance. Many situations exist, however, in which both points can be served.

A method of setting due dates, developed by C&S, takes into consideration that practically all income falls into one of three groups:

1. MONTHLY OR SEMI-MONTHLY PAY DAYS --- with few exceptions pay day is on the first and/or on the fifteenth of each month.

2. WEEKLY OR BI-WEEKLY --- generally pay day is on Friday or Saturday.

3. INCOME RECEIVED THROUGHOUT THE MONTH --- small businesses, individual dealers in services, day to day workers, etc.

To conform to the two basic principles of setting due dates and to permit the most effective notice and collection followup, four due dates are used; (a) the 1st, (b) the 8th, (c) the 15th, and (d) the 22nd. It should be remembered that almost all real estate mortgage notes are due on the first of the month, as are a high percentage of rental payments.

MONTHLY OR SEMI-MONTHLY PAY DAYS

Make due date on the 1st or 15th. The choice of date will depend upon what fixed expenses the maker already has. The due date should be set on the pay day that has the most "unallocated" income.

WEEKLY OR BI-WEEKLY PAY DAYS

Make due date on the 8th or 22nd. Fixing a due date on a calendar month basis when weekly pay days are involved is an arbitrary selection anyway since successive weekly pay days will fall on varying dates during the month. The best that can be done is to select the half of the month in which the maker has the most "unallocated" income.

INCOME RECEIVED AT IRREGULAR INTERVALS

Allow choice of 1st, 8th, 15th, or 22nd, taking into consideration the maker's ability to make payments promptly on the date selected.

EQUALIZING DUE DATES

When makers have the ability to make payments on any of the dates within each of the above categories, branch personnel should set the due date on the date within the category that has the least number of payments already scheduled. Sales Finance has much less latitude here, since the dealers set the due dates. They can, however, counsel with individual dealers as needed to help equalize the load.

Replaces Bulletin: "LENDING GENERAL - SETTING DUE DATES" Dated 1-5-56

GRACE PERIOD

Lenders sometimes set the due date anywhere from one to ten days after the pay day to "allow time for the payment to reach the bank by the due date." Where too much time is allowed, the borrower is tempted to use the money for other immediate needs and thus will slip over into his next pay period and from then on be chronically late. Under our system this time interval does not exist and it should be explained to borrowers that the time necessary for the payment to reach the bank is taken into consideration in appraising their promptness of payment. In reviewing payment records, consider any payment that is posted before the first notice is sent as being "prompt."

TIME INTERVAL FOR FIRST PAYMENT

It is customary in installment lending and installment selling to allow 30 to 45 days before the first payment is due. A convenient due date can be found in this range. Obviously, because time is money, we should not indiscriminately offer 45 days. The real determinant should be the date most suitable to the customer's needs, which will be the pay day that has the most unallocated income.

DEALER ORIGINATED NOTES AND CONTRACTS

Dealers should be sold on the merits of this system from the standpoint that it improves our collection service for them and, to a large degree, eliminates complaints that result from payments and notices crossing in the mail.

Contracts and notes received without the correct due date should be discussed with dealers where practical. In the absence of confirmation of the correct due date, change the date of the first payment by allowing as much additional time as is necessary to reach the first due date that will coincide with the borrower's income period, up to 15 days.

CHANGE OF DUE DATE

It is permissible to adjust a due date for the customer's convenience, up to 15 days, without charging a fee. A note explaining the need and action should be made in the customer's credit file. Ordinarily, due dates should be changed only by mutual agreement between the bank and the customer. If more than 15 days is required, it should be handled as an extension. (See COLLECTIONS - EXTENSIONS.)

SUBJECT GRADING

TOPIC

 Date 8-8-58

FILE IN OPERATING GUIDE
REPLACES BULLETIN: "SALES FINANCE - GRADING" Dated 1-26-48

In the past only Sales Finance credits have been graded. Now with the means available through IBM equipment of preparing a credit record of over-the-counter loans we are extending our grading to this class of business.

The grading of credits provides a standard yardstick by which loans or purchases may be analyzed without waiting for past due accounts to appear and a ready means of specifying the class of credit to be extended in the future on any given dealer or loan class.

Grading is the analysis of a credit risk and the recording of the credit man's judgement of that risk as defined below. Credits are to be graded only after investigation and/or experience, and not on the basis of the customer's unsupported statement. Each file should contain the necessary credit information to support the grading.

Where credit is extended without investigation based on endorser, collateral or recourse on a strong dealer, no grading can be made. In this case, merely draw an X through the grading space on the discount sheet to indicate that it does not apply.

GOOD (1) Any customer that is better than average from the standpoint of amount of income, stability of income and manner of paying bills. A good risk should be able to meet any normal emergency and still be able to repay us.

FAIR (2) The average customer that we can reasonably expect to pay promptly, barring unforseen emergencies. Income should be adequate for present needs; source of income should be reasonably secure and past bills paid satisfactorily.

POOR (3) The below average customer that we might reasonably expect to have payment difficulties. Income inadequate, frequent changing of jobs or poor paying record.

BAD (4) Any risk that is an almost certain collection case, repossession or loss.

These definitions do not necessar ly agree with any one individual's common usage of the terms good, fair, etc. Please study the definitions carefully so that for purposes of grading, the terms will be used uniformly.

SUBJECT LANDLORD'S AGREEMENT

TOPIC

 Date 11-22-54

NEW SUBJECT

We are occasionally called on to finance equipment which is being installed in leased or rented property where the equipment becomes attached to the realty. Where this is the case, it is desirable to have a waiver from the landlord. The Landlord's Agreement (19-839), reproduced on page 2, is designed to serve this purpose and has been approved by our attorneys.

Our attorneys have this to say:

> "The instrument is so close to the grant of an easement that it would be worth the record thereof so that its record would constitute constructive knowledge to third persons, there being a probability that it would be held to be a conveyance or grant of an interest in real property. A title search would disclose it and any title lawyer would require the purchaser to get a satisfactory release from the creditor or his assignee."

Whether you record the instrument will be a matter of credit judgment depending upon the strength of your purchaser and the size of the transaction involved.

Where this instrument is to be taken in conjunction with a Conditional Sales Contract which is assigned to us, the Landlord's Agreement should run to the seller of the equipment (creditor) and be assigned to us in the space provided. Where you are making a direct loan, the bank will, of course, be the creditor and the transfer will not be used.

Order your requirements from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta, in the usual manner, keeping in mind that the need for these agreements will not arise too often.

LANDLORD'S AGREEMENT

Undersigned is the owner of premises located at _____ (Street Address) _____ (City) _____ (County), Georgia (hereafter called "Premises") which undersigned leases or rents to _____ (hereafter called "Tenant").

In consideration of the premises and Secured Party's reliance upon the described security interest, it is agreed: (1) Undersigned expressly consents to the aforedescribed security interest, disclaims any interest in Property as a fixture of and to Premises and agrees that Property is and shall be and remain personal property whether or not physically attached or affixed to the Premises; (2) undersigned waives and subordinates any and all liens, claims or rights undersigned may have to Property by virtue of contract, operation of law or otherwise, to the security title and security interest of Secured Party in Property; (3) Secured Party is expressly authorized and privileged at any time, and without liability to undersigned for the cost of repairs or otherwise, to enter upon Premises and remove Property therefrom, whether or not such removal requires a physical detachment of the Property from the realty or causes injury or damage thereto; and (4) this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the heirs, representatives, successors and assigns of undersigned and Secured Party.

Replaces Pages 1 and 2 only of: LENDING GENERAL - PERFECTING SECURITY INTERESTS - PROCEDURE AND DOCUMENTARY FEES - Dated 8/29/69

The bank takes a security interest in collateral for the purpose of reducing loss exposure. Protection depends not only on the resale value of the collateral but also on our right to obtain and liquidate the collateral in event of default. (We no longer carry "Non Filing" insurance for protection in cases of error or omission, so be sure that recording requirements are carefully followed). Use of our standard notes and security agreement will give us adequate rights as between ourselves and our customer; however, the rights of other interested parties must also be considered.

Filing of a financing statement or other required action to perfect the security interest in each collateral transaction would be both unnecessary and exceedingly expensive. After considering the probable and possible exposure, the cost of filing a financing statement and the expense of followup, the following general practices are recommended. Sound judgment must be exercised since there will at times be extenuating circumstances which will dictate exceptions. Where judgment dictates, exceptions should be made to gain reasonable protection for ourselves and our dealers.

On all Sales Finance transactions where the dealer files the financing statement or files for title, do not charge a documentary fee. If the dealer wishes, he may collect the fee and charge it to the customer as long as he discloses it according to Regulation Z.

COLLECTING AND PAYING DOCUMENTARY FEES

Documentary fees should be charged only for the actual cash outlay required to perfect and release our security interest in the collateral pledged. On the note form, in the block designated "Other Charges - (Specify)", type in "Filing Fee", "Record Search", etc., as appropriate, and enter the amount(s). The sum of "Amount of Loan" plus "Other Charges - (Specify)" (1+4) is the amount that should be applied to the rate chart. Page 2 shows an example of fees on a Revision Agreement.

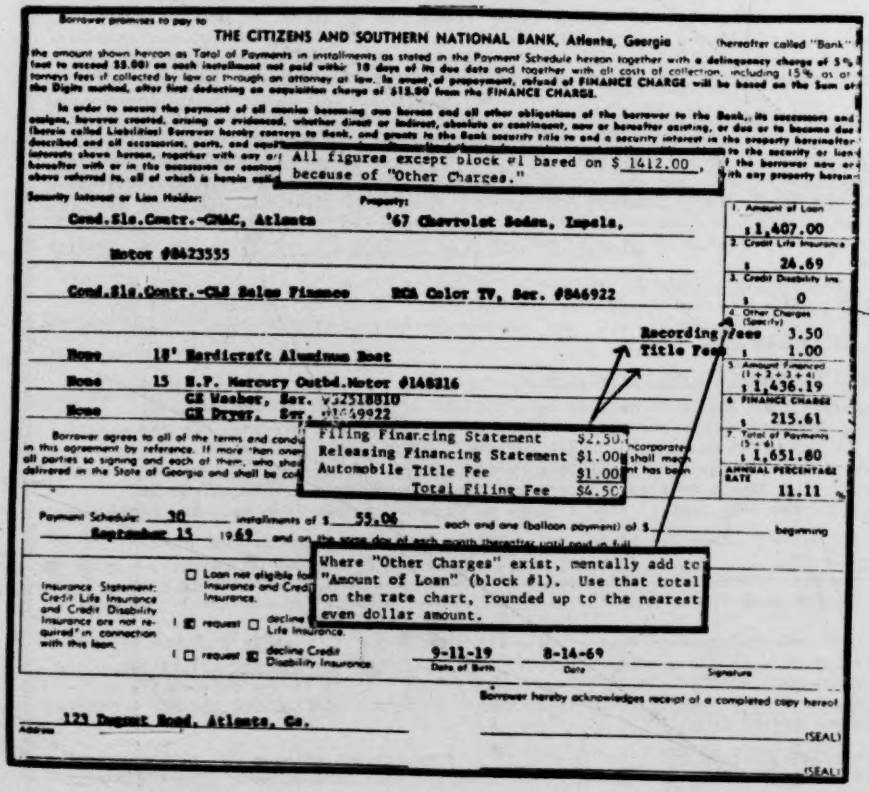
(On Sales Finance contracts, this will be "Unpaid Balance of Cash Price" plus "Physical Damage Insurance" plus "Official Fees" plus "Other charges. Handling in this manner eliminates the need for deducting from the "advance to the dealer".)

Pay applicable documentary fees at time of discounting, by cashier's check. Since the fee charged to the customer includes both the recording fee and the release fee, there should be a very small amount left over - which is the release fee. This should be credited to the General Ledger account MISCELLANEOUS EXPENSE - GENERAL (basic no. 978-00-000).

When the loan is paid out, send a cashier's check for the release fee to the recording office. (See Page 7 - "Release of Filing".) Debit the General Ledger account MISCELLANEOUS EXPENSE - GENERAL (basic no. 978-00-000). Cities with central bill-paying-such as Atlanta - should process this through their central system rather than debiting directly to the General Ledger account.

Replaces Pages 1 and 2 only of: LENDING GENERAL - PERFECTING SECURITY INTERESTS - PROCEDURE AND DOCUMENTARY FEES - Dated 8/29/69

Documentary fees needed at other times - such as to record in other states (when a customer has moved) - should be paid in the same manner. Pay by cashier's check and debit MISCELLANEOUS EXPENSE-GENERAL, or process through your central bill-paying system for the proper entries to be made. N E W



Borrower promises to pay to THE CITIZENS AND SOUTHERN NATIONAL BANK, Atlanta, Georgia hereafter called "Bank"

the amount shown hereon as Total of Payments in installments as stated in the Payment Schedule hereon together with a delinquency charge of 5% (not to exceed $5.00) on each installment not paid within 10 days of its due date and together with all costs of collection, including 15% as attorneys fees if collected by law or through an attorney at law. In event of prepayment, refund of FINANCE CHARGE will be based on the Sum of the Digits method, after first deducting an acquisition charge of $15.00 from the FINANCE CHARGE.

In order to secure the payment of all monies becoming due hereon and all other obligations of the borrower to the Bank, its successors and assigns, however created, arising or evidenced, whether direct or indirect, absolute or contingent, now or hereafter existing, or due or to become due (herein called Liabilities) Borrower hereby conveys to Bank, and grants to the Bank security title to and a security interest in the property hereinafter described and all accessories, parts, and equipment now or hereafter attached to the security or loan and interests shown hereon, together with any and all proceeds of the borrower now or hereafter with or in the possession or control of the borrower now or hereafter with any property hereon above referred to, all of which is herein called Property:

(SEAL)

In all dealer-originated transactions in which the $3.50 filing fee is added the dealer must complete a financing statement, sign it himself, have the buyer sign, and show our bank as assignee; send it to us along with the conditional sales contract.

1. BANK-HELD COLLATERAL (i.e., Stock Certificates, Assignments of Savings Accounts, CVLI):

   Our security interest will be perfected because of "possession" and filing a financing statement is not needed.
   (a) Do not charge a documentary fee.
   (b) Do not file a financing statement.

2. VEHICLES REQUIRED TO BE LICENSED (i.e., Automobiles, Trucks, Mobile Homes, Trailers): A financing statement is not needed since perfection of a security interest in this type collateral is governed by the Georgia Motor Vehicle Title Act. On all models,
   (a) Collect a $1.00 documentary fee.
   (b) Have bank's name and your bank's exact street address shown as first security interest holder on the certificate of title.

3. APPLIANCE AND HOME FURNISHINGS THAT ARE CONSUMER GOODS WITH THE EXCEPTION OF FIXTURES
   (1) If a purchase money security interest can be substantiated, filing is not necessary to perfect. Filing of a financing statement would give one additional protection; it would protect against an individual who buys for his own personal or family use. However because of the usually small amount and minimum risk, a financing statement should not normally be filed.
      (a) Do not charge a documentary fee.
      (b) Do not file a financing statement.
   (2) If ours is not a purchase money security interest, then it will be necessary to file a financing statement in order to perfect. Although in many cases the dollar amount of the transaction may be small, the credits will generally be marginal.
      (a) Charge a documentary fee of $3.50.
      (b) File a financing statement.

4. BOATS AND MOTORS WHICH ARE CONSUMER GOODS:
   (1) If a purchase money security interest can be substantiated, it is not necessary to file a financing statement to have a perfected security interest. However, filing of a financing statement would give one additional protection; it would protect against an individual who buys for his own personal or family use. However the loss exposure from this source is minimal.
      (a) Do not charge a documentary fee.
      (b) Do not file a financing statement.

      Exceptions should be made on questionable transactions and on all transactions of $3,000 or more. File a financing statement on these to gain the additional protection, and charge a $3.50 documentary fee.

   (2) If we do not have a purchase money security interest, it is necessary to file a financing statement in order to have a perfected interest.
      (a) Charge a $3.50 documentary fee.
      (b) File a financing statement.

5. FARM EQUIPMENT FOR FARM USE (Other than vehicles required to be licensed and fixtures):
   (1) If the selling price is $2,500 or less and a purchase money security interest can be substantiated, the security interest is perfected without filing a financing statement. Filing of a financing statement would give one additional protection; it would protect against an individual who buys for his own personal use or farming operation. Again the loss exposure from this is small.
      (a) Do not collect a documentary fee.
      (b) Do not file a financing statement.
      Contracts on chain saws are discounted under a full recourse agreement for several of our better farm dealers. Chain saws may or may not be "farm equipment", but, in any case, this is high risk business. The dealer should understand that we will not file to perfect and that we will not assume any risk of loss of the collateral to another interested party.
   (2) If ours is not a purchase moneysecurity interest or if the selling price exceeds $2,500, it is necessary to file a financing statement to have a perfected security interest. The risk factor warrants filing in every case.
      (a) Collect a $3.50 documentary fee.
      (b) File a financing statement.

Replaces Pages 5 and 6 only of: LENDING GENERAL - PERFECTING SECURITY INTERESTS - PROCEDURE AND DOCUMENTARY FEES - Dated 8-29-69.

6. EQUIPMENT - FARM PRODUCTS - FIXTURES - INVENTORY

It is always necessary to file a financing statement in order to have a perfected security interest in each of these types of collateral. Procedure is:

(a) File a financing statement whenever the transaction exceeds $500 or the risk is greater than normal.

(b) In such cases, charge a $3.50 documentary fee.

EXCEPTIONS TO #6

(1) Domestic Dealers (appliance, furniture and boats and motors): If the dealer's sales are predominantly for home or personal use with only an occasional sale being made to someone that will use the merchandise for business purposes or when the merchandise will become a fixture; we may waive the documentary fee. However, the remaining steps should be followed as outlined.

(2) "Small Equipment" Dealers (retail sales average under $500): This class of business is normally handled on a full recourse basis and if the dealer's financial condition warrants, we may waive the requirements in paragraph 6. When done, we will not assume the risk and the dealer must understand his exposure. Provide the dealer with necessary forms so that he may file if he deems it advisable.

(3) "Heavy Equipment" Dealers:
On rare occasions, where the dealer's financial condition warrants, a dealer may be permitted to file the financing statement himself. This is no different from past procedures where an occasional dealer was permitted to handle his own recordings. When this is permitted, have the dealer show the bank as assignee on the financing statement, and maintain a follow-up to receive a copy of the financing statement acknowledged by the clerk of court.

7. PROPERTY IMPROVEMENT TRANSACTIONS

Whether to record is a matter of credit judgment on each transaction: However, the instrument should be recorded if:

(1) The total note exceeds $1500.00.

R (2) There is reason to believe that the property might be sold during the term of the loan, i.e., customer might be subject to transfer.

(3) Collection problems and deterioration of credit are encountered.

If the note is to be recorded the amount of the documentary fee will depend on where the note is recorded.

(a) If filed as a financing statement, to cover fixtures, collect a $3.50 documentary fee.

N E W (b) If filed in the Real Estate records, the fee is $2.00. Where a Deed to Secure Debt is involved, the fee is $2.00 per page. (Georgia law standardized these fees effective July 1, 1970).

8. COMBINATIONS OF VARIOUS TYPES OF COLLATERAL (i.e., an auto and home furnishings):

In certain multiple collateral transactions, it may be necessary to record in more than one place. In these instances collect a documentary fee sufficient to cover the costs of both recordings and releases.

9. PRIOR LIENS

Some of our loans involve paying off balances with other banks, finance or loan companies. Where we are paying off a secured party on goods (other than vehicles covered by the Title Act) and taking the goods as collateral, we must determine if a financing statement covering the goods has been filed by the secured party. Where this is the case, we should request the secured party to assign his security interest to us. This is accomplished by having the secured party complete the assignment portion of a Uniform Commercial Code-Form 2. When properly filed with the Clerk of Superior Court, the assignment will continue the original filing, showing the bank as the secured party of record, and will afford us the same rights and privileges as those held by the original secured party. Be especially careful to note the maturity date (if any) shown in the assignment and when necessary, file a continuation statement as outlined above under "FILING TO PERFECT".

10. OUT-OF-STATE MOVES

Upon learning of a customer's new out-of-state address, it will be necessary in many instances to take immediate action to perfect our security interest. Requirements vary by state as to place of filing and type of filing. System Consumer Credit can furnish precise information on this when needed.

RELEASE OF FILING

1. Financing Statement:

   The second copy is used to release the filing. Called a Termination Statement, it only requires your signature and $1.00. Send it to the County Clerk to release the filing. (Filing costs $2.50; termination costs $1.00.)

2. Cancellation of Recording of Deeds:

N E W Sign and date the section of the deed that attests to the fact that our interest has been satisifed. Forward the deed and a $.25 cancellation fee to the County Clerk. The clerk will cancel the recording and return the deed to us. The deed should then be forwarded to the customer. (This is an excellent opportunity to develop future business.)

THE FINANCING STATEMENT

The form itself is a four-part snap-out carbon. It is a numbered stock form (19-891). Each copy bears a number and distribution information. Shown on page 8 is an example.

NEW BULLETIN

On the reverse side is illustrated a Power of Attorney form, T-8, which has been approved by the Georgia Title Bureau. This form can be used when needed to expedite or make more convenient the application for, or transfer of, a title certificate by enabling us to sign the customer's name on the necessary papers.

> Example: We are financing a car for our customer who is buying the car from an individual who has it financed with G.M.A.C. After we remit our check to G.M.A.C., they, in turn, would mail us the title certificate with a satisfaction of their lien. It would have to be signed on the reverse side by the seller in order to transfer title to our customer before application for a new title certificate could be made in his name.

PROCEDURE

Future automobile loans involving transfer of ownership between individuals, with title being held by a creditor, should be handled in this manner:

1. Have our customer sign a completed MV-1 form.
2. Have seller sign T-8 form.
3. Mail check to creditor, requesting Title Certificate.
4. Upon receipt of Title Certificate, sign the seller's name, followed by (POA).
5. Forward the properly completed MV-1, Title Certificate, and copy of T-8 to: Motor Vehicle Unit
   109 State Office Building
   Atlanta, Georgia 30334

ORDERING FORMS

The T-8 forms are not supplied by the Title Bureau. An initial supply will be sent to each location by System Consumer Credit. Use is not expected to be heavy enough to warrant making this a regular stockroom item.

Sales Finance offices may wish to mention this to their dealers who may not be using this method, and supply them with the forms.

TOPIC PROPERTY VERIFICATION

 Date 7-1-69

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - PROPERTY VERIFICATION - LEGAL MESSENGER SERVICE Dated 12-10-68

Many times a need arises for property verification that is neither as expensive or exhaustive as the title search, etc., required on a conforming real estate loan. Arrangements have been made with a firm, Legal Messenger Service, Atlanta, telephone 873-5753 collect, that can give us property checking service in approximately 90 Georgia counties. In addition to a listing of the unsatisfied encumbrances of record, there are other items reported which will be of some help:

1. A verification of the exact name in which the property is titled.

2. Since county assessments are, by law, based upon 40% of the market value of the property, some idea of property value can be gained from this information.

3. A record of the various unsatisfied liens of record can provide additional points to be considered in the overall credit.

4. Should you desire to take a security deed, a recordable legal description is provided on each report form.

5. Errors and omissions by this firm, Legal Messenger Service, are insured by Lloyd's of London.

Service in these specifically named counties can normally be expected within N 4 to 8 working hours, at a charge of $15:

Bibb, Chatham, DeKalb, Dougherty, Fulton, Muscogee, Richmond, and Whitfield.

Service is available in about 80 other counties at $20 and $25, and will take somewhat longer than for those listed above. Also, if no record of ownership is found in the name of the applicant, no charge will be made.

INTERVIEW INFORMATION

It is important to secure from the customer, during the initial interview, certain specific information:

1. Exact name in which the property is titled.
2. Specific county where recorded.
3. The year the property was purchased.
4. Any mortgages the Bank is aware of.

It can be helpful also to state the purpose of the report - Legal Messenger Service may be able to give better information if they know this. Contact may be made via collect telephone call to Atlanta, ~~Bill T. Segal~~, 873-5753, area code 404.

REGULATION Z

The cost of the property verification should be handled just as documentary fees - by adding them into the principal balance so the customer will bear the cost. This fee must be shown and identified in the "Other Charges" portion of the note in order to comply with Regulation "Z".

In many of these transactions, the customer will have the right to rescind the transaction by making a written statement within 3 working days of the date of transaction or date of disclosure, whichever is later. (See LENDING GENERAL - REAL ESTATE - RIGHT TO RESCIND).

OPERATING BULLETIN

SECTION LENDING GENERAL

SUBJECT REAL ESTATE

TOPIC RIGHT TO RESCIND

Replaces pages X and 2 ONLY of Bulletin dated 7-1-69.

When we (or Sales Finance dealers) take a first or second mortgage on a customer's residence as collateral on a loan or credit sale (not a purchase of a home), the customer has the right to rescind the transaction during a few days "cooling-off" period. All lending personnel must be completely familiar with this portion of Regulation Z to avoid both violation of the regulation and exposure to possible loss.

GENERAL RULE

In case of any credit transaction in which a security interest or lien interest is or will be retained or acquired in any real property which is used or is expected to be used as the customer's home, the customer shall have the right to rescind that transaction. (See Exceptions To General Rule - next paragraph). This right lasts until midnight of the third business day following the date of consummation of that transaction or the date of delivery of all disclosures required under Regulation Z, whichever is later. (A business day is any calendar day except Sunday, or the following business holidays: New Year's Day, Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veteran's Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas).

The customer rescinds by notifying the creditor by mail, telegram, or other writing of his intention to do so. Notification by mail shall be considered given at the time mailed; notification by telegram shall be considered given at the time filed for transmission; and notification by other writing shall be considered given at the time delivered to the creditor's designated place of business.

NOTE: Creditor, for purposes of this bulletin, means bank or Sales Finance dealer.

EXCEPTIONS TO GENERAL RULE

This section does not apply to:

1. Purchase money first mortgages on customer's residence.
2. Construction loans that will be replaced by permanent financing as in (1) above.
3. Advances for agricultural purposes made under an open end real estate mortgage or similar lien, provided:
   a. The maturity of the advance does not exceed 2 years;
   b. No increase is made in the annual percentage rate previously disclosed; and
   c. All required disclosures were made at the time the security interest was acquired by the creditor or at any time prior to the first advance made on or following July 1, 1969.

   (The Right to Rescind need be given only once on open-end agricultural loans. The Right to Rescind must be given on any new advances made on agricultural loans that comply with (a), (b), and (c) above, after July 1, 1969).
4. Liens such as in (1), (2), and (3) on page 1 that are later placed in second mortgage position (subordination).

Replaces pages 1 and 2 ONLY of Bulletin dated 7-1-69.

E

W

5. A refinancing of one of our own accounts, when the amount of such new transaction does not exceed the balance due at the time.

Ordinarily, however, there will be some increase in the total balance due. When this occurs, the customer must be given the Right to Rescind only the difference between the present balance and the new balance.

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO RESCIND

Whenever a customer has the right to rescind a transaction, the creditor shall give notice of that fact to the customer by furnishing the customer with two copies of the Notice of Right to Rescind, one of which may be used by the customer to cancel the transaction. Before furnishing copies of the notice to the customer, the creditor shall complete both copies with (1) description of the transaction, (2) name of creditor, (3) address of creditor's place of business, (4) date of the transaction, and (5) the date (not earlier than the third business day following the date of the transaction) by which customer may give notice of cancellation.

Form 1405, Right to Rescind, has been developed to use when required. It is a 3-part snap-out carbon form. All three copies have the same wording, front and back, required by law. In addition, the first copy (original, which goes to customer's file) has space and wording at the bottom to secure the customer's signature to attest that he has received two copies of the Right to Rescind forms from you. Example "A" shows the front-page wording, and example "B" shows the reverse-side wording required.

WAIVER OF RIGHT OF RESCISSION

A customer may modify or waive his right to rescind provided:

1. The extension of credit is needed in order to meet a bona fide immediate personal financial emergency of the customer; AND
2. The customer has determined that a delay of 3 business days in performance of the creditor's obligation under the transaction will jeopardize the welfare, health or safety of natural persons or endanger property which the customer owns or for which he is responsible; AND
3. The customer furnishes the creditor with a separate dated and signed personal statement describing the situation requiring immediate remedy and modifying or waiving his right of rescission. THE USE OF PRINTED FORMS FOR THIS PURPOSE IS PROHIBITED.

DELAY OF PERFORMANCE

Except as provided under "Waiver of Right of Rescission", the creditor shall not perform, or cause or permit the performance of, any of the following actions until after the rescission period has expired and he has reasonably satisfied himself that the customer has not exercised his right of rescission:

Notice To Customer Required By Federal Law:

You have entered into a transaction on 7/1/69 which may result in a lien, mortgage, or other security interest on your home. You have a legal right under federal law to cancel this transaction, if you desire to do so, without any penalty or obligation within three business days from the above date or any later date on which all material disclosures required under The Truth In Lending Act have been given to you. If you so cancel the transaction, any lien, mortgage, or other security interest on your home arising from this transaction is automatically void. You are also entitled to receive a refund of any down payment or other consideration if you cancel. If you decide to cancel this transaction, you may do so by notifying:

EFFECT OF RESCISSION. When a customer exercises his right to rescind under paragraph (a) of this section, he is not liable for any finance or other charge, and any security interest becomes void upon such a rescission. Within 10 days after receipt of a notice of rescission, the creditor shall return to the customer any money or property given as earnest money, downpayment, or otherwise, and shall take any action necessary or appropriate to reflect the termination of any security interest created under the transaction. If the creditor has delivered any property to the customer, the customer may retain possession of it. Upon the performance of the creditor's obligations under this section, the customer shall tender the property to the creditor, except that if return of the property in kind would be impracticable or inequitable, the customer shall tender its reasonable value. Tender shall be made at the location of the property or at the residence of the customer, at the option of the customer. If the creditor does not take possession of the property within 10 days after tender by the customer, ownership of the property vests in the customer without obligation on his part to pay for it.

1. Disburse any money other than in escrow;
2. Make any physical changes in the property of the customer;
3. Perform any work or service for the customer; or
4. Make any deliveries to the residence of the customer if the creditor has retained or will acquire a security interest other than one arising by operation of law.

EFFECT OF RESCISSION

When a customer rescinds, he is not liable for any finance or other charge, and any security interest becomes void. Within 10 days after receipt of a notice of rescission, the creditor shall return to the customer any money or property given as earnest money, downpayment, or otherwise, and shall take any action necessary or appropriate to reflect the termination of any security interest created under the transaction. If the creditor has delivered any property to the customer, the customer may retain possession of it. Upon the performance of the creditor's obligations, the customer shall tender the property to the creditor, except that if return of the property in kind would be impracticable or inequitable, the customer shall tender its reasonable value. Tender shall be made at the location of the property or at the residence of the customer, at the option of the customer. If the creditor does not take possession of the property within 10 days after tender by the customer, ownership of the property vests in the customer without obligation on his part to pay for it. It is vitally important that our Sales Finance Property Improvement dealers understand this.

JOINT OWNERSHIP

Where two or more owners are involved:

N
1. Each owner who is a party to the transaction must be given two completed copies of the Right to Rescind form.
2. Any one may rescind; and the effects apply to all.
3. A waiver must be signed by all owners who are parties to the note.

OVER-THE-COUNTER LOANS

To comply with the disclosure provisions of Regulation Z and conform to the regulation with respect to rescindable transactions, specific steps must be taken in documentation and disbursement.

Where we take a first or second lien on real estate as secondary collateral to a consumer loan (generally in amounts of $10,000 or less), the following procedures should be followed. The handling of other real estate loans will be governed by instructions from our Real Estate Department.

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - REAL ESTATE - RIGHT TO RESCIND - Dated 7-1-6[illegible]

A. At the time of approval of a rescindable transaction:

1. Prepare all applicable loan forms and obtain customer's signature where required. Give him a copy containing the disclosure information.
2. Complete Notice of Right to Rescind, give two copies to your customer, obtain his signature, acknowledging receipt of the forms on the original which should be retained with the other loan forms.

B. Wait until the rescission period has expired before disbursing funds. After the rescission date, Regulation Z requires that you reasonably satisfy yourself that your customer has not rescinded the transaction. Then make a note in the customer's file showing the date, how you determined fact of non-rescission, and sign it. Example "C" may be used where customer's signature is desired.

C. Disburse funds and complete handling of the transaction.

Keep in mind that if the transaction is rescinded, you cannot collect the cost of appraisal or title check from your customer. If you feel there is a probability that your customer will rescind, steps A and B can be taken subject to appraisal and title check, which will then be made after the waiting period. This is a judgment decision, taking into consideration that unwarranted delays are contrary to our concept of good customer service.

SALES FINANCE

Dealers transacting business in which the Right to Rescind is involved must follow essentially the same steps as shown on page 5 under Over-The-Counter Loans before making delivery or commencing work for the customer.

Normally, a dealer will obtain a sales agreement as the first step and at this point will execute the Notice of Right to Rescind. Sales agreements used by dealers must be reviewed and approved by us as conforming to Regulation Z in all respects and a copy of the sales agreement must accompany the loan documents. In addition, we also require a signed copy of (1) the Notice of Right to Rescind and (2) the Certification That Right of Rescission Has Not Been Exercised.

The penalties resulting from failure to give a customer the right to rescind are so severe that a legitimate dealer would be foolhardy to willfully ignore this provision of Regulation Z. Unfortunately it is difficult to legislate "fly by night" dealers or unscrupulous salesmen out of existence. This act makes it increasingly important that we keep constantly aware of the sales methods of our dealers and that we verify individual transactions as stipulated on Approval of Dealer Lines for classes of business and various dealers. Verifications for completion and workmanship should now also include a verification that the customer was notified of his right to rescind.

Where applicable the assignment on our note and contract forms has been revised to include a warranty that Regulation Z has been complied with.

SECURITY FOR PRIOR DEBT

N

If we demand additional security on an already existing debt, our agreement to defer payment of the existing debt constitutes "credit". If the customer then offers his personal residence, he must be given the right to rescind. This will not apply to the original debt - only to the remaining balance. COLLECTION PERSONNEL NEED TO TAKE PARTICULAR NOTE OF THE FOREGOING.

ORDERING FORMS

SECTION LENDING GENERAL

SUBJECT REAL ESTATE

TOPIC SECONDARY COLLATERAL

 Date 10/31/69

NEW BULLETIN

In relation to consumer loans, both State and National banks are permitted to take real estate as secondary collateral without conforming to the regulations governing real estate loans. Usually the need for secondary collateral arises in transactions where the basic credit of the borrower is satisfactory, but where larger amounts or extended terms make it desirable to strengthen the loan against unforeseen contingencies.

The National and State banking regulations are clear in defining the circumstances under which real estate may be taken as secondary collateral. As a matter of policy, we want to be sure that primary reliance is not being placed on the real estate. Also, complete documentation and recording are mandatory, so that in event of default we can recover on the secondary collateral.

NATIONAL BANKS

The following definition from the Comptroller's Manual makes clear what constitutes a real estate loan, and also states what does not constitute a real estate loan.

"General Definition: A real estate loan within the meaning of 12 U.S.C. 371 (Par. 668) is any loan secured by real estate where the bank relies upon such real estate as the primary security for the loan. Where the bank, in its judgment relies substantially upon other factors, such as the general credit standing of the borrower, guaranties, or security other than real estate, the loan does not constitute a real estate loan within the meaning of 12 U.S.C. 371 (Par. 668), although as a matter of prudent banking practice it may also be secured by real estate."

HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS

The governing quotation is from the Comptroller's Manual: "Home Improvement loans made in substantial reliance upon the credit standing of the borrower, insurance, collateral, or combinations of these factors, are not real estate loans, and additional security in the form of junior mortgages taken as a matter of prudent banking practice, need not meet the requirements of U.S.C. 371 (Par. 668)." (The requirements of U.S.C. 371 (Par. 668) pertain to conforming real estate loans).

NEW BULLETIN

STATE BANKS

HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS

State banking regulations governing real estate loans specifically exempt unsecured home improvement loans, and home improvement loans where second mortgages are taken: "Home improvement loans, whether insured or not, made in primary reliance upon the character and credit standing of the borrower, where such additional security in the form of a junior mortgage is taken as a matter of prudent banking practice, may be exempt from the limitations and restrictions imposed by this regulation."

OTHER LOANS

State banking regulations governing real estate loans specifically exempt loans that mature in 3 years or less and do not exceed $3,500.

CREDIT REQUIREMENTS

The extent of investigation and the results of investigation must be sufficient and favorable enough to substantiate a conclusion on the part of any examiner that the real estate is indeed secondary collateral. In addition, the discount sheet should carry a short statement of the basis for the loan other than the lien on real estate.

PRE-EXISTING DEBT

Both National and State banking regulations exempt liens taken on real estate to secure pre-existing debt from the requirements covering real estate loans. In work-out situations, equity in real estate should always be considered as possible security to strengthen any proposed revision of repayment terms and improve the chances of ultimate collection.

EVALUATION AND APPRAISAL OF COLLATERAL

Although banking regulations do not require a stipulated form of appraisal, it is essential that the lending officer satisfy himself as to the value and equity in real estate being taken as secondary collateral. Frequently an evaluation can be made based on general knowledge of the neighborhood plus verification of date of purchase, purchase price and amount of existing mortgage. The file should reflect this data. If a more complete appraisal is necessary, it may be made in proper form by the lending officer or outside agency.

NEW BULLETIN

VERIFICATION OF OWNERSHIP AND TITLE

Generally, a property checking report made by Legal Messenger Service will be sufficient. See LENDING GENERAL - REAL ESTATE - PROPERTY VERIFICATION. If there is any reason to doubt the ownership or validity of title, obtain an attorney's title opinion.

Any out-of-pocket appraisal costs, title checking costs and documentary fees should be collected from the customer. For method, see LENDING GENERAL - PERFECTING SECURITY INTERESTS - PROCEDURE AND DOCUMENTARY FEES.

SECURITY DEED

In addition to the note and whatever agreements are necessary on the basic transaction, the secondary real estate collateral will require the execution of a Security Deed (Form 32-1034). Record the deed in the county clerk's office of the county in which the property is located. Be sure that the recording is release when the loan is paid in full.

RIGHT TO RESCIND

If the loan is for personal, family, household, or agricultural purposes, and the second mortgage is on his home, the customer has the right to rescind. If so, we must use our Right to Rescind form (19-1405). See LENDING GENERAL - REAL ESTATE - RIGHT TO RESCIND.

INSURANCE

Evidence of adequate insurance coverage must be obtained showing us as loss payee as "OUR INTERESTS MAY APPEAR".

CLASSIFICATION

Loans made with real estate taken as secondary collateral will be classified according to the nature of the loan - NOT as a Real Estate loan.

The Consumer Credit Protection Act was passed by Congress in May, 1968, to give more protection to the consumer. Title I of this Act is entitled "Consumer Credit Cost Disclosure" and may also be called the Truth-In-Lending Act. This title covers disclosure of credit terms, and the right to cancel or rescind certain transactions.

Congress empowered the Federal Reserve Board to draw up regulations to implement Title I of Act. Regulation Z was the result and will be the guiding source. The Federal Reserve Board will interpret the regulations as particular points are raised. Most of the provisions in this legislation will be covered here, however, some major points will be covered in other bulletins.

TYPES OF CREDIT COVERED

"All credit of $25,000 or less, or if secured by real estate regardless of amount, which is primarily for personal, family, household, or agricultural purposes made to a person, if a finance charge is made or the transaction is payable in four or more payments".

N Credit for business or commercial purposes, other than agricultural purposes, is not subject to Regulation Z.

The Act covers a lot more than consumer transactions. For instance, all loans in CAS and Sales Finance, almost all installment loans, and a great many loans that we classify as time, term, real estate and demand loans are covered. When making a loan, we must now always determine the purpose of the loans, since this is the controlling factor as to whether the loan is regulated. Whenever there is any doubt as to whether a particular transaction is covered, go ahead and make the required disclosures.

N E W NOTE: The Federal Reserve Board has commented on one particular type of "mixed-purpose" credit, and has clarified the issue to some degree. "Credit extended to an owner of a dwelling containing more than 4 family housing units for the purpose of acquiring, financing, refinancing, improving, or maintaining that dwelling is an extension of credit for business or commercial purposes".

REGULATORY AUTHORITIES

Nine federal agencies will enforce the Act. In banking the three agencies below are responsible:

National Banks - Comptroller of Currency
Member Banks - Federal Reserve Board
Non-Member Insured Banks - Board of FDIC

FINANCE CHARGE DEFINITION

"The sum of all charges imposed directly or indirectly by the creditor as a condition to the extension of credit and payable directly or indirectly by the customer to the creditor or third party by the customer, seller, or anyone else on behalf of the customer".

We will still continue to use some old terminology such as interest, etc., but we will have to combine all charges imposed into one amount using the term "Finance Charge".

Certain charges are not part of the Finance Charge if itemized and disclosed They are:

Real Estate Transactions

1. Fees for title search, title insurance, and property surveys.
2. Fees for preparation of deeds, settlement statements, or other documents.
3. Escrow amounts for taxes, insurance, etc., and
4. Fees for credit reports, appraisals and notarizing of documents.

Other Credit Transactions

1. Fees for perfecting, releasing or determining if a security interest exists on property related to the transaction.
2. Taxes, license fees and title fees required by law.
3. Credit life and disability insurance, if the insurance is not required by the creditor and the customer signs separately indicating his desire to purchase the insurance.
4. Property insurance if the customer is given the option of purchasing the insurance through any agent of his choice and
5. Late charges or reinstatement charges if imposed for actual unanticipated occurrences.

DEMAND LOANS

A one half year maturity will be used to compute the amount of Finance Charge and Total of Payments. Information to this effect will be printed on all time notes being revised.

NEW BULLETIN

ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE

The purpose of quoting an annual percentage rate is to reduce all transactions to a single comparative term which will supposedly allow the customer to "shop" for credit just like any other item he may purchase. All credit transactions covered must carry this disclosure.

We will use various sources to determine what the actual percentage will be.

SPECIFIC INFORMATION TO BE DISCLOSED

The law requires many items of information to be disclosed. All of this information is incorporated in our notes and contracts and will not be covered here.

MULTIPLE CREDITORS

Where there is more than one creditor in a transaction all must be identified in the note or disclosure statement.

MULTIPLE CUSTOMERS

Other than requirements imposed on rescindable transactions (in which case disclosures must be made to all parties to the transaction), disclosures need only be made to one customer, but that customer must be a primary party, not an endorser or guarantor.

UNKNOWN INFORMATION ESTIMATE

If information that is required to be disclosed is not available at the time the loan is made, an estimate can be made and identified as such, as long as the actual disclosures are delivered when this information is determined.

Special procedures are being developed for our auto-draft loans (See OVER-THE-COUNTER - AUTOMOBILE LOANS - DRAFT PLAN).

EVIDENCE OF COMPLIANCE

We must keep evidence that we are complying with the Act for two years after all disclosures are made. An extra copy of the note is being provided for this purpose. (See: ACCOUNTING - RECORD RETENTION).

NEW BULLETIN

CHARGE ACCOUNT SERVICE ACCOUNT NOTIFICATION

Certain information must be given to all new CAS customers before the 1st transaction and all CAS accounts during July 1969. (See CHARGE ACCOUNT SERVICE - CREDIT APPROVAL - NEW APPLICATIONS).

FINANCE CHARGE PAID SEPARATELY

Any Finance Charge paid separately, such as points or discounts on real estate loans, must be:

1. Deducted from the proceeds and
2. Added to the Finance Charge when computing the amount of Finance Charge and Annual Percentage Rate.

REQUIRED DEPOSIT BALANCE

If a balance in a specific amount or percentage is required to be kept with the creditor as a condition of the loan, this amount must be deducted from the "Amount Financed" when computing the "Annual Percentage Rate". Certain types of balances are exempt:

1. Escrow amounts for taxes, insurance, etc.
2. A deposit balance that will be wholly applied to the loan at maturity.
3. A deposit balance in existence prior to the date of the transaction offered as collateral in the transaction.
4. A deposit balance created by the loan and offered as collateral for the loan, upon written request of the customer.

FIRST LIEN CONSTRUCTION LOANS

The amount of Finance Charge and Total of Payments need not be disclosed on real estate credit sales and real estate loans made to purchase real estate. Construction loans are considered purchase money real estate loans, regardless of whether the customer previously owned the land, and are exempt from these two disclosures.

ADD-ON CONTRACTS

Disclosures must be made at the time of the transaction unless previous collateral is released. We will disclose at the time of the add-on sale.

NEW BULLETIN

ADVANCES UNDER LOAN COMMITMENTS

If all disclosures are made at the time of the loan commitment each advance under the commitment need not carry full disclosure.

REFINANCES, CONSOLIDATIONS OR INCREASES IN EXISTING ACCOUNTS

All loans of this type must be treated as original extensions of credit and all required disclosures made.

TRANSFER OF EQUITY OR LOAN ASSUMPTION

All required disclosures must be made to the new customer before he becomes obligated. Our Transfer of Equity form has been revised for this purpose. (See LENDING GENERAL - TRANSFER OF EQUITY).

EXTENSIONS AND DEFERRALS

Certain information is required to be disclosed in connection with every extension or deferral. (See: COLLECTIONS - EXTENSIONS).

RIGHT TO RESCIND OR CANCEL

In instances where a security interest or lien interest may be retained or acquired in real property that is expected to be used as the customer's residence, the customer can cancel the transaction during a three day period. Notice of this right must be given to the customer and the creditor is prohibited from performing under the contract until this period has expired. The customer may waive this right under certain circumstances. Also certain transactions are exempt from this right. (See: LENDING GENERAL-REAL ESTATE - RIGHT TO RESCIND)

ADVERTISING OF CREDIT TERMS

We have never advertised rates and terms to any degree and this area will not affect us too much. However, every officer who handles any advertising material should be familiar with these provisions.

Regulation Z is quite specific in what cannot be advertised. Generally speaking, if any of the terms of a transaction are advertised then all must be advertised. Advertisement means any method or media used to aid or promote an extension of credit. No advertisement may state:

1. That a specific amount of credit or installment amount can be arranged unless the creditor usually and customarily arranges or will arrange credit amounts or installments for that period and in that amount; or

2. That no down payment or a specified down payment will be accepted unless the creditor usually and customarily accepts or will accept down payments in that amount.

ADVERTISING OPEN END CREDIT

No advertisement may set forth any of the items required to be disclosed when opening a new account, or that no down payment, a specified down payment, or a specified periodic payment is required, or any of the following unless all the following items are set forth clearly and conspicuously in prescribed terminology:

1. An explanation of the time period during which any credit extended may be repaid without incurring a finance charge.
2. The method of determining the balance upon which a Finance Charge may be imposed.
3. The method of determining the Finance Charge, including any minimum or fixed charge that may be imposed.
4. Each periodic rate used to compute the Finance Charge, the range of balances to which each rate is applicable, and the corresponding Annual Percentage Rate.
5. The conditions under which other charges will be imposed and how they are determined.
6. The minimum periodic payment required.

ADVERTISING CREDIT OTHER THAN OPEN END

No advertisement shall state:

1. The rate of Finance Charge unless it states the rate of charge expressed as an Annual Percentage Rate.
2. The amount of down payment required or that no down payment is required, the amount of any installment, the dollar amount of any Finance Charge, the number of installments or period of repayment or that there is no charge for credit, unless it states all of the following in prescribed terminology:
   (a) Cash price of amount of loan.
   (b) Amount of down payment or that none is required.
   (c) The number, amount and due dates of all payments or period of repayment if the credit is extended.
   (d) The Finance Charge expressed as an Annual Percentage Rate.
   (e) Except in the case of a sale of a dwelling or a purchase money loan to purchase a dwelling, the deferred payment price or the total of payments as applicable.

Dated 2-17-67

Due primarily to changes in our Credit Life Insurance and Disability Insurance Programs, our rate charts were revised in May, 1971. This bulletin reflects these changes. All charts not mentioned in this bulletin are obsolete, and must be destroyed immediately.

CODING

Each installment loan rate chart has a code in the lower left corner, which designates the basis on which the chart was calculated. These must be used in ordering charts. While the column headings on each chart identify the types of insurance coverages provided, the codes are important in assuring that the proper charts are used.

KEY TO CHART CODING

Insurance Coverages Provided, If Any. Charts for most rates are available (1) with no insurance, (2) with only Credit Life Insurance, and (3) with both Credit Life and Disability Insurance.

C - Life Insurance @ 92¢ per $1,000 of outstanding balances per month

D - Disability Insurance @ .65% per annum

E - Property Insurance @ $1.20 per $1,000 of outstanding balances per month

(If no symbol is shown, no insurance coverages are provided)

The Rate On Which The Chart Is Computed

5.75 = 5.75%. 6 or 6.00 = 6.00%.

The Basis On Which The Rate Is Applied

A - Indicates the chart was computed using the Add-on Method.
S or SA - Indicates the chart was computed using the Simple (Actuarial) Method.

The Payment Frequency Used In Calculating The Charts

M - Monthly Payments
Q - Quarterly Payments

Monthly payment charts without insurance do not have a payment frequency code.

The Maximum Term, Or Range Of Terms, Shown On The Chart

36 - terms of 6, 12, 15, 18, 21, 24, 30, and 36 months

60 - on monthly payment charts, terms of 42, 48, 54, and 60 months

Q-60 - on quarterly payment charts, terms of 9, 12, 15, 18, 21, 24, 30, 36, 42, 48, 54, and 60 months

84 - on charts without insurance, terms of 66, 72, 78, and 84 months

84 - on charts with insurance, terms of 48, 60, 72, and 84 months

120 - terms of 90, 96, 108, and 120 months. (Not available with disability insurance)

324-M - 3, 6, 9, 12, 15, 18, 21, and 24 months, with a minimum finance charge

636-M - on appliance charts, terms of 6, 9, 12, 18, 24, 30, and 36 months, with a minumum finance charge

COLOR CODING

In addition to the coding and the column heading designations, charts are printed on different color stock according to the type insurance included:

Buff - no insurance

Blue - Credit Life Insurance Only

White - Both Credit Life and Disability Insurance

ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE (A.P.R.)

This is the Actuarial Rate equivalent to the rate used in calculating the rate chart. This rate must appear on all notes and contracts. On charts calculated by the Simple (Actuarial) Method, the A.P.R. is the same as the rate used in calculating the chart. On charts which include a minimum finance charge, the A.P.R. for each amount advanced is shown in the extreme right column under each term. For all other charts, the A.P.R. is shown at the bottom of each term in bold face type followed by a % sign.

CHART CALCULATIONS

The "charge" is computed at the base rate on the "unpaid balance" plus insurance premiums. The insurance premiums are computed on the note amount, or on the cumulative outstanding balances over the term of the note.

REGULAR MONTHLY PAYMENT CHARTS

These are calculated on the add-on method. They are used for over-the-counter lending, as well as for sales finance. The maximum legal add-on rate for over-the-counter loans to individuals is 6%.

MINIMUM CHARGE CHARTS

In addition to the regular monthly payment charts, charts are available which have a built-in minimum charge of $6.00 plus 50¢ per payment. These are prepared as stapled booklets, punched to fit the standard rate chart binders. They show the Annual Percentage Rate (A.P.R.) for each amount of "unpaid balance". The amounts at the top of the chart ($1 - $19) do not include the minimum charge, so they can be combined with any larger unpaid balance. Quote the A.P.R. shown for the larger amount. Under no circumstances should balances be combined for amounts over $1,800 (the largest unpaid balance on the chart). Instead, use the appropriate regular monthly payment chart.

These charts provide for terms of 3, 6, 9, 12, 15, 18, 21, and 24 months. They are available with no insurance, with life insurance only, and with life and disability insurance, at add-on rates of 6%, 7%, and 8%.

The following codes identify the minimum charge charts:

Replaces Bulletin: LENDING GENERAL - RETAIL RATES - RATE CHARTS - Dated 2-17-67

QUARTERLY PAYMENT CHARTS

These charts are computed at 6% add-on with credit life insurance, and without insurance. Terms provided are 9, 12, 15, 18, 21, 24, 30, 36, 42, 48, 54, and 60 months. The chart codes are:

6AQ60 - No Insurance

C-6AQ60 - With Credit Life

Quarterly rebate charts are also available.

CONVERSION TABLES

There are two conversion tables for equal monthly payments:

1. "Add-on Rates Converted To Actuarial Annual Percentage Rates" - use this table to determine the A.P.R. when the charges are computed at a straight add-on rate. Order by code "AO-APR".

2. "Actuarial Annual Percentage Rates Converted To Dollar And Cent Charges Per $100" - instructions for its use are printed on the cover. This chart can also be used in making term loans at a simple interest rate - simply multiply the amount financed by the appropriate dollar and cent factor to determine the finance charge. Order by code "APR-D&C".

EMPLOYEE LOAN CHARTS

These charts are designed especially for use in making loans to employees and are identified as "Employee" charts. They are computed at 4.50% simple and 5% simple (actuarial), and are available without insurance, with credit life insurance, and with credit life and disability insurance. Terms are provided to 60 months. Life and disability insurance is calculated at ½% per annum per each coverage. The chart codes are:

Employee	4.5SM60 and	Employee	5.SM60 - No Insurance
Employee	C-4.5SM60 and	Employee	C-5.SM60 - With Credit Life Only
Employee	CD-4.5SM60 and	Employee	CD-5.SM60 - With Credit Life and Disability

SINGLE PAYMENT CHARTS (TIME LOANS)

The only chart available for use in making single payment loans is the "Conversion Chart - Single Payment Loan - 365 Day Basis". This chart is used to find the Annual Percentage Rate (A.P.R.), after the finance charge is calculated. No charts are available for calculating the finance charge.

Dated 2-17-67

For instructions on calculation of finance charge and A.P.R. by audio and video inquiry to the computer, as well as by manual computation, see the bulletin "OVER THE COUNTER - SINGLE PAYMENT TIME LOANS TO INDIVIDUALS."

REBATE CHARTS

Rebate charts are available for monthly payment loans and for quarterly payment loans. The chart for monthly payment loans covers terms up to 60 months. The chart for quarterly payment loans covers terms up to 48 months. Order "Rebate Chart - Monthly" or Rebate Chart - Quarterly". For monthly payment loans with terms up to 120 months, the book "Financial Monthly Rebate Table" is available. Order by name.

SALES FINANCE CHARTS

APPLIANCE DEALER CHARTS

These charts are for use in Sales Finance transactions only. They are prepared at four rates - 8%, 9%, 10% and the Georgia Maximum Rate of 12% on the first $400 and 10% on the excess. They also include a minimum charge of $6.00 plus 50c per payment. Terms of 6, 9, 12, 18, 24, 30, and 36 months are provided for each rate. Minimum payment amount is $7.50. Charts are available at each rate with life, disability, and property insurance. Charts are available at the Georgia maximum rate with no insurance, and with both life and disability insurance. We do not offer the option of selecting only credit life on a deal using the Georgia maximum rate. Since the customer must be given the choice of insurance, dealers must be supplied with regular monthly payments charts at 8%, 9%, and 10% with no insurance, with life only, and with life and disability. We do not offer the option of selecting Property Insurance only.

The identification codes for appliance charts are:

8% - CDE - 8A636-M
9% - CDE - 9A636-M
10% - CDE -10A636-M

Georgia Maximum - CDE-12/10A636-M - With Life, Disability, and Property Insurance
CD-12/10A636-M - With Life and Disability
12/10A636-M - No Insurance

FARM PLAN CHARTS

These charts are computed at simple (actuarial) interest rates, rather than at add-on rates. Each chart provides monthly payments for terms of 6, 12, 18, 24, 30, 36, 42, 48, 54, and 60 months. They also provide up to 5 years terms on 2, 3, 4, and 5 crop payment plans, plus semi-annual and one-amount payments. The charts are printed on different color stock for easy identification. They do not have an identification code.

INSERTS

They are available which either explain the insurance coverage, or provide a suitable cover sheet for use in dealer rate chart books.

Insurance - credit life insurance disability insurance property insurance
boat and motor insurance

Cover Sheets - Boat and Motor Financing
Dental Payment Plan
Equipment Financing
Farm Equipment Financing
Home Appliance Financing
Home Repairs and Remodeling

INDEXES

Card Stock Index Tab Separators are available for automobile dealer rate books with the following wording printed on the tabs:

Preface	2, 3, & 4 Years Old	Miscellansous
Current Model	5 Years & Over	Insurance
1 Year Old

RATE CHART COVERS

There are five rate chart covers available:

Green Unprinted Paper (Form 19-870)
Blue Printed Paper, With Brads (Form 19-1021)
Blue Plastic ¼", With Brads (Form 19-3005-0)
Blue Plastic ½" Ring Binder (Form 19-3010)
Blue Plastic 1" Ring Binder (Form 19-3015)

These covers should be requisitioned by form number from the Purchasing Department, Atlanta.

The blue printed C&S paper cover (form 19-1021) is for use by C&S Bank Dealers. The blue plastic covers may be given to C&S Dealers, also. However, because of the relatively high cost to the distributing office, these plastic binders should not be used in lieu of our standard blue paper cover. Consider using them in cases of volume dealers, and in competitive situations where the need for a quality cover exists.

The blue plastic ½" ring binders (form 19-3010) should be sufficient for most lending officers in C&S Offices.

DEALER RATE CHART BOOK PREPARATION

Our rate chart structure is designed so that individual rate books may be "tailor made" by selecting suitable rate charts and inserts to be enclosed in the C&S rate chart cover (19-1021) or the blue plastic ½" cover. A typcial book will consist of cover, insert describing class of business, insurance inserts, if applicable, and the rate chart itself. The complete rate book represents an attractive advertising piece and should always be used - do not give out rate charts except in complete book form.

ORDERING CHARTS

All rate charts, inserts, and indexes should be ordered in writing from Retail Banking, 9 North Avenue, Atlanta. Telephone orders will not be accepted. Orders should specify the chart code of each chart, as shown in this bulletin. Also specify the quantity of each chart needed. A signed supply requisition form must accompany each order. The cost will be billed by the Purchasing Department, along with the regular supply billing.

CORRESPONDENT BANKS

Those correspondent banks which participate in our Group Creditor Insurance Policies (Life, Disability, and Property) may use our charts by ordering from Retail Banking (99 Annex, Atlanta, Georgia 30399). They will receive a bill for the cost. The charts will not be appropriate for non-participating banks because of the difference in premium calculations for each coverage.

OPERATING BULLETIN

SECTION LENDING GENERAL

SUBJECT TITLE ACT

TOPIC

 Date 12-15-67

NEW BULLETIN:

The Georgia Motor Vehicle Certificate of Title Act became effective in July, 1962. Subsequently, it has been amended several times by the State Legislature and numerous changes in mechanics and proceuures have been initiated by the Director of the Motor Vehicle Unit of the Department of Revenue. Recently, the title section of this department was automated and consolidated with other sections of the Motor Vehicle Unit.

While other changes and refinements will undoubtedly continue to occur with the passing of time, many of the original stumbling blocks and problem areas have been eliminated entirely or improved upon. It therefore seems appropriate to include our policy and procedures for operating under the Title Act in the Consumer Credit Operating Guide at this time.

I. GENERAL POLICIES, REQUIREMENTS, AND FORMS

VEHICLES COVERED

Any 1963 or newer model vehicle of the following type is required to be titled if the owner resides in Georgia.

Automobiles
Trucks (including tractor-trailer)
Tractors (unless farm equipment)
Camping Trailers
Mobile Homes

1962 and older model vehicles cannot now be titled. However, between July, 1962 and January, 1964, 1962 and older model vehicles were permitted to be titled if the owner desired to do so; and, all vehicles brought into Georgia from a title state were required to be titled in Georgia. It must be remembered, therefore, when handling a transaction involving a 1962 or older model vehicle, to inquire of the owner if the vehicle has previously been titled in Georgia. If there is a title outstanding on such a vehicle, the procedures for perfecting security interests are the same as those for 1963 and newer models.

BASIC FORMS

The basic forms required for title applications are the MV-1 (automobile), MV-2 (truck), and MV-3 (trailer). These forms are combination tag, title, and ad valorem tax forms and are essentially the same in each of the three instances, except that the appropriate form must be used for the type vehicle involved. The same type application form is used when applying for a new title or tag and whenever making application for subsequent changes in the title or the tag registration. In addition, each time an application is filed it must be accompanied by the appropriate fee. Other commonly used forms are:

NEW BULLETIN:

1. MV-5 Used for making application for a duplicate title.
2. MV-18 Used to make minor corrections in the title and/or tag registration.
3. T-4 Used to release a lien or security interest which has previously been recorded on the title certificate if space is not provided on the back of the certificate for such release.
4. T-8 Used to secure the customer's power of attorney to enable us to handle loans and transfers in a more expeditious manner.
5. T-16 Used to secure a proper title for a vehicle which has been repossessed.
6. T-20 Used to secure a proper title for a vehicle which has been inherited.
7. T-53 Used by a second lien or security interest holder to request the first lien or security interest holder to forward the title certificate to the Motor Vehicle Unit so that the second lien may be recorded thereon.

ALL FORMS MENTIONED IN THIS BULLETIN CAN BE SECURED FROM THE MOTOR VEHICLE UNIT AT NO CHARGE.

TITLING AND TAG REGISTRATION

The titling of a vehicle as in titling of other real property is intended to protect ownership by showing a complete and unquestionable "chain of ownership" from the manufacturer to and including the present owner.

Titling of vehicles does not take the place of tag registration. TITLING proves and protects ownership while TAG REGISTRATION licenses a vehicle to be operated in the state of the owner's residence. Both tag and title (title if 1963 or newer model) are required for vehicles owned by Georgians.

APPLYING FOR TITLE AND TAG

Application for title may be made prior to tag registration; however, application for tag registration cannot be made prior to application for title since the applicant must show proof that title application has been made or that a title has been issued on the vehicle before a tag can be purchased.

Applications for tags must be made each year on or before April 1 or at the time of first sale or transfer of the vehicle after January 1, whichever comes first. These applications must be made through the Tag Agent in the county of legal residence of the individual who owned the vehicle on January 1, and payment for the current year ad valorem taxes on the vehicle must accompany the application.

NEW BULLETIN:

Applications for title are made by sending the Title Application, all supporting documents, and the fee of $1.00, either directly to:

Department of Revenue
Motor Vehicle Unit
Title Section
109 State Office Building
Atlanta, Georgia 30334

or to the county Tag Agent in the county of the owner's residence. As a general rule, it will be our policy to send applications directly to the Motor Vehicle Unit when applying for a title, thus eliminating any delay caused by filing through the Tag Agent.

There are certain situations in which it is impractical to make application for title through the Motor Vehicle Unit for the reasons outlined below:

1. Title applications for new vehicles should be made through the Tag Agent simultaneously with the tag application since:
   a. The law requires that application for a license tag be made within three days after purchase of a new vehicle,
   b. License tags can be purchased only through Tag Agent ,
   c. Proof of application for a Georgia title is require before a tag can be purchased.

   In such cases, the dealer will normally file the application for tag and title with the Tag Agent.
2. Title application for used vehicles not previously registered in Georgia should be made through the Tag Agent simultaneously with the tag application since tags cannot be purchased without proof of application for a Georgia title.

When a change in ownership of a titled vehicle occurs, the owner is required by law to apply for a new title and have the ownership change recorded on the tag registration. If the change in ownership takes place after January 1 and a current year tag has not been purchased, this must be done before the vehicle can be transferred to the purchaser because:

1. The tag registration for a given year is not transferable after December 31 of that year, and
2. The ad valorem taxes for the current year have not been paid by the owner.

The proper procedure would be for the owner of the vehicle as of January 1 to purchase a current year tag in his county of residence, pay the ad valorem taxes, and then assign the tag registration to the purchaser. The purchaser should then make application for title and tag transfer. If this is not done, the purchaser may eventually have to pay the ad valorem taxes on the vehicle for the current year even though he was not the owner on January 1.

NEW BULLETIN:

In view of the above, it should become standard practice, when making a loan on a vehicle involving a change in ownership, to require that the vehicle have a current year tag before the loan proceeds are disbursed. This will protect the bank and the customer against the possibility of a future tax lien being filed for the current year ad valorem taxes.

SECURITY INTERESTS AND LIENS

DEFINITION OF TERMS

1. Security agreement - a written agreement which reserves or creates a security interest.
2. Security interest - an interest in a vehicle reserved or created by agreement which secures the payment or performance of an obligation, such as conditional sales contracts, chattel mortgages, bills of sale to secure debt, etc.
3. Lien - an interest created by operation of law and not by contract or agreement with respect to vehicles, and includes all liens for taxes.
4. A Manufacturer's Statement of Origin is the document issued by the maker of a vehicle to a dealer in a title state providing proof of original ownership by the dealer.

PERFECTING SECURITY INTERESTS

The only way now provided by law for a creditor to establish and protect a legal interest in a vehicle required to be titled in Georgia is to appear on the face of the title certificate itself as a security interest holder. In order to accomplish this, a title application must be completed, showing the name and address of the security interest holder, and must be transmitted, along with the necessary fee and the properly assigned title certificate to either the tag agent in the county of the owner's residence or to the State Motor Vehicle Unit.

A security interest in a vehicle is perfected as of the date of its creation if the application and other necessary documents are delivered to the Revenue Commissioner or his agent (tag agent or Motor Vehicle Unit) within 10 days after creation; otherwise, perfection is not accomplished until the actual date of delivery.

To perfect a security interest in a vehicle which is not required to be titled, the security interest holder completes a T-3 form and mails it, together with a $1.00 fee, to the Motor Vehicle Unit at the State Capitol. Part #1 and Part #2 of the T-3 form will be retained by the State. Part #3 will be validated and returned to the security interest holder.

PERFECTION OF SECOND SECURITY INTEREST

When a second security interest is created in a vehicle which is required to be titled, perfection can only be accomplished by having the security interest recorded on the title certificate. In order to accomplish this, the second security interest holder forwards by registered mail, return receipt requested, the completed Title

NEW BULLETIN:

Application form, the necessary fees, and a request for transmittal (form T-53) to the first security interest holder. The first security interest holder must, within 10 days, forward all the above together with the title certificate to the Motor Vehicle Unit. When a new title certificate is received by the first security interest holder, he must notify the second security interest holder within 5 days after receipt of the certificate, that the certificate has been received and that the second security interest is shown thereon.

RELEASE OF SECURITY INTERESTS

When a security interest is perfected on a titled vehicle, the title certificate is delivered to the first security interest holder by the Motor Vehicle Unit. When the first security interest holder's interest is satisfied, the first security interest holder must forward the title certificate to the next security interest holder shown on the certificate within 10 days of the date of satisfaction. If no other security interest is shown on the certificate, the certificate must be forwarded to the owner within 10 days of the date of satisfaction. The law requires that a release of the security interest be sent to the owner within 10 days after demand for such release. However, since title certificates now have space provided on the back for release of the security interest, it is easier, as a practical matter, to complete this release before the certificate is forwarded to the owner or second security interest holder. On certificates which do not have space for the release printed on the back, a T-4 release form should be prepared and forwarded with the certificate.

To release a security interest which has been filed against a vehicle not requiring a Georgia title, the reverse side of the T-3 form, which was returned at the time of filing, must be completed and mailed to the Motor Vehicle Unit within 10 days of the date of satisfaction of the security interest. No fee is required when releasing a notice.

MECHANIC'S LIENS

It is the unofficial opinion of both the title division and the Attorney General's office, concurred in by our attorneys, that a Mechanic's Lien against a properly titled vehicle would be ineffective if our security interest is shown on the title. They consider the fact that we are on the title to be "constructive notice" to the mechanic of the pre-existence of our security interest, even though he is not told of its existence or does not call the title division to find out. It is their feeling that he cannot retain possession, even after having completed repairs, under these circumstances.

On the other hand, if our security interest does not appear on the title certificate, there is some question about our ability to obtain possession if the mechanic is holding the vehicle pending payment, even though he is not on the title.

REVISION OF PAGE 6 Dated 4-29-68

OTHER LIENS

Although security interests on titled vehicles can only be perfected by having the interest recorded on the title certificate, this is not true of liens. Liens on vehicles for taxes and those created by operation of law (judgments) can be perfected by filing a T-3 notice of lien with the Motor Vehicle Unit, and the existence of this lien will not appear on the title certificate until a subsequent change in the title is requested. When the subsequent title certificate is issued, the lien will appear on the certificate as of the date of its perfection and will take priority over any subsequent lien or security interest.

There is one exception to this priority. Liens for ad valorem taxes on a vehicle take priority over any other lien, regardless of the date of perfection. Where there is a possibility that a lien has been filed against a vehicle and the amount of the loan is more than would otherwise be advanced on the customer's signature, it would be to our advantage to check the T-3 file in the Motor Vehicle Unit before disbursing the loan proceeds.

When a motor vehicle is repossessed and sold, the bank giving the buyer form T-16 and Bill of Sale, all liens except those attached for ad valorem taxes are automatically released from the vehicle when the new title is issued.

TITLE INQUIRIES

The Motor Vehicle Unit has suggested a form letter for use when inquiring about the status of a pending Title Application. A copy of the suggested form is illustrated on the next page. The letter should be reproduced on your bank's letterhead and used when making such an inquiry.

REQUESTS FOR INFORMATION

The law provides that a security interest or lien holder must, upon request, give to any interested party, information concerning the security interest or lien, including the amount, pay off figure, etc.

FOLLOW-UP PROCEDURES

The following procedures apply to all direct loans and sales finance transactions involving vehicles for which a Georgia title is required.

1. At the time the discount sheet is completed, the lending officer should circle the "Y" opposite the word "Title in the completeness check-off box.
2. A collateral follow-up card (19-984) should be made on all transactions involving vehicles requiring a Georgia title. The follow-up date should be no more than forty-five days from the date of loan.
3. As title certificates are received, they should be checked to see that the bank is properly shown as first security interest holder.
4. The title certificate should be checked against the discount sheet to be sure that the description of the vehicle on the title is correct.
5. The title certificate should then be filed in the customer's credit file.
